Sitthi did not hide his impatience and that of ASEAN: "Thailand wishes to see the coalition government set up as soon as possible, whatever the circumstances, and before the meeting of the UN General Assembly which will take place on 15 September 1981." (AFP, 7 September 1981)

In order to realize this goal and in close collusion with Beijing and Singapore, the Thai authorities put pressure on Sihanouk and Son Sann to go and meet with Khieu Samphan in Singapore.

The communique issued on 4 September 1981 following this meeting was in fact prepared in Bangkok. The FAR EASTERN ECONOMIC REVIEW of 18-24 September 1981 wrote in this connection: "The communique issued in Singapore by the three leaders of the Khmer resistance was written out long before by ASEAN. Son Sann, leader of the KPNLF, however, modified it considerably. The project, written by Thailand on behalf of ASEAN, had been the main topic of discussions between Son Sann and Khieu Samphan, leader of the Khmer Rouge, during their conference some 10 days before the Singapore meeting...Samphan agreed with the Thai project while Son Sann found the wording too precise."

Once the communique was made public, Sitthi, on behalf of his government, took it upon himself to declare: "Thailand will provide a meeting place for the parties for additional conversations on the formation of a coalition government." He specified: "General Prem won't object to that." (NATION, 8 September 1981) Shortly after that, the "special committee" set up by Khieu Samphan, Son Sann and Sihanouk was invited to Bangkok to hold working sessions.

From 13 September to the beginning of November 1981 this committee held nine meetings in the Thai capital of 3 to 5 hours each in order to implement the points of the Singapore joint communique written by Thailand and born out of the secret manipulations of Thailand and China.

Even before the first meeting, Sitthi got into touch with Chinese ambassador to Thailand, Shen Ping, in order to [word indistinct] negotiators. According to AFP, the Thai foreign minister successively summoned Son Sann and the representatives of the two other groups on 19 October in order to urge them to reach agreement in their tripartite negotiations deadlocked since September 1981. (AFP, 31 October 1981) Before that, Sitthi was seen "advising Son Sann not to make early demands for concessions from the Khmer Rouge." (The NATION REVIEW, 13 September 1981) During the tripartite meetings, Thailand invited Son Sann to put his signature at the bottom of a memorandum prepared by the Khmer Rouge by which Son Sann would subscribe to three political principles, including the establishment of a new government. At the same time, Thailand urged the Khmer Rouge to satisfy Son Sann's demand for an immediate discussion of the distribution of ministries....(AFP, 31 October 1981)

Aligning himself with the Thai authorities, a high-ranking Singaporean figure said on 14 September 1981: "ASEAN will actively support the resistance forces of Son Sann and Sihanouk in the military, economic and diplomatic fields...only if they form an alliance with the Khmer Rouge."

This threat was in line with the statement by Sitthi in January 1981 when he urged Son Sann to go to Pyongyang: "Any new option for Son Sann would be ill-timed unless he forms an alliance with Pol Pot...." (Bangkok POST, 17 January 1981)

Under the concerted pressure of Thailand, China, the United States and the reactionaries in the ASEAN countries, Son Sann was compelled to declare at the "international conference on Kampuchea," held in New York on 16 July 1981 at the instigation of China, the United States and ASEAN: "According to the advice of friendly countries which are repeated even here, we propose to the representatives of Democratic Kampuchea to negotiate on the spot, without delay, in all good faith and with mutual trust..." "I agree to head the Government of Democratic Kampuchea...."

This time, with the active aid of Thailand, Singapore and observers from other ASEAN countries, Son Sann had to meet with Sihanouk and Khieu Samphan in Singapore and sign the tripartite joint communique of 4 September 1981.

In order to compensate for their pressure, Bangkok and Beijing added a substantial promise of material aid to encourage the Kampuchean henchmen to join together in a "united front." According to AFP (29 April 1981), Son Sann's KPNLF received 3,000 AK rifles and 80-mm mortars sent by China through the Thai-Kampuchean border. On 9 May 1981, following his meeting with Chinese Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping, Sihanouk announced: "China agrees to help Sihanouk completely equip his army" (AFP, 9 March 1981). Rajaratnam, representing the warmongers of Singapore, loudly said: "If an alliance can be founded, Singapore will be counted among the arms-supplying countries..." (AFP, 24 November 1981).

However, the efforts made during these past 2 years by Thailand in collusion with China and the United States have borne no fruit. Assessing the outcome of the meeting held by the special committee of the Kampuchean reactionaries in Bangkok, Sitthi had to admit: "We had a historic meeting of the three Khmer parties in Singapore but the conversations in Bangkok did not proceed in a satisfactory manner...." (The NATION REVIEW, 20 October 1981)

A high-ranking Thai figure did not hide his disappointment: "The government is growing impatient; we blame each other for authorizing the Khmer resistance forces to meet here... our government has the right to lose patience in the face of this deadlock." There was not [word indistinct] of this impatience to the threats. Making a stopover in Copenhagen during one of his visits to the United States, Prem declared: "The Thai Government way no longer authorize the Khmer resistance forces to use Thai territory as a meeting place, if they do not make any progress in their negotiations." And a high-ranking Thai official added: "They must fully understand that without the support of Thailand, they will have many difficulties." (The NATION REVIEW, 17 October 1981)

The Thai menaces went to the Khmer Rouge as well as Son Sann. During a meeting with Sihanouk in Paris, Sitthi intimated clearly to the latter that "his country and the neighboring countries might withdraw their support from the Khmer Rouge if they continued to oppose the establishment of a coalition government to replace the Phnom Penh government supported by Vietnam." And he asked Sihanouk to "push the tripartite negotiations in order to form this government." (KYODO, 2 November 1981)

However, he hinted that "ASEAN would not do anything which might be detrimental to the existing armed forces of 'Democratic Kampuchea', for these forces can maintain pressure on Vietnam." (The NATION REVIEW, 2 November 1981) Therefore, to cut a long story short, the Bangkok authorities in fact sought to maintain the Pol Pot regime, a tool in the service of the Chinese schemes in the region. The most they could do was to put pressure on the Khmer reactionaries to join together against the PRK but never to deny them their support.

While the special committee was marking time, Singapore Deputy Prime Minister Rajaratnam hurried to Bangkok on 21 November 1981 to rescue Thailand "with the intention of serving as intermediary to stave off obstacles to the formation of Kampuchea's coalition government." On the same day, he met with Son Sann; on the following day, he met with Prem and, afterward, with the representatives of the Khmer Rouge and "invited the three resistance groups to form a coalition with Son Sann as the prime minister." Rajaratnam admitted having made new proposals during these separate meetings in order to push the "founding of an anti-Vietnamese alliance." (UPI, AFP, 21-22 November 1981) He did not hide that these proposals were elaborated by him and Sitthi. Rajaratnam then received, one after another, the foreign ministers of Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines, who came to Bangkok with the same goal of putting pressure on the Khmer reactionaries.

On 10 December 1981, the five ASEAN foreign ministers held a meeting in Phatthaya (Thailand) to discuss the support to be given to a flexible coalition government of anti-Vietnamese Khmer groups. (BBC, 10 December 1981)

Will these activities of Thailand and other ASEAN countries prove the "Thai policy of noninterference in the choice of a leader of the creation of a front of Kampuchean patriots groups?" (Bangkok radio, 26 August 1981)

C. Thailand intensifies the creation of political organizations in order to wage sabotage activities in PRK territory.

Besides starting and combined action with Beijing and other reactionaries, such as the maintenance of a Kampuchean seat at the UN in profit of Pol Pot, the organization of "the international conference on Kampuchea," is pressuring Khmer reactionaries for the creation of a united front, support and supplies of remnants of Pol Pot troops for their acts of brigandage in Kampuchean territory.... The Bangkok authorities occupy themselves creating reactionary political organizations among the remnants of Lon Nol, Son Sann, Sihanouk and Pol Pot troops and inserting them into Kampuchea for sabotage purposes.

On 24 June 1979, Hem Krusna, alias Chum Nhel, Chum Chiet, and Hem Sok...under U.S. and Thai orders, gathered some 50 reactionaries from all sides in Phnom Penh and various Kampuchean provinces with the intention of clandestinely founding the "provisional Sereika government for the liberation of the Khmer Republic" -- a reactionary organization in the pay of Bangkok and Washington. Born in 1946 and a former mercenary at Lon Nol's service, he maintained close relations with Thai and U.S. secret services. He proclaimed himself prime minister of this government and appointed 129 ministers.

Hem Krusna was arrested on 3 September 1979 and 17 members of his "government" deserted him in August and September 1979.

They were summoned to the Phnom Penh people's revolutionary tribunal in June 1980. At the bar of the tribunal they confessed to acting under the directions and control of the Thai and U.S. secret services, with Beijing's support. Hem Krusna's "provisional government" was aimed primarily at toppling the people's power. "The nationalist" party -- a reactionary political organization headed by Kot Sam Rach, former colonel of Lon Nol's troops -- was founded on 1 May 1979, with the same objective, as determined by the U.S. and Thailand: Topple the people's power of Kampuchea. The vigilant Kampuchean revolutionary forces rapidly discovered and eliminated it.

Hen Krusna and his ilk: U. Savat, former major of the state police force under Lon Nol and Sihanouk, was arrested on 13 February 1980; Mok Chhom, former second lieutenant under Lon Nol, was arrested on 19 February 1980; Kum Tep Moni, who was formerly a major and commander of the regiment 63 of Lon Nol's general staff was sent to Thailand to master the handling of broadcasting stations, was arrested on 12 October 1979...confessed to have been trained and maintained by Thai and U.S. secret services. They had a mission to gather, with agreement of the Chinese expansionists and Thai reactionaries, antirevolutionary Kampuchean forces and to topple the people's power when the time had come.

Most of the leaders of "this party" fell into the [word indistinct] of the revolutionary forces except Kit Sam Rach, who is actually living at base 007 on the Thai-Kampuchean border. The Bangkok authorities are doing everything possible to help him to return to Kampuchea and continue his sabotage activities. (end of part one)

Part Two

[Text] Phnom Penh, 20 Mar (SPK) -- The second part of the white book published by the PRK Foreign Ministry on 19 March is entitled: Thailand Continues To Carry Out Armed Actions Against the PRK and To Support Those of Kampuchean Reactionaries. Following is the content of this part:

The Thai authorities, in close collusion with the Chinese expansionists, are propping up the debris of Pol Pot troops and carrying out armed actions on an increasingly larger scale against the PRK.

According to a foreign secret service, Beijing has asked for Bangkok's help in creating a joint military command of the three reactionary Kampuchean groups. This command, installed in Thailand, would use Thai territory as a springboard from which to attack Vietnam and the PRK.

According to the same source, after the visits of Prem to China and Zhao Ziyang to Bangkok, and other visits of various Thai military delegations to Beijing in 1981, the Thai Government has put at Chinese disposal several airbases in eastern Thailand for the purpose of carrying out armed actions against Kampuchea.

Thailand has opened about 20 points on the Kampuchean border where Pol Pot followers and other Kampuchean reactionaries come to receive Chinese, U.S. and Thai aid.

At the request of the Chinese and the Khmer Rouge, Thailand has helped open supply corridors for the Pol Pot debris from the border to Koh Kong (through Comak Pass) and a series of other supply lines from Koh Kong to the provinces of Pursat, Kompong Thom...inside Kampuchean territory.

Pen Chhit, alias Men Lon, alias No 13, a former deputy regimental commander of the Pol Pot troops arrested on 13 August 1981, has confessed: At Cham Ka Kor (a Pol Pot base in Kampuchean territory, 6 km from the Thai border) we received sufficient daily supplies of Chinese, U.S. and Japanese aid products such as rice, sugar, canned food, medicines... unloaded from Thai army trucks. If sometimes one counted a single convoy in several months, on certain days one could also count 300 or even 400 trucks... I saw Thai soldiers every day at Cham Ka Kor. I don't know which armed service they belonged to. But I saw them wearing camouflage uniforms and steel helmets, carrying arms and moving around freely in the base.

Concerning another base on Chhat Mountain, 7 km from the Thai border, the same Pen Chhit declared: I have (?been) to Chhat Mountain, where Pol Pot's followers enjoyed the protection of the Thai army. They were quartered around the base of the mountain. Thai artillery set up an observation post on the top, ready to intervene in support of Pol Pot's followers.

At Cham Ka Kor, Pen Chhit could see reconnaissance planes, jets and twin-fuselage cargo planes entering Kampuchea from Thailand. To show clearly that the Pol Pot bases are installed in Kampuchean territory, 6-7 km from the border, Pen Chhit drew a sketch of the places. This sketch provides the proof of Thai violations of the PRK's sovereignty and territorial integrity.

Kong Chhuot, born in 1957 at Prey Chhak, Mongkolborei District, Battambang Province, member of the Pol Pot party, a regimental commander of the Pol Pot troops taken prisoner on 17 October 1980, has made the following declaration:

Toward mid-1979, Thai artillery came to take up positions on Chhat Mountain (near Tap Phia, Thailand). Installed on the top of the mountain was an artillery position comprising 6 175-mm cannons, 6 105-mm cannons, 4 75-mm cannons, 1 antiaircraft gun and a radar station. From this base, the Thai artillery provided support for the Pol Pot troops. Its cannons could reach Sre (Battambang), near national highway No 6. To the west of the base of the mountain, there were 12 military posts manned by 15-20 Thai soldiers each. These posts have the mission of defending the artillery position....

A Thai division is stationed along the border, facing Chhat Mountain, 1.5 km inside Kampuchean territory, to serve as support forces in the sector.

Chhat Mountain is located 4 km from the Kampuchea-Thailand border, in Kampuchean territory, as it is clearly marked on a cement border-post. Thailand has built three roads leading from its territory to Chhat Mountain.

The Thai authorities have allowed the Chinese to use Thai territory to come to the aid of the Pol Pot debris. On this subject, Kong Chhuot has reported:

There are Chinese advisers on Chhat Mountain. Protected by the Thais, they have opened guerrilla warfare training courses for Pol Pot battalion-level officers or soldiers. Pol Pot regiment and division-level officers receive their training at Tap Phia in Thailand. I myself attended a 15-day course there toward the end of 1979. I traveled to Tap Phia in a car driven by a Thai. Lodging, food, everything, was provided by the Thais.

Like Pen Chhit, Kong Chhuot has affirmed: The entire region of the Cham Ka Kor base is under the charge of the Thai troops stationed on Chhat Mountain. Pol Pot troops are concentrated there. They are maintained by the Thais, who supply them with arms for their acts of sabotage in Kampuchean territory. The Thais bring in food and arms directly for their garrison on Chhat Mountain and for the Pol Pot troops. Since late April 1979, they have used GMC trucks for this purpose. They also provide supplies for the Chinese advisers. Between Chhat Mountain and Prey Non there are about 90 Chinese advisers whose mission is to train 3 divisions.

Kong Chhuot drew a sketch of the supply corridors used by the Thais deep in Kampuchean territory.

If their statements on the distance between Chhat Mountain and the border differ slightly from each other, Pen Chhit and Kong Chhuot agree that the mountain is located well inside Kampuchean territory.

The volume of arms and ammunition and other means of war which Thailand has shipped directly or has helped the Chinese ship to the Kampuchean reactionaries has increased appreciably with each passing day. In the first half of 1979, the Pol Pot troops received 3,389 tons compared with 6,490 tons during the same period in 1980.

For 1981, the magazine FAR EASTERN ECONOMIC REVIEW (8-14 May 1981) reported: In just 3 days in mid-April 1981, the Chinese sent to the Son Sann forces via Thailand 250-300 tons of arms and ammunition comprising AK-47 and SKS rifles, type-56 submachineguns, grenade-launchers, rockets, B-40's and B-41's and 60-mm and 80-mm mortars. These weapons were trandported by trucks to Sa Nghe, Nang Samet and Nang Chan villages to arm 1,200 men. The next and second delivery will include antitank recoilless rifles....

The UPI agency on 30 April 1980 reported: Chinese arms, including 82-mm mortars, AK-47 rifles and large amounts of ammunition, were delivered last week to Kampuchean rebel forces led by Son Sann.

However, wishing to prove Thailand's neutrality and thinking they can mislead public opinion, Prime Minister Prem as well as Foreign Minister Sitthi have ceaselessly declared: Thailand does not permit anyone to use its territory in transporting arms and ammunition to the Pol Pot troops.

Facts have given the lie to their statements: In Bangkok, it is reported that a special committee has been set up outside all official organs to transport Chinese aid to anti-Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea. (LIBERATION, 27 May 1981)

A fact worth noting: Thai territory is used not only in transporting Chinese arms for the Pol Pot troops but also for the transit of all Chinese and Western aid for Son Sann's and Sihanouk's forces.

Chau Saray, 30 years old, born at Ta Ong, Battambang District, Battambang Province, belonging to Sereika unit 334, taken prisoner by the Kampuchean revolutionary armed forces, has declared: My unit was stationed in Thai territory, 2 km from the border in the Sam Pikar Mountain region, facing Angkor Chum District, Oddar Meanchey Province. It underwent training there for 1 month before being sent into Kampuchea in April 1980 to carry out military operations.

Phot Sophat, 31 years old, born at Trapeang Thom, Siem Reap Province, a squad leader of lion unit 253 who rallied to the revolutionary forces on 31 April 1980, has declared: My unit, comprising 300 men, is based in Thai territory facing Long Veng, in Kampuchea's Oddar Meanchey Province. It has continously sent its men to carry out operations in Siem Reap Province.

Phoun Kan, a Pol Pot soldier arrested on 26 April 1980, has declared: My unit is based in Thailand, facing Koh Kong in Kampuchea. In July 1980 I was ordered to return with seven others to Kampot Province. Earlier, Thai advisers had taught me how to gather intelligence.

Khuon Ken, 22 years old, a Pol Pot soldier who surrendered to the revolutionary forces on 26 June 1981 in Sangkum Thmey District, Preah Vihear Province, has declared: My unit, comprising about 300 men, is based in Thailand about 20 km from Preah Vihear. After undergoing training, I was sent together with 70 others to conduct operations inside Kampuchea. Near our base in Thailand, there are other units. They are also frequently sent out to conduct operations in Kampuchean territory....

It is the same story for most of the Pol Pot, Sereika or Moulinaka soldiers who were taken prisoner by or rallied to the revolutionary forces. They confessed to having been based and trained in Thailand and then introduced into Kampuchea to carry out acts of sabotage.

Aside from their support from the Kampuchean reactionaries, the Thai authorities have directly conducted large-scale operations in violation of Kampuchea's territorial integrity.

The following is a list of the violations of the PRK's sovereignty and territorial integrity by Thai forces in 1981, according to still incomplete statistics:

January: 71 violations of Kampuchean airspace by Thai aircraft in reconnaissance flights or in support of infantry or artillery; 449 artillery bombardments; and 67 infantry incursions into Kampuchean territory.

February: 29 airspace violations; 418 artillery bombardments; 30 infantry incursions; and 32 violations of Kampuchean territorial waters by warships or armed vessels (one of them was captured on 16 February by the Kampuchean Navy).

March: 48 airspace violations; 485 artillery bombardments; 35 infantry incursions; and 149 violations of territorial waters.

April: 29 airspace violations; 495 artillery bombardments; 27 ground incursions; and 54 violations of territorial waters.

May: 76 airspace violations; 675 shellings; 14 incursions; and 42 violations of territorial waters. On 29 and 30 May, Sr-71 aircraft overflew Preah Vihear and the Phnom Penh region.

June: 45 airspace violations; 765 shellings; 36 ground incursions; and 410 violations of territorial waters. On 26 June, at 1000, F-5 aircraft fired rockets at Kampuchean border guards on height 199.

July: 46 airspace violations; 849 shellings; 15 ground incursions; and 788 violations of territorial waters. Thai aircraft overflew Kampuchean territory 20 and even 15 km [as received] from the border. A large maneuver was organized close to the Kampuchean border, mobilizing Thai marines, infantry and aircraft. Under cover of this maneuver, the Thai authorities intensified their military operations at the border and provided support for acts of sabotage by the Pol Pot elements in Kampuchean territory.

August: 32 airspace violations; 604 artillery bombardments; 20 ground incursions; and 136 violations of territorial waters.

September: 38 violations of airspace; 771 artillery bombardments; 24 ground incursions; and 482 violations of territorial waters.

October: 52 airspace violations; 563 artillery bombardments; 24 ground incursions; and 838 violations of territorial waters. A joint maneuver by Thai and U.S. armed forces took place near the Kampuchean border.

November: 29 air incursions; 591 artillery bombardments; 46 infantry raids; and 1,127 violations of territorial waters. A serious incident: On 29 November, 5 Thai destroyers penetrated deeply into Kampuchean waters west of Koh Kong Island. A second Thai-U.S. joint maneuver codenamed "Siamese Sea" was launched on 3 November, mobilizing three ships of the 7th Fleet and one destroyer and four other vessels of the Thai Navy.

December: 32 air incursions; 293 artillery bombardments; 22 infantry raids; and 1,118 violations of territorial waters. On the 28th, Thai ships, penetrating deeply into Kampuchean waters, fired on a coastguard vessel and kidnapped its five crew members. They even took the boat to Thailand and raised a hue and cry about a violation of Thai territorial waters.

These armed Thai operations have often taken place west of Pursat Province; northwest of Koh Kong Province; in the Preah Vihear Temple sector; north of Siem Reap Province; in the Choan Chun, O-Smach, Phum Ku, Ampil and west Ta Sanh sectors; southwest of Sisophon District; on heights 199, 391, 273 and 172; and in the coastal zone around Koh Kong and Koh Tang Islands.

To cover up these acts and to mislead world opinion, the Thai authorities, from Prem to Sitthi, have not failed to accuse the PRK and the Vietnamese army slanderously of violating Thailand's territorial integrity and threatening its security. These slanders have also been used as a pretext for soliciting increased U.S. aid, especially military aid. On 7 October 1981, during his visit to the United States, Prem appealed to Washington to give aid to Thailand to counter a so-called threat from Vietnam.

Washington, of course, has not turned a deaf ear to these appeals. In October and November 1981, one could see U.S. ships, aircraft and GI's flocking to Thailand to participate in joint maneuvers with the Thai armed forces. U.S. warships called at Thai ports. GI's in civilian clothes reappeared at former U.S. bases. Strategically important airbases such as Utaphao have been once again put at the disposal of the U.S. Air Force.

All these activities of the Thai authorities have been carried out in conjunction with the sabotage operations launched by the Kampuchean reactionaries against the PRK. The Thai leaders, however, have denied having harbored and maintained the Kampuchean reactionaries. They have also denied the daily acts of violation of Kampuchean territory committed by their armed forces. (end of part two)

Part Three

[Text] Phnom Penh, 21 Mar (SPK) -- The third and last part of the white book made public on 19 March by the PRK Foreign Ministry denounces the Thai authorities' maneuvers against the PRK using humanitarian aid and refugees. Following is the content of this part:

On 25 July 1981, the Thai paper NATION REVIEW reported: The Thai Government will discuss with the United Nations High Commissioner on Refugees the details of a program for the repatriation of 100,000 Kampuchean refugees living in camps along the Thai-Kampuchean border.

On 7 October 1981, the Bangkok POST wrote: Mr Prasong Sunsiri, secretary general of the National Security Council, has made public a policy of humanitarian restraint on the part of the Thai Government, including measures aimed at encouraging refugees to stay in or go back to their country.

But, as everybody knows, the Thai authorities have up to now turned a deaf ear to the PRK's logical and reasonable proposals aimed at finding a solution to the problem of Kampuchean refugees in Thailand. On the contrary, they have pursued their policy of inciting Kampucheans to leave their country so as to increase the reactionary Kampuchean forces and sabotage the PRK's production and security.

This policy is related to the schemes of Beijing and Washington. Have not certain U.S. Department of State officials declared that the massive departure of Indochinese is always a good thing which must be discreetely encouraged? (LE MONDE, 8 July 1981)

Concerning humanitarian aid, Bangkok has obstinately demanded that roads be opened for the transportation of this aid from the Thai border to the interior of Kampuchea. Moreover, since the Khmer Rouge control the refugee camps, they have quickly and cleverly disposed of this aid for the benefit of the Pol Pot debris, who, far from disintegrating, have been reorganized. (LE MONDE DIPLOMATIQUE, December 1981)

On the subject of Kampuchean refugees, the Voice of America announced on 26 August 1981 that the number of people living in 40 holding centers at the Thai border had increased by 2 percent in relation to the 30,000 people needing aid. On 22 September 1981 the Washington POST wrote: According to AID officials, in the northwest sector of the border there are some holding centers controlled by the KPNLF, and anticommunist resistance group. Since early July 1981, the number of refugees there has increased by 2,000 a week and has now reached 140,000...in addition, according to the same sources, more than 60,000 Kampucheans are living along the border north and south of Camp Nong Chan, 20 km north of Aranyaprathet. Last month, the population of this camp went up from 17,000 to 40,000.

The Thai authorities have always insisted that these refugee camps be installed along the border so as to shelter and provide supplies for the Kampuchean reactionaries. They have ceaselessly demanded the creation of a security sector in Kampuchean territory along the border, a masquerade [volet] of the Thai policy of repatriating refugees. (KYODO, 28 May 1981) On 29 July 1981, the Washington POST wrote: Bangkok plans to turn the refugee camps at the border into solid military positions.

It is in these refugee camps that Gen Dien Del, the KPNLF military commander, comes to recruit his mercenaries. It is also there that Hu Sui, a high-ranking Chinese Red Cross official, comes to get his Indochinese recruits. (AFP, 4 August 1981)

Over the past 3 years (since 7 January 1979), the Thai authorities have exploited the problem of Kampuchean refugees for the purpose of opposing Kampuchea's rebirth. Their policy is still the cause of the tense and unstable situation at the common border between the two countries. Through the channel of voluntary repatriation of Kampuchean refugees, they have sent people to help create reactionary organizations opposed to the PRK. Thus, among the 35,000 voluntary repatriates (9,000 according to Thai sources) whom they have compelled Kampuchea to take back, they have been able to plant 700 Sereika men in their pay. Many of these disguised voluntary repatriates, trained in Thailand or China, have been arrested or have rallied to the revolutionary power.

The Thai authorities have also exploited the refugees' misfortune to arouse Kampuchean and world opinion against the PRK. The march organized by the Medecins Sans Frontiere in Thailand in early 1980 was an example of this exploitation.

The Bangkok authorities, in close collusion with Beijing and Washington, have appealed to the international community to continue humanitarian aid to Kampuchea and to the Kampuchean refugees living in Thailand and west Kampuchea. In May 1981, They directed and international aid convoy carrying seeds and goods to the border and distributed them. This distribution of international aid at the Thai-Kampuchean border permitted them to legally provide supplies to the Pol Pot clique and other Kampuchean reactionaries.

Their maneuvers have not yielded good results. The PRK has taken effective countermeasures. Moreover, these Thai, U.S. and Chinese maneuvers aimed at demanding the sending of humanitarian aid across the Thai-Kampuchean border have been condemned by progressive opinion, including the international organizations in charge of distributing this aid to the Kampuchean people.

The Thai authorities, however, are continuing to transport Chinese and U.S. aid daily and clandestinely to the Kampuchean reactionaries stationed in Thailand or in Kampuchean territory close to the border. The statements of the Pol Pot clique and Sereika men taken prisoner by the revolutionary forces are significant in this regard. (end of the white book)

SRV-LED FORCES TAKE KHMER RESISTANCE STRONGHOLD

[Text] Trat -- Vietnamese-led troops last Wednesday [17 March] overran the stronghold of Kampuchean resistance leader Son Sann at Sok San, inflicting heavy casualties and forcing thousands of Khmer civilians to flee into Thailand, military officials said yesterday.

Supreme Command spokesman Lt Gen Som Khattaphan said between 4,000 and 5,000 Khmer civilians crossed the border into Tambon Dan Chumphon in Borai District, about 390 kilometres from Bangkok, after their 4 villages at Sok San, about 6 kilometres from the Thai border, were heavily attacked by the Vietnamese forces. He said marines have been sent to the area to try to push Khmers back into their territory and seal off the border.

According to a spokesman for the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), one civilian was killed and six seriously wounded when the attack was first launched on Tuesday. However, the Son Sann guerrillas took "heavy casualties" on Wednesday.

The spokesman said the Vietnamese forces poured heavy mortar fire on the four villages which house about 8,700 civilians and Son Sann guerrillas. He claimed that there were only a few battalions of anti-Vietnamese guerrillas armed with small mortars, B-40 rocket propelled grenades and conventional weapons which were inadequate to defend the villages.

The spokesman also claimed that some Khmer civilians at Sok San who had fled the stronghold earlier had brought out samples of "yellow powder" dropped by the Vietnamese on their huts and handed it to international officials for analysis.

Captain Ophat Chamratsi, deputy chief of staff of marines at Trat Province Naval Base, told AP that the numbers of refugees had not yet been registered, but that they would be escorted back to Kampuchea when the present turmoil subsides.

Meanwhile, skirmishing was reported continuing yesterday north of Sokh Sann.

The Vietnamese attackers had also occupied a Khmer Rouge base two kilometres (1.3 miles) south of the Son Sann base Wednesday. Officials estimated its population at 3,000 civilians and guerrillas.

[Excerpts] Bangkok, 21 Mar (AFP) -- Beleaguered forces of the anti-communist Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) have abandoned all the four villages of Sok San in southwest Cambodia in the face of a sustained Vietnamese attack, Western sources here said today.

Border reports could not confirm today whether the Vietnamese units had actually moved into Sok San Three and Four, or whether the Vietnamese had cut the route west from the two villages to the Thai border. Helicopters, however, had been spotted bringing supplies to the Vietnamese troops in Sok San One and Two.

Thai military sources said this morning that about 1,500 Vietnamese troops had taken part in the attack. But Western sources said they believed that far more Vietnamese soldiers had been thrown into the attack on Sok San. They said that it was unlikely that the 2,000 KPNLF guerrillas under Prum Vit would link up with the Khmer Rouge units to the north.

SRV TROOPS REPORTEDLY MASSED ON BORDER

[Text] Trat -- About 3,000 Vietnamese troops yesterday massed on the border area opposite here after overrunning two strongholds of a Khmer resistance group, military sources reported.

A military officer said that the Vietnamese force was rallying on the Bantad Mountain range opposite the Thai village of Sokh San in Bor Rai district here. He said that the Vietnamese force had overrun two of the five villages under the influence of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) on the mountain range.

About 3,000 Khmer civilians, mostly women and children, fled the villages to the Thai area, east of Darn Chumpon village following the Vietnamese artillery and infantry attacks.

About 9,000 Khmer people live in the five villages which are controlled by resistance fighters of KPNLF led by former Kampuchean Prime Minister Son Sann.

The military officer said that the refugees who fled without possessions would be repatriated to their native villages after the fighting subsided. He said that Thai security forces had been posted on the border area opposite the fighting grounds on the Bantad Mountain.

The area was declared off-limits to people to prevent them from being injured or killed in possible spill-overs of fighting, according to the military officer. He said the military expected that the fighting which continued yesterday would escalate and become fiercer as the Vietnamese were trying to liquidate the Khmer strongholds.

COASTAL PROVINCE WARNS NOT TO ASSIST REFUGEES

[Text] According to a report from Chumphon Province, an announcement has been issued to the public requesting their cooperation in blocking the arrival of refugees by boat.

It seems that refugees arriving by boat from Vietnam and the illegal immigrants from the LPDR are suspicious people, with some intending to seek refuge in third countries. Those people have fled into Thailand and are hiding among the border villagers without reporting themselves to the authorities. Some of them received help from the local people in exchange for money and other benefits. This constitutes a great danger to the national security. The authorities therefore appeal to all concerned government officials and the civilian people to cooperate with the government and try to stop the inflow of these illegal immigrants. They should inform the authorities if they become aware that anybody is helping the refugees or if they know their whereabouts. The refugees and those helping them will be dealt with in accordance with the B.E. 2522 Immigration Act.

Under Article 63 of the B.E. 2522 Immigration Act, anyone found to have violated the law by helping foreigners who have illegally entered the country will be subject to a maximum jail term of 10 years or a fine of not more than 100,000 baht. Under Article 64 of the same act, anyone who is aware of the presence of foreigners illegally entering the country and who lends assistance by hiding them in order to avoid arrest by the authorities will be subject to a maximum jail term of 5 years or a fine of not more than 50,000 baht. Any Vietnamese arriving in Thailand by boat will be arrested on charges of illegal entry and will be tried under the Immigration Act.

CPT FACTION SETS UP HEADQUARTERS IN LAOS

[Text] Nakhon Phanom -- A new Marxist-Leninist communist party which has split from the Communist Party of Thailand (CPT) has reportedly moved its headquarters from Vientiane to Pakkading in Laos with 20 military training schools recently set up opposite Thailand's northeastern borders, Thai Government intelligence sources here have reported.

Pakkading in Laos is located near Paksan, opposite Bungkarn district of Nong Khai Province.

Instructors at the new training schools for the new pro-Vietnamese Thai communist faction, known as "Pak Mai," are known to include Russians, Vietnamese, Thais and Laos, the intelligence officials said.

The first major new faction which split recently from the pro-China CPT was known to be "Pak Communist Siam" (Siam Communist Party), of which the most popular grouping was called "Thai Isarn Kuchart," now known as "Pak Mai," according to the intelligence officials.

The officials said that the main supporters of Pak Mai are members of the "Phu Thai" minority group who cross over the Thai-Lao border frequently.

One intelligence officer monitoring the new Thai communist faction said: "The Phu Thais are quite influential in Pak Mai. Three families of Phu Thais are known to be the main supporters of the new communist faction. The policy of Pak Mai, as some defectors have told us, is to put political and economic pressure on the government and use external forces, perhaps Vietnamese, to topple the government."

The intelligence reports also suggested that Pak Mai plans to infiltrate the urban areas among students, workers and farmers.

"Our reports have it that they plan to recruit about 80 to 100 core members in each province. One of their objective is to start an October 14, 1973-type of activity in the country," the officials said.

The official intelligence reports also said that Pak Mai's operating areas include Amphoe Don Tan, Pla Pak, Renoo Nakhmn, That Phanom, Nakae, Wan Yai, Dong Luang of Nakhon Phanom Province and certain areas in nearby Nong Khai Province, particularly Bungkam District which had traditionally been used as an infiltration point from the other side of the Mekong River by insurgents. The leaders of Pak Mai, according to the intelligence reports, include Thais, Vietnamese and Lao.

Thai intelligence officers have detected the name of a Vietnamese Nguyen Van Thach and a Laotian, Sali Vongkamsao, as among some of the Pak Mai leaders. Several Thai names have also been detected -- but the officials said they preferred to keep them confidential for the time being.

Informed observers said that the emergence of an anti-CPT party in the northeast could have resulted from the "vacuum" created by the gradual weakening of the CPT in the northeast. Official figures show that the number of armed and hard-core communist insurgents in the northeast, which was recorded at around 3,500 in 1975, had come down to about 1,900 last year. There were fluctuations during the period before 1981. In 1975, the number was estimated at 3,600, a strength which was maintained until 1978 when it went up slightly to 3,800 and up again to about 4,000 in 1979 before it dropped drastically to 3,300 in 1980.

LE DUAN TALKS AT VILLAGE ON COLLECTIVE MASTERY

OW230049 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1000 GMT 22 Mar 82

[From the press review for 22 March]

[Text] Today's issue of NHAN DAN prominently carries on page 2 a photo of party General Secretary Le Duan's visit to Thuy Tan village, Thai Thuy District, Thai Binh Province -- which has scored achievements in reclaiming swampy coastal areas for further expansion of the rush-growing area and in enhancing the people's living conditions -- and his talk on the issue of socialist collective mastery.

Comrade Le Duan said: Only under the system of socialist collective mastery can relations between society and the individual be properly resolved. Under that system, the right to collective mastery of the whole of Vietnamese society is established, while the individual's legitimate freedom are highly developed, the individual's creativity is promoted and harmony between the individual and society is achieved. It is erroneous to fail to notice and to resolutely rely on the superior strength of the whole community. It is equally wrong, however, to fail to perceive the legitimate nature and important, essential role of the individual. Combining society's collective with individuals and using the whole strength of the collective and the capability of each individual is the right direction for tapping all the potentials of our country, especially in the field of organization, use and management of the work force.

After pointing out that the essence of the system of socialist collective mastery is organically to coordinate rights and duties and vice versa, Comrade Le Duan stressed: To fully preserve the masses' interests and, at the same time, to fully develop the strength of collective mastery, this system must be simultaneously carried out in the three basic sectors: the nation, the locality and the grassroots unit. This is an objective requirement for society's survival.

Coordinating mastery on a national scale with mastery in each locality and each grassroots unit is to coordinate unified centralization with the expansion of democracy, to simultaneously avoid dispersion, division and concentrated bureaucracy, to be consistent with the production process while meeting the requirements of the system of socialist distribution. This means coordinating the strength of the whole country and the specific strength of each locality and unit. The constitution clauses dealing with the functions and tasks of the administrative levels should be made concrete and supplemented by policies on organization of production and economic and social management, on meeting the requirements of the people's lives, on successful construction of material-technical bases of socialism in order to fully manifest the system of collective mastery in three fundamental fields and to overcome duplication and obstacles existing among the central, local and grassroots levels. The system of collective mastery must be based on a new socialist economy. Without the material basis, which is a very great foundation of socialism, the system of socialist collective still lacks the conditions for its full materialization because, as Lenin said, the democratic level cannot surpass the level of economic development. Therefore, striving to build a new economy is the most important task of our people and of all administrative levels from the central down to the grassroots level. Along with developing the economy, the proletarian state must, step by step, build a new culture and a new type socialist man, considering them to be important motives for accelerating the socialist revolutionary undertaking.

JOURNAL REVIEWS HISTORY OF PARTY CONGRESSES

BK181520 Hanoi TAP CHI CONG SAN No 2 in Vietnamese Feb 82, pp 21-29

[Article by Nguyen Van Phung: "From the Unified Conference for Founding the Party to the Fifth Party Congress" -- capitalized passages published in italics]

[Text] It is not long before our country will witness an important political event -- the fifth national VCP Congress. The fifth party congress will review activities in all respects over the past 5 years and lay down the basic tasks and the socioeconomic targets to be fulfilled by the people throughout the country in the next 5 and 10 years. The fifth party congress will be a great landmark on the road toward building socialism and defending the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

Since its founding, the VCP has held four congresses. The party has gone through a historic stage spanning 51 years. The party has spent more than 90 percent of this time either operating illegally under various reactionary dictatorial regimes or working under the conditions of war. This fact accounts for why only four congresses were held by the party during its half a century of existence. This fact also demonstrates that most of the party's major guidelines and policies have been determined not only by national party congresses but also by VCP Central Committee plenums, and occasionally by the VCP Standing Committee and VCP Central Committee Political Bureau meetings. Not only have these meetings performed the function of substantiating the resolutions of various party congresses, but they have also performed the functions of a congress. That is what history has brought about. Although the party statutes do not stipulate these functions for the party Central Committee, revolutionary requirements have compelled the committee to shoulder this responsibility in order to meet the pressing demands of history.

The party's failure to hold regular congresses is an inevitable restriction during a time when it had to operate under clandestine and war conditions. This was a deficiency in our party's political activity. However, historical facts show that all guidelines and policies charted out at these congresses and meetings were very correct and led to many great victories of historic and epochal significance. In practice, our party has been able to draw many valuable lessons on how to overcome restrictions created by historical conditions and how to develop to the fullest the wisdom of the masses.

THE UNIFIED CONFERENCE TO FOUND THE PARTY was held on Kowloon peninsula, Hong Kong, from 3 to 7 February 1930 under the chairmanship of Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc. The conference was of the size of a congress and it actually performed the functions of a congress. The great historic significance of the role of the unified conference was that for the first time in our country's revolutionary history it formed a unified revolutionary vanguard brigade for the Vietnamese working class. The conference devised the initial tactics and strategem for the liberation of our people from colonial and feudal rule and for regaining independence and freedom on the road toward socialism. Althouth the conference's political and strategic program prepared by Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc was sketchy, it contained the basic orientations for the overall revolution, meeting various pressing demands in the revolutionary high tide which was, at that time, springing up in various areas throughout the country.

The unified conference to found the party marked a historic turning point in the history of the Vietnamese workers movement as well as in the national history of Vietnam. It also ended the long period of suffering when our country was engulfed in "darkness with no way out." The birth of the VCP opened a way out and brought about "an organization of revolutionaries" for our people. Many glorious pages have been added to history over the past half a century, but the most glorious was the success in creating "an upheaval" in the entire colonial and semi-feudal society, thus paving the way for the founding of an independent, free and unified Vietnam following the socialist path. With its unfading images, the turning point created by the unified conference in February 1930 will live forever in our people's memory. Directed by Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc -- a leader and organizer of genius -- in the first 5 days of the year of the horse [3-7 February 1930], the conference was able to fulfill its historic mission of unifying all communist organizations in the country under a correct revolutionary line -- the Marxist-Leninist line. The state of division and dispersion within the Vietnamese communist movement was then put to an end, and the heavy historical task entrusted to Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc by the international communist movement was then fulfilled outstandingly.

The first party Central Committee plenum held in October 1930 under the chairmanship of Comrade Tran Phu, first general secretary of the party was, in fact, considered as important as a congress. The plenum adopted the civil rights program of the bourgeois revolution (the political program) drafted by Comrade Tran Phu. This 1930 manifesto was the party's relatively perfect political program on the national democratic revolution. At the time when it was adopted by the party Central Committee alone and was waiting for the party congress' decision, the 1930 political program was authorized to be circulated merely as a draft document. In reality, however, it had already become an official document of the party and our revolutionary guiding banner in the entire process of the national democratic revolution.

The 1930 political program had a great influence on the party's line and policies during the national democratic revolution. The correct guidelines and creative standpoints specified in this manifesto were actually the link that connected one party congress of the party Central Committee plenum with another. Advancing the working-class-led revolution against imperialism and feudalism directly to socialism, using the workers and peasants as the main moving forces of the revolution, strengthening solidarity with the proletarian class in all oppressed countries, and making the party of the working class firm and strong were the basic spirit of the 1930 political program. Evaluating the historic significance of this political program, President Ho said: "Imbued with Marxism-Leninism, the party has been able to adopt a correct revolutionary line. In the 1930 civil rights program of the bourgeois revolution, the party pointed to the need TO STRUGGLE AGAINST IMPERIALISM AND FEUDALISM, to achieve national independence, and to ensure that the tillers own the land. That program is consistent with the earnest aspirations of our people, who are mostly peasants. For this reason, the party has been able to rally all major revolutionary forces to its side. As for the parties of other classes, they have either gone bankrupt or been isolated. Thanks to this, the right to leadership of our party -- the party of the working class -- has been consolidated and strengthened constantly." (Footnote -- Ho Chi Minh "Selected Works: Thirty Years of the Party's Activities." Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1980, volume II, page 154)

The (3 February) unified conference to found the party and the party Central Committee's (October 1930) plenum paved the way and made necessary preparations for the first congress of party delegates. While preparations for this congress -- which would have been held in accordance with a decision of the party Central Committee's October 1930 plenum -- were being made, all the party Central Committee members were arrested by the French imperialists. Comrade Tran Phu, the leader of the party at that time, was killed.

It was not until nearly 4 years later -- on 27 March 1935 -- that the first party congress was held in Macao (China). Attending the congress were 13 delegates representing 600 party members who had been reorganized after 4 years of struggling against white terror and of restoring and developing the movement.

The historic role of the first party congress was to bring all party organizations in various areas throughout the country as well as those in Laos and Kampuchea, and 11 mass revolutionary movements under the unified leadership of the party Central Committee; and to prepare the battleground for a new revolutionary high tide. However, the congress failed to accurately review the experience gained by the party since its founding. It failed to adopt a political program and to keep itself informed of the new developments and potentials of the international revolutionary movement. That is why it was unable to point out changes that corresponded with the new situation. These deficiencies were eliminated in the summer of the year that followed when the resolutions of the seventh international communist congress and of the party Central Committee's July 1936 plenum were issued.

The period between the first party congress and the (1951) second party congress saw a series of important historic events occurring in our country:

During the period 1936-39, under the party leadership, a mass movement to struggle for democratic liberties, to oppose reactionary colonialism, to demand peace, and to oppose war erupted in various areas throughout the country, rallying the support of millions of people. The success of this democratic movement led to the emergence of a mass political force which prepared material bases and battlegrounds for the August 1945 revolution. This success testifies to the total correctness of the party's line which was determined by the party Central Committee in its plenums of March 1937 and March 1938. Firmly grasping the substance of the resolution of the seventh international communist congress, our party managed to apply the resolution creatively in the specific situation of our country. It devised many policies, measures and forms which were most suitable to the historic conditions at that time.

The victory of the August 1945 revolution was of historic and epochal significance. It was "an unprecendented change of life for every Vietnamese." This victory was gained at a time when the country was a semifeudal colony, with a small population and land area, which was thousands of kilometers away from the area of operation of the Soviet army and which had no regular revolutionary armed forces; and when the proletarian revolutions in the two "colonialist countries," namely, France and Japan, were still not crowned with victories.

The great victory of the August revolution was ascribed to the fighting spirit and the sacrifices of our entire population and to the effects of the victories scored by the Soviet people and army during World War II. However, the major factor that decided this victory was the party's correct line which was decided upon at the various party Central Committee plenums held in 1939, 1940 and 1941; at the party Central Standing Committee meetings held in February 1943 and March 1945; and at the national party congress held in Tan Trao in August 1945. This line consisted of considering national liberation as a primary task; directing the revolutionary spearhead against the imperialists and fascists; relying on the strength of the main worker-peasant force to motivate the entire people to rise up; quickly seizing opportunities and using the art of staging uprising skillfully; seeking to know and use the force of revolutionary properly and building a Marxist-Leninist party with a correct line applicable to reality; ensuring that all party organizations were compact and politically pure, were operating clandestinely and were of high quality, and were capable of taking root among the masses. All these were the manifestations of the clear-sighted collective wisdom of the party, particularly the party Central Committee and various local party organizations.

At the time when the victory of the August revolution was just achieved, our party was not in a good position to hold a party congress right away as many "tough" problems involving the survival of the people's national sovereignty were being posed to our party. How could we defend the newly-regained national sovereignty at a time when we did not have regular armed forces strong enough to defend it, when there was no international assistance, when the rear was not prepared yet and when we were faced with an enemy having material and technical bases many times stronger than ours? The party Central Committee, led by President Ho, with its 15 years of experience in directing the revolution and of learning experiences in the world and with the development of its collective wisdom, chose a way which was proved by history to be the most clear-sighted. This way consisted of motivating 25 million people to rise up to defend the revolutionary administration; carrying out the resistance while building forces in all respects in preparation for an inevitable war; and taking advantage of the differences in the enemy's internal ranks in a systematic manner by advocating forming a coalition government and promoting negotiations and the signing of agreements. These strategies were decided upon at the various meetings held by the party Central Standing Committee by the end of August 1945 and in November 1945 following its return to the capital; at the party Central Committee's plenum held in early March 1946 and at a conference of cadres held by the party Central Committee on 31 July 1946.

"When the French deliberately made war and when our restraint was exhausted, then the nationwide resistance began." (Footnote -- Collection of Ho Chi Minh's Works; Su That Publishing House, Hanoi, 1980; volume 1, page 472) This observation by President Ho Chi Minh serves as an explanation of the inevitability of the nationwide resistance against the French colonialists which erupted in late December 1946. If the resistance was unavoidable, then how to fight it victoriously? We could neither wait for the holding of a party congress to solve such an urgent problem nor could we hold a party congress immediately at that time. This problem had been solved before the resistance erupted. On 18 December 1946 the party Central Standing Committee decided to stage a nationwide resistance. A directive issued on 22 December 1946 outlines a policy to conduct an all-people, all-out and protracted resistance on a self-support basis. Efforts were to be made to motivate 25 million people to rise up concertedly against the enemy; to turn "each village or hamlet and city ward into a fortress," and "each citizen into a soldier"; to carry out the resistance while building the new regime; to carry out combat missions while building combat forces; to find an appropriate fighting method; and to build the party while carrying out combat missions. This correct way reflects the most clear-sighted collective wisdom of our party at that time.

THE SECOND NATIONAL PARTY CONGRESS OF DELEGATES was held in Tuyen Quang from 11 to 19 February 1951, 16 years after the first congress. The second congress met at a time when the anti-French war of resistance was recording big victories. On the battlefield, the offensive initiative belonged to our army. Our main forces were capable of completely wiping out powerful enemy task forces one by one. Tempered in combat, our party continued to develop; from a membership of 5,000 during the August revolution, its ranks swelled to 766,349 members by 1950.

The second party congress was required by history to lead the war of resistance to final victory and to reorganize the Indochinese Communist Party in such a way as to suit the new situation which was developing in each Indochinese country.

The congress responded to this requirement by advocating the organization of a Marxist-Leninist political party in each of the Indochinese countries. In Vietnam, the Vietnam Workers Party was founded. Some 4 months later, the Khmer People's Revolutionary Party was established in Kampuchea. Five years after that, the Lao People's Party was born in Laos (this name was later changed to the Lao People's Revolutionary Party). In March 1951, the alliance of the three Indochinese peoples was founded. The second party congress adopted a program for the advance of the national democratic revolution to socialism, a new party statute to replace the 1935 statute, and 12 major policies aimed at achieving total victory for the war of resistance. Thus, the second congress paved the way for the success of the 1953-54 winter-spring campaign and the Dien Bien Phu campaign.

The victory of the 9-year anti-French war of resistance, which culminated in the 1953-54 winter-spring campaign, led to the 1954 Geneva agreement, opening up a new period in our country. The basic characteristic of this new period was the fact that the northern half of the country was completely liberated from imperialist and feudal domination while the southern half temporarily remained under the rule of U.S. neocolonialism. How could the southern half of the country be liberated? How could the northern half be advanced to socialism? We faced many difficulties in trying to answer these questions. The people's national democratic revolution led by our party had gone on for 24 years (1930-54) and had scored big victories. The party had accumulated a great deal of rich experience in the quarter century of its existence. However, we still lacked experience in fighting against a new neocolonialist imperialist power, an imperialist chieftain with the most powerful economic and military potential in the imperialist camp: the United States. In the world, there had been no precedent of any new-style colony capable of defeating U.S. neocolonialism. This was a problem for our nation, especially our party, to resolve. History also posed another equally "tough," if not more difficult, question: Could one half of the country advance to socialism when the other half was not liberated yet? If the north should advance to socialism, should it coexist for a long time with neocolonialism in the south, or should the latter be abolished forthwith? Should socialist construction in the north be aimed mainly at bringing about civilization and happiness for our people there, or should it be directed toward creating conditions for completely liberating the south?

These questions were posed directly to our party, especially to the third party congress, which was scheduled to be held toward the end of the 50's. However, many events had taken place since 1954, many pressing demands had arisen, and many new international changes had occurred both in the capitalist and socialist systems, and in order to do anything at all in the postwar period, first of all we had immediately to heal the wounds of war. Life did not give us time to find a perfect solution, for we were overtaken by reality.

The third party congress could not be held as scheduled. The two questions raised in 1954, however, had been settled before the third party congress was convened. The problem of advancing the north to socialism was resolved in the 1956 conference of the Political Bureau and the 13th, 14th and 16th plenums of the second party Central Committee held in 1957, 1958, 1959 respectively. The correct policy adopted by these Political Bureau and Central Committee meetings resulted in the movement for agricultural and handicraft cooperativization and for the socialist transformation of private capitalist industry and trade and small tradesmen in 1960. The problem of how to liberate the south in the new historical conditions was resolved in the 15th plenum of the party Central Committee held in 1959. The clear-sighted and sound policy adopted by this plenum resulted in the movement for "concerted uprisings" in the south from 1959 to 1960.

THE THIRD NATIONAL PARTY CONGRESS OF DELEGATES was held in Hanoi capital from 5 to 10 September 1960. It was attended by more than 500 delegates representing more than 500,000 party members throughout the country. The congress decided on a perfect program for the socialist revolution in the north and the national democratic revolution in the south. It also adopted the guidelines and tasks of the First 5-Year Plan (1961-65), defined our country's foreign policy in the new stage, and adopted a new party statute to which were added a number of concrete points about the party's leading the administration.

The historic significance of the third party congress was that it succeeded in charting a correct path for our people throughout the country in the conditions of national partition, and in laying down two strategic tasks which were to be carried out simultaneously nationwide.

The great victory of the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation proved our party's clear-sightedness in determining its strategic line as well as in using appropriate methods to liberated the south. This clear-sightedness was reflected mainly in the party holding fast to and effectively guiding the strategy of holding high the two banners of national independence and socialism at the same time, and in carrying out two revolutionary tasks simultaneously: The people's national democratic revolution in the south and the socialist revolution in the north. These two tasks were aimed at a common objective: To complete the national democratic revolution in the south, achieve national reunification and advance the entire country to socialism. This adroit strategy gave our people an unprecedentedly great aggregate strength. Combining this strength with that of the three revolutionary currents of our time was precisely the secret formula for defeating an enemy who was many times stronger than us materially. The dual-banner strategy was translated by the third party congress into concrete policies and tasks. The congress defined the role of each strategic task and the historic mission of the two parts of the country as follows: The people's national democratic revolution in the south would play a DECISIVE AND DIRECT role in the struggle to overthrow the domination of U.S. imperialism and its henchmen; and the socialist revolution in the north would be THE MOST DECISIVE task in the development of all the revolution in our country and in the cause of national reunification.

The clear-sightedness of the third party congress is reflected in the fact that it promptly devised a correct line having the character of objective law of the revolution in our country at the time. The two strategic tasks were carried out simultaneously, with each playing its own decisive role, but the role of the socialist revolution (in the north) was the most decisive. This is a law.

This law was applied to all lines and policies of the party in the two revolutions. It was reflected clearly in the affirmation by the 11th party Central Committee plenum (in 1965) that the anti-U.S. national salvation struggle was the primary task of our entire party and all our people and soldiers. In this direction, the north devoted to the national salvation and defense war the entire strength of the socialist system. The north fulfilled outstandingly its mission as the revolutionary baseground for the entire country and, together with the heroic southern frontline, completely defeated the U.S. aggressors. On the front of transforming and building the national economy, the north also scored great achievements, ensuring the people's lives and preparing conditions for the building of socialism throughout the country in the future.

The fact that the entire country was completely independent and unified and was advancing toward socialism is a fundamental characteristic of our country following the complete liberation of the south. What were the tasks for our people in the new situation? What were the basic requirements for the country after our people won the right to be masters of the entire country? In principle, a goal of building a civilized and happy life for the people was to be set forth immediately after the ruling yoke of imperialism and its lackeys was eliminated. This was a necessity and, at the same time, the earnest aspiration of all our people. Thus a socialist revolution throughout the country was essential. By what way did the country advance to socialism in conformity with the characteristics of our country? This question was raised at the fourth party congress, and it was initially answered at the 24th party Central Committee plenum (3d tenure).

THE FOURTH PARTY NATIONAL CONGRESS was held in the capital of Hanoi from 14 to 20 December 1976. Attending the congress were more than 1,000 delegates representing more than 1.5 million party members throughout the country. It approved a perfected program on building socialism throughout the country, beginning with the Second 5-Year Plan, 1976-80. The soul of the programme was the question of socialist industrialization and socialist collective mastery. The congress paid great attention to the question of consolidation of national defense. It decided to change the party's name to the Vietnam Communist Party.

New historical conditions emerged more prominently in the wake of the fourth party congress. The question of consolidation of national defense and maintenance of national security was raised even more seriously. The Beijing ruling circles' strategy of weakening and annexing the three Indochinese countries was known before the fourth party congress was held, but it became conspicuous after 1978. This strategy is in collusion with the U.S. strategy which consists of finding a way out of the economic crisis, regaining the lost military supremacy, concentrating forces on counterattacking the three revolutionary currents and spearheading primarily at the Soviet Union and other socialist countries.

From covert to overt betrayal, the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists intended to bring the Vietnamese people to their knees with the launching of two strategic attacks, one from the south and the other from the north. To defend our sovereignty and territorial integrity, we were determined not to let them encroach on or undermine our independence which we had won with the flesh and blood of millions of our compatriots and soldiers over the past century and more. The most prominent event after the fourth party congress was our people's victory in the two wars of aggression masterminded and directly waged by the Chinese expansionists. Despite their humiliating defeat in these two wars, the Chinese expansionists still refuse to learn a lesson. They still nurture the design to annex Vietnam and the rest of the Indochinese Peninsula in the hope of paving the way for the realization of their dream of expansion and hegemony over Southeast Asia. At present, in coordination with and assisted by various U.S. bellicose forces, they are carrying out a multifaceted war of sabotage against Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea. This type of war has caused great difficulties to our people in carrying out the socialist construction program set forth by the fourth party congress, thus making it impossible for us to fulfill many planned norms.

We should have the courage to look straight into the shortcomings and errors of various party and state organizations in economic and social management. These shortcomings have prolonged the difficulties and caused imbalances in many respects. We should grimly uncover our weaknesses so that guidelines can be adopted seriously for corrective action.

However, to make an objective assessment, we must consider the economic situation on the basis of the general conditions in our country, and must take into account our difficulties in all respects, including difficulties caused by our shortcomings.

In overcoming the great and accumulated difficulties, over the past 5 years we have advanced the Vietnamese revolution to a new strategic position, thus creating many unprecedentedly great potentials for national defense and socialist construction. We have succeeded in unifying the country in all respects, in establishing the system of proletarian dictatorship throughout the country, in defeating the two wars of aggression waged by the Beijing expansionists, in strengthening the strategic alliance among the three Indochinese countries and between our country, the Soviet Union and the socialist community, and in overcoming the damage caused by the wars of aggression waged by the United States and the Chinese expansionists, thus promptly solving all urgent economic and social problems, overcoming famine, and initially improving the livelihood of the people in many rural areas. Additionally, we have been able to carry out socialist transformation in the South, and create new forces to make progress in all fields. These achievements testify to the heroic nature of our people and to the correctness of the general line and the economic line set forth by the fourth party congress.

We have many shortcomings. Our major shortcoming, however, is reflected in the way we concretize our line and the way we organize and guide its implementation.

The experience we have derived from our great victories in the past shows that the general line must be concretized right in the process of defining specific objectives for each short period, each field of work and each locality; and these objectives must be promptly amended and adjusted when the actual situation changes.

The historic experience of our country's revolution under the party's leadership also shows that if a line is to be concretized and fully implemented, the contingent of cadres must hold fast to and adroitly apply the law, and must be in firm control of the actual situation and have an adequate knowledge of the problems it has to resolve. All these qualities can be acquired only with time and through persistent efforts.

Our people still face many difficulties. To overcome them, we must firmly follow the path which has been proved correct by reality. This is the path chartered by the fourth party congress: The path of the working people's collective mastery and of national socialist industrialization. Realities over the past 5 years prove that our party has promptly detected complex developments in the situation, that it has adopted firm and judicious strategic positions, and that it has decided to take the right direction at crucial moments of the revolution. These firm strategic positions and correct directions stem from the line of the fourth party congress. These are also matters of principle of our country's revolution in the conditions of its advance to socialism from a small-scale production system and in the concrete conditions of the current international situation.

The new period imposes on our party and people extremely great, complex and weighty tasks. Our people, however, are fully capable of successfully achieving these tasks. We have overcome the initial difficulties in the new period. We now have a more profound understanding of our country and our people, a thorough knowledge of our enemy and the obstacles on our path, and a fuller perception of our strengths and weaknesses. We also have drawn useful lessons from the practice of socialist construction and national defense over the past 5 years.

These are new equipment for our entire party, people and army in the new struggle which, although replete with difficulties and hardships, is bound to be victorious.

VNA SUMMARIZES HISTORY OF PARTY SINCE FOUNDING

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 22 -- On the occasion of the 5th Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam, we publish the following summary of the party history since its founding on February 3, 1930:

The Birth of the Communist Party of Vietnam

With the French occupation, Vietnam, in 1858, became a semi-feudal colony. The society was fraught with two basic contradictions, which became sharper every day -- the contradiction between the Vietnamese nation and aggressive imperialism, and the contradiction between the people, especially the peasantry, and the class of feudal landlords.

Many times the Vietnamese people rose up in arms against the French imperialist aggressors, but they failed in each attempt. Not until the appearance of the Vietnamese working class on the political scene and its taking charge of leadership to revolution was a way found to struggle for national liberation. An orientation crisis has thus lasted more than seventy years in the Vietnamese revolution.

It was Ho Chi Minh (1890-1969) who discovered the right path for the working class, the labouring people and the nation. By espousing Marxism-Leninism he found the only correct way to save his country — the road of proletarian revolution, the road of the Russian October Revolution. His joining the French Communist Party in 1920 made him the first communist of Vietnam.

From 1921 through 1929 Ho Chi Minh waged a tireless struggle to disseminate Marxism-Leninism among workers' peasants, the labouring people, and other Vietnamese patriots while actively preparing for the formation of a Vietnamese Communist Party.

He helped found the Inter-Colonial Union in Paris (1921), joined the study group on colonial questions under the French Communist Party, published the paper LE PATRIA, and wrote "French Colonialism on Trial." Ho Chi Minh participated in the congress of the Peasant International in Moscow and was elected to the Presidium of the organization's Executive Committee (1923), and attended the Fifth Congress of the Communist International (1924). As member of the Eastern Department of the Communist International Executive Committee he assisted in guiding and organizing revolutionary and communist movements in Southeast Asian countries. He joined in founding the union of oppressed peoples in eastern Asia of which he was secretary. In 1925 he founded the Vietnam Revolutionary Youth League in which Communists formed the core of leadership. He also published the paper YOUTH, wrote the pamphlet "The Road of Revolution," and opened several courses to train hundreds of cadres for the revolution at home. Ho Chi Minh personally nominated Vietnamese students to be sent to the communist University of the Working Poeple of the East (U.S.S.R.). Among these was Tran Phu, later general secretary of the party.

Thanks to the very dynamic activities of Ho Chi Minh and the Vietnam Revolutionary Youth League, which by 1929 had set up branches in all parts of the country with a membership of 1,700, the revolutionary movement surged vigorously among both the workers and peasants, in both the towns and the countryside. The first communist cell was founded in Hanoi, in March 1929. Later that year and early in 1930 three different communist organizations appeared in the country, the first two having 500 members and 40 cells.

Ho Chi Minh, on behalf of the Communist International, unified the various communist forces of Vietnam in a single communist party. He presided over the historic founding congress of the party on March 2, 1930. Thus was born the Communist Party of Vietnam, with its brief platform, strategy and statutes adopted at the same congress. The platform and strategy were later developed into the political thesis drafted by Tran Phu and adopted by the Central Committee during a meeting in October 1930.

The thesis, as the banner of people's national democratic revolution in Vietnam, advocated anti-imperialist, anti-feudal revolution to wrest back national independence and distribute land to the tillers, to be led by the working class and to ascend directly to socialism, by-passing capitalist development.

The birth of the party was a decisive turning-point for the Vietnamese revolution. It opened for the working class and the nation as a whole the road to glorious victories.

In Laos, the first party cells were set up in Vientiane, Thakhet and Bo Neng in April 1930. In Kampuchea a number of communist groups appeared in Phnom Penh and Kompong Cham in early 1930.

Party Leadership in Seizing Power, the August Revolution in 1945 (1930-1945)

The Revolutionary Upsurge in 1930-1931 and the Nghe Tinh Soviet

Under the leadership of the nascent Communist Party of Vietnam, later the Indochinese Communist Party, a revolutionary upsurge took place in the whole country. From February 1930 through April 1931 there were 1,236 strikes by workers and peasants against terror and imperialist war, for democracy and welfare, in support of the Soviet Union and the national liberation movement. Some of the factory strikes involved up to four or five thousand people. Dozens of strikes and demonstrations were also organized at schools and markets.

Of special significance were the provinces of Nghe An and Ha Tinh, which from February 1930 through October 1931 saw as many as 439 strikes by workers and peasants, with the participation of more than 337,000 people. In many districts peasants staged armed demonstrations during which they set fire to district offices and documents therein and broke into jails to free political prisoners. Led by party cells, peasants associations took charge of political, economic and social affairs in the countryside in the manner of Soviet power in Russia.

The 1930-1931 upsurge and the Nghe Tinh Soviet assumed great historical significance. The leadership of the working class represented by the Communist Party was affirmed, and an alliance between workers and peasants was sealed. The strategic slogans "national independence" and "land to the tillers" were a great inspiration to the masses.

On April 11, 1931, the Indochinese Communist Party was recognized by the Communist International Executive Committee as an independent section directly reporting to the International.

The period from 1932 to 1935 saw the party's leadership to the struggle against white terror and to restore and develop the movement.

Stung to the quick, the French imperialists and their henchmen cracked down on the movement with utter ruthlessness. From mid-1931 to mid-1932 most of the Central Committee members and sector executives were arrested. Many of them died. Ho Chi Minh was apprehended in Hong Kong by the British imperialists, who were working hand in glove with the French colonialists. In the summer of 1933, after his release, he went to the Soviet Union. Meanwhile in the country, grassroots organizations were disintegrating and prisons were packed with revolutionaries. The enemy, in addition to downright repression, resorted to demagogy to deceive the masses. At the same time bourgeois and petty-bourgeois political tendencies were given free rein in order to sway the masses and undermine the movement. In this connection mention should be made of the activities of the nationalists and the Trotskyists.

The party led a resolute struggle against repression and the schemes of the enemy and different reactionary forces. In certain areas the party remained in close contact with the masses, and the movement, despite a temporary lull from mid-1931, was never entirely interrupted.

Prisons were used as schools for party members to conduct political education and to wage an ideological struggle with the enemy, and as contact points to keep in touch with the masses. Prisoners also geared their activities to actions being taken outside too, thus giving rise to a high mettle and inspiring other party members and the masses as a whole in their advance.

In June 1932 the Central Committee drafted the party programme and made plans for the implementation of the line charted by the 1930 political thesis in the context of the new situation. The programme, upholding the revolutionary banner put up by the party, enabled the movement to recuperate quickly.

Many workers' struggles broke out in the years 1932, 1933 and 1934. Many party organisations used the legal forms of struggle to rally the masses. In those difficult years the revolutionary movement in Vietnam benefited from the wholehearted assistance of the Comintern and the fraternal communist parties.

In March 1935 the first national congress of the party was held in Macao (China), with the participation of 15 delegates. The congress laid down three tasks: To consolidate and develop the party, to win the broad masses of the people to the party, and to oppose the imperialist war. After the congress the movement was quickly restored and continued to develop vigorously.

In the Period From 1936 to 1939, Party Leadership in the Movement for Democracy, Against the Colonial Reactionaries and Their Agents, Against Fascism and War, and for Freedom, a Better Life and Peace

In July 1936, in execution of a resolution of the 7th Congress of the Comintern and in the light of the situation in the country, Comrade Le Hong Phong, alternate member of the Executive Committee of the Comintern in charge of the affairs of the party from 1932 1937, convened a plenum of the party Central Committee to work out the new task of the party. The conference pointed out that the immediate and direct task of the Vietnamese revolution was to oppose the colonial reactionaries, henchmen of fascism and to struggle for freedom, democratic freedoms, a better life and peace. The conference decided to form the broad democratic front in order to rally all forces standing for democratic and progressive reforms, and to make use of all available forms and methods of struggle to push the mass movement forward.

A new revolutionary high tide surged up throughout the country beginning with the movement to demand the convening of the Indochinese congress. Workers, peasants and other strata of the population stirringly took part in the struggle in very varied forms, from legal to semilegal and illegal. In 1937 there were more than 400 workers' actions with 120,000 persons taking part and 150 peasant struggles with 30,000 persons taking part. The legal press of the party and the front came out regularly, 25,000 people attended the May Day celebration in Hanoi in 1938. This was a major action of the masses under the direct leadership of the political party of the proletariat.

The plenum of the Central Committee in March 1938 confirmed the great successes already obtained, corrected the "leftist" deviations, decided to consolidate the party, and to closely combine legal and underground activities. The conference elected Nguyen Van Cu general secretary of the party.

In March 1939 the party issued a manifesto pointing to the approaching fascist danger and calling for united actions for democratic freedoms and against war, elimination of the Troskyites and support for the candidates of the democratic front.

Party Leadership in the General Uprising To Seize Power (1939-1945)

The Second World War broke out. In November 1939, the Central Committee plenum pointed out that to liberate the nation was the foremost task of the Indochinese revolution and decided to form the national anti-imperialist united front of Indochina.

France was defeated. The Japanese occupied Indochina. In September 1940 the Bac Son insurrection broke out followed by the Nam Ky (Cochinchina) uprising in November of the same year. Then in January 1941, a mutiny took place in Do Luong, Nghe An Province. Those were as many harbingers of the period when the entire people would rise up to overthrow the aggressors and traitors to regain independence and freedom. In November 1940 the Central Committee plenum laid down the immediate task for the party to lead the Indochinese peoples in preparing for the armed uprising. The conference appointed Truong Chinh acting secretary of the party Central Committee.

On February 8, 1941, Comrade Ho Chi Minh returned to the country to directly lead the revolution.

In May 1941 a Central Committee plenum was convened and presided over by Comrade Ho Chi Minh. The conference decided that the immediate revolution was the national liberation revolution and the revolutionary forces of the nation should spearhead their struggle at the Japanese and French fascist aggressors. The conference decided to form the Vietnam League for Independence (Viet Minh) and carried out a very flexible policy of national union aimed at rallying all the national forces to save the country and liberate the country. At the same time, the Viet Minh also decided to help the Lao people set up the League for the Independence of Ai Lao (Laos) and to help the Kampuchean people set up the League for the Independence of Kampuchea in order jointly to drive away the common enemies of the three nations, who were the Japanese and French imperialists. The conference also decided that when the opportunity came, "with our existing forces we might lead partial uprisings in different localities and could win success, opening the way for a major general insurrection." The conference elected Comrade Truong Chinh general secretary of the party.

Under the leadership of the party and acting along the program of the Viet Minh, which conformed with the aspiration of the masses, the revolutionary movement quickly gained in strength. The newly formed associations for national salvation expanded their memberships rapidly. The movement to build the armed forces and the revolutionary bases and to prepare for the armed uprising was pushed ahead. In December 1944 Comrade Ho Chi Minh ordered the founding of the Vietnam Armed Propaganda Liberation Group, of which the organisation and leadership was assumed by Comrade Vo Nguyen Giap.

In March 1945 the Japanese staged a coup d'etat and overthrew the French. The party Central Committee put forth the slogan "Drive out the Japanese fascists" and launched a broad and strong movement to oppose the Japanese and save the country, while making urgent preparations for the general uprising to seize power. Partial uprisings broke out in several places. When the Second World War entered its final stage and the Soviet Union had completely defeated the Japanese and forced them to surrender (August 15, 1945) the party decided that the "once-in-a-thousand-years chance" had come and led the entire people to rise up in general insurrection to seize power. On August 19, 1945, the general uprising was successful in the capital city. On September 2, 1945, President Ho Chi Minh on behalf of the provisional government read the declaration of independence, proclaiming the birth of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam.

Party Leadership in the Resistance Against the French Colonialist Aggressors (1945-1954)

From September 1945 to December 1946 the party led the struggle to defend and consolidate the revolutionary power, build the new regime and prepare for the nationwide resistance.

Immediately after its inception the revolutionary power had to cope with piling difficulties in all fields, political, economic and social. In the north 200,000 troops of the Chiang Kai-shek army came to relieve the Japanese, taking along a bunch of Vietnamese traitors. In the south the French colonialists, assisted by the British imperialists, on September 23, 1945, opened fire and occupied Saigon, then broadened the war to the whole of South Vietnam.

President Ho Chi Minh, on behalf of the Central Committee, put forth six urgent tasks which he later summed up in the three following major tasks: to fight against famine, to fight against illiteracy and to fight against foreign aggression. The party Central Committee, for its part, issued an order for national resistance and national construction, stressing the task of consolidating the revolutionary power. A movement to increase food production and combat famine was launched. The revolutionary power also confiscated the lands of the French colonialists and Vietnamese traitors to distribute to the peasants, ordered a 25-percent reduction of land rent and enforced the eight-hour workday, etc. In early 1946 the first national general elections were held and the resulting National Assembly adopted the first constitution (November 9, 1946). In May 1946 the Vietnam National Union Front was founded.

The party and President Ho were particularly concerned with the resistance in the south and urged the people throughout the country to side with the population in the south in stepping up the resistance. On the other hand, the party adopted wise measures and policies to isolate the Chiang Kai-shek troops and finally succeeded in getting them out of the country in order to concentrate efforts on the main enemy at the time, who was the French colonialist aggressors.

On March 6, 1946, the Vietnamese Government signed with France the modus vivendi whereby France recognized Vietnam as a free country with its own government, parliament, army and finance. But right afterward France trampled on its own signature.

Taking advantage of the temporary lull, we endeavoured to consolidate and develop our forces in all fields and accumulated valuable experiences.

Party Leadership in the Nation-Wide Resistance War Against the French Colonialist Aggressors (December 19, 1946-July 1954)

Betraying their commitment, the French colonialists conducted provocations everywhere, and in fact had begun an aggressive war against Vietnam on a national scale. On December 19, 1946, the Vietnamese people's nation-wide resistance war broke out.

The Standing Board of the party Central Committee met on December 18-19, 1946, under the chairmanship of President Ho Chi Minh and worked out the basic line and orientation for the resistance war. On December 20, 1946, President Ho Chi Minh issued an appeal to the entire people stressing that "we rather sacrifice all than lose our country and accept slavery".

The party Central Committee issued the directive about the national resistance war, clearly determining the objectives of the resistance war as independence and national reunification and its basic guideline as a national, allround, long term and self-reliant resistance. The party's line and policy for the resistance war were clearly expounded in the book "The Resistance Will Win" by Truong Chinh, published in early 1947, and were concretized, supplemented and perfected at the party Central Committee's meetings in the following years.

Under the correct leadership of the party and President Ho Chi Minh, the entire Vietnamese people rose up and fought courageously and won initial victories right at the beginning of the war. In late 1947 the enemy sprang an offensive on the Viet Bac (Northern Vietnam) resistance zone in an attempt to destroy the leadership of the resistance but suffered a heavy defeat. In the following years the resistance war intensified and recorded new and major successes in all fields, military, political, economic and cultural, at both the front-line and behind enemy lines. The enemy had to switch its strategy from "lightning attack and rapid victory" to consolidation of the occupied areas and was forced to fight a protracted war of attrition.

In early 1950 the Soviet Union and other people's democracies formally established diplomatic relations with Vietnam. In the summer of the same year, the Standing Board of the party Central Committee decided to open the border campaign.

President Ho Chi Minh personally went to the front. The campaign was victorious, the Viet Bac resistance zone was consolidated and expanded, and the encirclement imposed by the imperialists was broken. The situation of the war was reversed: We repeatedly launched major offensives and the enemy was forced into a defensive posture.

In this period the Kampuchean and Lao peoples also recorded many important victories in their own wars of resistance.

On the rush of victory, the party held its second national congress in mid-February 1951 with the participation of 158 full and 53 standby delegates elected by more than 760,000 members of the party's organizations in Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea. The congress heard a political report presented by President Ho Chi Minh and a report "On the Vietnamese Revolution" presented by Comrade Truong Chinh and adopted the party's manifesto, political programme and constitution. The congress determined the line of the national people's democratic revolution and laid down the main task of the revolution of taking the resistance to complete victory. The congress decided that the party resumed its open activity and renamed the party the Vietnam Workers' Party. It elected a new party Central Committee with Comrade Ho Chi Minh as its president and Comrade Truong Chinh as its general-secretary. Regarding Laos and Kampuchea, the congress decided to organize a revolutionary party in each country in conformity with the characteristics of the situation there.

Following the second party congress and the subsequent Central Committee plenums, the resistance developed vigorously, winning major victories on all battlefields: in the Hoa Binh campaign (1952) and Tay Bac (northwestern Vietnam) campaign (1953), in the Red River Delta, in the Fifth Resistance Zone (central Vietnam), on the Central Highlands and in the Mekong Delta. The Lao revolution also won resounding victories, particularly in upper Laos.

In order to replenish the resistance forces, step up the resistance and carry out the task of the people's national-democratic revolution, the fourth Central Committee plenum, held in January 1953, decided on the land reform to realize the slogan "land to the tillers". Later the fifth Central Committee plenum, held in November 1953, adopted a land programme, the party's line for the rural areas and the guideline and policy for the land reform. The major successes of the land reform made very important contributions to the history of the resistance. Tens of millions of peasants, under the party's leadership, vigorously rose in an earth-shaking movement to smash the feudal and colonial yoke.

In 1953 the resistance forces broadened in all fields. The People's Army was already capable of launching major offensives while the local armies and guerillas were very active at both the frontline and in enemy-held areas. The rear bases were consolidated. Meanwhile, the French colonialists met with many difficulties, material and moral, strategic and tactical although their force, including French and mercenary troops, totalled 500,000 at its peak. Most of France's war budget was supplied by the United States, which, following its defeat in Korea, was trying to intensify its intervention in Indochina.

In September 1953 the Political Bureau of the party Central Committee decided to wage a strategic winter-spring offensive in 1953-54 with the main blow aimed at the enemy forces in the north-west. In all the three zones of the country, the Vietnamese people's armed forces stepped up the war of attribution and annihilation and held major enemy forces in a defensive posture. When the enemy concentrated a big force including its most seasoned units on Dien Bien Phu in an attempt to turn this area into an important strategic base of France and the U.S. in Southeast Asia, the party Central Committee's Political Bureau decided to open the Dien Bien Phu campaign (early December 1953). The campaign won complete victory after 55 days and nights of fierce fighting (March 13, 1954-May 7, 1954), and victoriously ending the winter-spring offensive, wiping out or disbanding 112,000 enemy troops, or one-fourth of the total French forces at that time.

In Laos, more than half of the land area and about half of the population were liberated. In Kampuchea, the Issarak Liberation Army liberated about two-thirds of the land area, and on June 19, 1954, the Kampuchean resistance government was set up.

The success of almost nine years of resistance, the success of the winter-spring offensive and particularly, the victory of the Dien Bien Phu battle forced the French Government to sign the Geneva agreements on Indochina, under which France and other participating countries committed themselves to respect the independence, sovereignty, unity and territorial integrity of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea. France also had to agree to a cease-fire and withdraw its troops. Dur to the selfish ulterior motives of the Chinese leaders, who had secretly compromosed with the imperialists, the Geneva agreement did not bring about results commensurate with our victories on the battlefield. Nevertheless, the French old-type colonialist war of aggression ended in failure, and French imperialism, a major colonial power, was defeated by a small and weak colony.

In July 1954 the party Central Committee held its sixth plenum, which decided to "consolidate peace, achieve national reunification and complete independence and democracy in the whole country."

Party Leadership in the Realization of the Two Strategies: Socialist Revolution in the North and National People's Democratic Revolution in the South; Party Leadership in Completing the Land Reform and Rehabilitating the Economy in the North (1954-1959).

These tasks were worked out at conference of tne party Central Committee's Political Bureau in September 1954. The land reform was completed in the delta and mid-land areas in the summer of 1956. In the mountain areas this reform was carried out through the "movement for agricultural cooperation and development combined with the completion of democratic reforms". The tenth Central Committee plenum, held in September 1956, affirmed the success of the land reform, reviewed the efforts in its implementation and worked out measures to correct them.

Economic rehabilitation was basically completed in late 1957 when industrial and agricultural gross output had almost attained the level before World War Two (1939) and the imperialists' prerogatives economy and other areas had been abolished. The people's life had seen initial improvement. The proletarian dectatorship and the party's leadership were strengthened.

Party Leadership in Socialist Transformation and Initial Economic and Cultural Development in the North (1958-1960)

After the 13th plenum (December 1957) of the Central Committee laid down many measures to educate party cadres and members and the entire people in socialist ideology and to overcome the vague conception about the relationship between the task of continuing socialist revolution in the north and the task of liberating the south, the 14th plenum (November 1958) decided to push ahead socialist transformation while developing the state sector as the leading sector of the national economy. The 16th plenum adopted a resolution on agricultural cooperation and transformation of private capitalist industry and trade in the north. All these policies received warm welcome from the masses, who made them the goals of broad and stirring revolutionary movements. However, the struggle between the two paths became quite arduous in certain areas and at certain times. Agricultural transformation through the forming of low-level cooperatives in the northern countryside basically completed in late 1960, involving more than 85 percent of peasant households with more than 68 percent of the rice acreage. In the towns almost 100 percent of the capitalist families engaged in industry, trade, transport... underwent socialist transformation; 260,000 handicraftsmen joined cooperatives; accounting for 87.9 percent of the total.

Along with the successful transformation of the relations of production, the targets under the three-year plan for agricultural and industrial production and cultural and medical development was also met.

On December 31, 1959, a new constitution, the first socialist constitution, was adopted by the National Assembly.

Party Leadership in the Struggle for Preserving the Revolutionary Forces in the South and the Concerted Uprising Movement (1954-1960)

Clearly conscious that the U.S. imperialists were the main obstacle to the restoration of peace and national reunification and in face of the enemy's fascist acts aimed at destroying the revolutionary forces and undermining the Geneva agreements, the party's Political Bureau decided to launch a political struggle. The instruction made it clear that this did not mean to refrain from acts of armed self-defence in given circumstances and that it was necessary to strengthen the military and para-military forces, to build rear areas and firm mass bases, considering this as the fundamental condition for preserving and developing the revolutionary forces (October 1956 resolution). Comrade Le Duan, member of the Political Bureau in charge of the party's organization in the south, pointed out that the road to liberate the south must be a revolutionary one.

The party led the southern people in a persistent struggle against the U.S.-Ngo Dinh Diem clique, to zealously participate in the political struggle while making every effort to preserve the revolutionary forces and to destroy enemy spies and agents. The enemy launched a campaign of bloody persecution, inflicting heavy losses on the revolutionary forces. But the population continued to surge ahead with high revolutionary mettle. In many places the population rose up in a combined political and armed struggle.

In January 1959 the Central Committee 15th plenum reasserted the task of liberating the south and stressed that the basic trend of development of the Vietnamese revolution in the south is one of violence. In the light of that resolution, a stormy concerted rising movement surged up throughout the south. People rose up to kill cruel agents of the enemy, surrounded and stormed military posts, captured enemy weapons, disrupting by big chunks the enemy's ruling machine in the countryside, and seized power in many large areas in both the mountain and delta areas. Many armed units were formed.

The National Front for the Liberation of South Vietnam was founded. The revolution switched from a defensive position to a position of vigorous offensive.

The Third National Congress of the Party, Fulfilment of the First Five-Year Plan, Defeat of the U.S. Imperialists' "Special War" Strategy (1961-1965)

The party's third congress, held on September 5-10, 1960, was attended by 500 representatives of more than 500,000 party members throughout the country. This was the "congress for building socialism in the north and struggling for peaceful national reunification". The congress heard a political report delivered by Le Duan, party general secretary since 1957, pointing to the two strategic tasks of the revolution throughout the country, namely, to push ahead socialist revolution in the north and the people's national democratic revolution in the south.

The congress adopted the orientation and tasks of the first five-year plan (1961-1965) and a new party constitution. It elected a new Central Committee. Comrade Ho Chi Minh was re-elected chairman of the Central Committee, and Comrade Le Duan was elected first secretary of the Central Committee.

After the congress the implementation of the five-year plan yielded many successes. By 1965 the north already had enough food and many new industrial services had been created, producing 90 percent of the needs in consumer goods. By late 1965, 80 percent of the agricultural co-operatives had become fully socialist co-operatives... North Vietnam became the steady rear base for the revolution of the whole country.

In the south panicked by the people's revolutionary movement, the U.S.-Diem clique launched a "special war", pitting Vietnamese against Vietnamese and relying mainly on the puppet army and administration and the system of "strategic hamlets". They intended to use this type of war to quench the revolution in the south and also as a test of the "special war" strategy for application in other places where U.S. neo-colonialism wanted to impose its control. However the revolution in the south had completely defeated that strategy. On August 5, 1964, the U.S. imperialists started its air bombing of North Vietnam.

Party Leadership in Defeating the U.S. "Local War" Strategy in the South and Its First War of Destruction; Continued Socialist Construction in the North (1965-1968)

The U.S. imperialists switched over to applying the "local war" strategy by means of two strategic forces, U.S. troops and the puppet army. In late 1965 they massively sent to the south 200,000 troops of the U.S. and its satellite countries.

The 11th Central Committee plenum (March 1965) and the 12th plenum (Dec. 1965) made a deep study of the overall situation and decided to mobilize the entire party, army and people to "defeat the U.S. imperialists' aggressive war in any eventuality". The subsequent resolutions of the party C.C. further indicated many concrete tasks to carry out the resistance war in both the south and the north and to cope with the eventual expansion of the "local war" to the whole country.

U.S. forces were intercepted repeatedly right after they set foot on South Vietnam. The movement to "destroy the Yankee aggressors" rose ever higher. After the dry seasons of 1965-1966 and 1966-1967, the failure of the U.S. war of aggression was a foregone conclusion even though by the end of 1967 half a million U.S. troops had been brought to South Vietnam. The enemy lost big segments of its forces and failed to put down the Vietnamese people's resistance war. For their part, the revolutionary forces developed strongly and took the initiative in annihilating the enemy on all battlefronts. Meanwhile, the people's political movement against the U.S. imperialists and their henchmen unfolded stirringly in both the urban and rural areas, created chaos in their rear bases and provided favourable conditions for the operation of the revolutionary armed forces.

In the north the U.S. imperialists mobilized a big air and naval force for a frenzied war of destruction, considering it a part of their aggressive war strategy in the south in an attempt to ward off complete defeat. However, the northern people, tiding over all sacrifices and hardships, brought the U.S. barbarous war of destruction to failure. Meanwhile, bringing into play the absolute supremacy of the socialist regime, they made every effort to supply mainpower and material resources to the south -- the great frontline -- while continuing socialist construction right under enemy bombing. The emulation drive to resist U.S. aggression for national salvation and to carry out simultaneously production and fighting developed powerfully, drawing all strata of the population.

In January 1967 the Central Committee held its 13th plenum, deciding to step up the struggle on the diplomatic front and to take the initiative in attacking the enemy on international forums in service of the fight against U.S. aggression, for national salvation. In January 1968 the 14th plenum, in a new effort to step up the resistance war, decided to launch the resoundingly victorious strategic Tet offensive. The U.S. imperialists, heavily defeated, were forced to unconditionally stop the bombing and to begin the peace talks in Paris in late 1968.

From 1969 to 1972 Party Leadership in Economic Rehabilitaiton in the North, in Defeating the "Vietnamization" Strategy in the South, and in Defeating the Second U.S. War of Destruction in the North

After the first U.S. war of destruction, the party led the people to restore the economy in order to meet the needs of the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation, to ensure their well-being and build and defend the material and technical foundations of socialism.

On September 3, 1969, President Ho Chi Minh passed away. In his historic last testament he says that "our entire party and people, closely joining their efforts, will build a peaceful, reunified, independent, democratic and prosperous Vietnam and make a worthy contribution to the world revolution." In their immense grief, the Vietnamese people were determined to turn sorrow into revolutionary actions, to march steadily forward, and continue the president's great cause.

In the south the enemy accelerated the "Vietnamization" strategy by launching a frantic "pacification" campaign, causing many difficulties to the revolutionary forces, especially in those areas where vigilance was slack. However, following our victory of Highway 9-southern Laos in early 1971, the Political Bureau decided to launch a strategic offensive in 1972 to thwart the "Vietnamization" strategy.

In early 1972 Nixon was given a warm welcome by the Chinese authorities in Beijing. The two sides signed the Shanghai communique, agreeing, among other things, on U.S. withdrawal from Taiwan in exchange for Chinese assistance in maintaining the Thieu administration in South Vietnam. Soon after that the U.S. imperialists resumed their war of destruction, attacking North Vietnam with great violence. Seeing clearly the enemy's scheme, the Political Bureau of the party Central Committee pointed out in its June 1, 1972, resolution: "Our people must remain firm and highly vigilant and be prepared to fight and win under all circumstances".

On the battlefield, the revolutionary armed forces were winning repeatedly. The U.S. imperialists not only sustained heavy military defeats but also were strongly condemned by the world people including the American people. On the other hand, they were facing many political, economic and social problems at home. Meanwhile, the peace-loving world was giving its support to the Vietnamese people.

Having failed in cowering the Vietnamese people with the B-52 bombings in Hanoi and Haiphong in late 1972, the U.S. imperialists were compelled to sign the Paris agreement on ending the war and restoring peace in Vietnam (January 27, 1973). The agreement provided for an end to the U.S. imperialists' war of aggression, the withdrawal of all American and mercenary troops from Vietnam and respect for the Vietnamese people's fundamental national rights.

On March 29, 1973, the last American expeditionary troops left Vietnam.

Party Leadership in Economic Restoration and Development in the North and in Supporting the Revolution in the South. Leadership in the General Offensive and Uprisings in the Spring of 1975, Which Completely Liberated the South (1973-1975)

Following the Paris agreement, the party Central Committee set the urgent tasks of building the north and reinforcing the revolution in the south (Resolution 22, Central Committee) and adopted the economic rehabilitation and development plan of 1974-1975.

Acting upon the instructions of the party, the Vietnamese people did their best to overcome the aftermath of war and to rehabilitate the economy. In 1974 rice output surpassed the plan by eight percent, with an increase of 21 percent over 1973. The building of the material and technical foundations made new progress. In 1974 gross industrial and handicraft output surpassed the plan by four percent, an increase of 15 percent over 1973. In general, some major targets attained in industry and agriculture in 1974 were higher than in 1965 and 1971, the peak years of economic development in the 20 years of socialist construction in the north.

Support for the south was stepped up. From 1973 through 1974 150,000 young people joined the armed forces and went to the front. Tens of thousands of cadres, office employees and young volunteers were mobilized to help in the anti-U.S. struggle for national salvation in the south. Large amounts of material were moved to the front to meet the immediate needs and to provide for strategic use later on.

At the end of 1974, the 23rd plenum of the party Central Committee adopted a resolution on strengthening the party leadership and increasing the combat capacity of the party.

Stubbornly sticking to the "Nixon doctrine" and the "Vietnamization of the war" policy, the U.S. imperialists, after withdrawing their troops from South Vietnam, continued to build the puppet forces of more than one million men into a tool to carry on their neocolonialism. They supplied these mercenaries with more weapons and war equipment and urged them to carry out landgrabbing operations against the liberated areas in an attempt to put all the south under their control within three years (1973-75).

In July 1973 the party Central Committee held its 21st plenum and defined the tasks of the struggle to force the enemy to implement the Paris agreement and at the same time to prepare for a counteroffensive to win final victory. In pursuance of these objectives, the Vietnamese people recorded many major victories in 1973-74, smashed enemy operations, recovered many areas occupied by the enemy in their landgrabbing operations, narrowed the enemy-controlled areas, broadened the liberated areas and drove the enemy into a position of passive defense. By the end of 1974 conditions had been ripe for liberating the south.

The meetings for the party Political Bureau in October 1974 and January 1975 decided to complete the preparations for a general offensive and uprising to take power into the hands of the people and completely liberate the south.

Under the party's leadership, the country's great forces were mobilized for this decisive battle aimed at securing victory within 1975 and 1976 and possibly right in 1975. This resolution was taken in spite of the U.S. imperialists threat and the Chinese reactionaries' attempt to prevent Vietnam from developing its forces by reducing their aid while colluding with the United States to maintain the Nguyen Van Thieu administration and occupying the Vietnamese Hoang Sa archipelago by force (Jan. 20, 1974).

The spring 1975 general offensive and uprising (Mar. 10 - Apr. 30, 1975), which culminated in the victorious Ho Chi Minh campaign, put an end to the glorious anti-U.S. resistance war for national salvation of the Vietnamese people conducted over nearly 21 years. The Saigon puppet administration was toppled, the U.S. imperialists' scheme to maintain their client regime in the south was thwarted, and the whole southern part of Vietnam liberated.

Party Leadership in Building and Defending Independent, Reunified and Socialist Vietnam and in Defeating The Wars of Aggression by Chinese Expansionism (1975-80).

Following the liberation of the south, the party led the people in quickly stabilizing the situation. In Aug. 1975 the 24th plenum of the party Central Committee pointed out the favourable conditions for the revolution after the reunification of the country. "The sooner the country is reunified", it said, "the quicker will be the full development of the overall strength of the nation", and defined the strategic task for the whole country, namely to step up socialist construction in the north while carrying out socialist transformation and construction in the south.

On April 25, 1976, the general election to the Sixth National Assembly was held throughout the country. The new assembly renamed the country "the Socialist Republic of Vietnam".

From Dec. 14-20, 1976 the Fourth National Party Congress was held with the participation of more than 1,000 delegates representing over 1.5 million party members. The congress reviewed the party's diversified experiences in conducting the anti-U.S. imperialist resistance war for national salvation and mapped out the line for socialist revolution in the whole country, the orientation and tasks of the second five-year state plan (1976-80) and the line for party building in the new stage of the revolution. The congress renamed the party "the Communist Party of Vietnam" and elected a new Central Committee with Comrade Le Duan as its general secretary.

Since its fourth congress the party has led the entire people to put all-out effort in national construction and defence.

Overcoming enormous difficulties, bringing into play the favourable conditions brought about by national reunification, closely uniting with the Lao and Kampuchean peoples and enjoying the great assistance of the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries, the Vietnamese people have made many achievements in healing the wounds of war, restoring production, stabilizing the people's life, intensifying national defence and security and gradually building the material and technical basis of socialism.

The Vietnamese people also won glorious victories in the two patriotic wars against the Beijing expansionists and their stooges, the Pol Pot clique.

Under the slogan "all for the socialist homeland and the people's happiness," the entire Vietnamese people are engaging in a stirring labour emulation drive in honour of the coming fifth party congress, harbinger of a high tide of socialist construction and national defence.

NHAN DAN SEES U.S. THREAT TO CENTRAL AMERICA

OW230839 Hanoi VNA in English 0705 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 23 -- NHAN DAN today demands that the Reagan administration positively respond to the constructive proposals of Nicaragua, Cuba and Mexico to remove tension from El Salvador and the whole of Central America by peaceful means.

The paper says: "Public opinion in Latin America and the world as a whole clearly sees that the root cause of mounting tension in the Caribbean and Central America is the Reagan administration's adventurous policy of imposing U.S. neo-colonialism on these strategic regions... The elections to be staged by the Duarte regime and the support of reactionaries in Argentina, Chile, Israel and South Africa for this clique are calculated to save the facist junta in El Salvador".

The paper notes that the grave situation in El Salvador, Guatemala and other countries is the result not of an administrative crisis but of a profound institutional crisis.

It continues: "As proved by facts in El Salvador, each escalation in U.S. intervention has made the people more determined. In spite of brutal repression, Salvadoran patriots are closely united. Together with the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front and the Democratic Revolutionary Front, they are pushing up their struggle to overthrow the dictatorial regime... In Nicaragua, the people, under the leadership of the Sandinista National Liberation Front and the Government for National Reconstruction do not flinch from hostile actions and threat of aggression on the part of the U.S. imperialists".

"Progressive mankind is following with admiration the struggle of the peoples of the Caribbean and Central America, which, though difficult and complicated, is advancing gloriously", NHAN DAN says.

ELECTION VIOLENCE ERUPTS; COUNTERACTIONS TAKEN

Violence in Sulawesi, Java

BK230400 Hong Kong AFP in English 0332 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] Jakarta, 23 Mar (AFP) -- With the situation in Jakarta calm following violence at a recent ruling Golkar (functional groups) election campaign rally, clashes were today reported to have broken out in South Sulawesi (Celebes) and west Java between factions of Golkar and its main rival Moslem United Development Party (PPP).

PPP Executive Mochtar was badly wounded in a clash with Golkar members at the south Celebes provincial capital, Ujungpandang, on Friday, the Jakarta newspaper PERLITA (TORCH) reported. The clash followed an incident in which Mochtar removed a Golkar symbol which covered a PPP signboard. His house was stoned by Golkar men who then attacked him with sharp weapons, the paper said.

In several places in west Java certain groups had removed PPP symbols and signboards causing tension between PPP and Golkar followers, the paper said.

Meanwhile a group of Golkar sympathizers had defected to PPP, the paper said in another report.

The former Golkar members, all from the big Gawo community, had pledged to vote for PPP on polling day on May 4, the paper said.

In a statement signed by its chairman Salman Amin, the community called on its friends and associates to vote the PPP.

The defection was the first by a Golkar group to PPP, whose supporters had staged a molotov cocktail attack on the Golkar rally here last Thursday which sparked off mass rioting.

A PPP spokesman said the party is to stage five campaign rallies in Jakarta tomorrow.

Head of Golkar faction in Parliament Sugiharto said last night Golkar would deal firmly with those trying to disrupt its campaign rallies. We are ready to face them and we shall not remain idle towards any act of terrorism, he added.

Panggabean Views Jakarta Riot

BK230825 Jakarta ANTARA in English 0721 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] Jakarta, 23 Mar (ANTARA) -- The three contestants in the genral elections in May are entirely innocent of the rioting which erupted during a preelection campaign rally held by the Golkar functional group at Banteng Square here last Thursday, it was stressed by Minister Coordinator for Political and Defence Affairs General Maraden Panggabean Monday night.

The exoneration of the Partai Persatuan Pembangunan (PPP), a merger of Muslim parties, the ruling Golkar and the Partai Democracy Indonesia (PDIO from any guilt in the rally disturbances at Banteng Square was made known by General Panggabean to reporters after he called in President Suharto at the Jalan Cendana presidential mansion here. But he pointed out if these contestants were clean then there must be another party involved in causing the troubles. Who would be the other party, he was asked by the journalists.

General Panggabean replied that the matter was still under investigation. He said however both extreme leftists and rightists were still lurking around and they would exploit every opportunity to foment trouble.

The military leader, a former minister of defence, then asked for constant vigilance. He said this should be treated as a serious challenge as the extreme rightsts and leftists could cause trouble. He was also questioned about the 240 persons detained for the troubles at Banteng Square, and said that these people were still being interrogated. Who the mastermind is of the rioting at Lapangan is still under investigation, the minister coordinator said.

Up to Monday, he added, it could not be ascertained on who was the mastermind but there were some indications, the retired four-star army general added, without however entering into details. He then appealed to the contestants to realize the sacred mission and pure goals of the general elections and after this awareness, he was convinced that the parties should avoid at all costs that they would be exploited by third parties. Carelessness, he added, would provide opportunity for extremists to exploit the situation and this must be avoided. The extremists were always waiting for the right opportunity to foment trouble and the three contestants should be very vigilant, he urged.

On the other hand, he said, the security forces should be able to ensure public order and security to allow the people to carry out their electioneering and election rallies in peace and tranquility.

Over 200 Jakarta Rioters Freed

BK231045 Hong Kong AFP in English 1015 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Excerpt] Jakarta, 23 Mar (AFP) -- More than 200 people who were arrested here for allegedly taking part in mass rioting last week have been released, Jakarta military commander Major General Normal Sasono said today. "Most of them were school students who were influenced by others to embark on destruction and arson," he added.

A total of 30 people, strongly suspected of having masterminded the disturbances, are still being detained, he indicated.

General Sasono said the military had managed to put down the violence in a short time and were taking steps to trace those behind the rioting. "Had we not acted quickly, the situation might have become worse," he noted.

"It is not impossible that more arrests will be made soon," he added.

FOREIGN MINISTER SAKURAUCHI MEETS HAIG 23 MAR

[By Masaru Imai]

[Excerpts] Washington, March 23 (KYODO) -- Japan's Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi Tuesday stepped from his earlier pledge and displayed a noncommital attitude to U.S. calls for taking of comprehensive market-opening measures by summer. Sakurauchi told Secretary of State Alexander Haig that Japan is unable to take all steps to open its market still wider for foreign goods and services before the June Versailles summit of the seven industrialized nations, Japanese officials told reporters.

The Japanese minister, here on a five-day visit, Monday met President Ronald Reagan and said his government would take substantial trade measures before the summit in response to ringing appeals from the United States and Western Europe.

Haig, at a meeting with Sakurauchi Tuesday, renewed the U.S. calls to take fresh additional steps to resolve the trade friction between the two nations before the summit. Sakurauchi explained to Haig a series of market-opening measures Japan has so far taken and prudently replied Japan is unable to take all steps requested prior to the June meeting, the Japanese officials said. But Haig and Sakurauchi agreed to continue talks on various levels to defuse tension over trade between the two countries, they said. Sakurauchi was quoted as telling Haig that he will send Deputy Foreign Minister Nobuo Matsunaga to Washington next month for further talks.

The Haig-Sakurauchi talks, which lasted about three and a half hours, one hour longer than scheduled, covered a wide range of international and bilateral problems. Haig appreciated Japan's efforts to expand its defense capability but sought further efforts to counter rapid Soviet military buildup in the Far East.

Haig and Sakurauchi, the Japanese officials said, agreed to hold sufficient prior consultations among the Western-bloc nations to foil a communist attempt to turn the June U.N. Special Session on Disarmament into an arena of propaganda. Haig and Sakurauchi also discussed pipe-laying equipment exports by Japan's Komatsu Ltd. to the Soviet Union for a natural gas transportation from Siberia to Western Europe, the Japanese officials said without elaborating. But Japanese sources said Haig strongly asked Japan to suspend shipments of pipe layers already contracted for but still undelivered. The U.S. Government has banned such exports by an American company as part of its economic sanctions against the Soviet Union and asked Japan to postpone pipe shipments. But Japan has maintained shipments of pipes already contracted for have nothing to do with the problem of economic sanctions against Moscow taken to protest against its roles in Afghanistan and Poland.

Sakurauchi, at the meeting with Haig Tuesday, expressed concern over worsening Sino-U.S. relations triggered by U.S. arms sales to Taiwan which China claims is its integral province. "Good relations between the United States and China are important for stability in Asia in general and for Sino-Japanese relations in particular," the Japanese minister told Haig. Haig made no comment on Sakurauchi's statement about relations with China, the Japanese officials said.

Sakurauchi was scheduled to meet Vice President George Bush and meet reporters later before attending a dinner to be hosted by the Washington-based Japan-America Society. He will hold talks with U.S. Trade Representative William Brock Wednesday morning before leaving for home.

Says U.S. View 'Outdated'

OW240109 Tokyo KYODO in English 0037 24 Mar 82

[By Masaru Imai]

[Excerpts] Washington, March 23 (KYODO) -- Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi challenged American criticism that the Japanese market is closed to foreign imports, saying it is based on "outdated conceptions." "I cannot agree with the view that the U.S. trade deficit with our country is caused primarily by the closedness of our market," Sakurauchi told Americans at a dinner here hosted by the Washington-based Japan-America Society. He added: "Records show that Japan has been opening up its market, and I do not believe that particularly large number of barriers remain in such areas as tariffs."

Sakurauchi, on a five-day visit, said the largest problem the international community now faces is how to revitalize the world economy shaken by the oil crisis. He brushed aside the U.S. charge that the closed nature of the Japanese market is a chief factor behind the huge trade deficit of the United States which, according to U.S. figures, reached dollar 18 billion last year. Sakurauchi was apparently referring to an appeal by Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldridge recently to make a "dramatic" move to slash the huge U.S. trade deficit with Japan.

Sakurauchi said Japan, as the second most powerful economy in the free world, will fulfill its responsibility for the maintenance of the free trade system. He said his government will exert a further effort to open up the market still wider for foreign imports, as demanded by the United States and the European Community (EC). The foreign minister warned against rising protectionism, saying it helps only to reduce the volume of the world trade and deprive industrialized nations of their economic vitality.

He told Americans that Japan will promote defense cooperation with the United States and at the same time to expand its Self-defense Forces for security in Asia and the Pacific region. The Japanese Government, he said, has allowed defense spending to increase by 7.75 percent in fiscal 1982 at the expense of educational and social welfare outlays for defense buildup proposes. Sakurauchi called for Western unity to effective cope with the international crisis, including Afghanistan and Poland.

Further Report

[By Masaru Imai]

[Excerpts] Washington, March 23 (KYODO) -- Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi said yesterday no deadline has been set up for Japan's implementation of additional market-opening measures. He was answering at a press conference a reporter's question whether he had made any commitment to the United States to take such measures before the June Versailles summit of the seven industrialized nations. Sakurauchi met reporters after holding talks with Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Vice President George Bush and other U.S. leaders.

"There were no talks to set a deadline anyway," Sakurauchi said. President Ronald Reagan and Haig at their meetings with Sakurauchi called on Japan to introduce fresh additional measures to open up its market before the June summit. "It was merely mentioned from both sides that Japan should make efforts before the summit or Japan would make efforts having the summit in mind," Sakurauchi added. He said he explained to the Americans the measures Japan has so far decided to take to open the market still wider for foreign imports.

Sakurauchi said he called on U.S. leaders to take the initiative in revitalizing the sagging world economy. He said improvement of productivity, technological innovation and promotion of free trade are essential for the revitalization of the world economy. He said he and the American leaders did not discuss the Korean issue because they simply agreed not to take it up.

PROTEST LODGED ON FIRING INCIDENT ALONG DMZ

SK232303 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2257 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] Kaesong, March 23 (KCNA) -- The South Korean puppet army which had been ceaselessly perpetrating provocations against our side in the Demilitarized Zone committed at around 9 hours 5 minutes on March 23 the grave provocation of firing several rounds of ammunition from an automatic weapon at a place 650 metres northeast of MDL marker No. 0025 in the western sector of the front towards our post on the opposite side. At around 9 hours on March 23, U.S. imperialist aggression troops committed the criminal act of bringing a machinegun and "M-16" automatic rifle into the U.S. army post northwest of the Joint Security Area.

Such criminal acts of the enemy are a wanton violation of the armistice agreement and reckless military provocations which may cause an armed conflict between the two sides. At a time when the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises are going over to a full-scale stage, the enemy fired bullets at our side in the area along the military demarcation line and introduced automatic weapons into the Panmunjom Joint Security Area. This is a very ominous act.

Through a telephone notice our side to the Military Armistice Commission lodged a strong protest with the enemy side against the criminal acts of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascists against us and demanded the enemy side to take responsible measures against the recurrence of similar cases and immediately take out of the Joint Security Area the automatic weapons brought there.

NODONG SINMUN HITS SOUTH'S REACTION TO PUSAN FIRE

SK240417 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2250 GMT 23 Mar 82

[NODONG SINMUN 24 March commentary: "Maniacs' Racket"]

[Text] In connection with the fire at the American Cultural Center in Pusan and anti-U.S. and antigovernment leaflets disseminated elsewhere in the nation, a large-scale suppression racket and a whirlwind of roundup are sweeping South Korea.

While setting up a dragnet throughout South Korea, with an investigation command installed in Seoul and investigation headquarters in each province manned with crack investigators, the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military clique is daily issuing instructions and statements saying that those who render distinguished service will be granted privileges and those who neglect their duty will be reproved severely, driving the fascist hangmen to suppression. On 22 March, the puppet national defense minister issued a special order to all troops of the puppet army, retired soldiers and all the cadres of the armed services to fully cooperate in the investigation and put the Homeland Reservist Corps on alert for mobilization.

Following this, the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] group, which has become a group of gangsters, is running wild, threatening that they will find the suspects at any cost by mobilizing all of the one million party members.

Owing to this, South Korea is in a pandemonium where armed puppet soldiers and police in plain clothes run wild. In the midst of a scene of confusion with continued identification checks of the residents and passers-by, thousands of residents are arrested each night and vast numbers of people are referred to summary trials or other judiciary institutions. The riot continues. The brutal acts of suppresion in South Korea, daily becoming more serious, once again nakedly expose the brutal nature of the Chon Tu-hwan clique.

The frenzied rackets of the puppets, who while setting up a tightly guarded cordon all over South Korea, have launched a brutal investigation operation by mobilizing a net of suppression and have randomly arrested innocent residents and subjected them to oppression, provoke fury among the South Korean people.

South Korean residents burned the American Cultural Center and disseminated leaflets condemning and denouncing the U.S. imperialists' colonial enslavement policy and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist military clique's rule of terror and its traitorous acts. This is an explosion of the fury accumulated in the hearts of the South Korean people and an expression of resistance against the oppressors. It is also a demonstration of their strong aspiration to regain the trampled national dignity and independence and democratize their social and political life. It is natural for the South Korean people, who are forced to suffer national contempt, humiliation, poverty and lack of rights under the oppression doubly imposed by the aggressors and the traitorous group who follow them, to rise in resistance against the oppressors.

Babbling treacherously about such things as South Korea-U.S. friendship, the Chon Tu-Hwan clique is suppressing the people, who are trying to regain their deprived rights. The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, acting truculently and brutally against fellow countrymen just like a bunch of hungry wolves, is playing coquettishly before its master, just like a pet dog.

On 22 March, the DJP, Chon Tu-hwan's private party, held a meeting of the party executives and babbled that the riot acts of seditious elements should not be allowed at a time when South Korea-U.S. relations need to be strengthened this year, when the two countries mark the centennial of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries. It called for the arrest of the culprits. The DJP also sent the party's spokesman to the U.S. Embassy to express deep regret and pledged to cooperate in cracking down on the culprits by mobilizing all investigating organs and party organizations. The puppets even said that, if the U.S. authorities approved, they would reprimand those officials concerned who failed to prevent the fire incident in advance.

The fact that the DJP has committed the diplomatically unprecedented act of visiting the U.S. Embassy and asked U.S. approval for matters concerning personnel affairs shows that it is, contrary to its claim of being the ruling party, a group of gutless puppets and that the regime, which cannot handle personnel problems without getting prior approval from the U.S. Embassy, lacks independence and is nothing but a puppet regime whose strings are pulled by the United States.

The flunkeyist acts of the Chon Tu-hwan clique, copying those of the five traitors who sold out the nation to the Japanese imperialists in the year of Ulsa in the Yi dynasty, are foolish maneuvers of those who, in the face of isolation from the people, are trying to prolong their lives by clinging to the coattails of foreign forces. Neither suppression of the people nor dependence on foreign forces will save the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique from the blind alley in which it finds itself. These acts will only fan a burning fire. Slogans contained in the leaflets scattered in South Korea noted that the attack on the U.S. institutions of aggression is only the beginning of an anti-U.S. campaign.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique is a dirty flunkeyist group which is flattering the foreign forces in order to hold power and selling national dignity and independence and that it is a vicious group of fascists running wild in suppressing the people to achieve its dream of long-term power. As long as the policy of occupation by the U.S. imperialists and the rule of military terror by the Chon Tu-hwan clique persist, the South Korean people will be unable to escape misery and calamities or to sleep comfortably. Unless their urgent demand for democratic rights and freedom is achieved, the South Korean people will never stop their national salvation struggle against the U.S. imperialists and their stooges. The suppression racket is a futile act.

The U.S. imperialists, who are acting as masters after sneaking uninvited into one-half of another's country, should stop acts of aggression blocking the reunification of our country and trampling underfoot independence and should leave South Korea without delay.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique should stop the treacherous acts of flattering and following the outside forces, selling out the nation and suppressing the people and should step down from power.

KIM IL-SONG'S ANTI-IMPERIALIST CAUSE DISCUSSED

SK191232 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2220 GMT 18 Mar 82

[NODONG SINMUN 19 March special article: "The Respected and Beloved Leader Comrade Kim Il-song Is a Great Leader Who Leads the Cause of Independence Against Imperialism to Victory" -- KCNA identifies the item as a full page article by Kim Yong-nam]

[Text] Today, the cause of independence against imperialism is vigorously advancing. In this worthwhile struggle, the once oppressed and humiliated people have become the masters of the world and are vigorously creating the history of mankind.

While carrying out his revolutionary activities over a long period, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has devoted everything to the sacred cause of independence against imperialism. Thus, he has greatly contributed to the cause of independence against imperialism and to developing the international revolutionary movement.

1. Gone forever is the era when the imperialist major powers randomly suppressed and exploited hundreds of millions of people and dominated the world.

Today, the world's progressive people are vigorously struggling to end the imperialists' domination and tyranny and to independently and creatively pioneer their own destiny. This is the major characteristic of a new era in the history of mankind. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: It is the irrepressible trend of our era that the world's people oppose all forms of domination and subjugation and demand independence and that many countries advance toward national independence.

Our present era is a new era of independence when the masses, emerging from their status as subjects of history into the masters of the world, are vigorously creating history in accordance with their will and desire. In our era all countries and all peoples want to free themselves from all forms of subjugation and inequality, to traverse the road of independence and to lead a life of independence.

The cause of independence against imperialism is a sacred, historic one designed to finally eliminate imperialism and colonialism from the earth and to build a new world free from domination and subjugation. There is no more important task for people who value independence than to accomplish this cause. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a great leader who has devoted everything to developing the cause of independence against imperialism and to victoriously advancing this cause.

The first part of the 20th century was an era when a few imperialist major powers dominated and made a mockery of the world's continents. The vast areas of Asia, Africa and Latin America, where more than two-thirds of the world's population lived, were in a state of colonialism; the tyranny by the imperialists had reached a zenith.

At that time, our country was bound in the iron shackles of the Japanese colonial system, the whole national territory was submerged in a sea of blood, and the people suffered all forms of humiliation. Opposing oppression and exploitation and the imperialists' aggression and usurpation and advancing towards the cause of independence was a historic task which loomed not only before our people but also before all the oppressed peoples on all continents.

At this moment, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who had developed the great goal of ending the history of the disasters suffered by the oppressed and exploited people, embarked on the road of revolution with a resolve to free the people from the yoke of imperialism. The great leader was determined half a century ago to perform the task of down-with-imperialism. In the initial stage, when he pioneered the Korean revolution, he held aloft the revolutionary banner against imperialism. This was a historic event ushering in a new era of revolution advancing along the road of independence against imperialism.

The immortal achievement attained by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in carrying out the cause of independence against imperialism was above all else, his invention of the chuche idea, thus helping the people independently pioneer their own destiny.

Launched under peculiar colonial and semi-feudalistic social circumstances, our revolution was such that a bloody struggle had to be waged against the imperialists from the initial state and the people had to pioneer an unfamiliar road while independently solving all problems. Our people waged various struggles, such as the independence movement against the Japanese imperialists' fascist colonial rule, to regain the forfeited national sovereignty. Because of the absence of a correct guiding ideology, however, they experienced frustration everytime they struggled, only leaving lessons of blood.

Such being the case, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song invented the great chuche idea based on scientific insight into the requirements of the development of our revolution and into the desire of the oppressed people, thus brightly illuminating the advance course of the cause of independence against imperialism.

With the invention of the chuche idea by the great leader, our Korea gained an honor as the cradle of the guiding idea in the era of independence. The chuche idea is a great revolutionary banner which vigorously leads the people to accomplish the cause of independence against imperialism. This idea brightly illuminates the course of opposing all forms of domination and subjugation and of completely achieving the independence of the working people.

All the policies, strategies, tactics and struggle methods of our party for opposing imperialism proceed from and comply with the chuche idea. Because the Korean communists and people have tenaciously struggled, following the course indicated by the great chuche idea, they have safeguarded the sovereignty of the country from the strong imperialist enemies by correctly pioneering their own destiny and have glorified their dignity and pride. Holding that the chuche idea as its guideline, our fatherland, which was once obscure on the map of the world, has changed into a powerful independent, self-reliant country capable of self-defense; our people have become a revolutionary people who are resolute in the anti-imperialist struggle and are faithful to the cause of independence. Rapidly spreading, the chuche idea has vigorously encouraged the people in their struggle for independence and greatly influenced the process of revolutionarily reforming the world.

The achievement attained by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song for the cause of independence against imperialism is his making of a breakthrough in undermining the global imperialist system by defeating for the first time in history the Japanese and U.S. imperialists -- the most criminal imperialists. They were heinous enemies who, extending aggressive tentacles to our country a long time ago, brought immeasurable misfortunes to our people.

It was an important historic mission in safeguarding the national sovereignty and advancing the cause of anti-imperialism and independence on a worldwide scale to tenaciously struggle against the two imperialist nations running amok to dominate the entire world.

Our people's anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle was an arduous one to recover our national sovereignty from the Japanese imperialists, who were dreaming of becoming the leader of Asia with large armed forces, and to pioneer a new era. Cherishing the lofty sense of responsibility for the destiny of the nation and the people, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song achieved the historic cause of national liberation, devoting all his efforts, based on the chuche-type revolutionary line andwith tested leadership, by crushing the Japanese imperialists. This is the first historic miracle marking the victory in the anti-imperialism struggle for independence by the colonial people, repelling the enormous imperialists by the people's own strength.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, ever-victorious and iron-willed commander and outstanding military strategist, opened up the downfall of the U.S. imperialists by leading our people's national liberation war to victory, checked and frustrated the imperialists' new world war provocation maneuvers and reliably safeguarded peace and security of the world. Thanks to the victory won by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the arduous and rigorous revolutionary war against the Japanese and U.S. imperialists, the collapse of the imperialist and colonist system was further accelerated and a new upsurge was registered in the anti-imperialist struggle for independence.

The experience of this victory clearly showed that even a small country can crush true strong imperialist enemies if it strenuously fights by firmly holding to the chuche idea and that it can vigorously advance the cause of anti-imperialism and independence. The precious achievement made by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the cause of anti-imperialism and independence is that he advanced our Korea as a might stronghold for the anti-imperialist struggle. With its geographic location and military and strategic significance, our nation has always been subject to aggression by the imperialist powers.

Under the situation in which the imperialists were viciously maneuvering to make our country their stepping-stone and military stronghold for aggression on the continent, it was of great significance to safeguard peace in Asia and world and to the overall development of the international revolutionary movement to make our country an invincible fortress in the anti-imperialist struggle.

Today, we are stepping up revolution and construction, safeguarding the socialist cause under the situation in which the danger of the U.S. imperialists' aggression is constantly present. The fact that we can check and crush the imperialists' aggression and war provocation maneuvers in every stage is due to our mighty political, economic and military strength. Regarding strengthening the nation's political, economic and military might as the key to the victory of the revolution and as a lofty mission for the cause of anti-imperialism and independence from the early days in building a new society, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song energetically led this struggle. Thanks to such leadership by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the revolutionary spirit for independence, self-reliance and self-defense and the spirit of anti-imperialist struggle have been highly demonstrated among our party members and workers, our revolutionary ranks have been strengthened into invincible ones and the foundation for the independent socialist national economy has been consolidated. A pan-national defense system is being firmly established and the nation's defense capability is solid as a rock.

Thanks to this powerful strength, we are now firmly defending the outpost of the struggle against imperialism and are vigorously struggling in the fighting ranks of the people to oppose imperialism and achieve independence. Indeed, the entire course of the revolutionary activities of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song shines brightly as a sacred struggle course against imperialism and for independence.

History has not known before such a leader [yongdoja] as the respected and beloved leader who earlier set a great example in carrying out the cause of independence against imperialism with tested leadership, thus attaining an immortal achievement.

2. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has accumulated a very rich and diverse struggle experience in carrying out the cause of independence against imperialism and delineated lines and strategic and tactical policies in carrying out this cause.

Because the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has correctly solved theoretical and practical problems at every stage of the struggle to achieve independence and oppose imperialism, our party and people have always been confident in their struggle because they had a powerful weapon. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has above all set forth a revolutionary strategy for the struggle against imperialism, thus brightly illuminating the path of struggle for the people.

To advance victoriously and complete the cause of independence against imperialism, we should have a correct strategy and policy. The strategic and tactical policy which correctly reflects the trend of a specific situation and the lawfulness of the struggle against imperialism is a correct guideline which enables the people to struggle against imperialism to the end with confidence in sure victory. The policy for concentrating on the struggle against the U.S. imperialists set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song occupies an important place in the (?struggle against) imperialism. The U.S. imperialists are the bosses of imperialism in the present era and are wicked challengers to peace for mankind and to the cause of independence against imperialism. Without the struggle against the U.S. imperialists, we cannot think of an endless upsurge in the revolutionary struggle of the people to achieve independence and oppose imperialism. To isolate and weaken the U.S. imperialists, we should direct our spearhead at them and fan the flames of the struggle to chop them to pieces in all countries and all areas where they have imprinted their feet.

The strategy for the struggle to direct the spearhead of the struggle to oppose the U.S. imperialists and to chop them to pieces is a most just struggle strategy formulated on the basis of the scientific analysis of the trend of the present situation, of the U.S. imperialists' wicked maneuvers and of their position in the present imperialist system.

The struggle to chop the U.S. imperialists to pieces should be waged through a revolutionary method and from a political standpoint. By chopping the U.S. imperialists to pieces through a revolutionary method, we mean that we will vigorously wage a revolutionary struggle against the U.S. imperialists at all places to which the U.S. imperialists have extended their tentacles of aggression. By chopping the U.S. imperialists to pieces from a political standpoint, we mean that all countries will strive to achieve sovereignty and will not follow the U.S. imperialists. The policy of chopping the U.S. imperialists to pieces through a revolutionary method and from a political standpoint is a revolutionary means to deal blows at the U.S. imperialists, to force them to be isolated internationally and to prevent them from randomly and tyrannically running wild.

The strategy for concentrating on the struggle against the U.S. imperialists is a great struggle strategy for cutting the last lifeline of the U.S. imperialists and for further accelerating the victory of the cause of independence against imperialism by helping the peoples of the countries which carry out revolution and which are vigorously waging their anti-U.S. struggle at their present position with confidence in victory.

The important thing in the policy for the struggle to achieve victory in the cause of independence against imperialism set forth by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is to make every effort to strengthen the unity of the anti-imperialist, independence force. The united effort of this force firmly guarantees the victorious advance and completion of the cause of independence against imperialism. Only when the world's revolutionary countries and peace-loving people hold aloft the banner of unity can they isolate and weaken the imperialist, dominating forces and firmly guarantee the decisive superiority of the anti-imperialist, independence forces and defnd their sovereignty.

The anti-imperialist, independence forces have an inclination for unity because of their past status, struggle goals and common ideology. The important thing in strengthening the unity of the anti-imperialist, independence forces today is to achieve sovereignty for newly emerging countries. The unity of the anti-imperialist, independence forces are in principle the unity of the peoples who are pursuing the cause of independence. Their aim is to eliminate all forms of domination and subjugation and achieve independence. Without independence, therefore, we cannot think of the unity of the anti-imperialist, independence forces.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's policy for all countries, including newly emerging countries, to achieve independence and thoroughly reject foreign forces' interference is a revolutionary policy which will make it possible for us to achieve the true unity of the anti-imperialist, independence forces.

Correctly assuming a basic attitude against imperialism is an important requirement for strengthening the unity of the anti-imperialist, independence forces. The anti-imperialist, independence force is a revolutionary one opposing imperialism and struggling to achieve independence. To struggle hand in hand in a single fighting rank to achieve a common aim and ideal, therefore, the anti-imperialist, independence forces should correctly assume a stand of opposing imperialism.

The aggressive and piratic nature of imperialism can never change. Under the signboard of independence, aid and peace, the imperialists are now wickedly maneuvering to interfere in the internal affairs of other countries and subjugate newly independent countries. Only when people thoroughly eliminate any illusions about imperialism and increase their class awareness of being members of a people in these circumstances can they vigorously forge ahead with the struggle to solidify already achieved independence and to build a new life. Therefore, it is important for socialist, nonaligned and newly emerging countries to defend thoroughly the basic interests of the revolution without unconditionally compromising with imperialism and to act in unison in disclosing and denouncing the imperialists' maneuvers for aggression and war. The policy for achieving the revolutionary unity of all the anti-imperialist, independence forces is a factor for confronting the imperialists' tactics for destroying individual opponents, for forming a broad united front of the anti-imperialist, independence forces and for accelerating the victory of the cause of independence against imperialism.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has attached great significance to the Nonaligned Movement to advance victoriously the cause of independence against imperialism and has helped our party and people actively struggle to expand and develop this movement. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The important question in the present era in opposing imperialism and all forms of dominating forces and in building a new independent world is to expand and develop the Nonaligned Movement. The Nonaligned Movement is a progressive movement to oppose all forms of domination and subjugation and seek independence. This movement is a great anti-imperialist revolutionary force in our era. This movement resolutely rejects all the imperialists' attempts to divide the world into blocs and into spheres of influence and makes it an important principle of activities to solve international issues to meet the desire of the people for independence and in their interests. Therefore, strengthening and developing the Nonaligned Movement and continuously expanding its influence is a key to the work of victoriously advancing the cause of independence against imperialism. This work is related to the future of mankind.

Today, the imperialists have directed the spearhead of its offensive at opposing the Nonaligned Movement. Because of the imperialists' trick to destroy individual nonaligned countries by dividing and alienating them from one another, a series of complicated problems have arisen from this movement. The situation urgently calls for an active struggle to strengthen the unity of this movement.

Having a scientific insight into the historic position and might of the Nonaligned Movement, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song earlier comprehensively delineated various basic questions and methods for our party and people to achieve the unity of this movement and expand and develop it. The policies set forth by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his instructions and in his report at the sixth party congress are correct guidelines for our party and people to contribute actively to a further strengthening of the Nonaligned Movement and to vigorously advancing the world people's common cause of independence against imperialism.

The policies deal with basic questions for the development of the Nonaligned Movement such as: The defense of the principles of the movement by the nonaligned nations; the defense of the principle of complete equality and non-interference in internal affairs and of strengthening unity and cooperation; doing away with the obsolete international economic order and establishing a new one; and struggling for the elimination of the despotism of the major imperialist powers in the field of international politics. We must thoroughly implement these policies to further strengthen the Nonaligned Movement and accelerate the cause of independence against imperialism.

Another important factor for accelerating the cause of independence against imperialism and the world revolution is strengthening the unity and cohesion between the socialist forces and the international communist movement. The socialist forces and the international communist movement are powerful forces for the achievement of the cause of independence against imperialism. Therefore, it is very important to strengthen these forces and enhance their role.

With a firm stand to accelerate the cause of independence against imperialism and the final victory of the world revolution, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forth the policy urging that unity among fraternal parties and nations be taken into consideration first, that everything serve this end and that efforts be made to achieve unity by putting aside differences in opinion and by first considering common elements. In line with this policy, our party and people are making positive efforts to achieve unity and cohesion between the socialist forces and the international communist movement.

Because of their invincible attraction and justness, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's revolutionary strategies and his policies for the struggle for the achievement of the cause of independence against imperialism have become a militant banner encouraging and promoting the struggle to build an independent and prosperous new world. The contribution to the cause of independence against imperialism and to the development of the international revolution which the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has made with his profound ideological and theoretical activities and great revolutionary practice will shine forever in the history of the struggle for liberation and independence.

3. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has put forth the policy of our party's international activities for the victory of the cause of independence against imperialism and is wisely organizing and leading the struggle to implement it.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Independence, friendship and peace are the basic ideas of our party's foreign policy. To successfully accomplish its national and international revolutionary mission, the party of the working class should work out and implement a correct foreign policy. Foreign policy is an integral part of domestic policy. Only when it has a correct foreign policy can the party vigorously accelerate the revolution and construction and contribute to the international cause of independence against imperialism.

The ideas of independence, friendship and peace of the foreign policy which the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has put forth is a program of a correct foreign policy to guarantee the victory of our revolution and the cause of independence against imperialism.

Considering independence, friendship and peace as basic ideas of foreign policy means defense of independence in the international community, protection of the basic interests of the Korean revolution, and struggle to develop friendship and cooperation with world nations and to guarantee world peace and security.

The basic idea of our foreign policy reflects the immutable independent stand of our party, its revolutionary principles, and its loyalty to the cause of independence against imperialism. By implementing the basic idea of the foreign policy of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our party and people are firmly defending the interests of the Korean revolution and national sovereignty and further strengthening international solidarity with the world forces for independence and against imperialism.

Our party makes active contributions to the people's cause for independence and against imperialism and enjoys the trust and support of the world's revolutionary people. This is because our party carries out an independent foreign policy. Maintaining independence is a basic principle of our party's external activities. Independence is the life of the state and people. A state without independence is not a sovereign state. States vary in size and population, but there should not be the relationship of one state being subordinate to another. By the same token, there should not be the relationship of one party being higher or lower than other parties.

When the people maintain independence and oppose domination and subjugation, we can achieve national prosperity and advance the revolution and construction. The principle of independence which our party maintains in carrying out external activities is a firm guarantee for defending the interests of the Korean revolution and our people and for contributing to the cause for independence and against imperialism. In line with the ideal of independence advanced by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our party is developing relations with foreign parties and countries on the principle of complete equality and respect, formulating foreign policies in comformity with the reality of our country and the demands of our revolution and carrying out external activities based on its own judgment and view.

Our party reflects our people's interests in solving whatever problems exist in relations with foreign countries. Our party does not tolerate foreign forces interfering in our internal affairs. Our people rub shoulders with other peoples of the world in the international arena and have many friends, sympathizers and supporters around the world. This is because we maintain the principle of independence in external activities.

It is our party's consistent principle of external activities to promote friendship with the people fighting for national liberation and construction of a new society and against all forms of domination and subjugation and to support and encourage their struggle. It is a noble desire of the people to construct a new world -- a world where there is no imperialism, exploitation and subjugation. Under the banner of independence against imperialism, a number of countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America have freed themselves from the yokes of imperialism and colonialism and achieved the historic cause of national liberation and are striving for national sovereignty and construction of a new society. When nonaligned countries and newly-emerging nations are united politically and step up economic and technical cooperation among them, they can consolidate the political sovereignty they have already attained and vigorously advance the cause for independence and against imperialism.

The Korean revolution is part of the world revolution. Accordingly, our party and people regard it as a noble international obligation to accelerate the world revolution on the basis of their good performance in the Korean revolution. Considering it an important factor for the victory of our revolution that we promote friendship and unity with the world's people and support and encourage their struggle, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song pays keen attention to this.

Even under difficult circumstances where the country is divided and a confrontation with imperialism is ongoing, our people support and encourage the people of the countries engaged in the struggle and the people of the countries engaged in creation of a new life and fight with them on the front of struggle against imperialism. Struggling to frustrate and crush the imperialists' policy of aggression and war and defend the world's peace and security occupied an important place in the struggle of our party and people for the victory of the cause for independence and against imperialism.

Today the peoples' struggle for independence, sovereignty and socialism is daily being uplifted in every corner of the world. Panic-stricken by the revolutionary struggle of the peoples in the world against imperialism and for independence, the imperialists are trying to maintain and expand their domination. Opposing the emerging countries who rose in rebuilding their new society, they are committing acts of interference, subversion and disintegration in these countries. They also are openly suppressing the peoples who rose in their just struggle for liberation. The imperialists are intensifying the scramble over maintaining resource-rich areas and areas of military importance. For this reason, peace in various places of the world is destroyed, disputes and clashes occur and the danger of a new world war is created.

The tension, daily worsening on the international stage, causes deep concern to the world's peoples who yearn for peace. As has been elucidated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, we should dismantle all the military blocs, remove all the foreign military bases and troops of aggression and create nonnuclear zones and peace zones all over the world to safeguard peace in the world and save mankind from the calamities of war. This is a positive and realistic way to crush the war policy of the imperialists and guarantee peace and the security of the world.

In particular, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forth a proposal to replace the armistics agreement with a peace agreement in an effort to eliminate the danger of war in Korea, and he is energetically leading the struggle to maintain peace in our country and achieve the independent and peaceful reunification of the fatherland. Thus, our party and people are contributing to the cause of prevent world war and preserving peace for mankind.

His many trips to the nations of Asia, Africa and Europe were historically significant in developing friendly and cooperative relations with these countries and accelerating the cause of anti-imperialism and independence. Thanks to the correct foreign policy and anti-imperialism and independence, and thanks to our party's wise leadership, the position of our republic has incomparably been enhanced. International solidarity with our revolution also is being enhanced.

Today our country is displaying greater dignity as the chuche fatherland and a model socialist country. Our people's revolutionary cause for national reunification and socialist construction is fervently supported by the peoples of the world. Our country, which once was robbed of its sovereignty and mistreated by the major powers, has come to enjoy dignity and honor. All this is a noble fruition of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's energetic activities and our party's tested leadership.

A long time has passed since the working class and people joined the struggle to crush the stronghold of the imperialists and liberate mankind. However, the cause of anti-imperialism and independence has not been completed. As long as imperialism remains in force and as long as domination and subjugation exist, the cause of anti-imperialism and independence should continue. Since our country remains divided and we are confronting the U.S. imperialists face to face, we must keep the banner of anti-imperialism and independence uplifted to achieve national reunification and firmly establish national sovereignty throughout the nation.

To thoroughly carry out all revolutionary lines and strategic policies put forth by the leader while upholding the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a decisive guarantee for advancing national reunification and accelerating the cause of anti-imperialism and independence. The respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song is a peerless hero who, determining to defeat imperialism and liberate oppressed people, started the revolution in his teen years and in his 20's gained fame as the lodestar of national liberation and a young general who made the brutal Japanese imperialists a plaything. He is an ever-victorious iron-willed commander who defeated the strong U.S. imperialists in his 40's. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who has led the cause of anti-imperialism and independence to victory for more than half of century since he raised the banner of anti-imperialism and independence, is energetically leading the historic cause to hasten the destruction of imperialism and achieve our people's independence with his energy and outstanding leadership.

Thanks to the leadership of the great leader, the independent reunification of the fatherland, the bright future of the Korean revolution and the final victory of the cause of anti-imperialism and independence are firmly guaranteed. It is an unsurpassed honor and greatest happiness for our people to live and carry out the revolution upholding the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who is endlessly admired and respected and absolutely trusted by the nation and the world's peoples, as the great leader.

We will, as we did in the past, struggle more vigorously to consummate the Korean revolution and the cause of anti-imperialism and independence under the guidance of the glorious party, forever upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song at the forefront of the revolution.

POLICE EXPAND PROBE OF DISSIDENT STUDENTS

[Text] Police are broadening their investigation of dissident students at colleges and some known leftist-oriented individuals in desperate efforts to arrest the arsonists who set fire to the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan, none of whom have yet been identified. They are also closely checking convicted arsonists across the country.

The investigation headquarters in Pusan has determined that about 10 persons were actually involved in setting fire to the U.S. facility in the port city Thursday and in scattering subversive leaflets. But the authorities speculate that they might have conspired with some "trouble-making" students at colleges and leftist-leaning "impure elements" for the plot.

Chong Sun-chol, 27, of Kwangju, and Yi Ho-chol, 25 of Pusan, are thought to be implicated in the arson because of their past activities rather than any direct clue from the Thursday incident, police sources said. Chong has been on the wanted list because of his suspected involvement in the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Kwangju, Chollanamdo, in December, 1980, and Yi for his role in campus disturbances at Pusan University in April and June, last year.

Besides them, the police are searching for two girls, identified only as a Yi and a Cho. Yi, 23, a dropout at "K" University in a provincial region, was sentenced to one year in prison suspended for two years for her involvement in illegal demonstrations in July 1979. After leaving school, she was said to have agitated campus turbulance at "K" University in May 1980. Her recent whereabouts were not known, according to the police.

Cho has allegedly maintained close relations with Chong Sun-chol, wanted by police for his possible involvement in Thursday's arson, since her graduation from "S" girls' high school in Kyongsang-namdo. She was said to have made no contacts with her family in Chungnim-dong, Chung-ku, Seoul, since she left her house shortly before the arson at the cultural center, saying that she would go to Pusan.

Police said yesterday that they had found two plastic jerry cans believed to have been used for the arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan last week in the basement of an inn some 30 meters away from the cultural center. Police said that a 10-liter can and a 20-liter one were discovered at around 5 p.m. Monday in the basement after an intensive house-to-house search, which started upon a report by a taxi driver.

The driver, known only as a Kim, 35, told police that he drove a man in his twenties carrying two plastic jerry cans to the Chungang Catholic Cathedral near the cultural center on March 18, one day before the center was burned. Police are seeking information from gas stations in the port city to find out more about the man who came to them with the two vessels to buy gasoline.

According to police, the basement of the Sanjang Inn had been used by a Pak, 40, as a printing shop for two years until last January, when he disappeared after incurring heavy debts. Pak mainly printed calendars, the police said.

The talks were held in an atmosphere of friendship and mutual understanding.

The ASRP of Syria and the MPRP expressed concern over aggravating of tension in different parts of the world due to the aggressive policy of American imperialism and reactionary forces, says a joint statement released here on the outcome of the MPRP delegation's visit to the Syrian Arab Republic. The two sides come out against American military presence in the Middle and Far East, in the Persian Gulf and Indian Ocean. In this connection they declared their support of the constructive Soviet proposals, directed at stopping the arms race and safeguarding peace.

The ASRP and the MPRP stated about their solidarity with the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan in its struggle for consolidating its sovereignty and independence. They denounced the support rendered to Israel by the U.S.A. and the Washington-incited Camp David model of the Middle East conflict's "settlement." The ASRP and the MPRP stressed that the main conditions for establishing just and stable peace in the Middle East are a full withdrawal of Israeli troops from all the Arab territories occupied in 1967, the recognition of the inseparable national rights of the Palestinian people including the right for self-determination and establishing its own independent state under the guidance of the Palestinian Liberation Organisation.

HUN SEN MESSAGE TO ESCAP ON DK PARTICIPATION

BK231529 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1429 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 23 Mar (SPK) -- Any conference concerning Kampuchea without the PRK's participation is considered null and void, declared PRK Foreign Minister Hun Sen in a message addressed to the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific [ESCAP] executive secretary on 21 March. The following is the text of the message:

On the occasion of the 38th annual conference of the ESCAP, which will take place in Bangkok from 23 March to 3 April 1982, I have the honor to draw the attention of your excellency to the following points:

1. Any conference concerning Kampuchea in which the PRK, the Kampuchean people's sole legal and authentic representative, does not participate and all documents related to such a conference are considered null and void.

2. The participation of the representatives of the so-called Democratic Kampuchea is illegal and detrimental to the prestige of the ESCAP and casts a slur on the memory of the 3 million Kampucheans massacred by the Pol Pot clique. In reality, the self-styled Democratic Kampuchea is only the corpse of the monstrous genocidal regime which the Kampuchean people have overthrown and swept from their territory since 7 January 1979. Thus it is not qualified at all to represent the Kampuchean people. Therefore, any statement by the representatives of the Pol Pot clique and any decision of the conference concerning Kampuchea are considered null and void.

3. Kampuchea's remarkable revival under the leadership of the PRK Government has won the admiration of all foreign visitors and observers and has been accurately mentioned in the reports by the UN organizations represented in Phnom Penh such as UNICEF, FAO and World Food Program [WFP].

The data on the Kampuchean economic and social situation from 1979 to the present mentioned in the documents of the ESCAP Secretariat do not correspond with reality and constitute an unacceptable distortion which only harms the prestige of the ESCAP Secretariat.

MAT LY DESCRIBES OFFICIAL VISIT TO LAOS

BK240644 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Statement to station correspondent by Mat Ly, member of the KPRP Central Committee and KUFNCD honorary Presidium, vice chairman of the National Assembly and deputy minister of agriculture -- recorded]

[Text] I would like to inform the comrades present here as well as all the compatriots throughout the country about the recent visit that a delegation of the KUFNCD Central Committee, headed by myself, paid to Vientiane. This visit was a great success in that we strengthened and expanded the tradition of militant solidarity between Kampuchea and Laos that has existed since time immemorial. We exchanged views on various matters concerning the construction of a new country that is moving toward socialism.

During its 8-day stay in Laos, the KUFNCD Central Committee delegation was accorded the most cordial and warm hospitality by all the Lao leaders, especially President Souphanouvong, who, during our courtesy call on him, received us very cordially and expressed excellent feelings of solidarity and friendship. The delegation visited various sites which represent the new outlooks, successes and outstanding feats of the heroic Lao people in their national construction efforts. All sectors of national construction in Laos have developed remarkably in the 6 years since liberation -- that is, since 1975.

During this visit, the Kampuchean and Lao sides issued a joint communique on the consolidation and expansion of the bonds of solidarity and cooperation between the fronts and countries of Kampuchea and Laos.

The two peoples and countries have similar customs, culture, civilization and so forth. [Words indistinct] costumes, food, attitudes, traits and thought are also similar. When they walk together, it is difficult to distinguish between a Lao and a Kampuchean. The two peoples have had profound sentiments toward each other since time immemorial. Their bonds of friendship and militant solidarity which were destroyed for almost 4 years by the traitorous Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique -- lackeys of the Beijing expansionists -- have been restored and developed constantly since the liberation of Kampuchea. The exchanges of visits between delegations of the two countries from 1979 until now constitute a lively proof of the bonds of friendship and solidarity between the two peoples and a valuable contribution to strengthening and expanding cooperation between the PRK and the LPDR.

Kampuchea, Laos and Vietnam have always had common enemies. At present their common enemies are the Beijing expansionists, U.S. imperialists and other reactionaries who are their lackeys. For this reason the third congress of the KUFNCD designated 22 March as Kampuchea-Laos solidarity and friendship day in order to consolidate the friendly bonds between the two countries and peoples. [Words indistinct] especially Kampuchea-Laos-Vietnam solidarity as well as solidarity with other socialist countries, such as the Soviet Union, and all the peace- and justice-loving progressive countries the world over.

Based on our firm national unity and together with the broad bonds of international solidarity, our Kampuchean people will certainly be able to score brilliant victories for our glorious Angkor fatherland.

CHAN VEN PRAISES SOLIDARITY TIES WITH LPDR

BK231221 [Editorial Report] Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian at 1230 GMT on 22 March carries a 17-minute report on a get-together organized by the Central Propaganda and Education Commission at the office of the Kampuchea-Vietnam Friendship Association to mark the 22 March Kampuchea-Laos Solidarity Day in the presence of "Comrade Mat Ly, member of the party Central Committee and vice chairman of the National Assembly; Comrade Chan Ven, secretary general of the Council of State, vice chairman of the KUFNCD National Council and chairman of the Kampuchea-Vietnam Friendship Association; Comrade Chey Saphon, deputy secretary general of the KUFNCD Central Committee and secretary general of the Kampuchea-Laos Friendship Association; Comrade Khamphan Vilachit, Lao ambassador to Kampuchea; and many cadres and personnel from various central ministries and departments.

The announcer presents Lao Ambassador Khamphan Vilachit's speech in which he hails the Kampuchea-Laos militant solidarity in the struggle since time immemorial against their common enemy and for national liberation. After condemning the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique for genocidal crimes against the Kampuchean people, Khamphan Vilachit says: "On the celebrations of this Solidarity Day of fraternal Kampuchea and Laos, on behalf of the Lao people, we reaffirm that the fraternal peoples of Lan Xang [Land of a Million Elephants] and the Angkor unite, love each other and share weal and woe with each other more firmly than ever before. We share with each other even a grain of salt and a grain of rice. We will jointly struggle to defend and build the Lan Xang and Angkor lands, making them strong and prosperous forever. We are very happy to see that not only have the special solidarity and fraternal friendship between our two peoples of Laos and Kampuchea been preserved and safeguarded, but they have also been cared for and consolidated more firmly. In the future they will be further consolidated and expanded for the cause of revolution, peace, freedom and happiness in Indochina and the world."

The announcer then says that a representative of the Central Propaganda and Education Commission reads a report on his delegations recent visit to Laos.

Following this report, Comrade Chan Ven speaks on Kampuchea-Laos and Kampuchea-Laos-Vietnam solidarity and friendship. A recording of this speech is then presented in which he says:

"We and all the Kampuchean people highly appraise the development made in all fields since 1975 by the fraternal Lao people under the leadership of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party with Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan as its general secretary and Souphanouvong who is the chairman of the LPDR's Council of State, National Assembly and patriotic front. Our Kampuchean people are very happy about these brilliant successes. We welcome all the revolutionary achievements in all plans set forth, especially in 1981. We regard these achievements as our own. We are convinced that this extremely valiant nation will certainly advance toward achieving greater successes in this new year and in the future. [applause] Following the 7 January 1979 Liberation Day, the Kampuchean people were very lucky to be led by the correct line of the KPRP and the KUFNCD and have achieved successive victories in all fields -- military, political, economic, social affairs, health and culture. It is to be stressed that the factor that enabled us to win successive victories is the strategic alliance of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos as clearly noted at the fourth congress of our KPRP and again stressed by the third congress of our KUFNCD. It is true that the Kampuchean people have won victories. However, we still face uncountable difficulties in the defense of our independence and sovereignty and in the rehabilitation and reconstruction of our country. As noted by Comrade Khamphan Vilachit, we still face many difficulties left behind by the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan genocidal regime, lackey of the Beijing expansionists. We can survive, but we face serious consequences as a result of the vestiges left behind by the feudalist, capitalist and genocidal regimes. This is as if we are trying to move a mountain blocking the road on which our Kampuchean people are walking. But we are confident that with the strength of the special militant solidarity of Kampuchea, Laos, Vietnam and the fraternal socialist countries throughout the world, we will certainly be able to surmount these difficulties and achieve victories."

SIHANOUK URGES COMPROMISE IN FORMING COALITION

OW240915 Hong Kong AFP in English 0831 GMT 24 Mar 82

[Excerpts] Beijing, 24 Mar (AFP) -- Former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk has called on the ousted Khmer Rouge government and the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) to work out a "compromise formula" that would pave the way for a coalition of the three Cambodian resistance groups. In a statement received by the AFP bureau here today, Prince Sihanouk also indirectly criticised the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge and KPNLF leader Son Sann, saying his followers were "quite alone in showing good will, patriotic abnegation and modesty" on current attempts to form an anti-Vietnamese coalition.

Prince Sihanouk, who is currently living in the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, recently met Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan here for talks that produced a three-point agreement maintaining the "legal status" of Democratic Kampuchea -- the Khmer Rouge administration -- in an eventual coalition.

In his statement, Prince Sihanouk noted that he has also endorsed the loose coalition formula. "Contrary to the two other anti-Vietnamese factions, we go along with any tripartite coalition the others propose. We have only taken it upon ourselves to ask the Khmer Rouge and Mr Son Sann's group to agree on a compromise formula between themselves," he said.

In an interview with Chinese journalists who have just visited Khmer Rouge-controlled areas of Cambodia, Khieu Samphan stressed the spirit of "concession" he had shown in the Beijing agreement with Prince Sihanouk. He said the Khmer Rouge did not require the two noncommunist resistance groups to rally to the institutions of Democratic Kampuchea, but only to accept its "legal status" because of the issue of Cambodian representation at the United Nations.

The other two points agreed at the Beijing meeting dealt with respect for the autonomy of each group within a coalition and adoption of "joint rules" to make such a coalition work.

DK MINISTRY CONDEMNS SRV CHEMICAL WEAPONS USE

BK221239 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 21 Mar 82

[Democratic Kampuchean Ministry of Information "condemnation" of the Vietnamese enemies' great crime of increasing their use of chemical weapons in Kampuchea -- dated 20 March; read by announcer]

[Text] During this dry season the Vietnamese enemy aggressors have increased their use of toxic chemicals all over Kampuchea especially in the western border region from Sisophon in Battambang Province to Koh Kong Province.

At the beginning of March, they increased their use of chemical weapons. They intensified their use of planes to spray toxic chemicals and cannons to fire gas shells more than before. They ordered their soldiers to spread these toxic chemicals in water sources. The Kampuchean people have been affected by these Vietnamese enemy aggressors' chemical weapons each passing day.

In the Pailin-Route 10 region alone, there were more than 500 victims of the Vietnamese enemy chemical weapons in March and 364 of them were hospitalized. There is a greater number of victims than in previous years.

This is a systematic use of chemical weapons in conformity with a well-defined plan which the Vietnamese enemy aggressors are barbarously intensifying in Kampuchea. This indicates that the Vietnamese enemies are bogged down politically and militarily on the Kampuchean battlefield. They have more difficulties and lack the forces to resist the attacks by the Kampuchean people all over the country and by the Democratic Kampuchean national army and guerrillas and they are becoming more barbarous. This is the great crime committed by the Vietnamese enemy aggressors while scorning world public opinion. Recently, however, there has been concrete evidence -- victims, people and combatants, of the Vietnamese enemies' chemical weapons who have been examined by doctors and international observers at the Kampuchea-Thai border area.

The Democratic Kampuchean Ministry of Information angrily condemns the great crime of the Vietnamese enemy aggressors who have used chemical weapons to commit genocide against the Kampuchean people and Kampuchean combatants in the past and at present. The Democratic Kampuchean Ministry of Information would like to appeal to world public opinion, governments of all peace-, independence- and justice-loving countries, and especially the United Nations, to pay great attention to the great crime of the Vietnamese enemy aggressors in using chemical weapons in Kampuchea by sending the committee agreed upon by the UN General Assembly to investigate truly and carefully the use of these chemical weapons on the spot, and to take appropriate and effective measures to stop the use of chemical weapons in Kampuchea in order to save the lives of innocent Kampuchean people who are the victims of the Vietnamese enemy's aggression. These measures are aimed at defending the principles of our international law which have been arrogantly trampled under foot by the Vietnamese enemy aggressors for more than 3 years.

Concurrently, the United Nations and governments of peace-, independence- and justice-loving countries all over the world should continue to take all concrete and effective measures to bring pressure to bear on the Vietnamese enemies to withdraw their aggressor troops completely from Kampuchea in conformity with the resolutions of three UN General Assemblies and the resolutions of the international conference on Kampuchea in order to put an end to their aggressive war in Kampuchea and the great suffering of the Kampuchean people and give them time to increase production to feed themselves and to cure the disastrous consequences of the barbarous Vietnamese chemical weapons.

DK VOICES SOLIDARITY WITH AFGHANS AGAINST USSR

BK231627 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 22 Mar 82

[Democratic Kampuchean Foreign Ministry statement on the occasion of the day of solidarity with the Afghan people's struggle against the Soviet aggressors -- dated 21 March]

[Text] Today an overwhelming number of peoples and governments of peace- and justice-loving countries in the world are celebrating the day of solidarity with the Afghan people's struggle.

The Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean national army and government -- who are striving to overcome all obstacles, are enduring all difficulties and hardships, and are making great sacrifices in the heated struggle on the battlefield to fight the Hanoi Vietnamese enemy aggressors, expansionists, swallowers of territory and race exterminators -- would like to express their strongest militant solidarity with the Afghan people who are valiantly struggling to fight the Soviet aggressors. This militant solidarity is formulated by the Kampuchean people and the Democratic Kampuchean national army and government with their deepest sentiments because the great suffering affecting both peoples -- Kampuchean and Afghan -- has the same root. Problems threatening the two countries -- Afghanistan and Kampuchea -- are from the same source. This root and this source are the expansionist strategy, global and regional, of the Soviets and the Hanoi Vietnamese who are the Soviets cat's-paw in Southeast Asia.

The Democratic Kampuchean Government considers the day of solidarity with the Afghan people's struggle as a strong demonstration showing the force and will of the international front against the expansionists in the moral and political fields. On this occasion the Democratic Kampuchean Government would like to appeal to all peace- and justice-loving countries to provide actively and systematically all kinds of assistance and support -- material, political, diplomatic and moral -- to the struggle of the Afghan and Kampuchean peoples as well as to the Democratic Kampuchean Government. All peace- and justice-loving countries should oppose the use of chemical weapons because these two enemies are increasing their use of these barbaric weapons as they are bogged down. All political and diplomatic maneuvers by Moscow and Hanoi aimed at scattering and dividing countries which oppose their expansionist strategy should be rejected. In particular, any acts which trouble or affect the struggle of the two peoples -- Afghan and Kampuchean -- on the battlefield or the international scene should be avoided. The Afghan and Kampuchean problems are caused by aggression and expansionism. In order to solve these countries' problems justly, it is necessary to start with the roots of the problem. Therefore, there is the only way to solve the problems of these two countries, that is the Soviets must promptly and unconditionally withdraw all of their troops from Afghanistan and the Hanoi Vietnamese must immediately and unconditionally withdraw all their troops from Kampuchean and allow the peoples of these two countries to determine their own destiny by themselves with no external interference in conformity with the successive UN resolutions.

Any way other than this can only encourage the Soviet and Vietnamese expansionists. This does not only increase and delay the great suffering of the Afghan and Kampuchean peoples but it also further threatens peace in Asia and the world. In fact, the Afghan and Kampuchean peoples are presently sacrificing their flesh, blood, bones and lives on heated battlefields in fulfilling their just national cause. But through these struggles, the two peoples are also actively contributing to the defense of peace, stability and security in Southeast Asia, south Asia, southwestern Asia and the world.

In order to express actively their militant solidarity through concrete acts, the Kampuchean people, the Democratic Kampuchean national army and government are determined to increase their struggle in all fields against the Vietnamese enemies until they are more bogged down and to achieve the tasks of this dry season as planned or greater than planned. This is aimed at quickly strengthening and achieving the just Kampuchean national cause and effectively contributing to the defense of peace in this region and the world.

INCREASED U.S. PRESENCE NOTED IN REGION

BK310554 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0400 GMT 20 Mar 82

[Feature article: "The United States Is Stepping Up Its Presence in Various ASEAN Countries"]

[Text] To implement a policy of gradually returning to Southeast Asia, the Reagan administration is daily stepping up its close collusion with the Beijing reactionary clique in a frenzied bid to sabotage the Indochinese revolution. They have repeatedly launched deceitful propaganda campaigns on the so-called Soviet and Vietnamese threats and expansionism against various countries in Southeast Asia. Meanwhile, they have sent weapons and other war means to various ASEAN countries, thus creating tension in the region.

From 1978 to 1980, the United States sold weapons worth $600 million to Thailand. Particularly in 1980, the United States increased direct assistance for Thailand from $45 million to as much as $80 million. At the same time, it has provided tanks, artillery pieces, armored cars, military transport vehicles, transport planes and ammunition and explosives as assistance for Thailand to boost the capability of Thai troops to counter external attacks. In addition, the Pentagon is reopening U.S. military bases in Thai territory, such as various air bases, B-52 air fields, naval bases and logistics bases. According to Western news reports, U.S. aircraft recently took off and landed in some of Thailand's airports; and the number of U.S. advisers assigned to this country is increasing daily.

In January 1979 the United States signed an agreement with the Philippines. In this agreement, the Philippines agreed to continued U.S. control and use of two major bases -- the Clark air base and the Subic naval base. According to this agreement the United States will provide military assistance for the Philippines in the form of a 1980-85 loan worth $5 million. The amount of the U.S. military assistance given to the Philippines has increased to $37 million per year.

After taking over power, Reagan hastily urged the U.S. Congress to increase military assistance in the 1982 fiscal year for Indonesia. This is a trick to draw this country close to the United States. It also constitutes U.S. interference in the Southeast Asian region.

Malaysia has also received considerable military assistance from the United States for the purpose of modernizing its armed forces and building various military bases. In 1979, the United States dumped weapons and military equipment worth $8 million in this country. The value of these weapons and equipment increased to $10.3 million in 1981.

Singapore, which has drawn U.S. attention in its role as a country guarding the important strategic strait of Malacca, has received considerable annual U.S. military assistance. Presently, U.S. air bases are giving facilities to U.S. reconnaissance aircraft to watch vessels in the Pacific and the Indian Oceans. The Singaporean armed forces, the air force and the navy in particular, have been trained and armed by the United States. A joint U.S.-Singapore naval and air exercise was conducted in the South China Sea in March 1981. Taking part in this exercise was a group of U.S. battle ships headed by the U.S. aircraft carrier Midway.

The United States is currently urging these countries to increase military expenditures beyond their economic capabilities. The military expenditures of ASEAN countries have markedly increased over the past several years. For example, Malaysia's current military expenditures amount to $887.8 million -- an increase of 140 percent compared with 1979. These expenditures increased to $778.5 million for the Philippines, $598.9 million for Singapore -- an increase of 33 and 27.2 percent respectively compared with 1979.

The United States and the Beijing expansionists are paying special attention to Thailand, a frontline state, and are increasing assistance in term of weapons and other war means for this country. The United States has now pressured Thailand to increase its military budget to as much as $1.1 billion. Actually, these figures may be far greater.

According to a calculation compiled by Western military experts, in 1980 alone, all military expenditures of the various ASEAN countries, which are intended to improve their armed forces and strengthen their national defense potentials, increased to $5.466 billion -- an increase of 46.5 percent compared with 1979.

The reason the United States is dumping weapons into and increasing military assistance to the various ASEAN countries is to reactivate its bases there and encourage these countries to create disorder in the region, with a view to serving the U.S. strategic scheme of attacking the revolution in Indochina. By doing so, the United States has firmly grasped the ASEAN countries as its neocolonial countries and has checked expansion by the Chinese reactionary forces while supporting and encouraging their counterrevolutionary role in opposing Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea.

These cruel schemes of the United States are being exposed with each passing day. The Southeast Asian people are aware of this U.S. neocolonialist policy toward the region. They will surely unite to fight and counter the U.S. schemes until their victory.

Letter on Conference

[17 March letter from the army party committee conference to cadres, party members, combatants, national defense workers and state employees throughout the country]

[Text] Dear comrades,

After 4 and 1/2 days of working in a high spirit of joy and unity, the conference of the army party committee's representatives concluded with a glorious success on the afternoon of 17 March 1982.

It was a great honor that Comrade Kaysone Phomvihan, general secretary of the LPRP, attended the conference on behalf of the party Central Committee and made a speech introducing to the conference several basic problems in connection with the line, policies and plans of the party on defending the country, maintaining public security, and building the people's armed forces in the new stage of the revolution.

This conference reflected the spirit of responsibility of all cadres, party members, combatants, national defense workers and state employees throughout the country toward the party, the people of various nationalities and the army. With a spirit of self-criticism and strict criticism of each other, the participants of the conference carefully studied and reached complete unanimity on the line, policies and plans of the party in general and on the maintenance of public security and national defense in particular. They also reached unanimity in selecting outstanding representatives of the army party committee to attend the third party congress.

The conference expressed great satisfaction over and confidence in attention given by the party to educating and training the army. The conference, on behalf of the entire army party committee and the entire armed forces, expressed profound gratitude and resolute confidence in the leadership of the LPRP -- organizer and leader of all victories of the Lao army and revolution. The conference was elated to note that the entire army has looked forward to the third party congress in a spirit of firm confidence, and has stepped up lively emulation campaigns in several forms in order to score achievements in various fields to welcome the party congress.

This first conference of the army party committee is an event of political significance. It marks the progress, growth and development of our army under the party's leadership. The army party committee has daily strengthened solidarity and increasingly developed so as to guide our army to strive in all areas and to maintain sufficient strength to fulfill all revolutionary tasks in the new stage as entrusted by the party and state.

To promote and expand the great achievements already scored, the conference calls on all cadres, combatants, party members, national defense workers and state employees in the entire armed forces to do the following:

1. Profoundly understand the instructions of the party Central Committee on the congress and the resolution of the party Central Military Commission on the building and activities of the various armed forces for 1982; strive to consolidate and build the party committee organization and to consolidate, build and strengthen units in all respects on the path of revolution; heroically fight to overcome all obstacles and trials so as to fulfill successfully all heavy tasks in the cause of national defense and construction.

2. Be absolutely confident in the party's leadership; heighten the spirit of unlimited loyalty to the revolutionary cause of our party, nation and people; endeavor to build the army into a stalwart, sharp and trustworthy tool of the party in the new state of the revolution.

3. Widely step up the emulation campaigns enthusiastically throughout the country so as to score outstanding achievements in all respects to welcome the third party congress and to be prepared to implement thoroughly the line and policies to be adopted by the congress.

The conference is convinced that under the party's glorious leadership banner, with the fine traditions of the army, supported and fostered by the Lao people of various tribes, with the close militant alliance with the fraternal armies and peoples of Vietnam, Kampuchea and the Soviet Union as well as of other fraternal socialist countries, it is certain that our army will successfully march forward and score ever greater successes in the cause of defending and building the socialist country as well as the cause of consolidating and building the army to become a well-organized and modern revolutionary army.

The conference expresses sacred salutations, best wishes, profound love and solidarity to comrades throughout the army.

COVERAGE OF 38TH ESCAP SESSION ACTIVITIES

Prem Speaks at Opening

["Excerpts" of speech delivered by Thai Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon at opening meeting of 38th session of ESCAP in Bangkok on 23 March]

[Text] The past few years have witnessed serious economic afflictions of such a structural nature that no simple or piecemeal approach can overcome them. The adverse impact upon the developing countries is abundantly clear. Their problems are well-known and widely recognized: chronic depression in the prices of primary commodities, being in most cases their only sources of export earning, and stagnation in the whole development process.

High inflation has also been mainly responsible for a decline in the aggregate demand for the exports of both developed and developing countries, but for the latter this has resulted in a serious shortfall in their export earnings and in low purchasing power.

The markets for the exports of raw materials, commodities as well as manufactured and semi-manufactured goods from developing countries remain limited and inadequate. Developing countries have witnessed in recent years ever-increasing trend on protectionism against their exports.

Furthermore, the 80 percent rise in oil prices in 1970-1980 has contributed to the deterioration of the terms of trade of non-oil-producing developing countries, and thus their huge trade deficits for the last few years.

As if all these have not already created enough difficulties for the developing countries, there also appears a sharp decline in the international development assistance to which developing countries attach high priority as an important source for the transfer of real resources and an indication of the genuine intention on the part of the developed countries to cooperate in the developmental efforts of the developing countries.

Thailand shares the view of the developing countries that the major constraints on their economic and social development for the past years have been trade and access to markets of agricultural products, energy costs and import payments. Like other developing countries, we are adversely affected by these chronic problems, most of which are external in origin. In 1981 alone, oil accounts for 30 percent of our imports and the amount of oil payment in that same year almost matches the figure of her trade deficit.

In this regard, Thailand has been fortunate that the natural gas supplies are now coming on stream and that there are good prospects for oil discovery in commercial quantity. However, the use of natural gas will compensate for only about 14.2 percent of the total domestic oil consumption in this current year.

The fact remains that about 11 million Thais in rural areas who engage in rice cultivation and other agricultural products are still under the condition of absolute poverty. Thailand also remains a food-exporting developing country whose agricultural products make up about 75 percent of its total exports. The Thai Government, therefore, attaches high priority to the increase in food production, diversification of agricultural products, fair competition, stable prices for primary commodities and freer access to markets.

It is most timely that the international community should devote its efforts to redress the inequities of the present international economic relations in accordance with the international development strategy for the third United Nations development decade and the establishment of the new international economic order.

As a developing country, Thailand has actively supported the call of the Group of 77 for an early launching of the global negotiations and has played a constructive role through the various stages of preparation for the global round.

In the present world of interdependence, every aspect of a country's economy is inextricably linked with the rest of the world, and the only way to avoid the present crisis is for the international community to find solutions to these problems of critical importance to developing countries such as food, energy, trade and financial flows and this must be global and comprehensive in scope and approach.

This is the area where, I am confident, ESCAP can play a useful role. ESCAP is a United Nations regional commission which represents well over half of the world population. It can make itself heard and play a catalytic role contributing to the early launching of the global negotiations to restructure the present international economic relations.

In this regard, the Thai Government is gratified to note that the topics on energy and food remain high on the priority of the commission, the former being the theme of the last session and the latter this year.

On the question of food, there exists an urgent need for most developing countries to work toward food self-sufficiency and food security. In this connection, the experiences of the ASEAN countries, although in the early stage of implementation, could serve as a guideline for other interested developing countries in the Asian and Pacific region. Thailand, being a food-exporting developing country, however, has additional interests in the areas of food production, trade and access to markets of agricultural products.

These are legitimate interests of food-exporting developing countries which have been recognized and endorsed by the seventh special session of the United Nations on development and international economic cooperation in 1975. It is therefore our sincere hope that ESCAP will continue to attach importance to these issues in order to find a practical and mutually beneficial solution to the food problem of the ESCAP region as a whole.

Economic and social cooperation in the ESCAP region cannot make much progress or yield optimum results without the conditions of peace and stability in the region. I regret to note that there exist many areas of critical tensions in the region, particularly Kampuchea and Afghanistan.

The Government of Thailand looks forward to an early comprehensive settlement of these two important problems on the basis of the relevant United Nations General Assembly's resolutions. In the case of Kampuchea, Thailand is firmly convinced that a just and durable solution to the problem could be found within the framework of the four negotiating elements of the declaration of the international conference on Kampuchea, held at the United Nations headquarters in New York in July 1981.

Thailand firmly believes that the declaration takes into consideration legitimate security interests of all parties involved and concerned and its implementation would pave the way toward the restoration of peace and stability in the Southeast Asian region.

We therefore strongly urge that all the parties will seriously consider these negotiating elements and fully cooperate with the ad hoc committee in finding a satisfactory solution to the Kampuchean question which has far-reaching security implications not only to the region but also to the world at large.

Let us all rededicate ourselves to the lofty ideals and principles enshrined in the United Nations Charter and let us all work together for the achievement of fruitful regional cooperation for the benefit of peace and prosperity of the Asian and Pacific region. On this note, I declare open the 38th annual session of the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific. May I also take this opportunity to wish all of you continued success in your deliberations and a pleasant stay in Thailand.

Sitthi Speech

BK231515 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in English 1100 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila, minister for foreign affairs and leader of the Thai delegation, delivered a statement to the 38th session of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific, in short ESCAP.

In his statement he said that there exists external economic problems which are beyond the control of Thailand or any other developing countries. The developing countries have found that any remedial measures that they applied to ease economic ills at home are very much dependent on external factors. The establishment of the new international economic order and the launching of the global negotiations are therefore long overdue. He hopes that constructive proposals in this regard will soon emerge so that serious negotiations could begin and produce concrete results which would be mutually beneficial to both developed and developing countries. In addition, he said that it is also essential for the world community to effectively implement the international development strategy for the third United Nations development decade as an integral part of the new international economic order and to accelerate the development of the developing countries.

As a member of the ESCAP, Thailand has just recently begun the 5th national economic and social development plan for 1982-1986. The new plan attaches higher priority to the eradication of rural poverty. Thailand also attaches a great deal of importance to the acceleration of food and agricultural productions. He added that the developed countries should take all possible steps to increase the flow of financial resources to the developing countries in their efforts to increase investment in agricultural food production.

PRC, SRV Exchange Words

BK231357 Hong Kong AFP in English 1328 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] Bangkok, 23 March (AFP) -- China and Vietnam today exchanged heated words at a United Nations meeting here after the Chinese delegate condemned the "invasion and military occupation of Afghanistan and Cambodia."

Speaking at the 38th annual session of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP), Chinese Vice Minister for Foreign Affairs He Ying denounced "the acts of aggression and expansion" of the "hegemonists" which "constitute a grave threat to the economic growth and social stability" in the ESCAP region. He pointed to the situation in Afghanistan and Cambodian where "hegemonists" (a reference to the Soviet Union and Vietnam respectively) have "trampled upon the sovereignty of independent states, disrupting the peaceful economic life of the people" and "creating the exodus of millions of refugees."

The Chinese delegate called on the international community to "severely condemn" this "hegemonist policy of aggression." Countries and peoples resisting foreign aggression and military occupation should receive wide international support and sympathy, he added.

Mr. He said "All the foreign aggressor troops must withdraw from the concerned countries in order to allow the affected people to have an opportunity to exercise their right to self-determination."

In a rejoinder, Le Dinh Can, deputy director of the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry's International Organization Department, charged that Chinese "expansionism" "constituted a threat to this region."

Le Dinh Can, who is scheduled to speak Thursday, took the floor after being granted permission and said guerrillas of the ousted Khmer Rouge government had been receiving "assistance" from China. He added that the Chinese objective was to carry out subversion in the three Indochinese countries (Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos) as well as in other parts of Asia.

The deputy director said that the presence of Vietnamese troops in Cambodia came under an agreement between Vietnam and Cambodia.

There are currently about 200,000 Vietnamese troops stationed in Cambodia.

Meanwhile, in his speech, Mr. He said numerous difficulties and tremendous obstacles are expected to be encountered in establishing the new international economic order and one should not expect the north-south issues to be solved just through a few rounds of negotiations. He said in order to establish the new international economic order, it is very important for the developing countries to coordinate their actions. It is essential for the developing countries to first base their policy on their "national and collective self-reliance," to enhance their mutual cooperation and assistance and to build up their strength step by step.

Developing countries are making efforts to carry out economic cooperation, enhance their economic independence and collective self-reliance and have steadily enlarged their share in the world economy and are gradually freeing themselves from economic dependence on the developed countries, he said.

VOFA: PRK WHITE BOOK 'FACT-DISTORTING DOCUMENT'

BK240707 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Unattributed commentary: "The Heng Samrin Regime's White Book"]

The Heng Samrin puppet regime was conceived after Vietnam sent 200,000 troops into Kampuchea to topple the legitimate government of that country 3 years ago and has since survived with the support of the Vietnamese troops. The white book reportedly accused Thailand of having violated Kampuchean air space, land and waters. However, the fact is that the Vietnamese troops which are now supporting the Heng Samrin regime have constantly violated Thailand's sovereignty, causing loss of life and property to the Thai people. The following are the recent examples of such incidents:

On 23 November 1981 the Heng Samrin troops fired rockets at Saen Suk village, Aranyaprathet District, killing a Thai villager.

On 31 January the Heng Samrin troops fired artillery shells into Khao Sabaeng and Wang Mon villages, killing two Thai villagers.

On 9 February the Heng Samrin troops fired at two innocent Thai villagers in the vicinity of Phrom Hot stream, instantly killing one of them. On the same day they fired mortar shells into Wang Mon village, killing another Thai villager.

On 17 February the Heng Samrin troops crossed the border into Sap Ta Ri village in Pong Nam Ron District, Chanthaburi Province, and clashed with the Thai border patrol police. Five policemen were killed.

On 11 February a Vietnamese Antonov transport plane crashlanded in the vicinity of Prong Saeng village in Sa Kaed District, Prachin Buri Province.

These are clear evidence which proves the constant Vietnamese violations of Thailand's sovereignty. Meanwhile, Vietnam has been trying to deceive the world's people by telling them a different story. These are skillful and adventageous tactics practiced by Vietnam, but the world's people know whether to believe it or not.

Regarding the chemical warfare mentioned in the white book, Thailand categorically denies this accusation because it does not even have a single chemical weapon in its possession. Thailand is an open society in which press freedom prevails for both local and foreign journalists. Numerous officials of international organizations now working in Thailand can attest to the truth in support of Thailand.

Foreign delegations and UN officials regularly visit the Thai border areas. On the contrary, Vietnam has never allowed newsmen and UN officials, particularly the UN chemical warfare fact-finding committee, to conduct investigations inside Kampuchea, especially the areas adjoining Thailand.

The Heng Samrin regime also accused Thailand of having exploited the foreign humanitarian assistance for Kampuchean refugees against it. Officials of the United Nations and other international organizations stationed at the Thai border with Kampuchea have witnessed how Thailand handles the assistance. If Vietnam and the Heng Samrin regime are sincere, they should allow the officials of the United Nations and international organizations to follow up the distribution of foreign aid to the Kampuchean people inside Kampuchea at their request and allow them to travel inside Kampuchea freely.

As a matter of fact, we did not want to write this commentary because everybody knows that the accusations which appeared in the so-called white book are groundless. But it is necessary to register our denial.

[Text] The fourth army region has offered a truce talk with an alleged leader of a southern separatist movement, Maj Gen Panya Singsakda, commander of the 43rd civilian-police-military command, said yesterday. He disclosed that last month he sent a letter to Hayi Amin Tomina, the alleged leader of "Partip" secessionist movement, through the latter's brother -- Den Tomina, a Democrat MP of Pattani -- offering Hayi Amin the chance to talk with him in Narathiwat Province or with Lt Gen Han Linanon, commanding general of the fourth army region, in Nakhon Si Thammarat.

The letter did not propose a date for the meeting, said Maj Gen Panya, who noted that the talk would allow Hayi Amin Tomina to clear himself of allegations that he was connected with the movement.

Maj Gen Panya said Tomina had flatly denied having any connection with the separatists but had not yet accepted the offer for talks because of his mistrust of government officials in the south. The general said he would soon leave for Malaysia to obtain more information about the movement's activities.

Meanwhile, a spokesman of the fourth army region told a press conference at the Supreme Command yesterday that 117 communist insurgents and sympathisers gave themselves up and 14 were killed during the month-long government offensive in the Chong Chang Mountain in Surat Thani Province. He said further that 132 insurgents and suspected insurgents were also arrested or summoned for interrogation during the period. Four important camps -- Camp 508, 511, 514 and 357 -- in Ban Na San District were seized and destroyed by government troops. Government casualties were put at 12 killed and 153 wounded.

In the northern provinces of Petchabun, Loei and Phitsanulok, the Supreme Command said, communists had virtually lost their influence there and since last June over 2,530 Mong hilltribesmen who previously sided with the Reds had surrendered to government officials.

Arrangements are being made to resettle the Mong returnees along both sides of a road adjoining the Phitsanulok-Lonsak road, said the command.

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 23 -- The minister of foreign affairs and cooperation of the People's Republic of Congo, Pierre Nze, arrived here today on an official friendship visit at the invitation of the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. Pierre Nze and his party were welcomed at the government guest house by Vice-Chairman of the Council of Ministers Huynh Tan Phat, Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach, Deputy-Minister for Foreign Affairs Hoang Anh Tuan, vice chairman of the C.P.V. Commission for External Relations Tran Danh Tuyen, and others.

NHAN DAN 24 Mar Comment

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 24 -- NHAN DAN today praises the People's Republic of Congo for its advance on the road of independence and prosperity. Writing in connection with the current friendship visit of Congolese Foreign Minister Pierre Nze, the paper says: "Under the leadership of the Congolese Party of Labour and the government formed by President Marien N'gouabi, the Congolese people have made persistent efforts and have recorded many achievements in building the economy and developing culture and education... The extraordinary C.P.L. congress in March 1979 affirmed the necessity to keep to the path of social progress."

"Though next door to many pro-Western countries and face to face with a particularly hostile neighbour, the P.R.C. maintains a policy of non-alignment and actively supports national liberation movements in Africa, the Middle East and other parts of the world," NHAN DAN notes. The paper recalls that the P.R.C. has promptly recognized the People's Republic of Kampuchea and demanded the ouster of the Pol Pot clique from the United Nations.

"With its achievements in national construction and its correct foreign policy," NHAN DAN says, "the People's Republic of Congo has made worthy contributions to the world people's common struggle against imperialism, colonialism and racism, for peace, national independence, democracy and social progress."

NHAN DAN WELCOMES BREZHNEV MISSILE PROPOSAL

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 23 -- The latest peace proposal made by President Brezhnev at the recent Soviet trade union congress has once again expressed the Soviet Union's goodwill for peace and responsibility and its determination to maintain a lasting peace, says NHAN DAN in a commentary today.

It continues: "It is understandable that this proposal has been promptly welcomed by many governments and personalities and the world public at large. This proposal and its repercussions have driven the White House and the Pentagon to an awkward corner. President Reagan has hurriedly refused it, saying it 'simply isn't good enough because it doesn't go far enough'".

It is worth noting, the paper says, that Reagan's statement has been enthusiastically echoed by Beijing. In a March 19 commentary, the Chinese news agency XINHUA alleged that the proposal did not go far enough.

NHAN DAN remarks: "The U.S. 'option zero' under which the Soviet Union has to dismantle all its SS-20, SS-4 and SS-5 missiles is unfair and arbitrary."

"The earnest desire of the peoples of Western Europe and of the United States is the maintenance of peace and the achievement of a Soviet-U.S. agreement on the limitation of strategic weapons and no strategic and nuclear arms race. This is vividly reflected in the present high movement for peace in Western Europe, the United States and Japan," the paper notes in conclusion.

WORK SYSTEM OF PARTY COMMITTEE ECHELONS ANALYZED

BK200500 Hanoi TAP CHI CONG SAN in Vietnamese Feb 82 pp 7-14

[Article by Nguyen Khanh: "Some Opinions on Improving the Work System of Party Committee Echelons"]

[Text] I. The Work System Has a Direct Influence on the Quality and Effectiveness of Leadership

The work system is a combination of the regulations and procedures which every organization or its members must observe in order to resolve correctly the relations between the individual and the organization, among the various departments of an organization, and among the different organizations of a common organizational system. The work system is closely linked with the nature, position and responsibilities of every organization. Therefore, to ensure good work performance every organization as well as every cadre must develop and carry out a work system suitable to its functions. For a leading and managerial organ, the work system has a direct influence on the quality and effectiveness of leadership and management.

The work system reflects the organizational structure and operation of an organization and the characteristics of the relationship among the various parts of an organizational system. As a result, different organizations have different work systems. For example, the work system of a grassroots organization is characteristically different from that of a leading organ at the provincial or district levels; the work system of a military organ is characteristically different from that of an economic organization or a scientific research organ; and so forth. The work system also reflects the relations among different organizations. Under a system in which "the party leads, the people exercise mastery and the state is in charge of management," general and specific ties exist among party, state and mass organizations. The work system of each organization more or less reflects the ties of leadership, guidance, coordination and cooperation within the entire organizational system of the dictatorship of the proletariat under the party leadership.

The work system of party committee echelons reflects the principled character and the sense of organization and discipline as well as the initiative, creativity and the spirit of close cooperation of a party organization in all of its activities. It also reflects its level of organization and its organizational capabilities. In reality, a leading collective can only ensure the revolutionary and scientific character of its activities if its members carry out all operations in an organized manner according to the prescribed methods and procedures -- namely, if they have an effective work system.

The basic organizational principle of the party is democratic centralism. This principle ensures uniformity in thought and action throughout the party and closely combined discipline with the spirit of democracy, as reflected by the activities of party organization. To apply the principle of democratic centralism we need ideological and organizational measures, including an effective work system.

Without an effective work system, it is difficult for the party committee echelons to apply the principle of democratic centralism correctly. For example, the principle of democratic centralism cannot be guaranteed unless the information system is ensured -- namely, unless we can satisfactorily grasp the situation and promptly report on its developments; satisfactorily collect and analyze the opinions of members of the various party committee echelons and the organizations and cadres concerned on the issues pending solution; ensure observance of the various systems concerning meetings, discussions and decision making; and correctly enforce the various regulations concerning the implementation of resolutions, inspection work and so forth.

Collective leadership is a guiding principle of the party. One of the factors for ensuring the party's correctness in political and organizational leadership is the correct application of the principle of collective leadership, which is aimed at bringing into full play the intelligence and sense of responsibility of every member of the collective. Careful consideration, analysis and deliberation by the collective will help avoid omissions and superficial and subjective outlooks. Nevertheless, to apply the principle of collective leadership fully, an effective work system is a must.

The work system is inseparable from the organizational structure and operations method of the machinery. Meanwhile, the organization of the machinery and its operational methods change in accordance with the development of the situation and tasks. Today, as the party leads the administration and the great undertaking to build socialism and defend the fatherland, its leading role in the society is further enhanced with each passing day. Since the spheres of activities under party leadership are continually expanding, the party committee echelons now have to go deeper into the economic, cultural, scientific and technical fields in exercising leadership. The work system of party committee echelons must meet the new requirements of leadership; and therefore, enhancing the scientific character of methods and the work system has become a pressing requirement. Improving the work system is one of the measures designed to reinforce the capability for leadership of the party committee echelons in the new stage.

An efficient work system will creat conditions for the party committee echelons to make decisions that correctly reflect the leading role of the party and at the same time, develop the people's right to collective mastery and enhance the managerial capability of the socialist state. An efficient work system will accelerate the implementation of party decisions and improve their efficiency as it ensures strict, active and uniform observance by party, state and mass organizations as well as their close coordination.

The work system is part of the leadership method of the party committee echelons. It should not be misconstrued that the work system merely consists of trivial procedures and "administrative" regulations that may be disregarded by the leaders. As stated above, the work system consists of regulations and procedures that guarantee the organizational and leadership principles of the party. Being "systematized," these regulations and procedures are stipulations of a compulsory nature by the collective or the higher echelon, which everyone must respect and implement.

Developing an efficient work system and strictly implementing it is no simple task. It requires that the whole party committee and every leading cadre impose on themselves specific close and detailed regulations which have so often been easily brushed aside by small procedures with their handicraft workstyle. This is an act that calls for self-awareness out of a desire to improve work performance, together with the sense of organization and discipline. Improving the work system and developing a revolutionary and scientific workstyle is actually meant to change the old style and the old habit in our work conduct, and to carry out in an active and scientific manner the scientific-technical revolution in organizing our daily activities with the aim to enhance realistically the level of and capability for leadership of the party committee echelons.

II. The Work System in the Stages of the Process of Leadership

The party's leadership involves political leadership and organizational leadership. Regarding each specific problem, leadership consists of adopting a policy and organizing its implementation. The process of resolving a specific problem always comprises three stages: preparing a decision; making it; and carrying it out. These three stages are closely related to one another. Only with careful preparations can we create the conditions for making a correct decision; and only if the decision is correct will its implementation be meaningful. The work system is one of the organizational measures for ensuring satisfactory progress in all the three stages of the process of leadership.

Preparing for a decision: No matter what the work may be, good results are impossible without careful preparations. The quality of a decision is dependent for the most part on the quality of preparatory work. The two main tasks in the preparation of a decision consist of disseminating information and making plans for a decision.

Information is indispensable to all activities of social life. Today information has become a highly developed science that envelops all spheres of man's activities. Here, we are going to discuss only the dissemination of information necessary for the party committee echelons to make a decision.

To resolve any specific issue the party committee echelons must:

First, firmly grasp the party line and thoroughly understand the viewpoints, policies and guilding thoughts of the central level and the higher echelons concerning the issue in question;

Second, clearly understand the actual situation and especially the existing status of the matter under investigation; clearly recognize the problems that have arisen as well as the possibility and practical conditions for their solution; and successfully solicit the opinions of the masses, cadres and organs connected with that issue; and

Third, possess the necessary theoretical and practical knowledge to analyze and assess the issue and to select the method for its solution.

These are indispensable sources of information that allow the party committee echelons to discuss and adopt policies in a correct manner. These sources of information must be collected and selected for dissemination to every member of the party committee echelons. Furnishing every member of the party committee echelons with the necessary information is an important objective of the work system. Unless members of the party committee echelons are well informed -- that is, unless they are well prepared with full knowledge of the actual situation -- they cannot participate in discussions and make decisions with good results.

Information concerning each specific issue that is furnished to members of the party committee echelons is somehwat similar in nature but varies in size. For the key leading comrades of the party committee echelons and those directly responsible for the issue concerned, the information supplied to them must be more voluminous and detailed.

The party committee echelon is the organ that makes policies but elaborating those policies and implementing them is the job of the entire party apparatus and in many specific cases, of state organs and mass organizations. Therefore, along with supplying information to the party committee echelons, it is also necessary to provide sufficient information to those organs and cadres responsible for preparing plans and organizing the execution of decisions. This is also an important part of the work system of the party committee echelons.

The information supplied to the party committee echelons must be of high quality so they can discuss and adopt policies. In other words:

-- It must be accurate. It must come from reliable first-hand sources at the grassroots level and must not be distorted during the process of propagation.

-- It must be timely. This means it must be supplied at the right moment when the party committee echelons need it for discussion and making decisions.

-- It must be relevant. This means the content of the information supplied must meet the needs of the leading organs at each echelon and it must be neither insufficient nor superfluous.

-- It must be analytical and integrated to enable the party committee echelons to grasp the facts behind the issue and foresee the development of the situation.

After having had a firm grasp on the situation and clearly recognizing the content of the issue pending solution, we must select plans to achieve the best results. Important work policies of the party committee echelons often need different plans to enable selection. These plans are generally classified into three categories:

-- A plan for resolving the issue under optimal conditions;

-- A plan for resolving the issue under normal conditions; and

-- A plan for resolving the issue under difficult and unfavorable conditions.

In reality, while deciding on a policy, it is impossible to foresee fully all future developments of the situation and only general predictions about the development of the situation are possible. Therefore, the plans must include provisions pertaining to the possible emergence of abnormal factors that may influence the execution of decisions. The more accurate the predictions, the easier it will be to make positive preparations and enforce necessary measures for dealing promptly with all contingencies.

To ensure the quality of plans it is necessary to correctly select organs and cadres with the best capabilities and conditions for preparing them. In this regard, we must employ the various organs and organizations according to their regular functions, develop the role of the party's specialized departments and at the same time, enlist the service of state organs -- especially when preparations are made to resolve economic issues. It is only under special circumstances that it is necessary to set up a provisional organization for preparing plans.

The organs and cadres entrusted with preparing plans must collect the opinions of the organizations and individuals concerned or those who are highly knowledgeable about the issue pending solution. When submitting plans to the party committee echelons, they must present different viewpoints so as to help the party committee echelons thoroughly understand the issue and select the best plan.

A form of guidance that is closely related to the preparation of plans is experimentation. When a solution must be found for a new and important issue, it is necessary to experiment first in some units so that experience can be drawn to help arrive at a correct policy that is suitable with the actual local conditions. In order to ensure good results from and draw firm conclusions on the experimentation, however, key leading comrades of the party committee echelons must assume direct control of the experimental work.

Holding discussions and making decisions: This is the key stage of the leadership process of the party committee echelons. Discussions held by the party committee echelons constitute one of the main measures for manifesting the principle of collective leadership. Therefore, the most important task that must be done to ensure collective leadership and at the same time guarantee the quality of decisions is to organize party committee echelon conferences satisfactorily.

First, to be successful a party committee echelon conference must have a well-prepared agenda. Only essential problems that can be resolved at the conference should be brought forward; and requirements must be clearly set for resolving each problem included in the agenda. Except in unexpected or pressing circumstances, the agenda of a party committee echelon conference should generally consist of only those issues for which solutions have been well prepared.

Second, all members of the party committee echelon must be well prepared for the conference. For important issues, members of the party committee echelon must be informed in advance of the contents of the various solution plans and the different views on each plan. Each of them should be supplied with the necessary reference documents and given sufficient time for forming his own opinion.

Third, the conference must be held according to a tight and rational schedule with specific stimpulations concerning the subjects of discussion and the time allotted for presenting opinions. Conference time should be devoted chiefly to holding discussions, selecting the various plans and analyzing the pros and cons and the factors necessary for implementing decisions rather than to reviewing the situation. When conflicting opinions arise over important points, frank debates should be held for the purpose of seeking the best answer to the question.

In cases where there is a large number of party committee echelon members and the duration of the party committee echelon conference is limited, to ensure collective leadership the comrades presiding over the conference must strictly enforce the rules on discussion methods so that all or a major part of the party committee echelon members can express their views in the adoption of decisions.

The composition of participants greatly influences the quality of the conference. When the party committee echelon holds an enlarged conference, apart from the participation of members of the party committee echelon, it is necessary to request the attendance of a number of cadres who will either present programs and draft plans or express their opinions to help the party committee echelon assess the issue, and of other cadres who will assist the party committee echelon in organizing the execution of decisions. Nevertheless, it is necessary to select the attendants closely and appropriately in accordance with the agenda of each conference; and not every enlarged party committee echelon conference should be attended by representatives of all departments and sectors.

The decision taken by a party committee echelon reflects the unity of mind and action of the entire party organization. The resolution of a party committee conference must be approved and passed by the majority of its members and not necessarily by all of its members. We should not refrain from issuing a decision nor consider it a disagreement of the party committee echelon if some of the members in a party committee do not agree with the conclusion reached at the conference. In a conference, every party committee member is authorized to discuss all matters democratically, frankly and liberally. When a resolution has been adopted by the majority, all members will have to comply with it scrupulously. Even those comrades who held differing views during the discussion will also have to implement the resolution by speaking and acting in accordance with the resolution. This is to implement the principle of democratic centralization of the party organization.

The resolution of a party committee echelon is a vital means for the party committee to exercise its leadership function. It reflects the collective mind of leading organs and is a base on which to unify the thought and action of the entire party organization. As a result, the resolution -- either written or verbally transmitted -- must be clear, concise and succinct, clearly specifying the party committee's guidances for resolving the problems raised, the tasks to be done and the requirements of each task.

Organizing the implementation of resolutions: After issuing decisions, the primary duty of the party committee echelon, especially its standing committee, is to outline a specific program of action to guide the party apparatus in implementing the resolutions. The program of action usually involves the following four tasks:

-- Specify each question raised in the resolutions, that is, to elaborate on the requirements to be fulfilled and points to be emphasized in each task. With regard to those matters involving state management, they must be materialized and institutionalized into regulations of the state agencies.

-- Assign work to the right people and clearly define the responsibility of each agency and each cadre in charge of a specific job. This is a very important point in the work method and system to ensure good implementation of the resolutions.

-- Clearly determine the completion time for each job. In a resolution of the party committee echelon, there are jobs to be completed weekly, monthly, quarterly and yearly.

-- Establish a plan to control the implementation of resolutions. This plan should clearly stipulate the main objectives to be controlled and the manner of conducting inspections for each job.

After formulating a detailed program of action, the primary duty of the party committee echelon is to transmit resolutions. The main requirement of this task is to make every person involved in the implementation of resolutions clearly realize the significance and scope of the job that he himself must perform. Not only will he see the correctness of the policies set forth but he will also be firmly convinced that resolutions can be implemented. Only by doing so can we make all people volunteer to participate actively and enthusiastically in the implementation of resolutions. Transmitting resolutions well is mainly to fulfill well a key job in the ideological task to guarantee implementation of resolutions. In many circumstances, policies -- though they are correct -- have not been implemented successfully as a result of inadequate transmission which prevents people, who are responsible for implementing resolutions, from understanding their duties thoroughly.

To transmit resolutions is to guide the implementation of policies. Consequently, the key members of party committees should assume this job personally. To perform this job well, not only do we have to grasp the contents of resolutions firmly, but we must also have a good method in presenting solid reasoning accompanied by supporting documents. In this way we will be able to convince party members and the people regarding the necessity and correctness of policies and the practical feasibility of their implementation.

Each policy is implemented in a given circumstance under specific conditions. As circumstances and conditions constantly change, new ideological developments might occur in the course of implementing resolutions, even though the resolutions have been transmitted and understood well and have gained some initial confidence. The party committee echelon should therefore closely watch the thinking of cadres, party members and people in order to answer questions and remedy erroneous views and thoughts promptly by closely combining the issuance of specific guidances with the propaganda and educational tasks.

A matter of decisive importance with respect to the implementation of resolutions is how we should control and use the machinery and cadres to ensure that all jobs are correctly performed and well coordinated. This is one of the most complicated jobs in the process of organizing the implementation of resolutions.

Depending on the nature and specific contents of each policy, the party committee echelon should select the right personnel and rationally assign them work. To ensure good results, the organization of policy implementation must be assigned to the most capable and qualified organizations and cadres. First of all, the cadres should understand the policies thoroughly and should have some knowledge and experience in the field of their work. Attention should be paid to using and developing the abilities of those organizations and cadres who have practically contributed to the formulation of the selected projects.

There are two categories of organizations and cadres who assist the party committee echelon in organizing the implementation of resolutions: those agencies and cadres directly in charge of guiding and operating specific jobs; and those helping the party committee echelon follow up and control the implementation of resolutions. Although these two tasks are closely connected, there should be some distinction so that the organizations and cadres can be utilized properly.

The implementation of directives and resolutions of a party committee normally involves many sectors, authorities at different levels and organizations. In other words, this is a task characterized by its generality related to several sectors. Consequently, an important point in the work system is to organize the work well to ensure coordination and cooperation among the agencies and organizations involved in the implementation of resolutions.

Good coordination among the organizations to implement resolutions can only be secured on the basis of clearly determining the function and responsibility of each agency and each cadre who can develop his ability in line with his function in the course of coordination. Cases in which a series of cadres with different skills and holding different functions in various agencies and organizations were mobilized haphazardly to do the same job using a unified method, have actually decreased the role and operational effectiveness of the machinery and cadres.

The party committee echelon should create favorable conditions for all organizations and cadres to exercise their functions well. On the one hand, it must control closely the developments (either good or bad) in the implementation of resolutions by the authorities at different levels, by each type of cadre and by party members and the people in order to answer questions promptly and consider the suggestions of subordinates, helping them to resolve problems and overcome difficulties in the exercise of their duties. On the other, it must respect the authority of the organizations and cadres under its control, and must stimulate and develop their initiative and creativity. The party committee echelon must not slacken its leadership, must not tolerate indisciplined actions and must avoid doing the work which should have been done by subordinates or interfering into the activities which are within the latter's authority.

One of the most important leadership functions of the party committee echelon is to inspect the implementation of those policies which are currently in force. The party committee echelon must devise general stipulations for the inspection system and must adopt an appropriate inspection method for each particular policy.

Inspecting the implementation of a resolution is aimed primarily at quickly detecting and solving newly-developed problems in order to implement this resolution in a most satisfactory manner. Facts obtained from inspection activities in the past show that sometimes we have had to readjust the assignment of cadres and part of our plan for the implementation of a resolution. There have also been certain cases in which we have had to reexamine, revise and rectify those tasks and objectives which we have set forth. This means that we must rely on the real situation to ascertain the correctness of a policy. This must be regarded as an ordinary task, considering the fact that there have been some policies which were judged as totally correct at the time when they were initially put into force but later became in applicable as the situation did not develop as had originally been anticipated, thus rendering the policy no longer suitable. Therefore, those agencies and cadres in charge of helping the party committee echelon inspect the implementation of a resolution must ascertain the real situation so as to report and suggest what needs to be done to the party committee echelon in a copious and candid manner.

One of the most important inspection methods -- also regarded as an important factor of our working procedures -- is that the key leading cadres of a party committee echelon must make direct on-site inspections regarding the implementation of important policies and must personally contact cadres and non-party members at lower echelons or at the grassroots level for this purpose. Making frequent direct on-site inspections -- with the knowledge and the correct observation and evaluation of the cadres involved -- is regarded as the most effective method for the party committee echelon to grasp the situation firmly, stay close to his subordinates, understand cadres and the people, eliminate the ills of bureaucracy and conservatism, detect new factors and quickly solve hot problems arising in everyday life.

Improving the working method is an important demand and is regarded as having a great potential in improving the leadership qualities and efficiency of the party committee echelon. We must gradually and constantly improve our leadership skills in order to establish at all costs a scientific working system that is sensitive, reflects the spirit of urgency, promotes a fighting spirit, and is practicable and antibureaucratic, as already outlined in the resolution of the party Central Committee's fourth plenum. This is a realistic action to be taken to improve the fighting strength of the party, develop the revolutionary and scientific character of the party, and truly contribute to preparing the fifth national party congress and to implementing its resolution.

ECONOMIC ACHIEVEMENTS SINCE LAST CONGRESS NOTED

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 20 -- On the occasion of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam, we publish the following document reviewing the achievements recorded by the Vietnamese people in various fields since the fourth party congress in December 1976:

In the five years since the Fourth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam (1976) the Vietnamese people have recorded considerable achievements in economy, despite the handicap in the form of a backward agriculture whose dominant trait is a small-scale production, despite the aftermath of decades of war and repeated natural calamities, despite the many schemes and acts of sabotage and encirclement by imperialism and international reaction, and despite poor management. These successes, though far from sufficient, evidenced great efforts. They served as a stepping-stone to further development in the years to come.

1. Achievements in Agricultural and Industrial Production

From 1976 to 1980, in spite of major difficulties caused by the shortage of many kinds of necessary materials, from fertilizer, insecticide and electricity for agriculture to yarn, steel, fuel and chemicals for industry, encouraging results were also recorded in agricultural and industrial production. Worthy of note is the fairly high rate of development of agriculture during this period, although three of these five years (1977, 1979 and 1980) were calamitous years for agriculture that resulted in a yearly drop of around one million tonnes of food compared with the target. In 1980, however, food output reached 4.38 million tonnes, 2.9 million more than in 1975. This includes 11.7 tonnes of rice, up by 1.2 million, and 2.7 million tonnes of subsidiary crops, up by 1.7 million, compared with 1975.

The number of pigs rose to 10 million compared with 8.8 million in 1975. The number of buffaloes reached 2.3 million (compared with 2.1 million in 1975) and the number of oxen and cows stood at 1.6 million (compared with 1.4 million in 1975).

1981 saw a marked progress of agricultural production in Vietnam. Food production exceeded 15 million tonnes, up by 700,000 tonnes over 1980, including 12.5 million tonnes of paddy. There was an increase in the number of both cattle and pigs: The number of pigs reached 10,457,000; that of buffaloes, 2,376,000; and the number of oxen and cows, 1,761,000.

There has been a change in the proportion of rice and subsidiary crops in food production. The proportions of rice and subsidiary crop acreages were respectively 88.2 per cent and 11.8 per cent in 1975. They were respectively 79.5 per cent and 20.5 per cent in 1980. In terms of output, these proportions were respectively 90.9 per cent and 9.1 per cent in 1975 and 81.2 per cent and 18.8 per cent in 1980. Food crops in Vietnam comprise both rice and subsidiary crops such as maize, potatoes, sweet potatoes and cassava. Therefore, to develop the cultivation of subsidiary crops is regarded as an important step in solving the food question.

On the whole, rice yield remains low. In 1976-80, it stood at 4.2 tonnes (total of two rice crops) per hectare, of which the yield of the summer crop accounted for 2.2 tonnes and that of the autumn crops, 2 tonnes. However, some cooperatives achieved a yearly yield of 7 to 8 tonnes per hectare. In 1981, the province of Thai Binh which has a long experience in intensive cultivation, reaped 6.2 tonnes per hectare a year, of which the yield of the summer crop was 3.2 tonnes and that of the autumn crop, 3 tonnes.

With regard to industrial plants, their output increased considerably in 1980 compared with 1975: Jute increased by 26 percent, rush by 45 percnet, sugar-cane by 167 percent, peanuts by 43.4 percent, soybeans by 111.9 percent, and tobacco by 89 percent. Soybean acreage was expanded from 28,500 hectares in 1975 to 48,900 hectares in 1980, and to 80,000 hectares in 1981, and is expected to increase to 300,000 hectares in 1985.

As regards industry, small industries and handicrafts, during 1976-80, efforts were concentrated on restoring war-ravaged enterprises, transforming private enterprises in southern Vietnam into state-run enterprises, and more importantly, on the procurement of raw materials, energy, equipment, and spare-parts which used to be imported largely from abroad, so that these enterprises could continue their operation without a hitch.

By 1980, there had been 2,538 state-run enterprises througout the country with a workforce of 631,000, an increase of 510 enterprises compared with 1975. Small industry workforce in 1980 was 1,604,000 employed at some 4,000 cooperatives and 8,000 production teams.

Gross industrial output (including small industries and handicrafts) in 1980 increased by 12.8 percent over 1975. Of this, group A (production means) increased by 20.4 percent and group B (consumer goods) increased by 8.1 percent, in accordance with the line mapped out at the Fourth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam: Priority rational development of heavy industry on the basis of the development of agriculture and light industry. [sentence as received] Therefore, during the above-mentioned five-year period, in the gross output value of industry and small industries and handicrafts, the proportion of group A increased from 37.8 percent to 40.3 percent while that of group B decreased from 62.2 percent to 59.7 percent.

In 1976-80, the main aim of industry, small industries and handicrafts was to serve agriculture and the people's life and produce goods for export. In that sense, during those five years, electricity in service of agriculture increased by 18 percent. Of this production of "Bong Sen" (Lotus) tractors increased by 97.3 percent, water pumps by 9 percent, ploughs and harrows by 68.3 percent, and insecticide by 62.9 percent.

With regard to essential consumer goods, textile increased by 19.5 percent, sugar by 149.7 percent, earthenware by 23.8 percent, salt by 16 percent, and soap by 12.9 percent. Exported goods included mineral ores (coal, apatite, chromite, tin), planks, rubber, shoes, sandals, and rattan, bamboo and rush articles. Of the total value of exported goods industrial and small industrial and handcraft goods accounted for 91.4 percent in 1975 and 91.2 percent in 1980, the remainer being unprocessed agricultural produce.

Small industries and handicrafts, an important sector of Vietnam's industry, made a remarkable progress in 1976-80. Their workforce includes professional handicraftmen reorganized into handicraft production teams or cooperatives, or agricultural cooperatives (practicing such side line occupations as processing agricultural produce and making wickerwork) or private handicraft workers in the cities and towns. Small industries and handicraft will continue to play an important role during the period of transition from small production to large-scale socialist production.

In 1980, they made up 42.4 percent of the total output value of industry (including small industries and handicrafts); a 23.4 percent increase over 1975, supplying tools for agriculture and for the processing of farm produce for domestic consumption and export. In particular, the traditional art crafts have seen a steady development. The value of exprted handicraft goods increased by 169.3 percent in 1980 over 1975.

The following is a breakdown of the main industrial products (including small industrial and handicraft products) during the 1976-80 period:

Electricity output	Million kWh	2,653.0	3,639.5
Coal	Million tonnes	5.2	5.3
Cement	Thousand tonnes	536.7	641.0
Timber	Thousand cubic metres	1,252.0	1,626.0
Paper	Thousand tonnes	41.7	46.8
Salt	Thousand tonnes	376.5	436.8
Sugar	Thousand tonnes	45.6	113.9
Textiles	Million metres	146.4	175.3
Cigarettes	Million packets	543.5	351.6
Tea	Thousand tonnes	10.8	15.5

2. Achievements in Socialist Transformation, Perfection of the Socialist Relations of Production, Settlement of the Job Problem and Redistribution of the Work Force

With the complete liberation of the south in the spring of 1975 followed by national reunification, the whole country embarked on the path of socialist construction. To transform the nonsocialist sectors of the economy along socialist lines thus became an urgent task which was given due attention. At present, the compradore bourgeoisie has been abolished as a class and private capitalism has been basically transformed. Most worthy of note is the initial successes of the agricultural cooperation movement which have drawn about 30 percent of the peasant families into collective farming under different forms, from low to high, such as "solidarity" production groups, work-exchange teams, tractor teams, production collectives, agricultural cooperatives.... In the north where the organisation of the working peasants into agricultural cooperatives had been completed as early as the sixties, the co-operatives have been strengthened day by day. In 1980 northern Vietnam counted 11,088 agricultural co-operatives, mostly fully socialist ones, accounting for 96.8 per cent of the peasant households and averaging 1,709 persons in each co-op with 590 farmhands and 201 hectares of tilled land.

A significant event was that in 1981 a new system of management consisting in allocating fixed quotas to each production team and each farmer was initiated, and was quickly embraced by almost all agricultural co-ops in the north, the co-ops and production collectives in the coastal provinces of central Vietnam, in the Central Highlands and in many provinces and cities of the south. The basic merit of this system lies in the fact that it clearly determines the responsibility as well as the interests of the farmers, closely associates the farmers with the results of their work and consequently encourages the co-op members to give more attention to carrying out intensive cultivation to increase crop output. This is the main reason responsible for fairly good results in agricultural production in 1981. Food output exceeded 15 million tonnes. Although still far below the increasing needs and the actual potentials of Vietnam, this was more than 107,000 tonnes above the target under the annual plan and 700,000 tonnes above the 1980 figure which was unsurpassed by any year in the past. Thanks to the new system of management, Thanh Hoa Province, the second largest food-growing province of northern Vietnam, has been able to make better use of its work force, land resources and material and technical bases, and yielded a total of 687,000 tonnes of food (including rice and subsidiary crops converted into rice equivalent), nearly 250,000 tonnes more than in 1980, the highest food output to date in its history.

In close association with the improvement of the socialist relations of production was the further effort to solve the job problem and redistribute the work force and the population on the national scale...with a population of 54 million (1981) Vietnam has an abundant work force of more than 25 million. But for many reasons, this work force is not evenly distributed and not adequately used.

The unemployment rate remains high and work productivity remains low in all branches of the national economy. For instance, the Red River Delta and the plains of Thanh Hoa and Nghe Tinh Provinces which occupy only 13 percent of the total land area of the country, are inhabited by more than 40 percent of the national population. Population density in the Red River Delta now stands at more than 590 per square kilometre. Meanwhile, the Mekong River Delta which has rich potentials for food production and accounts for 40 percent of the rice acreage of the whole country, has only a population of 267 persons per square kilometre. The highlands of central Vietnam which possess vast potentials for industrial crops has a population of only 23 persons per square kilometre. In 1985, at the time of liberation, South Vietnam had more than 3 million unemployed (including one million men of the disbanded puppet army). Therefore, to provide jobs for the unemployed and redistribute the work force and the population is a task of prime importance.

In the five-year period (1976-1980) about 4,200,000 persons were assigned productive jobs. Around 1,470,000 persons, 700,000 of them in the working age, went to the "new economic zones" where they reclaimed and put under cultivation 500,000 hectares of land. The "new economic zones" are being constantly consolidated to become new population centres, creating conditions for exploiting the labour and land potentials of the whole country for economic construction and national defence.

3. Success in Laying the Material and Technical Foundations

To make it possible for a backward agricultural economy, practised mainly on a small scale, to ascend directly to socialism by-passing capitalist development, it is essential to provide it with proper material and technical foundations. This, however, is not without difficulty, especially in investments and equipment. Even so, in the five years from 1976 to 1980, with its own effort and thanks to the great assistance of the Soviet Union and other members of the Council for Mutual Economic Assisance (C.M.E.A.), the government was able to put together 18.44 billion dong for construction, of which 16.1 billions went to productive sectors, with 7.5 billions to industry and construction, and 4.4 billions to agriculture and forestry. Non-productive sectors got another 2.3 billions. Over this period fixed capital in productive sectors increased by 91 percent. As a result efficiency increased considerably.

In agriculture, more than one million hectares were acquired through land reclamation, with total cultivated area going up from seven million hectares in 1976 to 8.2 millions in 1980, including an increase from 6.1 million hectares to seven million in food crop area (rice area from 5.2 to 5.6 million hectares). Also, through crop multiplication, the cultivated area was extended by 1.8 million hectares.

In the same period agriculture was provided with more than 20,000 tractors of different types, and 35 percent of the cultivated area was thus tilled mechanically. By 1980 the whole country had been provided with 49,922 tractors in terms of the standard 15 hp.

Productivity also marked a considerable increase in industry. In the period under review there was an increase of 100,000 kilowatts in electricity, of two million tons in coal, 600,000 tons in cement, etc. The Uong Bi thermo-electric station was restored and extended, with a new capacity of 150,000 kW. A coal sorting plant was completed at Cua Ong, with an annual output of 3.2 million tons. Aggregate capacity of electric stations in the whole country now stands at 1.4 million kilowatts (20 percent in the hydro-electric group). The coal-mining industry has a designed capacity of around 11 million tons.

Also in these five years many light-industry projects were built or completed in the main. These included the Bai Bang paper mill with an annual output of 50,000 tons, the Minh Phuong textile mill, the Dong Nam spinning mill and the Thang Loi textile mill. The Nam Dinh textile mill was extended, with an additional annual output of 700,000 metres of cloth, 14,000 tons of yarn, and 50,000 tons of paper.

In transport and communications more than 2,000 kilometres of main and auxiliary tracks were laid for the north-south railway which was also provided with station facilities. The Haiphong port was improved and extended to cover 11 concrete wharves totalling 1,700 metres, 90,000 square metres of warehouses and storage yards, 3,600 metres of railway and almost 2,000 metres of crane tracks. Generally speaking, the capacity to conduct major repairs of ships, trains and road vehicles increased twofold. This period also saw the construction of about 3,800 kilometres of motor roads and 4,000 metres of river wharves. There was a sharp increase in transport means: Many more sea-going and coastal ships, hundreds of train engines and cars, and thousands of trucks and passenger buses.

Worthy of note are those projects which were started in this period, and which will become operative in 1981-1990, like the Hoa Binh hydro-electric dam on the Da River (almost 2,000,000 kW), the Tri An hydro-electric station on the Dong Nai River (320,000 kW), the Pha Lai thermo-electric plant (640,000 kW), the two cement plants at Bim Yon and Hoang Thach, each with an annual output of over one million tons, the two spinning mills in Hanoi and Nha Trang, each with 100,000 spindles. Moreover, extension was conducted regarding the nitrogen fertilizer plant at Ha Bac, the Lam Thao super-phosphate plant, the Lao Cai apatite plant, etc. Work is being pushed up on the Thang Long bridge across the Red River in Hanoi. Of particular importance is the exploration and exploitation of natural oil and gas which is being stepped up in cooperation with the Soviet Union. Preparations are now being made for the installation of off-shore derricks at Vung Tua in view of actual production right in this Third Five-Year Plan (1981-1985).

4. [as received] in social affairs, noticeable achievements were recorded in the period 1976-80 in the fields of education, health, culture and art. The age-old illiteracy in southern Vietnam has been virtually eradicated. Over 16 million people are attending general, job-training and vocational schools and universities throughout the country. Break-down figures:

-- General school pupils	10,320,000	12,095,000
-- Complementary school attendance	1,598,000	2,194,000
-- Vocational school students	96,000	133,000
-- Tertiary school students	92,000	146,000

Since the 1981-82 academic year, an educational reform has been enforced with the application of a new curriculum and new literature and mathematics textbooks for the first form of basic general education, the improvement of teaching methods at the kindergartens and infant schools, and the improvement of training methods at the vocational schools and universities along the guideline of combining teaching with scientific research and productive labour.

The number of infant schools and classes has increased in the cities, towns and many rural areas. In the period 1975-1980, the number of infant classes went up from 26,000 to 51,000, a 96 percent increase; enrollment rose from 823,000 to 1,597,000, a 94 percent increase; and the number of teachers from 27,000 to 58,000 a 115 percent increase.

Public health work has been greatly expanded with a growing number of disease-preventing and medical establishment, thus making a very important contribution to protecting and improving the people's health.

-- Hospitals and clinics	1,396	2,396
-- Sanatoria	86	93
-- Village medical and sanitary stations	6,565	9,034
-- Hospital beds	142,000	198,000

In 1980, the contingent of medical workers included 12,400 doctors, 27,900 assistant doctors, 74,000 nurses, and 13,600 midwives, an average of 7.5 doctors for every 10,000 inhabitants.

In 1980, the cultural service published 29.7 million copies of books and produced 128 films. Cinema-goers numbered 271.8 million.

The five years since the Fourth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam have been years of hard work of the Vietnamese people in economic transformation, construction and development. The achievements obtained so far are very small indeed compared with the needs and potentials. That is due to both objective and subjective factors, the latter being chiefly shortcomings in mangement. These shortcomings have been detected and are being effectively overcome as can be clearly seen in the change for the better of the economic situation in 1981, which has opened new prospects for the time to come.

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 22 -- An exhibition on Vietnam's economic and technical achievements over the past five years opened in Hanoi this morning in honour of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam. To Huu, Political Bureau member of the party Central Committee and vice-chairman of the Council of Ministers, cut the inaugural ribbon. Also present at the opening ceremony were members of the diplomatic corps in Hanoi.

The exhibition is in three sectors. The first features charts and pictures concerning the growth in various fields, economic, political, military, cultural, scientific and technical, and also a number of art works and objects.

The second sector, which is the main one of the exhibition, gives a systematic review of the economic and technical achievements of various branches of activity, localities and economic zones, such as industry, agriculture, forestry, hydrology, water conservancy, fisheries, the armed forces, etc. Also displayed are special products of the localities.

HAIPHONG, CUA LO SEAPORT FACILITIES EXPANDED

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 20 -- Haiphong and Cua Lo are two major sea ports in northern Vietnam the enlargement or construction of which started in the 1976-1980 five-year plan. Haiphong port comprises the Chua Ve and Vat Cach decking areas totalling 11 wharves, 39,000 square metres of storage yards and nearly 10 kilometres of rail roads. The building of all the 11 wharves has been basically completed, many of which are accessible to 10,000-ton ships. When the whole port becomes operational, it will be able to handle 2.7 million tonnes of freight a year.

Cua Lo is a new port, some ten kilometres northeast of Vinh, capital of the central Vietnam province of Nghe Tinh. After the first stage of construction, the port will have three wharves accessible to 5,000-ton ships, and after the current second stage of construction it will be able to take 10,000-ton ships. Total loading and unloading capacity will be 500,000 tonnes a year.

SMALL INDUSTRIES, HANDICRAFTS OUTPUT INCREASES

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 13 -- Consumer goods produced over the past five years by small industries and handicrafts account for 76 percent of the gross value of the total manufactured by the whole country in the same period. Last year the gross output value of small industries and handicrafts totalled 3,780 million dong, almost doubling the 1976 figure and 11 per cent above the 1981 target. Export goods produced by this sector made up 25 per cent of the national export turnover, an eight per cent increase over 1976. The annual rate of development of small industry and handicraft production in this period was 25 per cent compared with 15 per cent in the period 1973-1976.

In the southern provinces some 30,000 cooperatives and production groups have been set up since liberation, drawing in about half of the handicraft workforce. By 1981 Ho Chi Minh City alone had 24,000 production units operating along the orientation of the state plans with a gross product valued at 1,400 million dong compared with 191 million in 1976. This productive sector is trying to attain the target of 5.2 billion dong in gross product value and increase its work force to two million persons by 1985.

NEW PROJECTS, PRODUCTS PUT INTO PRODUCTION

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 22 -- One hundred and eighty new projects and products of the engineering and metallurgy industries have been put into production since mid-1981 when an emulation drive was launched to welcome the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam. The new projects included the tin processing plant of Khoun Phay at the Son Duong tin mine, Ha Tuyen Province, and the expansion of the Tinh Tuc tin mine in Cao Bang Province.

The screw-action press EV-250 turned out by the Machine Tool Factory No 1 in Hanoi has been used in the production of pincers, scissors and other hand tools and metal utensils. Another new product of the engineering industry is the 12-hp diesel motor D.12M produced by the Tran Hung Dao mechanical engineering plant in Hanoi. Thanks to the improvement of the cooling system and the oil pipes, utilisation time has been trebled.

Other new products include smaller diesel motors of from 6 to 24 hp, insecticide sprayers, pumps of a capacity of 8,000-cubic metre an hour and machine parts of internal combustion motors which are being mass-produced under the 1982 program.

ROTTERDAM PAPER INTERVIEWS FOREIGN MINISTER

PM151323 Rotterdam NRC HANDELSBLAD in Dutch 8 Mar 82 p 5

[Carolien Roelants 6 March Wassenaar Interview With Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja: "Kampuchea Problem -- Impatience Out of Place"]

[Text] Wassenaar, 8 Mar -- Since Vietnamese troops occupied the Kampuchean capital, Phnom Penh, in January 1979, drove the Khmer Rouge regime to the farthest corners of the country and brought Heng Samrin to power, ASEAN -- set up in 1967 by Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore and the Phillipines and intended as an economic cooperation group -- has chiefly to thank the Kampuchea question for its fame in the world.

The Association of Southeast Asian Nations makes sure that the world does not have the chance to forget the Vietnamese occupation. "Against our will," Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said in Wassenaar on Saturday [6 March]. "We had no choice." If ASEAN had not concerned itself with the question, "I doubt whether ASEAN would still exist. Vietnam would have subjugated the whole of Southeast Asia." And "the question is -- would it have stopped there?"

Meanwhile an estimated 200,000 Vietnamese are still in Kampuchea. ASEAN's latest countermove -- a loose coalition of the Khmer Rouge and the guerrilla groups of former Prime Minister Son Sann and former head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk -- cannot get off the ground. The Khmer Rouge -- the strongest of the three -- is making too many demands. There is deadlock.

[Question] What is the real usefulness of such a coalition and what are its prospects?

[Answer] The coalition is a necessary part of our efforts in the search for a political solution, a peaceful political solution. We have two choices in Kampuchea -- the Heng Samrin government, which we do not recognize because it was brought to power by a foreign occupation force... and the Pol Pot regime, which we must presumably support because it represents the government of the state which is the legal unit recognized by the United Nations and which is the victim of aggression. We differentiate here between the "Democratic Kampuchea" state, which we support, and the regime, for which we have no enthusiasm. That is why we are trying to change the government by pressing for the formation of a coalition which would be more acceptable.

But what happens now is up to them to decide. As long as it is an expression of the free will of the people and as long as the Vietnamese withdraw, we would be able to accept it.

[Question] What about the current deadlock?

[Answer] I can understand your impatience that this coalition has not come about that quickly. But you should remember that politics in Southeast Asia must be seen in terms of years -- 10, 20 years perhaps, and if you are looking at China 100 years. The solution of problems in this part of the world always takes a long time.

Nor is the Kampuchean problem a new problem. It has existed since the French installed Sihanouk as king in 1941, and even before that. Kampuchea was always a problem between Thailand and Vietnam, for hundreds of years. So this is nothing, just a ripple in the ocean.

[Question] Last month the countries of Indochina -- Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea -- put forward a new proposal: border negotiations with Thailand with the possibility of the withdrawal of part of the Vietnamese troops and contacts with the ASEAN nations about "Questions of peace and stability." Some Indochina experts saw in this a new flexibility. What is your view?

[Answer] The special reference to Thailand we see as an attempt to isolate Thailand and to cut it off from the other ASEAN nations. This is why we believe we must be cautious. But it is a good basis on which to continue contacts -- although it is not acceptable to ASEAN in its present form.

I think as a step in a continuing process it is not a bad attempt. It is like a minuet -- forwards and backwards."

[Question] There seem to be certain divisions within ASEAN. On the one hand the hawks -- Thailand and Singapore -- and on the other the rest, the doves. While the former seem more to be seeking confrontation and to follow the Chinese line, the others give a more reconciliatory impression. Is this true?

[Answer] I would say that there is no difference, only variations on a common theme.... Thailand's tougher stance is caused by its proximity (to Vietnam) and you can understand this. In principle it is following the joint ASEAN line, which embraces the view that ASEAN is not really in conflict with Vietnam. But it is more militant, together with Singapore, because it sees Vietnam as an immediate threat -- although it also sees China as a threat in the long term. Indonesia and Malaysia on the other hand do not see Vietnam as an immediate threat, because they are more distant.

We all see China as a threat; the variation is in the view of Vietnam. This is especially so because the Chinese have once again refused to assure us that they would no longer support subversive movements in Southeast Asia.

[Question] Why do you not see Vietnam as an immediate threat?

[Answer] Because they are stuck fast in Kampuchea, and they are not a rich country; they could never allow themselves a military campaign. They have other priorities, and now they are piously stating that the also have other goals, that they have no intention of attacking us, and so on.

[Question] Last year U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig came to Manila to explain the new U.S. policy in Asia to its ASEAN partners. The new policy involves a harder line toward Vietnam and the possibility of the supply of destructive arms to China. At the time Indonesia expressed its concern over this. What is your opinion now?

[Answer] Our worries concern the possible effect on Southeast Asia of the supply of destructive weapons to China, especially since China's priorities lie elsewhere. At present they are busy with the four modernizations -- so why then should they put emphasis on the modernization of their fighting forces?

We would prefer the emphasis to be placed on the more peaceful aspects of modernization, given the fact that the funds available are limited.... For a prosperous Chinese is a happy Chinese. Perhaps he might open a restaurant -- and that is much better for us....

[Question] Indonesia's diplomatic relations with China have been suspended since the failed communist coup in 1965, when Beijing was suspected of interference through its embassy and the million Chinese in Indonesia. The result was a trauma that still exists. However, in recent years Indonesian leaders have repeatedly spoken of a normalization of relations, although nothing has come of this. Undoubtedly a traditional question -- why not, and how is the situation now?

[Answer] The plans (for normalization) still exist. But there are no assurances that China will no longer support subversive movements. All other obstacles have been removed. I would say that we have almost normal diplomatic relations.

[Question] How would the visit of the Taiwanese president to Indonesia be seen?

[Answer] That was a private visit.... But it has been interpreted differently, by the Chinese, too, and I told them in Hong Kong that they were overreacting.

We have no intention of altering our one-China policy, but to return to relations. We have more normal relations than do China and Vietnam. China and Vietnam have embassies, and they do not talk to each other. We do not have embassies, and we do.

SUZUKI VIEWS BREZHNEV PROPOSAL ON RELATIONS

[Text] Tokyo, March 25 (KYODO) — Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Thursday there was nothing new in the latest proposal made by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev for improved relations with Japan.

Brezhnev, in a speech delivered Wednesday in the central Asian city of Tashkent, said his country wanted to have "reliable relations of good neighborliness, mutually-beneficial cooperation and mutual confidence" with Japan. He also called on China to improve bilateral relations on the basis of mutual respect for each other's interest.

Asked to comment by reporters on Brezhnev's speech, Prime Minister Suzuki said the president's reference to Japan was the same in content as statements made by him at the meeting of the Soviet Communist Party's Central Committee in February last year. He said there apparently is nothing new in his latest proposal.

Meanwhile, Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa said Japan will renew its call on the Soviet Union to take not only verbal initiatives but action. Commenting on Brezhnev's proposal, Miyazawa told newsmen the Soviet leader made a similar proposal in the spring last year.

At that time Japan urged the Soviets to take action, noting such realities as Soviet occupation of northern islands off Hokkaido, a Soviet military buildup there and Soviet troops in Afghanistan, the Cabinet spokesman said.

However, Miyazawa said the government will obtain the text of Brezhnev's speech for a careful analysis. He refused to comment on another Soviet proposal to end two decades of hostility with China.

PRAVDA COMMENTS ON SECURITY TREATY PROTESTED

OW251049 Tokyo KYODO in English 1036 GMT 25 Mar 82

[Text] Tokyo, March 25 (KYODO) — The Foreign Ministry Thursday protested against the "irresponsible comments" made by PRAVDA, organ of the Soviet Communist Party, on the Japan-U.S. security treaty.

Valentin V. Alekseyev, counselor at the Soviet Embassy in Tokyo, was invited to the Foreign Ministry and saw Ryozo Kato, director of the Security Affairs Division of the North American Affairs Bureau, who criticized the Soviet newspaper for "making irresponsible cooments on the Japan-U.S. security treaty on the basis of a malicious intent and misunderstanding." Counselor Alekseyev promised to convey the protest to his home government.

PRAVDA carried an article, titled "The Role of Pentagon Hostage," dated March 13. The article, signed by PRAVDA's special correspondent in Tokyo, contained the statement that a majority of the Japanese people are opposed to the Japan-U.S. security treaty. It also said that the Japan-U.S. security treaty has changed in character, and that the scope of application of this treaty has been extended. The article also claimed that U.S. forces in Japan have tactical nuclear weapons.

Director Kato told Counselor Alekseyev that the security treaty is supported by a majority of the Japanese people, and can make a contribution to the peace and security of Asia. He also said that Japan has been taking steps to increase the deterrent power of the security treaty, because it cannot remain a mere spectator when the Soviet Union is strengthening its military power and sending troops to Japan's northern territory — a reference to four northern islands claimed by Japan. Kato then charged that PRAVDA's comment on the U.S. forces' nuclear weapons is an "irresponsible criticism against Japan which maintains the three nonnuclear principles."

PIPELAYERS' SHIPMENT TO USSR NOT TO BE SUSPENDED

[Text] Tokyo, March 24 (KYODO) -- The Japanese Government cannot comply with a U.S. request for suspension of shipments of pipelaying equipment to the Soviet Union, government officials said Wednesday. A top Foreign Ministry official, who declined to be named, said the government has no legal means of ordering the suspension.

Komatsu Ltd. concluded an export contract for supplying the pipelayers to the Soviet Union before the U.S. Government imposed a ban on such exports as part of economic sanctions against Moscow for its role in Afghanistan and Poland, he pointed out. The suspension was requested by U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig when he conferred with Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi in Washington Tuesday.

A Ministry of International Trade and Industry official also pointed to the fact the export contract was concluded before the imposition of economic sanctions against the Soviet Union. The government cannot order suspension of such a contract, he said.

SAKURAUCHI MEETS BROCK; GETS ASSURANCES ON TRADE

[By Masaru Imai]

[Excerpts] Washington, March 24 (KYODO) -- Trade Representative William Brock Wednesday assured Japan that the U.S. Government is opposed to "reciprocity" bills before Congress if they run counter to the basic principles of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). Brock gave the assurance in an hour-long breakfast meeting with Japanese Foreign Ministry Yoshio Sakurauchi, who later left for home after winding up a five-day visit to Washington.

Japanese officials told reporters that Brock urged Japan to take additional effective market-opening steps, saying the Japanese action will help the U.S. Government in testifying before Congress.

Sakurauchi came here last Saturday on a mission to try to defuse the trade tension with the United States. Sakurauchi was quoted by Japanese officials at telling Brock Wednesday that a trade balance at lower levels to be brought about through "reciprocity" is undesirable for world trade.

Brock sought closer economic cooperation between Japan and the United States from a long-range point of view to fight protectionism, the officials said. Brock said the West European economy is losing strength faster than the U.S. economy and proposed Japan and the United States join hands in nipping European protectionist moves in the bud, they said. He also called for further cooperation between the two nations to strengthen the international trade setup at the June Versailles summit of seven leading Western democracies and the November GATT ministerial meeting, the officials said.

Sakurauchi told Brock that close Japan-U.S. contact and collaboration will help revitalize the sagging world economy, they added. The Japanese minister is scheduled to return to Tokyo Thursday afternoon (Japan time).

'TEAM SPIRIT' DENOUNCED AT CHAGANG MASS RALLY

SK220802 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 0800 GMT 20 Mar 82

[Speech by Pak Sung-il, chairman of the Chagang Province People's Committee, at 18 March mass rally in Chagang -- recorded]

[Text] Owing to the frenzied maneuvers to provoke a war by the U.S. imperialists and their stooge, the fascist Chon Tu-hwan clique, the situation in our country is being strained, and a war atmosphere is being created.

For a month now, since 13 February, the U.S. imperialists have been staging a large-scale war exercise called "Team Spirit 1982" with our republic as its target. What attracts our attention is that the U.S. imperialists and their stooges are genuinely preparing for a nuclear war in South Korea. Another fact that attracts our attention in this exercise is that it is an aggressive war exercise simulating an all-out attack on our republic.

Unable to suppress national indignation over the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique, who are unabashedly committing criminal maneuvers to provoke a war against us by staging the adventurous military exercise called "Team Spirit 1982", I, on behalf of those attending this rally, sternly denounce the war exercise, regarding it as a premeditated provocative act disturbing and threatening peace in the Far East and the world at large.

"Team Spirit 1982," a military exercise being staged by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets, is not a simple military exercise but a direct product of the policy of the U.S. imperialists who are trying to maintain South Korea as their colony and military base and to annex Korea. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught: The forcible occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialists and their policy of aggression are the source of all our national misery, the fundamental obstacle to our national reunification and a catalyst of war in Korea.

Judging from all indications, the current war exercise called "Team Spirit 1982" is not a repetition of the usual exercises which were staged since 1976 but a test war and preliminary nuclear war to complete preparations for a nuclear war in Korea and to invade our republic any time they please. None can say that this war exercise would not develop into an all-out nuclear war against our republic. Despite our efforts for peace and peaceful reunification of the fatherland and the voices calling for enactment of the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] and convocation of the 100-man joint conference among the Korean compatriots at home and abroad, the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military hooligans are leading the situation to the brink of war by staging a reckless war exercise racket. This is an intolerable criminal act incompatible with peace and the peaceful reunification of Korea.

Since they sneaked into South Korea, the U.S. imperialists, while pursuing a wicked goal of keeping South Korea as their colony and dominating Korea and the world by utilizing South Korea as a strategic post, have turned the southern region into a powderkeg and a military beachhead.

Talking about the rebuilding of a powerful America and superiority in military power, the current U.S. rulers are now following the road of military adventurism aimed at threatening other countries by military force and subjugating them. In the course of implementing this world strategy, they are using the Korean Peninsula as a strategic post.

Stressing the strategic importance of Korea whenever they open their mouths, the U.S. authorities babble that the Korean Peninsula is the source of the next world war and that the combat capability of U.S. troops stations in South Korea should be strengthened. This shows their vicious nature. Repealing the formal troop withdrawal plan to achieve their aggressive goals, the U.S. imperialists, with a plan to strengthen the offensive capability of the U.S. troops occupying South Korea and the puppet army, are following the road of enhancing the armed forces and modernizing their equipment.

The U.S. imperialists are even dragging the Japanese reactionaries into their aggressive war policy. The maneuvers to provoke a new war being waged in South Korea are entering a more dangerous stage due to the Chon Tu-hwan clique. Clamoring about nurturing national strength and all-out security, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is desperately trying to increase the military strength of the puppet army, build more military bases, accelerate modernization of the South Korean army and strengthen the war industry. It has mobilized all available human and material resources for war preparations.

All these criminal maneuvers waged by the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique in South Korea clearly prove that they do not want dialogue and peaceful reunification in Korea and only advance along the road of confrontation and war. The fact that the U.S. imperialists and their stooges are crying out about the threat of a southward invasion and equality of strength is a clumsy drama to cover up their criminal maneuvers, increasing the danger of northward invasion while preparing for war.

The U.S. imperialists should abandon their aggressive ambition and leave our country without delay, taking all the weapons of destruction, including nuclear weapons. Workers, peasants, students, intellectuals and other people from all walks of life in South Korea should courageously rise in a nationwide anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle to drive from South Korea the U.S. imperialist aggressors -- the mortal enemy causing misfortunes and calamities by instigating the murderous Chon Tu-hwan clique, after sneaking into South Korea wearing the mask of supporter -- and to crush the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique, the filthy national traitor, fascist hangman, warmonger and national splittist.

Today our people are faced with grave and glorious tasks to step up socialist construction while safeguarding the socialist fatherland and the revolutionary gains against the frantic new war provocation maneuvers by the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys. All workers in the province should register brilliant labor exploits on all fronts of socialist construction to greet the 70th birthday of the great leader as the greatest national festival and a grand political celebration. They should heighten their revolutionary vigilance so we can smash the enemies at one blow if the aggressors dare trigger a war against us.

ARTICLE ON STRUGGLE OF KWP HAILS PARTY CENTER

[NODONG SINMUN 23 March special article: "The KWP Is the Great Party Which Has Been Tempered and Tested in the Arduous Struggle" -- KCNA identifies this as an "article"]

[Text] Today, our party is reaching a new stage in its development. It is at this time that we observe the 23d anniversary of the publication of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's classic work "On the Tasks of the North Hamgyong Provincial Party Organizations."

In this classic work, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song put forth the question of consolidating the party's unity and cohesion, establishing its revolutionary discipline, and other fundamental questions for the construction of the party.

The correctness and vitality of the policies advanced in this work have been fully proved through practice. In this work and in others, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song illuminated various lines and policies for the construction of our party and its activities and ceaselessly strengthened and developed the party. The chuche-oriented ideas and theories for the construction of the party put forward by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song have been thoroughly implemented through the positive activities of our party center. As a result, the KWP has been strengthened and developed as a great party with invincible might and a bright future.

During the course of leading the revolution and construction to victory, the KWP has been tempered and tested and, for its immortal achievements, has won the absolute trust of the people. Today, in the party's achievements and its invincible might, our people see the bright future of the revolution and the nation and aremoving forward with a firm belief in the consummation of the chuche cause.

1. The invincible KWP has won great achievements in the struggle to carry out the chuche revolutionary cause.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: For its dedicated sacrifices to the fatherland and people and for its great achievements and contribution in the struggle for socialism and communism, our party has won the absolute support and deep trust of our people.

The party of the working class is the political headquarters organizing and leading the revolution and construction. The greatness and might of the party are displayed in the great achievements it wins in the revolutionary struggle and in construction work. Only a party which wins immortal achievements in socialist and communist construction and makes a great contribution to the times and the development of the revolution can possess lofty prestige and dignity and win the deep trust of the people. Today, as the great revolutionary party absolutely trusted by the entire Korean people and the international working class, the name of our party is shining everywhere. This is because of the great achievement which our party has won in the struggle to carry out the chuche cause.

The chuche revolutionary cause -- the most sacred revolutionary cause of our times -- was pioneered by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Our party, which took root in the flames of the arduous anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, has carried out the persistent struggle to implement this sacred cause since the first day of its founding. The entire course of this struggle has been embroidered with the glorious history of the great leader [yongdoja] boundlessly loyal to the cause of the revolution and the people.

Brilliantly inheriting the revolutionary cause and struggling to provide boundless freedom and happiness for the people are the fundamental principles of our party. With this invariable stand, our party has assumed full responsibility for the destiny of the Korean revolution and people and has taken the lead in traversing the path of the arduous struggle.

During the historic course of the positive struggle to attain the great goal for the consummation of the chuche cause, our party has indeed won numerous achievements and made a great contribution to the times and the advance of the revolution. The great achievement which our party has won for the times and history is, above all, that it has firmly defended, protected, developed and enriched the revolutionary ideology of the leader [suryong] and has provided a powerful ideological and theoretical weapon with which we can achieve the revolutionary cause.

The revolutionary ideology of the leader is the guiding principle which must be firmly maintained in the struggle to achieve the revolutionary cause. Therefore, the defense, inheritance and development of the revolutionary ideology of the leader are an important question on which the future of the revolution depends. The correct solution to this question can be the party's great contribution to the achievement of the revolutionary cause of the working class.

By positive ideological and theoretical activities, our party has firmly defended and protected, and ceaselessly deepened and developed the great revolutionary ideology of Comrade Kim Il-song. In the course of this, for the first time in history, our party formulated the revolutionary ideology of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and drastically enriched it.

The ideas and theories put forth by our party are a synthesis of the ideological and theoretical treasures with which the problems arising in party construction and in the revolution and construction can be solved without difficulties. The ideas, theories and policies of our party have proven their correctness and veracity through struggle and are displaying even greater vitality with each passing day. Thus, they are an invincible banner. Thanks to these ideological and theoretical treasures, our people have been able to more vigorously accelerate socialist and communist construction. By inheriting, developing and implementing the revolutionary ideology of the leader, our party has won great achievements in the revolution and construction. This is another great exploit which our party has won for the times and history.

The revolution is a continuation of the struggle and advance to implement the ideology of the leader. As the revolution and construction advance and reach a higher stage, the party must consider the revolutionary ideology of the leader as a firm guiding principle and implement it in all fields. This is an inevitable requirement for the consummation of the revolutionary cause.

In our country, the revolutionary ideology of the leader has been brilliantly implemented under the leadership of the party. As a result, a golden age is being ushered in the political, economic, cultural, military and all other fields. Ceaseless upsurges have been brought about in socialist economic construction, numerous great monuments have been built, and a revolutionary turn made in the field of literature and art. As a result, the might of the nation has been further strengthened and the position of our people drastically upgraded.

The changes which our party has brought about in the revolution and construction are unprecedented in the fields of human and social reform and nature remaking. By bringing about these changes of the century, a shining example of the party of the working class advancing socialist construction has been created. This is the greatness and historical significance of the revolutionary achievements of our party.

Another immortal achievement won by our party for the times and history is our people's boundless freedom and happiness, which have been provided through the party's dedication to the people's cause. The aim of the revolution and of socialist and communist construction carried out under the leadership of the party of the working class is to provide boundless freedom and happiness for the people.

All activities of our party today are unswerving in the struggle to devotedly serve the people and to glorify their freedom and happiness. Thanks to this active role of our party, all working people are exercising genuine political freedom and rights and are leading a happy life to their heart's content under the superior socialist system.

Entering the era of leadership by our party, our people have brilliantly realized all things that they have wanted and desired from generation to generation and have become a most dignified and happy people who are infinitely glorifying their noble political life. Our party's achievements in changing our country into a socialist paradise, a better place in which to live, and in leading the people to enjoy an affluent and civilized life are indeed great and brilliant.

The revolutionary tradition is a historic root of the revolution and a valuable asset for its final completion. By resolutely safeguarding and defending the revolutionary tradition and further developing and enriching it, our party has made it possible for the Korean revolution to firmly retain its life even under any circumstance and to victoriously advance along the single road of chuche forever. Our party has adopted as an important task of party work to inherit and develop the revolutionary tradition, has safeguarded its purity and has glorified it forever. This is the great merit of our party.

Our glorious party has made proud successes in safeguarding, developing and embodying the revolutionary ideology and tradition of the leader and in accelerating socialist construction, national reunification and the cause of anti-imperialism and independence. It is a valuable fruition of our party's leadership that today the revolutionary ideology of Comrade Kim Il-song has been further glorified as the great guiding ideology in the revolution and construction and the status and prestige of our fatherland and nation have reached the highest stage.

The achievements our party has attained under the slogan of imbuing society with the chuche idea are unprecedentedly great revolutionary ones in scope, richness and power influencing the times and the development of revolution. These achievements are a firm foundation and precious assets to more vigorously advance and consummate our revolution to the end. Our party has not easily attained successes in the course of leading revolution. These are great gains attained through a heroic struggle.

Inheriting the leader's revolutionary cause cannot but accompany fierce class struggle and serious social and economic reforms. During the last period, we could not help advancing the revolutionary cause, implementing difficult and grand tasks under a very complicated situation at home and abroad. Without the leadership of the ever-victorious and invincible KWP, we could not think of our revolution advancing and winning victory, overcoming all kinds of difficulties. As history progresses, the great successes and heroic exploits that our party has attained in leading the Korean revolution to victory, taking responsibility for the people's destiny, will more brilliantly shine.

2. The road on which our party has registered immortal achievements in revolution and construction is a glorious history in which our party has developed into an ever-victorious revolutionary party able to consummate the chuche cause to the end.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: During the complicated and arduous revolution, our party has been tempered and tested and has grown into a revolutionary party with invincible might.

Today, the situation of our party is very good and its future is ever brighter. Today, our party has become a powerful vanguard unit which can overcome any difficulty and brilliantly implement the revolutionary ideology of the leader. It has never been easy for our party to possess powerful combat capabilities and to have this bright future. It had to traverse a path of indescribably complicated and arduous struggle. In history, there has never been a party like our party which has grown along the path of such trials and difficulties.

The struggle to strengthen the party of the working class is, in essence, a struggle to permeate itself with the revolutionary ideology of the leader who founded the party. For our party, this work has been carried out during the course of elimination of foreign elements detrimental to the unity and cohesion of the party and while achieving the ideological purity and organizational unity of the party. The party of the working class is a combat unit organized by the unity of the people with the same ideas and objectives. Therefore, a united front does not have to be formed in the party. Disallowance of the factions seeking different "isms" and political aims is a principled requirement for construction of the revolutionary party.

Because of the peculiarity of its founding and development, since the first day of its inception our party has waged an arduous struggle to achieve the ideological unity of the party. How to wage the struggle is an important question on which the destiny of our party and the future of the nation depend.

In the early days following the founding of our party, not only tested communists but also many people from various parts of the nation, including those who had returned from foreign countries, entered the party. At the time, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song founded the party with those who had been tempered in the flames of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle as core members of the party and with others who had many different backgrounds. This was a correct policy which reflected the prevailing situation and the status of the Korean communist movement and was a wise step which could be taken only by the respected and beloved leader who exercised boundless magnanimity.

Our party made every effort to embrace those who had many different backgrounds and to educate and reform them. However, experience has shown that the factionalists, provincialists, flunkeyists and other opportunists do not readily do away with the chronic factionalist vicious habit. Despite the deep trust of the party, every time a period of difficult trial was encountered, they rose against and challenged the party and the revolution. Because of this, our party could not leave the struggle to get rid of the remnants of the historic factionalism and opportunism.

Our party's struggle aimed at achieving and strengthening unity and cohesion was a serious and significant one to defend the organizational and ideological purity of the party rank and file and to establish chuche in revolution and construction. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song competently and wisely led the struggle to strengthen the organizational and ideological unity of our party and shouldered the burden of the struggle during the days of the severe trials of the war and the postwar period.

Convinced that all schemes of the enemies can be crushed as long as there is a working class and a people boundlessly loyal to the party and the revolution, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song devoted himself to strengthening the party, the staff office of the revolution. How can we imagine the trouble the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song went through on the road of the difficult struggle to build a powerful party and defend the party and the revolution, crushing the schemes of the antiparty sectarians? Had there been no firm stand and principled struggle by the respected and beloved leader, our party and the revolution would not have been firmly defended and the party's political and ideological purity and steel-like unity would not have been realized.

In the fierce struggle waged against the enemies within and without, our party was refined and trained and its political and ideological unity realized. This brilliant achievement scored in the course of building and strengthening the party presented a firm prospect for developing to a new higher stage the struggle for permeating the party with a single revolutionary ideology.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song's design to make the KWP an invincible militant party permeated with a single ideology came to be realized more brilliantly in the rewarding days of remodeling society on the chuche idea.

These days, our party center, proceeding from the achievements scored in the course of building the party and from the requirements of the developing revolution, advanced the line of remodelling the party on the chuche idea. Remodeling the party on the chuche idea is a project aimed at making our party a perfect chuche-type party in terms of its composition and activities.

With the cause of remodeling the party on the chuche idea vigorously carried out under our party center's correct policy and energetic leadership, innovation took effect in building the party and carrying out party activities and the unity and militant power of the party were incomparably strengthened.

Today the KWP is a pure party permeated with a single ideology. Our party of today is not the one of yesterday which, in the early days following its inception, had to form a united front. Overcoming difficulties and trials, our party has been united enough to accomplish the revolution and has been strengthened into an invincible revolutionary party. This is the greatest victory achieved under the leadership of the party center.

The first among the features of our party as an invincible revolutionary party is that it thoroughly defends and embodies the leader's revolutionary ideology. The working class party is founded based on the leader's revolutionary ideology and is a revolutionary weapon for realizing the leader's ideology. No task is more important for the working class party than to maintain and realize the leader's revolutionary ideology and cause. Maintaining and realizing the leader's revolutionary ideology is a very serious and arduous struggle. Accordingly, the party should possess invincible militant power if it is to creditably discharge its duties.

The basic distinction of a great party leading the revolution and the nation to a bright future is that it, under any circumstances, thoroughly embodies the leader's ideology and leadership. The most important thing in strengthening the party into an invincible one which can brilliantly realize the leader's revolutionary ideology is that the party ranks are filled with core members who are thoroughly armed with the leader's revolutionary ideology.

The party is a political organization which unites party members. The combat strength of the party depends on the firmness of the ideological faith of party members. When the party ranks are filled with genuine revolutionaries who are firmly armed with the leader's revolutionary idea and who struggle devotedly to realize his idea, the party can possess the might with which to brilliantly realize the leader's idea.

The firmness of our party ranks has now reached a qualitatively high level. In the true sense of the word, our party is a mighty vanguard detachment in which those revolutionaries who accept only the chuche idea are closely united. All party members are living with the chuche idea as their firm faith and devoting their all to the struggle on the road indicated by the chuche idea.

Our party is mighty and ever-victorious because several million party members who absolutely believe in the great chuche idea and tenaciously struggle for its victory form the basis of the party and uphold the party leadership. As long as there is such a mighty revolutionary party, the final victory of the revolutionary cause pioneered in the Paektu forest is firmly guaranteed.

Another characteristic feature of our party is the firm establishment of the monolithic ideological system throughout the party. Establishing the monolithic ideological system in the party is a basic principle for building a working-class party. It is a key to enhancing the party's combat strength. The only idea which should exist in the party of the working class is the leader's. If there is any other idea within the party, the party can neither fulfill its mission as the revolutionary weapon to realize the leader's cause nor maintain its existence.

Establishing the monolithic ideological system in the party is not simple. It is a very difficult and complex struggle because it is accompanied by serious class struggle against all forms of reactionary and antirevolutionary ideas.

Under the leadership of the party center, the monolithic ideological system has been firmly established in the whole party and the work of achieving the unity of the party on this basis has been most successfully carried out. Prevailing in our party today is only one idea, the revolutionary idea of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song, and all party members have firmly armed themselves with the revolutionary idea of the leader and are united close in ideology and purpose on this basis.

Thus, our party has become a steel-like party with mighty combat strength, which never tolerates the slightest element of difference and which can crush in a timely manner various maneuvers of impure elements undermining and disturbing the unity and purity of the party. The whole party breathes and acts only in accordance with the idea and intention of the party center. This firm purity in ideology and purpose is the look of the KWP today.

With the firm establishment of the monolithic ideological system in the whole party and the firm guarantee of the unity of the party ranks in ideology, purpose and action, our party has become a revolutionary vanguard detachment capable of defending and protecting the leader's revolutionary idea under any circumstance and of advancing the revolutionary cause to the end along the road pioneered by the leader. This is a firm guarantee enabling our party to invariably adhere to its nature and to fulfill its lofty mission.

Another important feature of our party as a militant party with invincible might is that a steel-like revolutionary discipline has been thoroughly established within the party. Revolutionary discipline is the life of the party and the source of its combat strength. Only a party with a firm organizational system and the discipline to breath and act in accordance with the orders and directives of the party center is capable of beating enemies in any battle and brilliantly carrying out any difficult revolutionary task.

Our party has regarded the work of establishing revolutionary discipline within the party as the most important question in strengthening itself and in achieving the leadership of the revolution and construction. It has correctly led this work. The course of building, strengthening and developing our party has been one in which ironclad revolutionary discipline and order have been firmly established within the party.

Thanks to our party's correct policy and active struggle, democratic, centralized discipline has been thoroughly established within the party. All of our party organizations and members have always carried out all their work in accordance with party policies, have gone through water and fire in their struggles to implement party decisions and directives and have acted and struggled as a single organism under the orders and directives of the party center.

Never in history has there been a party resembling ours -- tightly organized and orderly and in which all work is carried out in a regulated and standardized manner. The revolutionary work system and discipline established today within our party stem from the endless loyalty to the party center and from a lofty sense of responsibility for the revolution. Therefore, the discipline within our party has an inexhaustible might and vitality. Our party is invincible because discipline has been thoroughly established within the party on a voluntary basis, thus enabling all party members to follow the party's leadership with lofty loyalty.

Indeed, the KWP has basically changed its appearance and taken on the traits of a chuche-type party. Under the unitary leadership of the party center, a powerful system has been established within the party to thoroughly implement the party's idea and intent. This is the historic culmination of the struggle to strengthen our party.

Because such a revolutionary system has been established within the party, our party has an inexhaustible militant might, potential, authority and honor. Nothing is more precious for our people than to have such a mighty party so that they can complete their revolutionary cause.

The construction of a most powerful party to take responsibility for the Korean revolution and to lead it to victory constitutes the brilliant fulfillment of the urgent desire of the Korean communists. To build, strengthen and develop today's party, the true Korean communists and revolutionaries have waged an arduous struggle over a long period. During this period, many communists have shed blood and sacrified their precious lives. With the strengthening and development of our party into an ever-victorious, invincible military party under the leadership of the party center, the Korean communists and people have fulfilled their long-cherished desire, and the bright future of the revolution has been firmly guaranteed. As a result, our people are now overflowing with endless confidence and with revolutionary optimism. They are much more tenaciously struggling toward a bright future.

By strengthening and developing our party into an invincible militant unit with a consistent policy and energetic leadership, the glorious party center has attained the greatest achievements for the fatherland and the people. Along with the victorious advance of the revolution, the might of our party will be strengthened a hundred, a thousand times.

3. Vigorously accelerating the revolutionary cause under the leadership of the party is the supreme honor and sacred duty of our people.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Under the leadership of our party, the chuche revolutionary cause has traversed the proud road of victory and glory in our country. This cause will be completed only under the leadership of our party. The chuche revolutionary cause, which was developed in the forest of Mt Paektu, has advanced far along the single road of victory under the leadership of the party. The struggle of our people has become more worthwhile, and a bright prospect has been unfolded on the future path of the people.

Today, all the struggles of our people have been victoriously organized and led by our party. The KWP has a sacred, historic duty to achieve the complete victory of socialism and the fatherland's reunification under the banner of the chuche idea and to accomplish the cause of independence against imperialism. This duty of our party is truly weighty and important. Lying on the path ahead of the struggle to accomplish this duty are many trials and difficulties. Vast work for creation and reform are required to accomplish this duty. However, the KWP can readily accomplish its important duty for the fatherland, the people and the revolution because our party is uniquely great and has invincible might.

Our party is an ever-victorious, ironclad party, hardened and tested in the storm of the grim struggle led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, and is skilled in the art of leadership. The unique greatness of our party rests with the fact that it has correctly illuminated the path ahead for the development of the revolution with profound wisdom and scientific insight.

Our party is the guiding star of the bright future of communism. The wisdom of our party brightly illuminating the advance course of building socialism and communism yields scientific insight not only into the near future of the revolution but also into its distant future. This wisdom gives profound insight into a thousand things from a single fact and into the true aspect of an event no matter how complicated the situation may be. Therefore, victory has always been guaranteed in implementing all our party's lines and strategic and tactical policies, thus bringing about the great reality of today.

Matchlessly skilled organizational capacity and a strong will are the unique leadership traits of our party.

Our party has profound resources for carrying out all its work to meet the changing situation and the requirements of the revolution; high-level organizational skill for organizing and mobilizing the party, the country and people for achieving a single goal while carrying out the overall work of the revolution and construction; and a strong fighting spirit and outstanding capability for surely completing work once it has decided to carry it out, no matter how difficult and vast it may be. Thus, there is no work which our party cannot accomplish, difficult though it may be.

Without the great leadership traits and lively activities of our party, we cannot think of all the victories attained in our revolution and construction. Indeed, our party is a great revolutionary party which has militant might and tested leadership which can complete the chuche cause.

The KWP — an ironclad party which has invincible might -- can lead to the single road of victory the struggle to achieve the fatherland's reunification, our people's supreme task; it can accomplish the cause of socialism and communism; and it can brilliantly achieve the cause of independence against imperialism. It is the greatest pride and supreme honor for our people to have the great party, which has led the revolutionary cause to a single ever-victorious road under the banner of the chuche idea. Our people, who have traversed a worthwhile road with the party, now regard our party center as the symbol of victory and glory and totally entrust the party with their destiny and future. It is the rock-firm conviction and will our people have developed in their daily life that, without the party, the victory of the revolution and the bright future of the people cannot exist. Always and deeply cherishing this noble revolutionary spirit, our people will follow our party forever.

For all party members and the people to reverently follow our party is a basic requirement for completing the revolution. A key to victory in the revolutionary struggle is for fighters to hold in high esteem the leader of the revolution. The glorious history of the development and advance of our revolution clearly proves this truth. There is no more important work for our people who pioneer the distant and grim road of revolution than to bear in mind this historic truth and to safeguard, protect and hold in high esteem the leader of the revolution.

Holding in high esteem our party -- the guide of the Korean revolution -- and displaying endless loyalty to the leadership of the party is a sacred struggle to brilliantly pioneer the future of the people and achieve the prosperity and happiness of posterity, generation after generation. All the people, including the time-honored revolutionaries and the new generation, should reverently follow the leadership of the party center with the unique attitude of the young communists in the past, who held in high esteem the leader of the revolution. Bearing deep in our minds a firm political belief that in any time or place we know only the party, we should share life and death with the party no matter what difficulties we may encounter. When all cadres, party members and all the people become a Kim Hyok of the 1980's, the organizational and ideological foundation of our party will be further solidified rock firm, and our revolution will continuously and steadily advance.

Building our fatherland into a more excellent paradise of the people by thoroughly implementing the party's plan and intent is an important task assigned our people today. Under the banner of the three revolutions -- ideological, technical and cultural -- our party, having unfolded a magnificent strategic plan for turning our fatherland into a more wealthy and prosperous country and for providing the people with a more affluent and civilized life, is now taking the lead in the struggle to implement this plan.

By holding aloft our party's plan and by displaying lofty revolutionary zeal and the spirit of endless devotion, all party members and workers should brilliantly implement the revolutionary line and struggle program set forth at the sixth party congress. Thus, they should enact an unprecedented upsurge in the revolution and construction and bring about a decisive change in the struggle to imbue society with the chuche idea.

Protecting and glorifying the immortal achievements attained by our party is worthwhile work for completing the revolution. The course of completing the revolutionary cause of the working class is the course of protecting and developing the achievements attained by the party and the leader. The experience of the communist movement shows that when we fail to protect the achievements attained by the party and the leader, we will suffer from twists and turns and difficulties in carrying out the revolution and will fail to firmly safeguard our revolutionary cause.

The achievements attained by our party are a firm basis for advancing and completing the revolutionary cause in accordance with the intent of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and achieving the endless prosperity of the fatherland. Deeply bearing in mind how these great achievements have been attained and how precious they are, all party members and workers should firmly safeguard and protect and endlessly glorify them generation after generation.

The glorious KWP is a revolutionary party which has created a proud, heroic epic and has attained immortal achievements for the people, and it is a great guiding force which is confidently pioneering the future of communism under the banner of the chuche idea. Because this great party is leading us, the path ahead of our revolution shines more brightly. The future of our fatherland and revolution will resplendently shine forever as an era of less prosperity -- a worthwhile era named for our party.

There is no force which can block the great advance of our people along a road indicated by the KWP, which has ever-victorious militant might and lofty leadership authority.

UNC DENIES NORTH'S ALLEGATION ON DMZ FIRING

SK250034 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 25 Mar 82 p 8

[Text] The Untied Nations Command (UNC) said yesterday that the North Korean allegation that ROK troops fired into the northern side of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) Tuesday had turned out groundless.

An investigation conducted by a joint team comprising American, Korean and other U.N. Command members, found that there was "no basis in fact" for the North Korean allegation, a UNC spokesman said. He said that North Korea had been informed of the findings of UNC investigation in a message through the joint duty officers in the Joint Security Area at Panmunjom yesterday.

The North KOREAN CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY, monitored in Tokyo, accused ROK troops of firing an automatic weapon at its border post in the DMZ.

The command also denied a second North Korean charge alleging that U.S. troops had taken a machine gun and an M-16 automatic rifle into the DMZ in violation of the 1953 armistice agreement.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS MEASURES TO COMBAT RECESSION

SK240207 Seoul YONHAP in English 0157 GMT 24 Mar 82

[Text] Seoul, March 24 (YONHAP) -- The Korean Government is considering lowering interest rates on bank loans and increasing the won-dollar exchange rate as part of an anti-recession campaign, the HANGUK ILBO, a major daily newspaper in Seoul, reported Wednesday.

Quoting high government sources, the daily said that either the interest rate on general bank loans will be reduced from the current 16 percent per annum to 13 percent, or the rate on export financing loans will be lowered from 12 percent to nine percent. The two options are under careful study and a final decision will be made by mid-April at the latest, the daily quoted the sources as saying.

The government is also planning to raise the exchange rate fluctuation ceiling from five to six percent for 1982 to stimulate sluggish exports. Originally, the government had planned to stabilize the 1982 exchange rate fluctuation at three percent.

The anti-recession measures now under consideration also include increasing the money supply and reducing the interest rate on savings deposits from 14 percent to 10 percent per annum. These measures are necessary because despite the comprehensive pump-priming package announced early this year, domestic business activity is still at a standstill, the sources were quoted as saying. If interest rates are reduced, it would be the fourth decrease since the beginning of the year.

[Text] Phnom Penh, 25 Mar (SPK) -- The Thai authorities must realize that the correct action is to hold a dialogue between the parties concerned without foreign interference, the paper KAMPUCHEA said in a commentary. The central organ of the KUFNCD published in Phnom Penh stressed:

The peace proposals of the recent conference in Vientiane of the foreign ministers of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos calling for an immediate dialogue between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries are warmly supported by world opinion. The Indochinese countries have always made overtures to the ASEAN countries, particularly to Thailand, in order to find a solution to problems of common interests.

It is regrettable that, far from responding to this desire to live as good neighbors, the Thai side has intensified its hostile acts against the revolution of the three Indochinese countries, worsening tension in Southeast Asia and particularly at the Kampuchean-Thai border. It is evident, the paper affirms, that if the Thai authorities ceased to support the fragments of the Pol Pot army and the other Khmer reactionaries, peace and stability would be completely ensured in the border zone.

It is well known that Thailand has given refuge to the Pol Pot hangmen and other Khmer reactionaries for the purpose of conducting subversive acts against the PRK. This means that Thailand continues to adopt a hostile position regarding the Kampuchean revolution and, although it pretends to be neutral, continues to interfere deeply in the internal affairs of Kampuchea.

The paper recalls the armed provocations made by Thailand against the PRK and goes on to say: For whom have the Thai authorities conducted these hostile activities against Kampuchea? There is only one answer: It is to serve the ambitions of U.S. imperialism and Chinese expansionism which are trying to destroy the revolution in Indochina and to return to Southeast Asia. The United States and China joined together to get their revenge on the Indochinese countries which checked their aggressive designs. They play the ASEAN card and protect efforts [as received] to be allowed to use Thai territory as a springboard in their new aggression against Indochina.

Thai military circles lied outrageously in accusing the Soviet Union of expanding the port of Ream (southwestern region of Kampuchea) for military purposes and Vietnam of building an air strip at Khao Din (Kampuchean-Thai border). On the contrary, it is true that is the Thai authorities are openly allowing the United States to use the U Taphao military base again and the Chinese (?to transport arms through Thai territory for) the Pol Pot gang and other Khmer reactionaries. This is a serious danger of which Thailand has not yet weighed all the consequences, for a large part of these Chinese weapons falls into the hands of the Thai Maoists.

After refuting the allegations on the so-called Soviet and Vietnamese threat to the region, the paper says:

The United States and China obstruct the dialogue between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries. These two big reactionaries do their utmost to pit these two groups of countries against each other in order to fish in troubled waters. The cause of the current crisis in Southeast Asia is due to China's policy of intervention and aggression against the Indochinese countries.

Large segments of opinion in the world, in the ASEAN countries and even in Thailand are well of aware of that. The Thai authorities must realize in time that the correct way is to hold a dialogue between the parties concerned in order to settle all problems without any outside interference, the paper KAMPUCHEA concludes.

DK CULTURE MINISTRY DENIES LOOTING ARTIFACTS

["Denial of the Ministry of Culture and Education of the Democratic Kampuchean Government concerning the insane accusation and slander of the Vietnamese aggressors' administration in Phnom Penh about the loss of antiques, art objects and precious objects which are part of Kampuchea's national heritage" -- dated 19 March]

[Text] Recently the Vietnamese aggressors' administration in Phnom Penh insanely accused Democratic Kampuchea of sending agents to steal antiques and art objects from various temples throughout Kampuchea. This is a most abject and groundless accusation made by the Hanoi Vietnamese who are the bandits, aggressors and exterminators of the Kampuchean race. The Vietnamese Le Duan clique cannot fool Kampuchean and international public opinion on this matter.

Kampuchean national opinion has learned and has seen how in the past more than 3 years Vietnam has plundered and destroyed the Angkor temples and Kampuchea's art objects, statues and precious artifacts. International public opinion has also heard about this. Since their invasion into Kampuchea the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors have plundered and destroyed almost all the antiques, art objects and precious artifacts which are part of Kampuchea's national heritage in Phnom Penh, at the Angkor temples, in various monasteries and various provincial towns.

In Phnom Penh, Vietnamese looted the antiques, statues and Buddha images made of gold and silver installed in the silver pagoda, the royal palace, the national museum and various monasteries. At the Angkor temples in Siem Reap Province, the Vietnamese aggressors have looted and destroyed everything in the past more than 3 years. They looted the statues and bas-reliefs of the Angkor Wat and the Buddha images made of bronze, brass and stone. They dismantled and looted the bas-reliefs and statues of celestial nymphs from various temples. They sent all these objects to Vietnam. In addition to looting and destroying the Angkor temples, the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors felled trees within and around the Angkor temples. In various monasteries in the provinces, the barbarous Vietnamese aggressors looted both the statues of Buddha and other objects of value. They burned the Tripitaka scriptures -- teachings of Buddha -- and dismantled statues of Buddha and the cornerstones in various monasteries in order to loot gold, silver and various other precious objects.

These are the criminal acts of the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors who have been looting and destroying the Angkor temples and antiques of the Kampuchean nation and people in an attempt to abolish the Kampuchean nation's civilization, culture and arts and, through this, exterminate the Kampuchean soul and race.

The Democratic Kampuchean Government has repeatedly condemned the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors and complained to the United Nations concerning the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors' looting and destruction of the Kampuchean nation's Angkor temples and antiques. Vietnam, which is accused of being the bandit, aggressor and exterminator of the Kampuchean race, however, is using the trick of thief crying stop thief and has blamed Democratic Kampuchea -- the owner of Kampuchean country and race -- which is sacrificing its flesh and blood in defending the Kampuchean nation, race, civilization, traditions and entity.

Before the Vietnamese invasion, despite its heavy tasks to restore national economy and to solve the living conditions for the people who were in need of everything during the post-war period, the Democratic Kampuchean Government had strived to repair and restore the Angkor temples and all other antiques, art objects and precious artifacts which are the treasures of the Kampuchean nation and race. Foreign guests who visited Kampuchea at that time, whether they were guests of the state, public officials, tourists or foreign journalists, had seen how the Angkor temples remained intact and how the national museum and the silver pagoda in Phnom Penh were full of antiques, art objects and all kinds of precious artifacts.

The Ministry of Culture and Education of the Democratic Kampuchean Government firmly rejects the abject accusation and slander made by the Vietnamese aggressors' administration in Phnom Penh in an attempt to blame Democratic Kampuchea -- the owner of the country -- for the crimes of looting and destroying the Kampuchean nation's cultural treasures which were committed by the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors. The Government of Democratic Kampuchea and the Kampuchean nation and people vehemently condemn these barbarous crimes of the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors and appeal to the world, particularly the United Nations, to take measures to timely check the crimes of the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors who are attempting to destroy the cultural treasures and civilization of the Kampuchean nation and people.

The best way to save the Kampuchean nation's culture as well as the Kampuchean nation and race is to force the Vietnamese Hanoi clique to withdraw all of its aggressor troops immediately and unconditionally from Kampuchea in accordance with the resolutions of the UN General Assembly in order to let the Kampuchean people manage and solve all of their problems by themselves and to give them time to repair and restore the Angkor temples and other antiques and to preserve the Kampuchean nation's cultural treasures -- a glorious and precious culture of our mankind.

SOUPHANOUVONG ADDRESSES VIENTIANE MONKS

BK250350 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 23 Mar 82

["Text" of speech by Souphanouvong, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, LPDR president and chairman of the Supreme People's Council and of the Lao Front for National Construction Central Committee, addressing Buddhist monks in a meeting held in Vientiane on 22 March by the front Central Committee together with the Unified Buddhists Organization, the Religion Department attached to the Education, Sports and Religious Affairs Ministry, and the front committees of Vientiane Province and municipality to welcome the forthcoming Third LPRP Congress -- recorded]

[Text] Your Holinesses Senior Buddhist Monks; Beloved Personages and Comrades:

Today I am very pleased to have an opportunity to meet, talk and exchange views with you, senior Buddhist monks and novices in Vientiane Province and municipality. As has been officially announced the Third LPRP Congress will be held soon to review the leadership work of our party in all respects. Your meeting to hear my address today is aimed at creating a good atmosphere to welcome the aforesaid significant congress of our party. I, therefore, would like to praise and hail wholeheartedly the spirit of revolutionary enthusiasm and activeness of our Lao Buddhist monks and novices in making a positive contribution to the congress. [applause]

First of all, let us recall the history of our nation. We see that our Lao monks and novices have made a suitable contribution to the maintenance of our nation's fine customs, good morals and culture. In particular, public morals, solidarity, spirit of generosity and patriotic spirit, which are regarded as precious traditions of our Lao nation, have resulted from the educational and training services provided by the monks under the party's leadership. Pursuing the aforesaid traditions, during the whole period of revolutionary struggle for national salvation against the foreign imperialist aggressors, our Lao monks and novices have suitably contributed to the cause of just struggle. Under the leadership of the Lao patriotic front, our Lao monks and novices organized movements of struggle to check and smash various schemes of the U.S. imperialist aggressors and the traitorous reactionaries who have made use of religion, thereby contributing to further increasing the prosperity of our Lao nation's history.

After the completion of the national democratic revolution in our country, along with the unification of the nation, our Lao monks and novices in both areas -- the old and the new liberated areas -- organized to form into one group, thus ended past disagreements about denominations or ideologies. Under the party's leadership, the Unified Buddhists Organization of Laos has unified our monks and novices throughout the country. It has served as a good model of solidarity for the entire Lao people. In addition to carrying out religious activities which have contributed to the domestic affairs of our nation, our Lao monks and novices have carried out activities to maintain world peace and contribute to struggle movements to oppose war and for arms reduction. The aforesaid positive activities of our monks and novices have effectively contributed to maintaining mankind's just interests and protecting life. This is why our party and state have highly appreciated the various achievements and actual deeds of our Lao monks and novices. I once again would like to praise and hail wholeheartedly the good deeds and sacrifices of our Lao monks and novices in the cause of the national democratic revolution and the revolutionary cause of socialist transformation and construction of our country as well as to the cause of maintaining world peace. [applause]

The struggle for peace is a strategic task which is closely related to the task of struggling for national independence, democracy and socialism. National independence is considered the first target of various nations.

So long as there continues to be imperialism, the struggle for national liberation, maintenance of national independence, the implementation of rights to self-mastery and self-determination, equality among various nations will still continue, and it will be still considered a priority question in the action programs of various revolutionary forces in the world.

At present, with their expansionist and hegemonist policy and their counterrevolutionary global strategy, the Beijing reactionaries have stepped up collusion with other reactionary powers in striving to sabotage and destroy the Lao revolution and the revolution of other socialist countries and various national liberation movements in the world. Therefore, national independence is considered a revolutionary slogan which conforms with the necessary, correct and just requirements of Lao people as well as of people in other countries in the world.

Democracy is another important requirement. It is closely related to national independence and socialism. In the countries which are struggling to do away with the dominating yoke of colonialism, democracy is considered a basic, substantial thing to be used in mobilizing the people to rise up and fight against the imperialists and their henchmen. Therefore, first and foremost, democracy here must be the democracy of the laboring people, the democracy which serves as a basic strength in the struggle for national independence.

In the current historical circumstances, socialism is the goal of the struggle of various progressive nations in the world. At no time has there been such a vigorous development of socialst revolution as there is today. All genuine movements for national independence and democracy are closely related to socialism. The path of advance to socialism is the path which guarantees the achievement of genuine national independence for various nations. It is a path which guarantees that various nations can free themselves from dominating yoke of neocolonialism. It is, therefore, the path which guarantees the basis of genuine democracy -- democracy for the entire people in a societ . This type of democracy goes far beyond the limits of the outmoded capitalist democracy.

At present, the scientific and technical revolution has created enormous opportunities for various socialist countries to march forward to new heights on the path of using nature to serve the interests of mankind with a view to successfully building socialism and a communist society. At the same time, it has created conditions for underdeveloped countries, on the basis of political independence and the collective spirit of the people, to make use of the achievements of the modern science and technology in doing away with poverty and backwardness and directly advancing to socialism, bypassing the period of capitalist development. Therefore, it can be said that our present strength of the era is an overall strength of the three revolutionary currents. It is a strength which is determining the basic essence, basic direction and basic specific points of the history of the development of human society. It is a strength which is emphasizing the bypassing of capitalism on the road to socialism.

In leading the revolution in our country to achieve success, it is necessary for us to combine the strength of our nation with the overall strength of the era and the offensive workstyle of various revolutionary forces in the world in conformity with conditions in our country. Along with this, the world movements of struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism in the present stage require that we establish and develop friendly relations and cooperation with various fraternal socialist countries and friends throughout the world in the interest of the cause of socialist transformation and construction in our country and in the support of the world movements of struggle for peace against imperialism, Beijing big-nation expansionism and hegemonism, racism, Zionism, apartheid, and others.

In the struggle to solve the problem of who will win over whom between socialism and capitalism in the world, the problem of restoration and consolidation of the solidarity within the socialist system and within the international communist worker movements on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism is a problem of the utmost significance. Our working class's noble task is to endeavor to strengthen such solidarity and friendship with a view to continually advancing the wheel of history.

The Lao revolution is part of the world revolution. The complete victory won by our Lao people in the national salvation struggle against the imperialist aggressors is closely related to the sincere support and great assistance of various fraternal and friendly countries throughout the world, in particular Vietnam, Kampuchea, the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries.

In the new stage of revolution we must also seek favorable international conditions in order to heal the wounds of war; restore and develop the economy; develop culture, science and technology; consolidate the national defense potential and build the material and technical foundations of socialism in our country in an appropirate manner on the path of advancement. Simultaneously, we must continue to join with various fraternal socialist countries and various nations in struggling for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism against imperialism -- with the U.S. imperialism as the chieftain -- and against Beijing big-nation expansionism and hegemonism which is the most dangerous enemy of our Lao nation as well as of the people of Southeast Asia and the world.

While our country's peace and happiness are being threatened, our people's struggle against internal and external enemies must continue in a fierce, complex and protracted manner. For this reason the alliance between the working class and our party and the entire laboring people, including Buddhist monks and novices and other Buddhist followers, must be based on immediate political objectives.

In mobilizing the people to join in and contribute to the revolutionary struggle, our party and state have set forth details and concrete requirements, depending on the political task in each period of the revolution. For example, in the period of the national democratic revolution, party's common slogan was: Unite all revolutionary forces to fight and overthrow the imperialists and feudalists so as to make the country independent and the people the true masters of their country. In the current period of socialist transformation and construction, the common slogan has been changed to: Unite the people of all tribes and strata and Buddhist monks throughout the country, and strive for success in defending and building socialism in our country.

The fact that the immediate objectives and political tasks for each period of the revolution serve as a basis for the alliance is a phenomenon clearly indicating our party's mass line and style of correctly and clear-sightedly leading and guiding the revolution.

The majority of our Buddhist monks and novices and Buddhist followers are members of the laboring peasant class. Since these Buddhist monks and Buddhist followers were victims of the oppressive and exploitative ruling clique's poisonous policy and lived in a country with backward agriculture, they were affected by a bad world outlook in many respects. However, thanks to their true nature as laboring people and their practical outlook they have become aware and have clearly seen the legitimate rights and interests of the laboring people. Thanks to the party's guidance and leadership they have gradually understood the causes of the laboring people's hardships and poverty and the true nature of the feudalists and reactionaries wearing the preacher's robe.

Following their awakening in the sense of nation and class, our party has assisted these Buddhist monks and novices in gradually accepting the principles of the new system. What is now seen today is that the laboring people, Buddhist followers and monks and novices have joined hands to carry out the cause of socialist transformation and construction and contribute their intelligence to the tasks which are beneficial to the country. All this testifies to the fact the party's policy of uniting the Lao people of all tribes and its religious policy are correct and appropriate and are being acclaimed by the masses.

To promote the unity between national interests and those of the laboring people, and to appropriately correct the erroneous views regarding religious beliefs among our people, we must attentively and firmly grasp the following three tasks:

1. Strive to implement the policy of respecting the people's rights and freedom of belief;

2. Pay attention to gradually improving the people's living conditions;

3. Pay special attention to the task of continuously enhancing the laboring people's political, ideological and culture level.

The right and freedom of belief means that our people are free and have the right to believe or not to believe in religion. Our party's policy of respecting the right and freedom of belief is based on circumstances and concrete objective conditions, its assessment of the interests of the consolidation of the unity among the entire Lao people, and on the true democratic nature of our new system.

The policy of respecting the right and freedom of belief is one of our party's unswerving policies, and is clearly laid down in the party's political program and the LFNC's program of action. For example, these programs are: to strive to explain to the Lao people of all tribes to correctly understand and implement the right and freedom of belief; to safeguard the freedom to conduct religious practices of clergymen and religious believers; to protect the pagodas and temples used by religious believers and our country's cultural heritages; and to resolutely oppose the various schemes and activities of the imperialists and reactionaries in dividing, deceiving and sabotaging the great strength of the people of all tribes and in making use of religion, temples and pagodas to violate the country's interests and sabotage our new, socialist system.

Therefore, the Lao Buddhist monks and novices should pay attention to firmly grasping the main spirit of this policy and regard it as the compass for religious activities. They should positively consolidate and strengthen the great unity among the entire people for the cause of socialist transformation and construction in our country. For example, let them strive to increase production, practice thrift, try their best to achieve self-sufficiency and self-reliance, contribute to the all-people national defense and the all-people maintenance of public security and effectively fulfill our international obligations.

Our party and state have always paid attention to consolidating and strengthening the unity among the people of all tribes, developing the movement to increase production and labor movements, building a new life, ceaslessly improving the material and cultural life of the people of all tribes and resolutely smashing all propaganda campaigns launched by international reactionaries and imperialists to infiltrate into our religious and other affairs with the purpose of dividing, deceiving and bribing the people of various tribes to oppose the revolution. Our people of all tribes have a commendable tradition of unity. Since the emergence of our party, this tradition has been vigorously promoted and developed with each passing day in the national united front. The Lao patriotic front fulfilled its glorious task in the past in mobilizing and rallying the people of various tribes and Buddhist monks and novices for the victorious cause of national liberation.

The solid unity maintained by the peoples of various tribes under the national united front was one of the factors deciding the victory of the revolution in our country. The more progress the revolution made, the more consolidated the unity within the national united front.

Following the success of our national democratic revolution and our entry into the revolution of socialist transformation and construction, there have been important changes in the characteristics and tasks and in some sectors of activities of the national united front. Its characteristic is of a patriotic and socialism-loving front, the final objective of which is to build a peaceful, independent, democratic, unified and socialist Laos. This has become a common ideal of all members of the front, including our Buddhist monks and novices. The duty of the front and its members is to consolidate and strengthen the great unity among the entire people, unity among various tribes and unity among Buddhist monks and novices, to strengthen political and spiritual unity in society, to promote the people's spirit of revolutionary enthusiasm and collective mastery, to mobilize the entire people to emulate the three revolutions and to triumphantly build socialism in our country.

In the past as well as at present, we have united and rallied the entire people to follow the resolution and have effectively implemented the right and freedom of belief and equality among the people of various tribes.

To profoundly grasp the various lines and policies of our party and state, particularly those on religion and belief, our Buddhist monks and novices should jointly advance to continue correctly implementing such policies. They should positively promote the effectiveness of the line and policies of the party and state in the economic, political, ideological, cultural, public health, national defense and public security spheres. Let us advance the revolutionary movements in our country to a new height.

With this spirit of confidence, I firmly believe that our Buddhist monks and novices, for example, the Lao Unified Buddhist Organization, will jointly strive to score outstanding achievements and try their best to make effective contributions to the movement of welcoming the third congress of the glorious LPRP -- a very important political event in the history of Laos.

In conclusion, I would like to express deep thanks to the Buddhist monks and novices in Vientiane Province and city for attending this important rally to listen to my speech. My special thanks to the members of the standing committee and of the Central Committee, provincial committee and district committees of the LFNC and to the officials and comrades attending this significant rally. I hope that the Buddhist monks and novices, officials and comrades will be happy, confident and vigorous in all tasks. I wish you good health and success.

NHAN DAN REPORTAGE ON 'RIMPAC 82' EXERCISE

Commentary Blasts Exercise

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 25 -- "While distorting and opposing the good will for peace of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, the United States and some of its allies are conducting a military exercise known as "Rimpac 82" around the Hawaiian islands, in the Pacific Ocean, causing tension in this part of the world," remarks NHAN DAN in a commentary today.

It continues: "Washington and its allies are mobilizing a large number of manpower and war materials in muscle-flexing exercise and colluding with the Chinese expansionists to oppose the Soviet Union, Vietnam and Kampuchea, and threaten peace and stability in Asia and the Pacific... Those officials responsible for Washington's policy towards the Asian-Pacific region have frequently come to this region to expand not only political and economic but also military cooperation. The United States has pressed Japan to increase its military expenditure, thus transferring a remarkable part of the military burden onto that country.

"Of late, Australia has allowed U.S. B-52 planes to practise bombing there and to use Darwin airbase. In South Korea, the United States has recently replaced its F4 with F16 planes. In this year, the U.S. will continue to bring in other modern weapons to reinforce its military forces in this region. All these moves are aimed at maintaining and increasing the (?military) strength of the U.S. and its allies in Asia and the Pacific."

"The peoples of Asia and the Pacific, together with all progressive people in the world, energetically condemn the increased military acts of the U.S. imperialists against peace and security in this part of the world," NHAN DAN says in conclusion.

U.S. Moves Called 'Dangerous'

BK250510 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2300 GMT 24 Mar 82

[Text] NHAN DAN today [25 March] carries on page 4 an article by (Hoang Minh) dealing with dangerous U.S. activities in the Pacific. The article says:

The United States and its ANZUS allies -- including Australia, New Zealand, Japan and Canada -- on 23 March began a 6-week joint naval exercise called "Rimpac 82" in the Hawaii area in the central Pacific. Participating in this exercise are 29,000 troops including 6,000 U.S. Marines, 58 warships and 120 aircraft. This is the eighth "Rimpac" naval excercise since 1971 and the first joint exercise in which the allied naval forces of these countries have taken part.

The Japanese news agency KYODO notes that such military excercises have become increasingly larger in scale and increasingly offensive in nature. On 26 March 21,000 U.S. troops, together with 15,000 South Korean soldiers, 200 warships and aircraft will also begin a military excersie call "1982 Lightning and Daring Strike" off the southern Korea coast.

The United States and the countries participating in these military exercises are strengthening their military alliance and creating tension in this part of thw world while constantly opposing the peace policy of the Soviet Union and other countries in the socialist community.

After pointing to the false allegations made by the United States in an attempt to distort the peace initiatives of the Soviet Union and other socialist countries and to create tension in Southeast Asia and the Pacific, the article concludes: Together with progressive mankind the people in Asia and the Pacific sternly condemn the U.S. imperialists for intensifying their dangerous military maneuvers against peace and the security of the various nations in the region and the rest of the world.

PARTY URGED TO IMPROVE REVOLUTIONARY QUALITY

[Text] Dear comrades and friends, improving revolutionary quality is a life-long routine task of party cadres and members as is pointed out in the party Central Committee's draft political report to the fifth party congress: The quality and capability of party members must now be reflected in that they must strive persistently every day and every hour to carry out practical activities in order to contribute toward developing production, stabilizing and improving the people's life and repelling negative phenomena in society. Party members must not only uphold the fighting spirit to defend the fatherland on the frontline but also remain highly vigilant against the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists' acts of political, economic and ideological sabotage. They must always firmly uphold the sense of organization and discipline, safeguard unity and integrity within the party, struggle against erroneous viewpoints, protect the truth and defend the party. Despite difficulties, they must maintain a healthy lifestyle and avoid the temptations of a luxurious and decadent lifestyle.

More than ever before, party members, especially leading cadres of the various echelons and sectors, must listen attentively to the opinions of the masses and gather their creative experiences, and must resolutely struggle against the ills of bureaucratism and conservatism.

At present the quality and capability of party members are reflected by their zeal in study, their thirst for knowledge and their effort to enrich their knowledge of socialism and the party line and policies and their work proficiency.

To enable comrades and friends to have a more thorough understanding of this issue, we would like to present here an article entitled "Foster and Improve Party Cadres and Members' Revolutionary Quality" from the March 1982 issue of TAP CHI QUAN DOI NHAN DAN. Now listen, please:

The difference that distinguishes party members and cadres from the ordinary masses lies first of all in the former's resolute and all-out struggle for the ideals of socialism and communism. Only communist ideals can breed communist ethics. This is exactly as taught by Lenin. The basis of communist ethics is the struggle to consolidate communism and consummate the building of communism. Therefore, it can be said that the attitude toward the ideals of socialism and communism is the most fundamental ingredient for the quality of revolutionary ethics. When their ideals become the most earnest desire and the reason of life, party members and cadres will be filled with confidence and ready to sacrifice themselves for the achievement of their ideals.

Conversely, if ideals wane, revolutionary ardor will naturally abate, signaling the beginning of a decline in quality. As a result, the most important fundamental feature of one's revolutionary quality consists of his unceasing and selfless struggle to successfully attain national independence, socialism and communism in our country, and his active contributions to the world revolutionary cause. Just as gold is tested by fire and strength by ordeals, a person's loyalty to the revolution can only be proven through difficulties and trials. Upon his admission to the party, a member pledges to devote all his life to the achievement of the ideals of socialism; and many comrades have completed their journey on the road toward national liberation. Today the nationwide socialist revolution has only just begun. Difficulties and privations still abound and even greater sacrifices of bones and blood are needed. It is at this very moment that the ideals of socialism must become a strong driving force to boost the revolutionary ardor of every one of us.

Today socialism and the fatherland are one and socialist construction is inseparable from national defense. Fully realizing this cause and stalwartly struggling to achieve it is meant to carry out the ideals of socialism. There now exist stumbling blocks and difficulties on the road toward socialism. Forces hostile to socialism are using these difficulties to their advantage in an attempt to discredit socialism and undermine our confidence and ideals. Therefore, now more than ever before, party cadres and members must rekindle in their hearts as well as among the masses the fine and lofty ideals of socialism. Over the past years our people have overcome great difficulties to build a very bright future for the fatherland. Yet difficulties and challenges still remain and only through hard struggle will we be able to conquer them. It is, however, clear that these difficulties and challenges are being taken care of step by step and that no obstacles can hinder our people's progress in their undertaking to build socialism and defend the socialist fatherland.

For everyone of our party cadres and members, struggling for the ideals of socialism specifically means to strive for the realization of our party's revolutionary line. The ideals of socialism and communism are not a farfetched and intangible dream; they are, instead, being systematically turned into reality at every stage of the developmental process of the revolution. The general and specific lines of the party for each period in the political, economic, national defense, cultural and social fields are the guidelines for action to achieve these ideals in every respect systematically in accordance with the historical realities of the revolution in our country.

Our party -- a genuine Marxist-Leninist party -- has creatively applied Marxism-Leninism to the specific conditions of Vietnam. It has always firmly maintained and upheld the banner of national independence and socialism in establishing the line for the development of our country's revolution. Thanks to the party's correct and creative revolutionary line, our country has, within only a few decades, been transformed from an enslaved and oppressed country into an independent and free socialist country striving to have an economy with modern industry and agriculture, strong national defense, progressive culture and science and a civilized and happy life. It is toward this goal that the line for the socialist revolution was set by the fourth party congress and will be developed and further specified by the forthcoming fifth party congress.

Therefore, holding fast to and acquiring a thorough understanding of the party's revolutionary line, organizing its successful implementation, struggling in its defense and contributing to its improvement precisely demonstrate the revolutionary quality of party cadres and members.

The party's line in the new stage of the revolution has provided a correct solution to the basic problems of the socialist revolution and even of the socialist transformation and socialist construction as well as the cause of socialist national defense in our country. These problems include those of a general character and those concerning each specific aspect in all fields.

For party cadres and members in the army, thoroughly understanding the line means to understand thoroughly both the general line and the specific lines, neglecting neither. Only by acquiring a thorough understanding of the general line of the socialist revolution in our country can party cadres and members comprehend all the struggles of our nation in the present stage, clearly see that what they are fighting for are national independence, socialism and fulfillment of national duty and international obligations, and have a basis for a profound perception of the party's military line in the cause of national defense.

On the basis of a thorough understanding of the party's general line in the socialist revolution, party cadres and members in our people's armed forces must be conversant with and firmly grasp the military line and all positions, policies and measures adopted by the party and the state in the field of national defense and in war. Party members and cadres must always clearly see their responsibility for the whole revolutionary cause, taking pride in the success of the revolution, and actively helping the revolution over come its difficulties. They must not remain indifferent and only see the shortcomings of other sectors and the responsibilities of their superiors.

For party cadres and members in the people's armed forces, the key problems to be grasped firmly first of all at present are the following:

They must clearly recognize that the dangerous and direct enemy of the revolution in our country is Beijing expansionism and hegemonism in collusion with U.S. imperialism.

They must distinctly see that the object of our army's and people's strategic combat efforts is the aggressive Chinese forces.

They must clearly perceive our enemy's character and schemes, correctly assess the balance of forces between us and them, and hold fast to our party's military line, military science and military art in the people's war for the defense of the socialist fatherland.

If we adopt an ambiguous attitude toward the enemy, slacken our vigilance, and become conservative, sluggish, and insensitive to new problems concerning the military line, military science and military art, then how can we improve our revolutionary standards, capabilities and quality so as to fulfill the current military tasks?

Thoroughly understanding a line is not only a problem of perception. The main point is that such an understanding must show in our actions. Our understanding of a line must be measured by the results of our efforts to implement it.

The more deeply party cadres and members engage in the practice of implementing a line and fulfilling a task, the more firm basis they will have for further strengthening their correct understanding and viewpoint. This will help party cadres and members in getting to know themselves better, promoting the right, overcoming the wrong, and further deepening their understanding of the party's line, thereby ensuring the successful fulfillment of any task.

Having a correct line is a decisively significant question in the development of the revolution. However, it is not everything. In practice, the concretization of a line and the organization of its implementation will, in their turn, influence the line itself. Party cadres and members should not treat their shortcomings and mistakes lightly in concretizing the party's line and in organizing its implementation. Nor can they adopt a skeptical and wavering attitude toward the line because of these shortcomings and mistakes. Moreover, party cadres, party members and the large masses and nobody else are the forces who directly translate the line into real victory.

The only revolutionary and scientific attitude of party cadres and members is that, on the one hand, they must have a thorough understanding of the line so as to implement it scrupulously. On the other hand, through the test of reality, they should promptly detect and report to the party any shortcomings in the line which should be rectified, and new elements which should be promoted. This is aimed at contributing to ceaselessly improving the line.

Failing to understand the line thoroughly, to translate it resolutely into reality, and to bring into play one's subjective efforts and investigative and creative ability in order to help elaborate and perfect the line; or showing concern, skepticism or dicouragement and shrinking in the face of difficulty and adversity — all this is inconsistent with the political quality of a communist.

Resolutely struggling to defend the party's line is an important aspect of the revolutionary quality of party cadres and members. First of all, it must be seen that resolutely struggling to transform the line into real victory is the best way to prove the correctness of the line and also the best way to defend it against the vacillation and skepticism of those who lack firmness, and to crush all cruel enemy attacks against the party's line. At the same time, party cadres and members must also adopt a clear-cut attitude toward ambiguous and deviant views of the party's line.

The lofty revolutionary quality of party cadres and members cannot tolerate a rightist, evasive attitude toward hostile and wrongful allegations critical of the party's revolutionary line.

SUZUKI, SAKURAUCHI VIEW BREZHNEV TASHKENT SPEECH

[Text] Tokyo, March 26 (KYODO) --Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Friday called on Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev to back words with actions in improving relations between the two countries. Speaking before the House of Councillors Budget Committee, the prime minister said he welcomed parts of Brezhnev's speech Wednesday calling for measures to build trust between Japan and the Soviet Union.

But Suzuki called on Moscow to withdraw its SS-20 missiles deployed in the Far East and return Japan's four northern islands occupied by the Soviet Union at the end of World War II. "We can't take words at face value," Suzuki said. "If (the Soviet Union) strengthens mutual trust through actions, then we will go along with that and cooperate."

Brezhnev said in a speech in the Soviet Central Asian city of Tashkent that "external forces" were responsible for poor relations between Moscow and Tokyo, and accused Japan's leaders of believing the "hackneyed myth" of a Soviet threat to the country.

However, Suzuki termed the continued occupation of Japan's northern islands "a thorn in the throat of Japan-Soviet relations," and said there could be no real friendship between the two nations until the islands were returned. He said the removal of Soviet military installations from the islands would be a "minimum measure" that could be taken immediately to improve mutual trust.

Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi also spoke to the committee on Soviet overtures to China, saying that Brezhnev's offer to resume Chinese-Soviet border talks did not represent a restoration of relations between the two communist giants. "We must watch developments a little longer," Sakurauchi said.

[Text] Tokyo, March 26 (KYODO) -- U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger asked Japan Friday to step up its defense buildup even further. He arrived in Japan earlier in the day on the first leg of his three-nation Asian tour.

During a brief courtesy call on Defense Agency Chief Soichiro Ito, Weinberger said he is pleased with a 7.75 percent defense spending increase the Japanese Government has budgeted for fiscal 1982 despite its economic austerity. But he added that the United States wants Japan to continue efforts to modernize its defense capability.

The 7.75 percent increase compares with a 6.2 percent overall budgetary hike and a 2.8 percent boost in social welfare spending for the next fiscal year beginning Thursday, April 1.

Weinberger came to Japan after attending a NATO defense ministers' conference at Colorado Springs, Colo., Tuesday and Wednesday. Weinberger said the two-day meeting agreed on the need for greater defense efforts by the Western alliance to meet the global military buildup by the Soviet Union.

Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki earlier said he is concerned about the growing Soviet military presence in the Far East but he ruled out a direct Soviet threat to Japan at present.

Weinberger and Ito will meet again Saturday for their first official consultations on defense affairs. The defense secretary will also meet with Suzuki and Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi before leaving for Seoul Sunday. He will later fly to the Philippines, the last stop of his 10-day Asian tour.

SAKURAUCHI BRIEFS SUZUKI ON VISIT TO U.S.

[Text] Tokyo, March 25 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Thursday he will call a Cabinet meeting next Tuesday to discuss measures aimed at easing the current trade friction between Japan and the United States and European Community (EC) countries. The remark came in a meeting with foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi, at a Tokyo hotel upon Sakurauchi's return from a five-day trip to the United States.

Sakurauchi briefed Suzuki on his talks with U.S. President Ronald Reagan, Secretary of State Alexander Haig and other U.S. Government leaders. Sakurauchi told Suzuki the U.S. President wants Japan to open its market wider before leaders of seven major Western democracies meet in Paris in June for their annual summit conference. If Japan fails to do so, Sakurauchi quoted Haig as warning, EC countries are likely to join the United States in expanding the trade dispute involving this country.

Suzuki plans to meet with Reagan privately in Paris. Japan registered a dollar 13.4 billion trade surplus with the United States last year.

In his meeting with Sakurauchi, Suzuki described the current trade situation as "difficult." He said he will also talk with former International Trade and Industry Minister Masumi Esaki, now visiting EC countries, when he returns to Japan Saturday.

"Let us listen to what the Esaki delegation has found out and then discuss what we can do" at a meeting scheduled for Tuesday, Suzuki added. Speaking to reporters later, Sakurauchi said the U.S. leaders think the Paris summit will produce more positive results if Japan has further opened its market by June.

SAKURAUCHI: JAPAN COULD BE U.S.-PRC GO-BETWEEN

[Text] Tokyo, March 26 (KYODO) -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi Friday told a Diet committee he had told U.S. President Ronald Reagan at their meeting in Washington that Japan would like to play a role in promoting better relations between the United States and China. Sakurauchi made this remark in reply to a Socialist's question at the House of Councillors Budget Committee meeting concerning strained relations between Washington and Beijing over American arms sales to Taiwan.

He indicated that Japanese Government would exert its efforts toward better U.S.-Chinese ties when the Japanese and Chinese prime ministers exchange visits later this year. Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki will visit Beijing this fall, while his Chinese counterpart Zhao Ziyang will visit Tokyo in June.

Sakurauchi quoted Reagan as saying that he was concerned about the cooled relations with Beijing. Reagan said the U.S. Government was restricted in its actions due to the so-called Taiwan Relations Act.

SUZUKI, KOSAKA DISCUSS AVIATION TALKS WITH U.S.

OW260347 Tokyo KYODO in English 0338 GMT 26 Mar 82

[Text] Tokyo, March 26 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Transport Minister Tokusaburo Kosaka agreed Friday that some "cooling off" period will be needed before Japan and the United States can resume civil aviation talks. The crucial talks on revision of the bilateral air transport agreement ruptured in San Francisco last week.

Kosaka told Suzuki that the two governments differed fundamentally over "beyond rights" to allow Japan Air Lines to serve points beyond the U.S., officials said.

The four projects cover construction and expansion of seaports and construction of railways, the ministry said. Japan offered the yen credits to China in a second round of working-level talks on bilateral economic assistance last December.

PROTEST LODGED ON 25 MAR SR-71 'INFILTRATION'

SK251400 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 1308 GMT 25 Mar 82

[Text] The U.S. imperialist aggressors have committed espionage acts by infiltrating an SR-71 reconnaissance plane into the eastern and western airspace of our country. The U.S. imperialist aggressors, who have turned the land of South Korea into a horrible battleground and are aggravating the situation, at 1119 on 25 March committed an espionage act against the northern half of the republic by infiltrating the SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane deep into the airspace above the Kangnyong Peninsula, the southwestern part of South Hwanghae Province of our country. Later, at 1302 the U.S. imperialist aggressors infiltrated the spy plane into the airspace above the waters inside the military boundary line east of Kosong, Kangwon Province of our country.

The espionage acts of the U.S. imperialist aggressors are becoming more blatant at a time when they are escalating the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercise commotions aimed at an all-out attack against the northern half of the republic to an extremely adventurous stage. This is an atrocious challenge to the Korean people and the world's peace-loving people who are making all sincere efforts to ameliorate the tense situation in Korea and achieve peace. At the same time, this is a blatant violation of the armistice agreement.

All the facts clearly show that the U.S. imperialist bellicose elements are, indeed, the most vicious enemy of peace who are extremely aggravating the situation in Korea and increasing the danger of war. Preservation of peace in our country is due entirely to the painstaking efforts of our people. It is an anachronistic dream for the U.S. imperialist bellicose elements to think they can realize their aggressive ambition by threatening someone by using force.

Despite our repeated warnings, if the U.S. imperialists persist in the adventurous war maneuvers and continue military provocations, nothing but shameful defeat will await them. The U.S. imperialist bellicose elements must immediately stop all espionage and hostile acts against the Korean people.

NONDONG SINMUN WARNS OF EXERCISES CAUSING CLASH

[Text] Pyongyang, March 26 (KCNA) -- Owing to the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises which have entered the stage of full-scale "combined operation" from March 24, the tension has been heightened and a dangerous situation which may lead to the outbreak of war at any moment has been created in the Korean Peninsula, says NODONG SINMUN today. A signed commentary titled "Racket Fraught With Danger of War" says:

Along with the entering of such reckless play with fire as the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises into the full-scale stage, rifles are fired at our side in the area along the military demarcation line and automatic rifles brought into the Joint Security Area of Panmunjom. It cannot but be said that this is a very ominous military movement. This shows that the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan group are seeking a new war in Korea and their manoeuvres have become all the more serious. Their reckless military gamble gamble has heightened the tension and created a dangerous situation which may lead to the outbreak of war at any moment in the Korean Peninsula.

Huge armed forces are standing in confrontation with the military demarcation line in between the Korean Peninsula. The U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique have brought vast armed forces of aggression into this area and started war exercises reminiscent of actual fighting, indiscriminately firing rifles in this area and threatening the other side. This is a rash and dangerous act.

Such act may cause an armed clash at any moment and once it breaks out, it will swiftly expand into war.

Today when voices are rising at home and abroad, demanding that the tension be removed and the armistice agreement be converted into a durable peace in Korea and the question of her reunification be solved peacefully, the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan group started the large-scale war exercises and are perpetrating provocations along the military demarcation line, aggravating the situation. This is a vicious challenge to and provocation against our people and the world people who call for peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification. It is also a move to intimidate the South Korean people and maintain the colonial military fascist rule.

Our people are watching with heightened vigilance the reckless new war provocation manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys. The U.S. imperialist aggressors and the Chon Tu-hwan group must deport themselves with discretion and discontinue the rash play with fire at once.

U.S. FORCES' DEPLOYMENTS FOR 'TEAM SPIRIT' NOTED

[Text] Pyongyang, March 24 (KCNA) -- Upwards of 5,000 troops including over 3,000 men of the landing infantry and 1,300 men of the Marine Flying Corps belonging to the U.S. 9th Marine Landing Brigade based in Okinawa, Japan, are being shipped to South Korea from March 21 together with various equipment including amphibious vehicles, "M-60" tanks and TOW missiles, while overseas-based U.S. imperialist aggression forces are being thrown in succession into the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises now under way in South Korea, according to a report. The rest of a total 8,000 men expected to participate in the landing exercise of "Team Spirit 1982" will shortly leave Okinawa, a report says.

A South Korean radio reported that the landing exercise will be participated in by 165 planes including those which left Okinawa on March 18 and a military strength of 21,200 men. The information officer of the landing force command who left Okinawa together with a large force on March 21 blared tht it had undergone month-long exercises to take part in the current military rehearsals and that it "can rush to anywhere and anytime if necessary," not bothering to conceal its aggressive color. A "government"-controlled radio of the South Korean puppets said that "a landing operation -- the largest ever in the military history of the South Korea-U.S. joint forces" would be staged on the east coast when the U.S. Marine landing force arrived in South Korea.

In the meantime, according to another report, the "Paekgol unit" of the puppet army was transferred to the eastern sector of the front on March 20 and, at the same time, the puppet marines started moving to the operational zone of the eastern sector of the front from their east coast base to participate in a "South Korea-U.S. joint mobile exercise" and "river-crossing operation."

["'Team Spirit 1982' Goes More Frantic" -- KCNA headline]

[Text] Pyongyang, March 26 (KCNA) -- A large aircraft carrier battle group consisting of 31 vessels including the notorious "Midway" belonging to the U.S. Seventh Fleet left Sasebo Port, Japan, on March 23 toward the southeastern coast of South Korea when the moving to South Korea of U.S. imperialist aggression forces from the U.S. mainland and their bases overseas is near completion, according to a report.

Upon entering the coastal area of South Korea, the carrier battle group will stage a "local familiarisation exercise" and "self marine mobile exercise" together with the warships which had already arrived there and then carry out a "South Korea-U.S. joint landing operation, the largest in scale in history," together with the South Korean puppet navy, says the report.

The U.S. imperialist aggression forces which had been airlifted to South Korea from the U.S. mainland and their bases overseas are undergoing a feverish "terrain familiarising exercise" and the South Korean puppet army units have nearly completed the first-stage deployment operation which started from March 20. The "South Korea-U.S. joint forces" will launch into a field mobile exercise, the second-stage full-scale operation of "Team Spirit 1982," such as "landing operation," "river-crossing operation" and "emergency take-off and landing operation on express highways."

Meanwhile, a burlesque "welcoming" the deployment of "A-10" planes claimed to be "ultra-modern fighter bombers" of the U.S. air force was held at a unit of the South Korean puppet air force on March 22 and a "ceremony for the report of assignment to an operation" of the aggression troops of the U.S. 25th Infantry Division hurled into the war exercises from Hawaii took place at a unit in the middle eastern sector of the front, inciting war fever.

The commander of the U.S. Western Pacific Forces, who turned up in South Korea to watch the war exercises met the chief of staff of the puppet army ground force on March 22 and held talks in camera to encourage the puppets to the provocation of a new war. Then he prowled about units of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces and the spots of the "Team Spirit 1982" exercises. He was once "commander of the South Korea-U.S. Joint Field Army."

VRPR MANIFESTO SCORES MANHUNT FOR ARSONISTS

[24 March manifesto of the VRPR editorial department]

[Text] Manifesto to the citizens: People of all strata, on 18 March in Pusan, our bold and brave patriotic fighters set fire to the American Cultural Center -- the den of espionage and conspiracy -- and many leaflets urging withdrawal of the Yankee aggressors, and end to the Japanese militarists' schemes to invade South Korea and a struggle against the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique were scattered in many parts of the city.

The flames lit in Pusan were an eruption of our people's hatred and indignation, which have been accumulated against the U.S. imperialists -- the mortal enemy of the nation -- and were just punishment for the Yankee aggressors, who have turned this land into their colony, a fascist hell and a living human hell of the 20th century and who have been imposing all kinds of misfortunes and agonies on our people. At the same time, the flames were an eruption of the indignation and animosity against the atrocious Chon Tu-hwan ring, which upholds the U.S. masters as a savior and has usurped the power of the fascist colonial dictatorship in return for selling the nation. It has been intent on imposing an oppressive military rule against democracy and the people.

Therefore, the news of the Pusan patriotic fighters' anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle has spread all over the nation and brought joy and courage to the oppressed people. It has caused the U.S. aggressors and the Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique great anxiety.

Look at the U.S. aggressors and their stooge, traitor Chon Tu-hwan, now extremely dismayed at the flames of the anti-U.S. struggle which were lit in Pusan! Because of the flames, the White House is shivering, and Chongwadae is in a panic.

Foreseeing an impending crisis in the undaunted heroic deed done by the Pusan patriotic fighters, traitor Chon To-hwan is going on a rampage to prevent the flames of the anti-U.S., anti-fascist struggle from spreading across the nation. With the emergency directives of the White House, the U.S. puppet Chon Tu-hwan ring has put the army, police and reservists on alert. The vast oppressive forces are sweeping across every part of South Korea. It is carrying out an intensive search and manhunt in Seoul and Pusan and everywhere in South Korea. It is desperately trying to arrest the suspects with 20 million won in prize money.

Creating an atmosphere of terror, in several days along the fascist military group has arrested, indicted, detained and punished 22,400 persons, committing an outrageous fascist atrocity. Moreover, the Chon Tu-hwan ring went to the American Ambassy in Seoul and committed a servile act by apologizing for the fire. It is mobilizing the hooligans of the Democratic Justice Party in the manhunt. South Korea is virtually under emergency martial law, imposed without an announcement. It has become a lawless fascist hell.

Imposing frantic fascist oppression, the nation-selling traitors are attempting to obliterate and eliminate not only the patriotic Pusan fighters but also other democratic and patriotic people. With such fascist repression, however, the Chon Tu-hwan ring cannot quench the rising anti-U.S., antifascist flames and bridge over the crisis. The citizens must not be scared or succumb to the frantic maneuvers of the fascist group but continue the persistent struggle with a firm patriotic will and the desire for national salvation.

Today, the lives of our patriotic fighters who have turned out on the road of the anti-U.S., antifascist nation-saving struggle are seriously endangered by the frantic fascist oppression of the hangmen of the Chon Tu-hwan fascist ring. Protecting their lives is compatriotic support and encouragement and a contribution to the just and patriotic struggle. Actively protect the patriotic Pusan fighters who raised the torch of the sacred struggle by braving the surveillance of the fascist terrorists!

The murderers who declared that the masses are their enemy and who killed thousands of compatriots are now spreading hundreds of thousands of pictures of the patriots all over the place and importuning people's cooperation by holding the monthly village meetings ahead of schedule. How shameless and blatant this is!

No one must be deceived by the tricks of the enemy or deluded by money or commit a sin of defiling his conscience. If anyone renders cooperation to the manhunt of the Chon Tu-hwan ring, he will be committing a crime of helping the traitors against the nation. Masses: Do not be deceived by the maneuvers of the fascist group but refuse to cooperate!

Troops, policemen and judicial officials mobilized for oppression as cat's paws of the fascist murderer Chon Tu-hwan: Do not act rashly but act with discretion!

It is a law of nature that injustice and autocracy perish and justice and democracy survive. If the troops, policemen and judicial officials ignore this law and help repress patriots and innocent people, they will not be able to escape the stern punishment of the history and the nation. They must remember this. They must remember that their rash act speels punishment; they must not act rashly.

Our masses' anti-U.S., anti-dictatorial struggle for democracy, national salvation and reunification is arduous and the road which to be covered is rugged. Nevertheless, as long as the ray of the great chuche sun illuminates the future of our struggle and we continue the united struggle, final victory will be ours.

Let us all brave the fascist oppression of the Chon Tu-hwan ring and continue the undaunted sacred struggle against the United States and the fascists for democracy, national salvation and reunification.

24 March 1982.

NODONG SINMUN BLASTS CHON'S CAMPUS POLICIES

[NODONG SINMUN 25 March commentary: "Justice Cannot Be Stamped Out"]

[Text] As has been reported, on 18 March, South Korean people set fire to the American Cultural Center in Pusan and scattered throughout the city leaflets opposing campus fascistization, saying "We oppose the university graduation quota system" and "We oppose the professor recommendation system," along with anti-American and antigovernment leaflets. Leaflets are said to have been scattered in various parts of the city many times previously. What does this mean -- this scattering of leaflets in the heart of the city in broad daylight and in the teeth of a harsh repressive rule under which terrorism, torture and murder are unending?

This is an expression of the will of the South Korean people and students to regain national dignity, achieve social democracy and enjoy genuine freedom and the right to academic research and the quest for truth, smashing the fascist repression. At the same time, it is proof of how strongly the people oppose the Chon Tu-hwan fascist gang and its treachery. As a well-tamed lackey and colonial watchdog of the U.S. imperialists, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, after having usurped power under U.S. protection by bayonets and offered everything to its U.S. master, is trying to achieve its dream of long-term power in the bosom of the U.S. imperialists. In connection with the fire at the American Cultural Center, the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique kowtowed to its master, babbling that it was regrettable and apologizing about it, while launching a large-scale identification check of the Korean people by mobilizing the puppet police, puppet army, Homeland Reservist Corps and even its private party, the Democratic Justice Party, and arrested and imprisoned many people. This exposes the antinational nature of the traitorous puppet clique.

How can the South Korean youths and students, susceptible to new things and having a strong sense of justice, watch idly the criminal acts of the traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique, which is obliterating the demand and aspiration of the times and people and forcing perpetual traitorous fascist military dictatorial rule on them under the protection of outside forces?

The traitorous Chon Tu-hwan clique's maneuvers to suppress the campus also are the subject of the unanimous outrage of the South Korean youths, students and people. Turning the brunt of its suppression of the people toward the youths and students as soon as he usurped power, the traitorous puppet clique openly suppressed the people by bayonets to frustrate their struggle, while taking unprecedentedly vicious and wily suppressive measures. The so-called university graduation quota system or professor recommendation system fabricated by the puppets are examples.

As is known, the so-called graduation quota system which allows the universities to select 30 percent more students than the graduation quota and then eliminate the excess number of students on a yearly basis is fabricated by the clique to threaten the youths and students and expel progressive youths and students whom the clique regards as invidious.

The assertion of the puppets that the graduation quota system is a step toward creating an atmosphere of study and preventing students from deviating is a sheer lie. In fact, in the last year alone, the puppets expelled or disciplined over 15,000 students, including progressive students, drafted most of them into the puppet army or sent them to concentration camps on the pretext of education to ostracize them socially. It is evident that the university graduation quota system is a repressive system aimed at restricting the free political activity of students and to force them to address themselves to gaining marks and thus make them socially ostracized persons and slaves of the fascist dictatorship.

The professor recommendation system is a vicious system to suppress the students. The professor recommendation system is one in which several so-called professors in charge give each student evaluation marks and recommend him for graduation and employment by public and private enterprises only when he is evaluated as not being antigovernment. The system is a truculent suppressive measure aimed at restricting youths and students by the schools' fascist rules during their school days and keeping them from being employed by public and private enterprises or ostracizing them from society if they are found to evince the slightest progressive nature. This is a scheme aimed at suppressing campuses, and it is unprecedented in the history of education.

At present, five times as many suppressive forces, including plainclothes policemen, as existed during the Yusin dictatorial rule era have infiltrated campuses. They are relentlessly suppressing students by ferreting out, arresting and sentencing leaders of the students' struggle. Under such crafty forms of bloody suppression -- the graduation quota system and the professor recommendation system -- the campuses in South Korea are suffocating.

How can the South Korean students, burning with a sense of justice, remain submissive to such suppressive measures by the puppets? The Chon Tu-hwan ring is saying it is willing to give students freedom. It babbles about liberalization of school uniforms and hair styles. However, this is nothing but a trick to pacify student anger against campus suppression.

The South Korean youths and students are not deceived by the puppets' criminal conciliatory schemes but are responding to them with a struggle. If the Chon Tu-hwan ring persists in such crafty suppressive measures as the graduation system and the professor recommendation system, the students' wrath will explode. The puppets must realize that the scattering of leaflets in Pusan was not an explosion of the indignation of only a few students but the forecast of a terrible storm in which the South Korean people and students resisting the Chon Tu-hwan fascist dictatorship will sweep away the traitorous group once and for all.

LSWYK MEETING MARKS STUDENT UPRISING IN SOUTH

[Text] Pyongyang, March 24 (KCNA) -- The South Korean students should turn out vigorously in the struggle to realise the desire of the March 24 fighters for independence, democracy and reunification, said Yi Yong-su, chairman of the Central Committee of the League of Socialist Working Youth of Korea [LSWYK], in his report at a meeting of Pyongyang youth and students which was held here on March 23 to mark the 18th anniversary of the March 24 uprising of the South Korean students. The March 24 struggle of the South Korean students in 1964 broke out with an indignation meeting of students of Seoul University against "South Korea-Japan talks" and their "burning imperialists and traitors in effigy." The students turned out to the streets of resistance for national salvation throughout South Korea and staged a massive resistance struggle, shouting such slogans as "Stop the South Korea-Japan talks at once!" "Destroy Japanese militarism!" "United States, take off your mask!" and so forth.

Chairman Yi Yong-su said: This uprising dealt a fatal blow at the policy of dependence on outside forces pursued by the South Korean puppet clique and its treacheries, paralysed its ruling order, drove the enemy into a chaotic confusion and administered a telling blow at the reinvasion manoeuvres of the Japanese reactionaries running wild to realise their old dream of "Great East Asia Co-prosperity Sphere" with the backing of U.S. imperialism, by thwarting temporarily the criminal "South Korea-Japan talks."

Eighteen years have passed since the righteous fighters of March 24 dyed the streets of resistance with blood. But none of their wishes for independence, democracy and reunification have yet been realized. A more heinous and vicious fascist rule than the "Yusin" reactionary rule holds sway in South Korea due to the never-to-be-condoned treacherous maneuvres of traitor Chon Tu-hwan who appeared as a new fascist-maniac with the encouragement of U.S. imperialism.

The Chon Tu-hwan group is stepping up its policy of dependence upon the United States and scheming to leave South Korea to the U.S. imperialists indefinitely as their colony and military base. The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique is persisting in every conceivable intrigue to perpetuate the division of the nation and obstruct the reunification of the country according to the "two Koreas" manuscript of the U.S. and Japanese reactionaries.

The South Korean students should become the standard-bearer calling the people of all walks of life to struggle and fuse of the struggle and fight on till they will have put an end to the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist rule and established a genuine democratic government in the name of the fallen comrades-in-arms. The South Korean students and people should heighten vigilance against the aggression and interference of foreign forces and fight determinedly against them to restore the lost national sovereignty in South Korea.

The U.S. imperialists should give up the foolish desire to keep hold on South Korea as their colony and military base for an indefinite period, immediately stop the powder-reeking war exercises and withdraw from South Korea without delay, taking along their troops and all destruction weapons including nuclear weapons.

The Japanese reactionaries should discard their stupid dream of holding the position of the secondary colonial ruler in South Korea and invading the whole of Korea and Asia in keeping with the aggression war of U.S. imperialism and refrain from instigating the military hooligans of South Korea to fascism and war.

The meeting was attended by Director of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland Yo Yon-ku, Vice-Chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland Hong Ki-mun, presidents and rectors of universities and colleges and youth and students in the city.

HAVANA TRADE CONGRESS ISSUES REPORT ON KOREA

[Text] Pyongyang, March 24 (KCNA) -- A special information on Korea was published at the 10th World Trade Union Congress which was held recently in Havana, according to a report. The information exposes, citing concrete facts, the undisguised maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korea puppet clique to perpetuate the division of the nation and provoke a new war.

It calls for further expansion of the international solidarity movement for the struggle of the Korean workers and people to achieve the peaceful reunification of the country.

The information says: President Kim Il-song of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea put forward a new proposal for Korean reunification at the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea which was held in October 1980. This new reunification proposal is a reasonable and realistic one correctly reflecting the objective reality at home and abroad.

For the realisation of the independent and peaceful reunification of Korea, the military fascist rule must be destroyed, the democratisation of society must be achieved in South Korea, and tension must be lessened and the danger of war be removed in Korea. The United States must give up the splittist "two Koreas" policy, stop encouraging the South Korean military fascist clique and discontinue all its interference in the internal affairs of Korea.

Let us widely introduce through the press the realistic initiatives of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and its proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo to arouse world public opinion, expose the "two Koreas" plot of the United States and the South Korean authorities and denounce their military provocations and aggressive policy. Let us support the struggle of the Korean workers and people to force the U.S. troops to withdraw from South Korea and promote the independent and peaceful reunification of the country and the demand that the United States should come out to a dialogue with the DPRK for replacing the Korean armistice agreement with a peace agreement.

Let us demand that all the fascist laws be repealed, suppression stopped, Kim Tae-chung and all other imprisoned patriotic people released and the freedom of activities guaranteed to political parties, trade unions and other organizations aspiring after democracy and peaceful reunification in South Korea.

Let us support and encourage the struggle of the South Korean workers and people for the basic rights and democratic rights of the trade unions and for having their social and economic demands met.

SUSPECT HAS NO 'DIRECT' LINK TO PUSAN ARSON

SK260959 Seoul YONHAP in English 0950 GMT 26 Mar 82

[Text] Seoul, March 26 (YONHAP) -- Chong Sun-chol, who was arrested Thursday as a suspected arsonist in the recent fire at the American Cultural Center in Pusan, had no direct connection with the incident, the National Police Headquarters (NPH) reported Friday. A police source here said the NPH will transfer Chong to the South Cholla provincial police station in Kwangju, 260 km south of Seoul. The provincial police will book Chong for setting fire to the U.S. Cultural Center in Kwangju on Dec. 9, 1980. Chong has been sought by police since he made an unsuccessful attempt to smuggle himself into Japan Jan. 15.

UNIFICATION MINISTER REPEATS CALL FOR N-S TALKS

SK260255 Seoul HANGUK ILBO in Korean 25 Mar 82 p 5

[Interview with Unification Minister Son Chae-sik, by Ha Chang-chun, reported from political department -- date and place not given]

[Text] President Chon's proposal for national harmony and democratic reunification on 22 January, the proposal for the 20-point pilot projects between the North and South on 1 February, and the proposal for high-level representatives' talks between the North and South on 25 February were made public amid the deep interests of the people at home and abroad. But, North Korea rejected President Chon's proposal for national harmony on 26 January and responded to the proposal for 20-point pilot project on 10 February with an irrelevant counterproposal calling for the convocation of a 100-man joint conference of politicians in the North, South and abroad.

Responding to this counterproposal of North Korea, our Unification Minister Son Chae-sik proposed to North Korea to hold high-level representatives' talks between the North and South. However, North Korea has not responded to this proposal as yet. What is the real aim of North Korea? What is the real situation North Korea faces today? To find out, this reporter met Minister Son.

Question: One month has already passed since we advanced the proposal for high-level representatives' talks between the North and South -- in which we expressed our willingness to discuss the question of holding talks of the highest responsible persons in authority between the North and South, the question of forming a consultative council for national reunification to institute a unified constitution and even the question of convening a so-called 100-man joint conference of politicians in the North, South and overseas advanced by North Korea. What has North Korea's response been to this proposal?

Answer: There has been no official reaction to this proposal from North Korea as yet. Instead, the so-called Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification, a North Korean black propaganda radio station, rejected the proposal, denouncing it as "not worth consideration and nothing but a political drama."

Later, on 1 March, in his speech at a mass rally, the director of the Secretariat of the so-called Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland denounced our proposal for holding high-level representatives' talks between the North and South, saying that the South Korea political parties and public organizations, to say nothing of our government, have no qualification to participate in a dialogue for reunification. Thus North Korea indicated its negative stance on the proposal. However, we see this completely as an unofficial reaction. So we hope that North Korea will react positively to our proposal through its official channels.

Question: Despite our sincere efforts for a dialogue for reunification through the aforementioned proposals, North Korea has refused to have any dialogue with us. North Korea must have reasons for this in its own way, I believe. What is your analysis of this?

Answer: We can find the reasons in three or four areas, I believe. First, North Korea does not view the question of dialogue and reunification as a way of achieving democratic reunification and of improving relations between the North and South but considers it as a means of communizing South Korea. The second reason is, I think, its internal situation. In other words, if North Korea accepts our democratic unification policy, North Korea's proposal for founding a Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo [DCRK] -- which, it says, is the best way for reunification -- will fade, the degree of foreign support for North Korea's reunification policy will be reduced and its inferiority in the diplomatic competition with our country abroad will increase. Korea fears this point.

Question: What is the government's plan for making the North Korean side respond to dialogue in case it continues to refuse to accept our proposal?

Answer: If the North Korean side tries to use the North-South dialogue in its maneuvers to implement its revolutionary strategy for communization, and if it does not abandon its negative attitude toward dialogue for fear that it will be impossible to achieve this strategy if there is a dialogue, it will be difficult to resume dialogue between the North and South. Therefore, making the North Korean communist group understand that it cannot achieve unification through communization no matter what violent means and schemes it may use is the way to put the North-South dialogue on the right track again. While tightening our national security system and internal unity with stability achieved in the political and social sectors, we should make North Korea understand that it cannot accomplish the revolution for communization and make it respond to dialogue by thwarting its maneuvers to win support from international revolutionary forces at the summit talks of the nonaligned countries scheduled to be held in Baghdad in September this year.

[Reporter] Minister Son said that the unanimous desire of the people for unification is no less important than the government's plan and policy to this end. Citing the Buddhist's and Christian's prayer, he said that, if we cherish an ardent desire, we will see a way toward our goal. He then added that if we make a sincere effort to follow this course, we will surely fulfill our desire. Referring to miracles performed by the Jewish people in founding their country, he said that our task of achieving unification is by no means infeasible.

Question: Some people have a pessimistic view on unification because the North Korean side has continuously refused to accept our practical proposals for unification. What is your view on unification?

Answer: The proposal for national conciliation and democratic unification has won positive support and response at home and abroad. This is because our proposal for unification intensively reflects the desire of the people for peaceful unification while tolerating the affirmative part of the North Korean side's phoney proposal with confidence in the superiority of national strength. Nevertheless, the North Korean side, while insisting on stereotyped conditions which we cannot accept concerning our unification proposal, has ignored and rejected our plan for national conciliation and democratic unification. Although the North Korean side rejects our plan for national conciliation and democratic unification for the time being, the meaning of this plan will not become obscure nor will its content change. I firmly believe that, if we overcome our disillusion and suspicion about unification caused by protracted division and if we continuously foster our capability for independence and national strength, the way to national conciliation and democratic unification is not far away.

Question: I think North-South dialogue has failed to resume quickly because the North and South have assumed basically different views on the question of unification. What is the difference between the North and South with regard to this question?

Answer: Our basic stand for unification is that we recognize the reality in which the fatherland is divided. Our stand is to achieve complete unification on the basis of realizing national conciliation by solving one by one the negative issues between the North and South, such as military confrontation, misunderstanding and mistrust. Contrary to this, the North Korean side is trying to employ the unification issue as a means to create an atmosphere for revolutionarily communizing the South.

Conditions on which the North Korean side insists in its unification proposal are ones which we cannot accept. Our analysis is that, with these conditions, the North Korean side attempts to hinder unification and ignore dialogue, while paying lipservice to unification.

[Reporter] Minister Son said that, while we have made efforts to achieve unification through democratic, peaceful means, the North Korean side has sought unification through violence and through a revolution by communization. Since we put forth a proposal for unification, the North Korean side has been eager to overcome its inferiority by sending its delegations overseas. In connection with this, I asked about the North Korean side's recent move.

Answer: Embarrassed by the increasing support at home and abroad for our proposal for national harmony and democratic unification, North Korea has undertaken large-scale diplomatic activities by sending 18 high-level delegations to some 50 nations since last January and is now slandering and denouncing our unification proposals, while soliciting support for its so-called DCRK proposal.

In connection with North Korea's diplomatic visits, the government will block the sinister attempt of North Korea by sustained diplomatic efforts and public relations activities to create a wide range of support and sympathy for our proposals in the international community.

Question: In the short term, one of the reasons why North Korea avoids coming to a dialogue is related to the buildup of the Kim Chong-il system. This one possible analysis; what do you think about it?

Answer: We can find many clues as to the reason why North Korea has been avoiding coming out to a dialogue. One important reason is that North Korea is afraid of exposing internal discord and frictions evinced in the buildup of the Kim Chong-il succession system.

In view of our experience of North-South dialogue with North Korea, once the dialogue is realized, it will inevitably force North Korea to open its society and this, in turn will eventually provide the North Korean residents with an opportunity to compare their society with that in the South. For this reason, North Korea has been avoiding the dialogue, while continuing its hard line against the South, in an attempt to prevent negative effects on, or threats to the buildup of the Kim Chong-il system, which will be inevitable once the dialogue is realized or once its soceity is opened to the outside world.

[Reporter] At the end of our interview, we asked him the difference between our consultative council for national unification, brought up in the proposal for national harmony and democratic unification, and North Korea's so-called congress for the promotion of reunification.

To this, Minister Son said: "The purpose of our consultative council for national unification is to let the representatives from the North and South draft the basis for the unification constitution to found a unified state, whereas North Korea's congress for promotion of reunification is intended to discuss issues for the establishment of the DCRK by convening a meeting of representatives unilaterally appointed, not genuine representatives." He added that the North Korean congress for promotion of reunification not only excluded our country's authorities and anticommunist parties and organizations from the list of representatives but also asserted that even the Revolutionary Party for Reunification should participate in the meeting, saying this was the difference.

DJP TO LAUNCH 'MARCH FOR NATIONAL UNIFICATION'

[From the column "Political Scene"]

[Text] Yesterday's Central Executive Committee meeting of the Democratic Justice Party [DJP] discussed the plan for a "grand march for national unification" worked out by the party's working-level officials. However, the meeting had difficulty reaching any tangible agreement and only mapped out the framework for general principles of the plan.

The grand march, which is scheduled to last from 21 to 23 April, will be launched at Mt Halla with the participation of the party's key post holders, including Secretary General Kwon Chon-tal. A total of 500,000 party members enrolled in a party training program will take part in the march, which will start simultaneously in five cities such as Cheju, Mokpo, Yosu, Chungmu and Pusan and conclude at Imjingak [Panmunjom].

Party spokesman Pong Tu-wan offhandedly called the march "the DJP 'Team Spirit,'" saying: "The march, which will involve party members from across the country, is aimed at showing the people our will for the fatherland's unification and at achieving national harmony."

The 2-hour Central Executive Committee meeting spent much time discussing the plan for the grand march for national unification. Meanwhile, party deputy spokesman Yi Chong-yul said: "We discussed it at length because the plan is very complex and we resolved problems one by one."

This document was adopted to satisfy the increased requirements of the people for foodstuffs and consumer goods.

It gives principal consideration to the planned development of subsidiary farms on a collective basis with the aim of utilizing domestic reserves to the fullest. The MPRP Central Committee and the MPR Council of Ministers obliged the appropriate ministries and departments to stimulate the development of subsidiary farms and state purchases of natural resources in every way possible. The new resolution is striking testimony to the party's and state's constant concern for improving the people's welfare in every way possible.

MPRP DECREE ON BETTER CHILDREN'S VACATION CAMPS

OW121257 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1455 GMT 5 Mar 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 5 Mar (MONTSAME) -- The resolution of the MPRP Central Committee "On measures to further improve the organization of summer vacations of Pioneers and schoolchildren," has been published here.

The resolution says that proper organization of summer vacations for Pioneers and schoolchildren and improvement in the activities of the Pioneer camps are of significance in the implementation of tasks put forward by the 18th MPRP Congress in the sphere of communist education and health care of the rising generation. Thanks to the great concern of the party and government, important successes have been achieved in recent years. Last year alone, more than 20,000 schoolchildren vacationed at Pioneer camps belonging to Mongolian trade unions.

In the last 5-year plan, on the initiative of some ministries, departments and executive administrations of aymag and city hurals [words indistinct] Pioneer camps were built. [Words indistinct] the construction and commissioning of the international "Nayramdal" Pioneer camp near Ulaanbaatar were a (?manifestation of the paternal care of the party and government) for the (?rising) generation.

Nevertheless, the MPRP Central Committee notes, there are serious shortcomings in the organization of summer vacations for Pioneers and schoolchildren. The MPRP Central Committee resolution envisages the implementation of important measures directed at consolidating the material and technical base, at organizing amenities in Pioneer camps and at improving educational work systems among young Pioneers and schoolchildren during summer vacations.

VOPB: BURMA HAS CAUGHT 'ECONOMIC PNEUMONIA'

BK211420 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese to Burma
0030 GMT 21 Mar 82

[Unattributed commentary: "Some Comments About the Speeches on the Economy by Ne Win and San Yu"]

[Summary] The top bosses of the military clique are making speeches on the economy quite often these days. San Yu, the so-called newly-elected president, recently spoke about the economy while the top chief of the military clique, Ne Win, also made speeches on the economy some months back. Why did they do so?

"There is a saying among Western economists: If the United States sneezes, Europe catches a cold and the Third World contracts pneumonia." In other words, Europe and the Third World suffer even worse if there is a slight economic difficulty in the United States. The United States is facing economic and financial difficulties today or, in other words, it is suffering from a long-lasting bout with a cold. Europe and the Third World, therefore, face even greater problems. Burma, which is also part of the Third World, has thus contracted economic pneumonia. It is for this very reason that the big chiefs of the military clique are making speeches on the economy."

Burma is one of the world's poorest nations. According to the norms of the international development association, a country with a per capita income of less than U.S. $681 has to be considered very poor. Even if we base our calculations on the figures released by the Ne Win-San Yu military government, we can see that the per capita income in Burma in 1980-81 was only 792 kyat or U.S. $107. Even among the world's poorest countries, Burma trails way behind.

In 1975, Burma had a foreign debt of U.S. $300 million. This jumped to U.S. $1.7 billion in 1980-81. Thus the burden of debt servicing -- capital and interest -- has become greater. The repayment of loans -- capital and interest -- took away 28 percent of Burma's annual export value. In simple terms, this means that of every 100 kyat gained from exports 28 kyat has to be used to repay loans. Previously, most of the loans taken out by Burma were granted under special privileges since Burma was considered a very poor country. But, since the United States is 'sneezing' today, such privileged loans will not be easy to acquire. The military government's economy and finance survive on foreign loans and so-called assistance. If obtaining loans, grants and aid becomes difficult, Burma's 'pneumonia' is going to worsen."

In his speech of August 1981, Ne Win noted the economic difficulties in the capitalist-imperialist countries and said it would not be easy to obtain loans and aid while these countries tried to correct their economic ills. "Ne Win's speech showed that the military government was very concerned. Though worried, the first part of his speech also showed self-satisfaction." Ne Win said Burma was fortunate in that it was not only self-sufficient in food but had more than enough.

On 6 November 1981, Ne Win delivered another address on the economy. This time around, Ne Win boasted not only about sufficiency in food but also in energy. He asked his so-called prime minister to expound on the discovery of new oilfields.

"As the explanation given was full of figures, any person listening to it normally would believe that three new oilfields had been discovered and that oil was going to flow in streams."

"However, a careful analysis reveals that all the figures, which ran into millions, referred only to oil deposits estimated to be there. In fact, to date actual production is only 600 barrels of crude oil a day. Even then, only the Tantabin oilfield is actually producing while not one single barrel of oil has yet been produced by the so-called Kyontani and new Pagan oilfields."

Although Ne Win spoke as if the country was going to be rich with oil, San Yu, in his speech on 15 March, spoke conservatively. San Yu said that although gas and oil had been located in the central and southern regions of the country, the actual extent of production capability would be known only when wells are sunk.

Developing an oilfield is not easy for a poor country like Burma. A rich country must provide financial and technological support. "Last year, it was learned that Japan was going to provide financial aid to redevelop old oilfields in Burma. Japan is providing this assistance only because of its self-interest. Without its interest, Japan would not give any aid. Until now, no word has yet been heard about support to develop the new oilfields. Japan definitely is going to consider what there is in it for itself.

"Although the chiefs of the military clique claim that Burma is now self-sufficient in oil, people who suffer from shortages of kerosene and gasoline know very well how sufficient the country is. It is sufficient not because the country has abundant oil but only because it can make do with shortages.

"The same is also true for food. Sufficiency in food now does not mean forever. The unprecedented rice shortages of 1967 and 1974 still haunt people today.

"Ne Win and San Yu look at Third World countries in trouble because they had to import oil and food and boast 'we are fortunate.' They are in fact covering up their greatest weak point: that is, they are reliant on loans and grants because they have no capital. Almost all of the key production enterprises of the military government as well as all development projects continue working only because of loans and grants. Without loans and grants these projects and enterprises will collapse. Even the military government's budget is balanced and propped up by loans, aid and grants.

"The people know best. They face great difficulties in food, clothing and shelter as a result of the military government's economic line and policies which only serve imperialism, feudal-landlordism, bureaucrat capitalism and the reactionary civil war in the country. However hard one may claim that Burma is a socialist country, the fact is that Burma under the Ne Win-San Yu military government remains within the clutch of the capitalist world and its economy is reliant on all stripes of imperialism. Thus, the economic plight in the capitalist world also affects Burma.

"Today, the only people in Burma who can claim to be fortunate are the handful of persons who belong to the Ne Win-San Yu military clique. The broad masses -- the majority -- are the most unfortunate. They suffer economically, politically, educationally, socially and in health. For this very reason, people are stepping up their six struggles:

"1. The struggle to end the civil war and build peace in the country;

2. The struggle to win full democratic rights for the people;

3. The struggle to build national unity;

4. The struggle to raise the people's standard of living;

5. The struggle to oppose the two superpowers, particularly the struggle to oppose Soviet social-imperialism; and

6. The struggle to preserve world peace."

AFP: SON SANN SAYS SRV REPELLED, MAY VISIT PRC

NC251536 Paris AFP in English 1527 GMT 25 Mar 82

[Text] Paris, 25 Mar (AFP) -- Units of the noncommunist Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF) have repelled the three-week-old Vietnamese dry-season offensive into Cambodia, former Cambodian Premier Son Sann said here today. Mr Son Sann, who is founder and president of the KPNLF, told a press conference that his troops "rapidly counter-attacked the Vietnamese invaders who were forced to evacuate the occupied territories from last Monday on."

"Vietnamese losses are heavy and the wounded -- as well as the food, medicine and medical equipment they looted -- are being flown back by helicopter to either Phnom Penh or Vietnam," he said.

He said KPNLF losses were also heavy, but most of the dead were civilians. "About two-thirds of our inhabitants have regrouped after the attack," he continued, "but thousands of wounded or starving people are still lost in the jungle."

Mr Son Sann said reports on the offensive were generally inaccurate, because the Vietnamese had only managed to occupy two villages -- Sokh Sann and Nong Chan. "The battle of Sokh Sann has shown to the world that we can fight if we have the logistic means to do so," the former premier said.

"If a political solution proves to impossible" -- or if it is greatly delayed -- "we will fight to the very end," Mr Son Sann said.

He called on "all Cambodians within the country to unite against the invading Vietnamese and liberate Cambodia."

He reiterated his claim that Vietnamese troops used chemical weapons during their dry-season offensive. "After certain bombings, many inhabitatns showed signs of poisoning apparently caused by some yellow substance," he said. "Chickens died a few minutes after drinking water polluted by these products."

The former premier implied that he may accept a meeting with two other resistance leaders -- former head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan -- in an eventual visit to Beijing. Mr Son Sann was invited to the Chinese capital twice last year but has yet to apply for a visa. This has led observers to believe he may return to Cambodia's KPNLF-occupied area before attending a joint conference in Beijing of three Cambodian resistance movements.

The LPDR Foreign Ministry demands that the Chinese side immediately cease such hostile acts against the LPDR and states that the Chinese side must be held solely responsible for all provocative incidents which have affected normal relations between Laos and China.

LFNC SENDS GREETINGS TO KAMPUCHEAN COUNTERPART

BK241231 Vientiane KPL in English 0945 GMT 24 Mar 82

[Text] Vientiane, 24 Mar (KPL) -- The Central Committee of the Lao Front for National Construction [LFNC] on March 22 sent a message of greetings to the Kampuchean front for the defense and construction of the fatherland [as received]. The message was sent following the rally organised in Phnom Penh by the Kampuchean front to commemorate the Laos and Kampuchea day for solidarity and friendship.

The LFNC attached importance to this initiative and said that such gesture is commendable in view of the development of the special combative solidarity and fraternal all-round cooperation between Laos and Kampuchea, as well as among the three Indochinese countries.

The continual development of firm special solidarity and the all-round cooperation between the two fronts will surely serve as a victorious force in abolishing all maneuvers carried out by Beijing reactionaries in collusion with U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces. This, the message continues, will guarantee a sure path towards socialism in our respective country, thereupon contributing to peace and stability in Southeast Asia and the world.

The LFNC finally wished for the firm furtherance of special combative solidarity and friendship relations between Laos and Kampuchea.

FURTHER REPORTAGE ON 38TH ESCAP SESSION

Soviet Envoy Speech

BK250430 Hong Kong AFP in English 0912 GMT 24 Mar 82

[Text] Bangkok, 24 Mar (AFP) -- The Soviet Union today blamed the West and the capitalist monetary system for the troubled social and economic conditions in Asian countries. Speaking at the 38th annual session of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) here, Soviet delegate N.N. Solovyev hit out strongly at what he called "aggressive imperialist forces...interfering unceremoniously in the affairs of other states and attempting to suppress the legitimate desire of peoples for freedom and social progress."

"It is the enduring dependence of most developing countries on the world capitalist economic system, with its chronic crisis, that constitutes one of the main causes of the troubled social and economic situation of the newly free (independent) states of the ESCAP region," he said.

He stressed that independent economic development could only succeed by "stopping the policies of colonialist and neocolonialist exploitation of these countries by imperialism and fully compensating for the damage caused by such policies."

Mr. Solovyev blasted the West's economic policies for causing "a further deterioration of the economic, monetary and financial situation of the developing countries," and pointed to the growth of socialist economies, which, he said, "as a whole remain considerably higher than those in Western countries."

The Soviet Union, Mr. Solovyev said, has been successfully extending economic, scientific and technical aid to developing countries in the region and has trained "about one million specialists" to help the national economies of these countries. He indicated that the planned economy prevalent in socialist countries enabled them "to protect themselves considerably from the unfavourable effects" of the economic crisis in the capitalist world and to maintain "stable rates of national economic development."

Indonesia's Mokhtar Speech

[Text] Bangkok, 24 Mar (AFP) -- Indonesia today called for the early launching of global negotiations to ensure the resumption of a constructive dialogue between the North and the South.

Speaking at the 38th annual session of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) in Bangkok, Indonesian Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja said that the solution to the unfavourable world economic conditions required global cooperation to forge "a new kind of partnership among nations based on equality, equity and genuine mutuality of interest." He also called for regional cooperation aimed at increasing food supply through the development of low cost staples.

"Assured export earnings of the developing countries are a prerequisite for the success of their development efforts, while improved access to the markets of developed countries will enhance their import capacities," Mr Mokhtar said.

He also praised the increasing South-South cooperation. "Notable progress has been achieved in South-South cooperation," he said. "The awareness among developing countries on the unavoidability of enhancing their collective self-reliance has further deepened and is at present being implemented through the promotion and intensification of economic and technical cooperation."

Khmer Rouge Envoy Speech

[Text] Bangkok, 25 Mar (AFP) -- Cambodia's ousted Khmer Rouge leadership today called for an international conference to put an end to the use and production of chemical and biological weapons. The call came from Finance Minister Thiounn Thioum, head of the Democratic Kampuchean (Khmer Rouge) delegation to the 38th session of the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP). The proposed conference, he added, should also obtain the destruction of existing stocks of what he called "arms banned by mankind."

The Khmer Rouge minister charged that Vietnam had used chemical weapons in Cambodia since early 1979. "The number of victims keeps increasing" amid continued "toxic gas shellings." "Spreading of toxic chemical by aircraft, canister disseminations, poisoning of ponds, food and cultures," he said.

"Kampuchea (Cambodia) is at present a vast field of experimentation for the expansionist great power who supply these weapons to the Hanoi authorities," he said in a veiled reference to the Soviet Union.

Representatives of five Soviet bloc countries -- the Soviet Union, Vietnam, Laos, Mongolia and Afghanistan -- walked out of the conference hall when Mr. Thioum took the floor.

Mr. Thioum's statement constituted a stinging attack on Vietnam despite an apparent consensus yesterday that the session would not be used as a forum for political debate. He accused Vietnam of sending "settlers" into Cambodia to seize land and resources, deploying some 10,000 troops in the central great lake area to "monopolise" fishing for its own benefits and razing entire villages allegedly under guerrilla control. He also asserted that Cambodia's food crisis emerged only in the second half of 1979 as a "good rice harvest" at the end of 1978 had enabled the people to survive what he called "the worst tragedy in their history."

The Khmer Rouge government was toppled by Vietnamese-led forces on January 7, 1979. But Mr. Thioum maintained that his government remained the "sole, legal and legitimate government of the people of Kampuchea." He urged the international community to bring an end to the "cruel war," saying regional peace, stability and security would "constitute the best conditions" for establishing a new international economic order.

FAO Criticizes Food Plan

BK251429 Hong Kong AFP in English 1147 GMT 25 Mar 82

[Text] Bangkok, 25 Mar (AFP) -- The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) today severely criticised an ambitious project by the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) designed to guarantee food supplies in the region. FAO's regional representative Dr. D.L. Umali said "the world cannot afford the luxury of still more bureaucratic duplication of international efforts."

Sources close to the U.N. meanwhile said the ESCAP project proposed "magic formulas," which sounded marvelous but didn't mean much.

Addressing the 38th ESCAP session which opened here Tuesday, Dr. Umali said priority must now be placed "on agrarian reform and direct aid to small farmers and fisherman, in short, to peasants, who are the poorest of the poor."

Referring to the ESCAP Secretariat's project for an "Asian-Pacific food bank," Dr. Umali stressed that the FAO had "reservations about creating new institutions which will simply duplicate the work of others already established."

"Food security in Asia and the Pacific as well as other regions of the world has long been a major feature of FAO's work. The potentials for costly overlap exists. FAO is preparing, for example, a regionally-linked warning system in Asia and the Pacific. This could overlap with the proposed regional food trade and information and management network that ESCAP proposes," said Dr. Umali.

"Rather than invest in new institutions, with the added expense and bureaucratic red tape that such ventures invariably entail, more resources should be applied by all the U.N. agencies to strengthening agrarian reform and the capacities of the countries themselves to prepare their own badly-needed projects and key investments," he noted.

Dr. Umali expressed opposition to the very concept of a food bank involving movement of food stocks between various countries. He said using food imports as a crutch over prolonged periods was not "a viable policy option," adding "there is no alternative to countries raising, in enlightened self-interest, their own food. Dependence on others brings a perpetual fast."

"If new institutions must be set up, they should be directed toward research in unexplored fields," he said in conclusion.

The ESCAP Secretariat, headed by Shamsul Kibria, put forward the food bank project as the high point of the 38th session. The food bank is intended to serve as a central agency for managing the region's food reserves. Its objective is to prevent, or to offer speedy remedy for, shortages or natural disasters, while ensuring a more equal distribution of food in the ESCAP region, which extends from Iran to the Pacific Cook Islands.

U.N. sources here wrote off the ESCAP 210-page report on the food situation in Asia and the Pacific, which ESCAP had prepared for the 38th session. The UN has 14 agencies working in the region, they said, but ESCAP has no one in the field. The ESCAP Secretariat's food bank, they added, is, in fact, nothing more than a project produced from the work done by U.N. agencies.

While addressing the ESCAP session yesterday, delegates from Australia and New Zealand had also voiced reservations about the proposed food bank, saying it should be coordinated with the U.N.'s specialized agencies such as FAO.

CHINESE 'PROVOCATIONS' SINCE 3 MAR REPORTED

[Text] Following the 3 March 1982 intrusion into our waters off Binh Tri Thien coast by the Chinese side's armed boats, which we seized, the Chinese side continued to have its aircraft and troops conduct armed provocations and harassments violating our country's border.

On 7, 9, 10, 14, 16, 17 and 21 March 1982, the Chinese side had many groups of commandos penetrate the villages of Trung Khanh District, Cao Bang Province; the area at Milestone No 25 of Cao Loc District, Lang Son Province; and Nam Chay Village of Muong Khuong District, Hoang Lien Son Province. Its troops seized the cattle and buffalo of the local people and destroyed them.

On 7, 10, 14, 17 and 21 March, Chinese troops fired continuously at many places in Quang Ba and Meo Vac Districts, Ha Tuyen Province, and at some other places in Trung Khanh District, Cao Bang Province, causing damage to the local people's material assets and draft force. It is noteworthy that at 2300 on 23 March the Chinese side had an armed force penetrate the area at Milestones No 15 and 16 in Dong Dang District, Lang Son Province. This force had to flee after being counterattacked by our people and troops.

In the past few days, Chinese aircraft also violated our northern airspace several times. On 19 March many flights of Chinese fighter aircraft encroached on the southeastern airspace of Cao Bang Province. On 22 March many flights of Chinese fighter aircraft violated the airspace of Trang Dinh District, Lang Son Province. On 24 March a flight of Chinese fighter aircraft twice violated the airspace of Ha Long in Trung Khanh District, Cao Bang province, and of Hoanh Mo in Binh Lieu District, Quang Ninh Province, 3 to 4 km deep into our territory.

The aforementioned activities, along with the sending of its border defense troops to the border area of Yunnan and Guangxi, which have been disguised as operations to protect the border people growing crops, is a calculated move of the Chinese authorities. It is aimed at causing tension in the border area of the two countries, destroying the normal life of the Vietnamese people in the border area and continuing their hostile policy toward Vietnam. The Chinese side must put an immediate end to the above criminal acts.

Also today, Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach held talks with his Congolese counterpart.

Yesterday evening, Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach gave a reception in honour of the Congolese guests.

Speaking at the reception, Nguyen Co Thach said:

"The Vietnamese people joyfully greet the achievements recorded by the Congolese people under the leadership of the Congolese Party of Labour led by President Denis Sassou-Nguesso in smashing the schemes and acts of sabotage of the imperialists and other reactionary forces, consolidating independence, defending the gains of the revolution, developing the economy, and culture, and gradually building a new life in their beautiful country."

"Although the U.S. imperialists are intensifying their collaboration with the Beijing leaders and other reactionary forces to step up the arms race, provoke tension all over the world and counterattack the revolutionary movement, they cannot reverse the trend of history. The trend revolutionary currents of our time will continue advancing to new successes. The trend of peace and detente is irreversible, and the balance of forces is more and more favourable for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism."

In his reply, Minister Pierre Nze said: "Our countries are far from each other, but that cannot prevent our mutual understanding and cooperation as well as our desire to unite with all peace- and justice-loving peoples against the common enemies -- international imperialism, colonialism and neocolonialism, Zionism, apartheid and racism."

He stressed: "In the past, our two peoples were both victims of colonial exploitation. We have both struggled for independence. Today we are coping with the same difficulties. For Vietnam, that is national reconstruction on the ruins caused by the war of destruction. For Congo, that is to build an independent national economy. This requires that we continue to strengthen our solidarity and cooperation in as many fields as possible. We reiterate our strong support for the just struggle of the Vietnamese, Lao and Kampuchean peoples for freedom, independence, and for the establishment of an atmosphere of peace, in the whole region of Southeast Asia."

At the invitation of the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, Pierre Nze, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Congolese Party of Labour in charge of external relations and minister for foreign affairs of the People's Republic of Congo, paid an official friendship visit to the Socialist Republic of Vietnam from March 23 to 25, 1982.

Minister Pierre Nze and the personalities accompanying him laid a wreath at President Ho Chi Minh's mausoleum and visited his office and home.

Chairman of the Council of Ministers Pham Van Dong of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam received Minister Pierre Nze and had a cordial talk with him.

Nguyen Duy Trinh, member of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Vietnam, received the member of the Political Bureau of the Congolese Party of Labour and talked with him about the relations and cooperation between the two parties.

Minister Pierre Nze held talks with Minister Nguyen Co Thach in an atmosphere of cordiality, friendship and complete mutual understanding. The two parties informed each other of the situation in their respective countries, and exchanged views on strengthening the relations between the two countries and on international problems of common interest. They expressed total identity of views on the problems raised.

The Vietnamese party warmly greets the big successes recorded by the Congolese people especially since the Extraordinary Third Congress of the Congolese Party of Labour in building their country, safeguarding national security and foiling the attempts at subversion of the imperialists and their henchmen, thus actively contributing to the African peoples' struggle for peace, national independence and social progress. The Vietnamese party expresses its firm conviction that under the leadership of the Congolese Party of Labour headed by President Denis Sassou-Nguesso, the Congolese people will record new and yet bigger successes in implementing the five-year plan 1982-1986 aimed at building Congo in progress and prosperity and constantly raising its prestige in Africa and the rest of the world.

The Congolese party warmly greets the great victories and prodigious exploits recorded by the Vietnamese people under the leadership of the Communist Party of Vietnam founded and educated by President Ho Chi Minh, in their struggle for national liberation and reunification, and in building socialism and defending their country.

The Congolese party firmly believes that in the light of the resolutions of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam, the Vietnamese people will obtain new victories in their glorious revolutionary cause, namely, in building and defending the Vietnamese socialist motherland and foiling all aggressive moves of imperialism and the international reaction.

The two parties note with satisfaction that in the past three years, under the leadership of the People's Republic of Kampuchea and bringing into play their tradition of indomitable struggle and their spirit of industrious and creative labour, the Kampuchean people have recorded big achievements in all fields, and that no reactionary force can counter the rebirth of the Kampuchean people. The two parties energetically condemn the manoeuvre and activities of imperialism and international reaction and demand the ouster of the so-called Democratic Kampuchea from the U.N. and the restoration of the right to representation of the People's Republic of Kampuchea in this international organization.

The two parties warmly greet the big successes recorded by the Lao people, under the leadership of the Lao People's Revolutionary Party, in national construction and defence.

The two parties unanimously hold that the problem of peace and security in Southeast Asia must be settled by the countries in this region through negotiation on the principles of equality, nonimposition of views and non interference in others' internal affairs and mostly through the cessation of any aggression and intervention by imperialism and international reaction.

In this spirit, the Congolese people greet and highly value the persevering and dynamic foreign policy of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea aimed at making Southeast Asia a region of peace, stability and cooperation.

The two parties reiterate their firm solidarity with the struggle of the Afghan people and the Government of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan against imperialism and international reaction and for strengthening national unity, national independence and democracy.

The two parties hail the strong development of the African peoples' struggle against colonialism, imperialism and apartheid and for national independence and peace. The two parties reaffirm their total solidarity with the struggle of the Namibian people for freedom and independence and stand for the immediate cessation of the occupation of that country by South African troops and for the withdrawal of these troops therefrom for the immediate and complete implementation of the U.N. resolutions on Namibia, for the handover on power to the S.W.A.P.O. -- the sole authentic representative of the Namibian people. The two parties support the struggle of the South African people led by the A.N.C. for the liquidation of the odious apartheid regime and demand an end to the aggressive acts perpetrated by the South African racist authorities against the "front line" countries, especially the People's Republic of Angola.

The two parties warmly greet the admission of the Saharan Arab Democratic Republic as the 51st state of the O.U.A. and reaffirm their support to the Saharan people's struggle for freedom and the defence of their territorial integrity under the leadership of the Polisario.

Concerning Chad, the two parties condemn the imperialists' manoeuvres to sabotage the unity and independence of that country. The two parties condemn the imperialist powers which, under the label of "struggle against international terrorism," are intensifying military provocations, subversive activities and acts of aggression against the countries resolutely following the path of independence and social progress, and suppress the national liberation movements in Africa.

With regard to the situation in the Middle East, the two parties reiterate their firm condemnation of the Camp David accord and once again assure the P.L.O. of their unflagging support and reaffirm the right of the Palestinian people to build an independent and sovereign state.

The two parties vehemently condemn the attempts of aggression and interference of imperialism against the Republic of Cuba, the Republic of Nicaragua, Grenada and the people of El Salvador. They reaffirm their support to the Latin American peoples' struggle for independence, freedom and the defense of their national sovereignty and their natural resources.

The two parties warmly welcome and support the peace proposals of the socialist countries and other progressive forces for disarmament, reduction of tension, and the maintenance of peace and international security.

The two parties highly rejoice at the unprecedentedly strong development of the West European people's struggle against war and for peace, and energetically condemn the imperialist manoeuvres to create a cold war atmosphere and to sabotage international detente.

The two parties also held discussions on the seventh summit conference of the non-aligned countries and pledge to work for the noble objectives of the movement, to struggle against the moves of imperialism and international reaction to divert the movement from its orbit, that is the struggle for peace and independence and against colonialism, imperialism, racism, apartheid and Zionism. They reaffirm their close cooperation with the other countries of the movement in their preparations for contributing to the success of the seventh summit to be held in Baghdad in September 1982.

The two parties express their satisfaction at the continued consolidation and development of their relations of friendship between the two peoples and parties. They decided to strengthen cooperation between the two parties and countries, and noted with real satisfaction that there were great possibilities to further develop their cooperation in the economic, cultural, scientific and technical fields.

The minister for foreign affairs of the People's Republic of Congo, Pierre Nze, sincerely thanked the minister for foreign affairs of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam for his warm, cordial and fraternal welcome and invited Minister Nguyen Co Thach to pay a friendship visit to the People's Republic of Congo. Minister Nguyen Co Thach accepted the invitation with pleasure.

MARCOS' ACTIVITIES IN SAUDI ARABIA REPORTED

Leaves Riyadh for Jiddah

HK240051 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] President Marcos returned to Jiddah yesterday after a successful meeting with King Khalid in Riyadh. The meeting enabled him to establish a new and common ground for mutually beneficial relations and cooperative action with the Saudi Arabian Government. Accompanied by the first lady, Madam Imelda Marcos, daughter Imee and members of the presidential party, the flight back to Jiddah ended the president's 3-day state visit.

In a departure statement at the Riyadh International Airport, the president thanked his hosts for the kindness and hospitality extended to him and his party. Among those who saw him off at the airport was King Khalid himself. The president said that this meeting with the highest officials of the Saudi Arabian Government led to greater understanding and better appreciation of the problems that confront us today. He said he was greatly impressed by the treatment accorded him by the king and other Saudi officials.

Arriving in Jiddah, the president was in a cheerful mood. He was beaming as he shook hands with Saudi and Philippine Embassy officials who welcomed him just outside the royal pavilion at the airport. Some Filipino residents in Jiddah, who had awaited his arrival, also applauded him, prompting the president to stop and wave to the crowd. The president and his party were later whisked off to the royal tower, where Prince Mujib gave a luncheon in their honor. It was Prince Mujib who also welcomed the president last Sunday during their 1-day stopover in Jiddah en route to Riyadh.

During a press conference in Riyadh that marked the end of his 3-day working visit, President Marcos said he is ready to sit down and discuss with Filipino Muslim rebels a more lasting solution to the Mindanao problem. Mr Marcos told newsmen that he had always kept the deal with the Filipino Muslim rebels. He added that these officials could discuss with them in any matter, short of committing the crime of insulting the presidency. Mr Marcos further declared that he welcomes rebels who want to take part in the common effort to strengthen Mindanao's autonomous governments.

Talks in Jiddah

HK250141 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 24 Mar 82

[Text] President Marcos and his party are on their way back to Manila after a successful 5-day visit to Saudi Arabia. Observers say the president has accomplished what he set out to do, and that is, to forge closer links between the Philippines and Saudi Arabia and technical and economic cooperation. The president is expected to sum up the major gains of the visit in an arrival statement at the Manila International Airport.

Yesterday, on his last day in Jiddah, he held an all-important talk with Habib Chatti, secretary-general of the powerful Organization of Islamic Conference. The 1 and 1/2-hour talk centered on the situation in Mindanao, the socioeconomic program in the Muslim community, and the Tripoli agreement. Our man in Jiddah, correspondent (Bert Asuke), filed in a situationer on the meeting and the president's final day in Saudi Arabia.

[Begin (Asuke) recording] Emerging from the conference room at 9.45 local time, Mr Chatti told reporters, and I quote, "This was a very important meeting in which we had a frank discussion of the Muslim problem in the southern Philippines, specially about the Tripoli agreement." The Tripoli accord, worked out by the first lady and signed by Deputy Defense Minister Carmelo Barbero and MNLF Chairman Nur Misuari in Libya in 1976, provided for a ceasefire in Mindanao and establishment of autonomous governments in regions 9 and 12. For his part, President Marcos said, "This was a fruitful discussion."

At the close of the meeting, President Marcos introduced to Mr Chatti, Jimmy Lucman, alias Commander (Jangakan), former chairman of the MNLF Lanao Revolutionary Command, who has since joined the fold of the law and is now an official of the autonomous government in central Mindanao.

After the talks with the secretary-general of the OIC, the chief executive also met with Shaykh al-Harakan, secretary-general of the World Muslim League, the International Organization of Ulamas or Muslim religious leaders, and his deputy, (Abdul Rashim Khalid), who called on him at the Alhambra guest palace in Jiddah. The visitors told the president, who was assisted by Muslim Affairs Minister Romulo Espaldon, that they did not care about Nur Misuari, the Middle East-based rebel leader, but about the whole Muslim community in the Philippines.

After the two meetings, President Marcos, the first lady and members of the party flew by royal jet to the industrial city of Yanbu, north of Jiddah, to inspect development projects. They returned to Jiddah aboard a royal yacht which King Khalid had offered to the presidential party to enable them to take a leisurely cruise in the Red Sea.

Yesterday's activities were among the major highlights of the presidential trip to Saudi Arabia. He is scheduled to return to Manila today. [end (Asuke) recording]

The president and his party left Jiddah last night, Manila time. They are scheduled to arrive home within a few hours.

One offshoot of the Saudi trip is the setting up of an Islamic center in metropolitan Manila. The World Muslim League said the center will attend to Muslim needs in the Philippines and in Southeast Asia as a whole. The tentative plan is to put up the center along Ayala Avenue in Makati.

Implements Plans Upon Return

HK260113 Manila Domestic Service in English 2300 GMT 25 Mar 82

[Excerpts] Technical and economic arrangements discussed between the Philippines and Saudi Arabia will be finalized within a few days. President Marcos lost no time yesterday in setting the implementation of the agreements in motion. Shortly after arriving from Jiddah, the president called the Cabinet to a meeting to take up the implementation of the agreements. The technical and economic cooperation agreement was the main point of the president's 5-day goodwill mission to Saudi Arabia.

As his first official act in reassuming his post, the president announced the holding of elections in the autonomous regions of Mindanao next month. The elections will choose the members of the legislative councils, whose terms expire in May. The exact date of the elections is expected to be announced later. The elections are another step to make regions 9 and 12 really autonomous, in accordance with the Tripoli agreement.

The Mindanao problem was among the issues given full attention in a joint communique issued by the Philippines and Saudi Arabia at the end of the presidential visit to the Middle East. Correspondent (Bert Asuke) reports:

[Begin (Asuke) recording] In connection with the president's desire to enhance the peace process in the south, the chief executive confirmed the holding of elections in regions 9 and 12 in April this year, and that steps will be taken to merge the two executive councils. The president also confirmed the government's commitment to preserve and enhance the Islamic heritage in the Philippines and promote the well-being of Filipino Muslims.

For his part, King Khalid, as head of the Islamic Summit Conference and the Organization of Islamic Conference, has pledged his effort to help solve the Muslim problem, and confirmed to the president that the solution must reflect Philippine territorial integrity, as stated in the Tripoli agreement.

The joint communique was issued Wednesday night upon the departure of President Marcos from Jiddah to Manila, formally concluding his visit to Saudi Arabia. [end (Asuke) recording]

Comment on Misuari's 'Failure'

HK260055 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 25 Mar 82

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] Nur Misuari, the self-styled leader of the secessionist Moro National Liberation Front, played his black card in Jiddah. Taking advantage of the presence of President Marcos in Saudi Arabia, Misuari presented a memorandum to Islamic Conference Secretary-General Habib Chatti on the MNLF demand for a separate and independnet Muslim-ruled state in Mindanao. The Islamic Conference leader not only rejected the Misuari demand but told him to stop his secessionist movement or totally lose the support of the Islamic Conference. It was a crushing blow to the terrorist dream of heaving a Muslim state to rule. But more than that, it was achieved by the honesty, sincerity and fair dealings demonstrated time and again by the administration of President Marcos.

The Saudi Arabian leaders, led by King Khalid, the Islamic Conference, and the World Muslim League led by Shaykh Muhammad 'Ali al-Harakan were obviously deeply impressed with the sincere desire of the Marcos government to help its Muslim citizens in the south. They were also undoubtedly convinced that it would be better for the Muslim Filipinos in Mindano if the Islamic leaders support the government's peace and amelioration program in the southern Philippines.

Indeed the events in Saudi Arabia in the past few days spell defeat for the MNLF, and assured Filipino Muslims in Mindanao in particular and the nation in general of peace and continued progress.

All is not lost, however, for Misuari and his followers, if he will heed the advice of Mr Chatti and abandon his secessionist dream which he is trying to realize through violence and bloodshed. There is a better dream for Mindanao, a dream of peace and contentment, being gradually realized by the government. This dream should be the goal of every Filipino, including Mr Misuari and his followers.

AUTO EXPORTS TO U.S. TO BE LIMITED IN FY 1982

[Text] Tokyo, March 29 (KYODO) -- Japan will limit its auto shipments to the United States at 1.68 million units in fiscal 1982 or unchanged from fiscal 1981, the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI) announced Monday.

International Trade and Industry Minister Shintaro Abe said in a statement that the decision not to seek an increase in car sales in the United States was taken in view of "a very sluggish car demand ... and a bleak demand outlook for fiscal 1982" in the United States. Reading the statement at a press conference, Abe described it a "political decision taken in consideration of (Japan's) trade friction with the United States."

Japanese automakers voiced dissatisfaction with MITI's decision, while saying they will have to accept it in view of the continuing difficulties the U.S. auto industry is facing. The Japanese car industry began exercising voluntary restraint on shipments to the U.S. under a three-year agreement reached last May between MITI and the U.S. trade representative.

Rules of the agreement, which takes the form of a unilateral statement by Japan's trade minister, call for MITI to determine the shipment quota for the second year (fiscal 1982 beginning April) at a level equal to the first-year quota (1.68 million units) plus 16.5 percent of the prospective demand expansion in the U.S. This would set the fiscal 1982 quota at just under 1.8 million units, as the U.S. Commerce Department has projected the 1982 U.S. car demand at 9 million units. Officials explained that MITI decided not to stick to the agreement formula because that could worsen the trade friction.

In his statement Monday, Abe stressed the need for continued capital and technological cooperation between the Japanese and U.S. auto industries.

Citing recent linkups between Chrysler and Mitsubishi Motors, General Motors and Toyota, and Ford and Toyo Kogyo, he said that MITI will provide necessary advice and assistance to "ensure steady progress in these cases of industrial cooperation." Abe also pledged Japan's continued efforts to increase its purchase of U.S.-made auto parts and components. He said that legislation to remove import duty on turbochargers is now before the Japanese Diet (parliament), following the total abolition last April of tariffs on 21 items of auto parts.

Takashi Ishihara, president of Nissan, called MITI's decision "something unpleasant yet unavoidable" in view of the slump in the U.S. auto market. "I strongly hope that the U.S. economy will recover quickly, car demand there will pick up and the day will come soon when this unusual step (of voluntary restraint) can be abolished," he said.

Shoichiro Toyoda, president of Toyota Motor Sales Co., said he has no choice but to comply with the decision. He said Toyota hopes the decision will be reviewed even during the year of self-restraint depending on recovery of demand in the U.S.

SUZUKI MEETS DEFENSE SECRETARY WEINBERGER 27 MAR

[Text] Tokyo, March 27 (KYODO) -- U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger met with Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Saturday and warned that the 1980's will be a trying decade in world affairs. Suzuki asked Weinberger to convey to U.S. President Ronald Reagan his hopes that the United States would never forget its responsibilities as the leader of the free world.

Weinberger, in Japan for regular consultations with Japanese defense officials, met Suzuki at the prime minister's official residence here shortly before noon for an hour of talks.

During the discussions, he praised the Suzuki administration's increased defense budget for fiscal 1982 as "a step in the right direction." However, he warned that moves by the Soviet Union meant the Western nations could not afford to be lazy in their defense efforts, and predicted that the years ahead would be trying.

Suzuki told Weinberger that Japanese public opinion is becoming more favorable to increased defense efforts, and pledged that he would hold himself responsible for seeing that Japan's defense plans are fulfilled. Suzuki also asked that the defense secretary convey to the U.S. President Japan's hopes that the United States would not do anything as the leader of the free world to weaken the unity of the West. He indicated that Japan would maintain close communications with Washington on conditions in Poland and Afghanistan, and would take sanctions against the Soviet Union "if necessary."

He urged that trade frictions between Japan and the U.S. be resolved through discussion without being made into a political issue. The prime minister also warned Weinberger that it would be "inadvisable" for the U.S. to drive China into the Soviet camp.

[Excerpts] Tokyo, March 27 (KYODO) -- U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger Saturday proposed that Japanese and U.S. defense experts hold a working-level meeting on Japan's efforts to defend sea lanes up to 1,000 nautical miles from its coasts. Weinberger made the proposal when paying a courtesy call on Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki at the latter's official residence here.

During the hour-long meeting with Suzuki, Weinberger stressed that it is the U.S. Government's understanding that it is up to Japan to defend the sea lanes from Japan's Pacific coast to the southeast Pacific. He also proposed holding a working level meeting between the two nations in Hawaii this summer to discuss the issue. During the talks, Weinberger gave Suzuki a message from U.S. President Ronald Reagan urging Japan to step up its efforts to improve Japan's defense capability.

Touching on proposals for the exchange of Japanese and U.S. defense technologies, the prime minister said Japan would soon finalize its official stand on the issue. But he cautioned that the government must abide by domestic laws and rules on Japanese weapons exports. The prime minister also told Weinberger he plans to have Japanese Defense Chief Soichiro Ito visit the U.S. this fall for working-level talks with U.S. defense officials.

Suzuki said the government is ready to redouble its efforts to build up Japan's defense capabilities because the struggle to maintain military supremacy over the Soviet Union provides a deterrent to war. However, he also urged the U.S. to promote disarmament talks with the Soviet Union.

DEFENSE TALKS WITH U.S. OPEN IN TOKYO 27 MAR

[Text] Tokyo, March 27 (KYODO) -- The seventh regular conference between Japanese and American defense leaders opened in Tokyo Saturday, with the participation of U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

At the conference held at the Defense Agency, Defense Agency Director General Soichiro Ito emphasized the necessity of keeping the Japan-U.S. security treaty and related systems and institutions in smooth and effective operation, and explained the efforts Japan has been making for the promotion of defense cooperation with the United States.

He also stated that the Japanese Government will endeavor to increase its defense budget for fiscal 1983 (April, 1983 through March, 1984) as far as possible, but at the same time asked the U.S. side to understand the present difficult financial position of the Japanese Government.

Besides, Director General Ito formally revealed his intention to visit the United States around September this year, for consultation with the U.S. Government on defense problems.

Defense Secretary Weinberger reported on increasing Soviet military strength and reiterated the United States places great expectations on the efforts to be made by Japan to strengthen its own defense power. The regular defense consultations were started in August 1975.

Review of Talks

[Excerpts] Tokyo, March 27 (KYODO) -- The United States proposed Saturday to discuss later this year what Japan has to do to protect its sealanes up to 1,000 miles from its coast, Japanese officials said. Japan, however, did not accept immediately the proposal which U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger made at a regular meeting of top defense officials of the two countries here, the officials said. Weinberger proposed the two countries discuss the issue at a scheduled working-level meeting of defense officials in Hawaii this summer.

During the two-hour meeting, Weinberger said he was interested in Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's remark in Washington last May that Japan will improve its defense capabilities to protect its territory, sea and airspace around and also sealanes up to 1,000 miles off its coast, the officials said. The Secretary of Defense also told the Japanese that the United States will deliver in Hawaii its views on defense capabilities Japan should possess for such a role, they said. If Japan gains enough sea and air capability, the United States is believed planning to switch the Seventh Fleet, now chiefly based in Japan, to the Indian Ocean.

Japan's Defense Agency Chief Soichiro Ito told the Americans that Japan has made efforts to increase defense spending, promote joint defense studies and to conduct joint practices with the United States, the officials said.

Weinberger told Japan the United States will have ties with China over a broad front, not only in defense, the officials said. They quoted Weinberger as saying that U.S.-China relations are important for Asian stability and peace. U.S. officials also explained the current state of U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks in Geneva, the officials said.

Japanese officials attending the meeting included Parliamentary Vice Minister of Defense Hisao Horinouchi, Administrative Vice Minister Toru Hara and Joint Staff Council Chairman Gen Tsugio Yata. Among the Americans were Assistant Secretary of Defense Francis J. West, Assistant Secretary Henry Catto and Lt Gen Charles Donnelly, commander of U.S. forces in Japan.

PANMUNJOM 'PROVOCATIONS' PROTESTED AT MAC MEETING

[Text] A meeting of security officers of the Military Armistice Commission [MAC] was held at Panmunjom on 26 March. At this meeting our side sternly protested the U.S. imperialists' criminal acts -- continuous provocations and violations against us in the Joint Security Area at Panmunjom -- and accused them of these acts.

According to the statement of the security officer of our side, at around 1133 on 9 March, when the 411th MAC meeting was in session, a rascal by the name of (Sabusa) from the U.S. aggressive forces, after walking around our staff member outside the conference room, approached him and behaved arrogantly and insolently, patting him on the shoulder, scowling at him, bringing his face close to him and coughing. Almost every day the same rascal made a gesture of striking with his fist and committed vile acts, thus in various ways preventing our security personnel from performing their routine duty.

While committing various provocations against our side in the Joint Security Area, the U.S. imperialists have continued to illegally introduce armed military personnel into this area. On 9 March the U.S. imperialist aggressors introduced 46 armed personnel into the Joint Security Area in excess of the designated number. They committed a total of 34 cases of such violations from 4 to 25 March. At around 0900 on 23 March, the U.S. imperialist aggressive rascals unhesitatingly committed a criminal act of introducing a machinegun and M-16 automatic rifle into a U.S. Army post northwest of the Joint Security Area.

Saying the U.S. imperialists' ceaseless, reckless provocations against us through the introduction of many armed personnel and automatic weapons are very ominous military movements, the security officer of our side sternly protested this and strongly urged the enemy side to take responsible steps to stop these acts. Instead of promising to implement our demand, the security officer of the enemy side, however, foolishly attempted to conceal their criminal acts by making excuses and shirking responsibility for these acts. The security officer of our side said the enemy cannot justify its criminal acts no matter what excuses it may use. He then said that, to ease tension created in the Joint Security Area and maintain security and order in this area, the reckless provocations and violations by the rascals from the U.S. imperialist aggressive forces should be brought to an end.

In conclusion, the security officer of our side stressed the U.S. imperialist aggressors should behave discreetly, clearly understanding that, if they traverse the road of heightening tension by continuously committing provocations and violations despite our repeated warnings, they will have to bear total responsibility for all consequences arising from this.

VRPR FLAYS WEINBERGER'S VISIT TO SOUTH KOREA

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] As has been reported, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who set out on a junket of war on 27 March, will visit South Korea shortly after touring Japan, his first stop. During his stay, he is expected to participate in the 14th South Korea-U.S. annual Security Consultative Meeting in Seoul.

As is known, it is reported that high on the agenda of the South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting are issues such as the modernization of the South Korean armed forces and military cooperation between South Korea and the United States. It is ominous that Weinberger, a planner and executioner of the U.S. war policy, will sneak into this land at a time when the U.S. imperialists are running wild to prepare for war on the Korean Peninsula.

Moreover, the forthcoming visit to South Korea by Weinberger is aimed at instigating the Chon Tu-hwan military regime, rejected at home and abroad and facing a crisis, handing over lethal weapons to the regime, inspiring a passion for war and accelerating preparations for a war of northward invasion.

The U.S. imperialists have recently handed over war equipment and modern weapons worth hundreds of millions of dollars to the Chon Tu-hwan military regime. And they are trying to hand over combat equipment and materials including F-16 fighter-bombers and A-10 close-support aircraft worth $2 billion. Under the cloak of a nonexistent threat of southward invasion, they are reinforcing U.S. forces in South Korea and the South Korean armed forces, while at the same time saying they should continue to support South Korea to protect the security of South Korea. They have been undertaking provocative war exercises such as the South Korea-U.S. joint exercise, "Team Spirit 1982." They are running wild to complete preparations for an all-out war on the Korean Peninsula. Consequently, they are scheming to accelerate preparations for a northward invasion war by helping the Chon Tu-hwan traitorous group overcome a political crisis and by instigating the group.

U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger's junket to South Korea is aimed at instigating aggressive war preparations. His forthcoming junket to South Korea is designed to quash the struggle against the United States and Chon Tu-hwan by patriotic masses of every walk of life who are opposing the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule and the Chon Tu-hwan dictatorial regime.

As shown by the recent fire at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan, because of the massacre in Kwangju -- which was committed at the instigation of the U.S. imperialists -- and the emergence of the murderous Chon Tu-hwan military regime, anti-U.S. sentiment among patriotic masses of every walk of life has been growing, and the anti-Chon Tu-hwan struggle has been intensified. The following are a few examples of anti-U.S. sentiment which has been rising among the patriotic masses of every walk of life: A fire at the U.S. Cultural Center in Kwangju that broke out immediately after the massacre in Kwangju; the anti-U.S. protest struggle by the families of detainees; and the patriotic student struggle against U.S. interference in our internal affairs and U.S. neocolonialism.

The antifascist democratization struggles waged by workers, youths and students, including recent cases involving the National Democratic Workers Union and the Union for the Struggle for Korean Democratization, show our people's struggle against Chon Tu-hwan is growing stronger. Feeling insecure about this anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-Hwan struggle, the U.S. imperialists are trying to pacify the rising anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan sentiment and frustrate their struggle by force of arms and by a war policy.

U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger's junket to South Korea is a criminal visit to achieve the goals of the U.S. imperialists. This notwithstanding, the U.S. imperialists cannot frustrate the powerful struggle of the people at home and abroad who aspire for peace and the peaceful reunification of Korea with any kind of aggressive maneuvers. They cannot keep the flames of the anti-U.S. and anti-Chon Tu-hwan democratic nation-saving resistance of our masses from spreading far and wide.

START OF 'TEAM SPIRIT' SECOND STAGE REPORTED

[Text] Pyongyang, March 29 (KCNA) -- With the criminal "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises entering into a full-scale operation stage, the U.S. Air Force and the South Korean puppet air force on March 26 conducted the so-called "largest-scale sortie operation" under the name of "building up the capacity for combined operation to cope with an emergency" and "keeping the combat readiness at the highest degree," according to a report.

The operation advertized by the puppets as "the largest ever in the history of air force exercises" was participated in by latest type aircraft and all the planes of the U.S. Air Force introduced into South Korea and the puppet air force. The airplanes of the U.S. imperialists and the puppets held the war exercise reminiscent of actual fighting in "a simulated attack on tanks, supply depots in the rear, positions, bridges, buildings and others."

Earlier, from March 24, the full-scale operation, the second stage of the "Team Spirit 1982" started in the whole area of South Korea: the ground, sea and sky. That day the U.S. imperialist aggression forces and the puppet forces held a "joint naval operation" in the east and south seas of South Korea, firing torpedoes. They transported troops and guns by helicopters and frantically fired guns in the area of the central sector of the front.

Mobilized in the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises in the second stage are an aircraft carrier battle group with the "Midway" belonging to the U.S. Seventh Fleet as a capital ship, the U.S. imperialist aggression troops already airlifted from bases in the U.S. mainland, Hawaii, Okinawa, the Philippines and other overseas bases, the puppet ground, naval and air forces and various kinds of new type weapons and equipment. In this stage "joint ground maneuvers," "largest-scale air force sortie exercise," "joint airtrooper exercise," "air base defence exercise," "landing operation" and "river-crossing exercise" will be reportedly held. According to another report, on March 26 the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan clique of traitors exhibited latest type aircraft and equipment participating in the "Team Spirt 1982" war exercises at five bases adjacent to major cities of South Korea and herded out people to see them, whipping up a war fever.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES U.S. 'TWO CHINAS' POLICY

[Text] Pyongyang, March 29 (KCNA) -- The scheme of certain reactionaries in the International Softball Federation to use the "national flag" and "national anthem" of Taiwan at the Fifth World Women's Softball Championships, ignoring the decision of the federation, is a grave infringement upon the sovereignty of the Chinese people and an open provocation intended to create "two Chinas" by openly recognizing Taiwan again as an "independent state," declares NODONG SINMUN today. Its signed commentary titled "Despicable Intrigue" says:

This is a wanton violation of the decision of the International Softball Federation and a criminal act to abuse sports for their sinister political aim. The Government of the People's Republic of China is the only legitimate government of China and Taiwan is a province of China. Accordingly, the Softball Association of Taiwan Province, a local area of China, is no more than a local sports organisation of the People's Republic of China.

Nevertheless, certain reactionaries in the International Softball Federation decided to use the "national flag" and "national anthem" of Taiwan at the Fifth World Women's Softball Championships, ignoring the decision of the federation. This is a grave infringement upon the sovereignty of the Chinese people and an impudent interference in the internal affairs of China. And this is also an open provocation intended to create "two Chinas" by openly recognising Taiwan again as an "independent state" contrary to the will and desire of the entire Chinese people by abusing the scheduled championships.

The Government of the People's Republic of China has consistently striven to have Taiwan returned to the motherland and reunify the whole nation and laid down numerous reasonable proposals for their realisation.

In September last year, Ye Jianying, chairman of the Standing Committee of the National People's Congress of China, reaffirmed the nine-point principle and policy indicating ways of peaceful reunification such as talks on the equal footing and the third collaboration between the Communist Party of China and the Kuomintang of China for the reunification of the country, and mutual visits, postal exchange, academic, cultural and sports interchanges between all nationalities on both sides of the Taiwan Straits and firm guarantee of the interests of the Taiwan authorities and personages of various circles after reunification.

This is a most righteous principle reflecting the ardent desire and basic interests of the entire Chinese people for the reunification of the country. This clearly proved that the peaceful reunification of the divided country is the immovable policy of the party and Government of China.

The anti-China manoeuvres of the Americans in the International Softball Federation, abusing the planned championships, are a deliberate act for laying another hurdle in the way of the Chinese people's cause of reunification.

Our people denounce the U.S. scheme to create "two Chinas" and express full support to and firm solidarity with the fraternal Chinese peoples just cause of having Taiwan returned to the homeland and reunifying the whole country. The reactionaries in the International Softball Federation must immediately give up the despicable scheme to create "two Chinas" by abusing sports.

VRPR HITS SOUTH UNIFICATION MINISTER'S STATEMENT

SK261050 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 26 Mar 82

[Text] Today Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik again issued a statement to the North urging a North-South high-level representatives' meeting.

It is the biggest mockery and blasphemy to the sacred cause of national reunification for the Chon Tu-hwan ring -- the peerless murderer and splittist -- to clamor about peaceful reunification, an important national issue. Before talking about peaceful reunification, the Chon Tu-hwan ring should apologize for its crime of massacring thousands of patriotic citizens in Kwangju who demanded democracy and reunification and unconditionally acquit Kim Tae-chung and democratic figures and patriots now imprisoned.

The Chon Tu-hwan ring should stop anticommunist commotions and preparations for a northward invasion, have the U.S. troops withdraw from South Korea and stop trying to arrest the patriots in Pusan who set fire to the U.S. Cultural Center. The Chon Tu-hwan ring should stop doing silly things while babbling about the North-South talks to mislead public opinion at home and abroad and escape a crisis. It should step down from power in accord with the people's demand.

CPRF ISSUES STATEMENT ON CHON ASSASSINATION PLOT

[Statement issued 26 March by the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland [CPRF] -- read by announcer]

[Text] The real status of the so-called international assassination conspiracy clamorously spouted by the South Korean puppets recently is being exposed more clearly every day. We have repeatedly made it clear that the assassination conspiracy plotted by the South Korean puppets is nothing but a calumny against our republic aimed at inspiring anticommunist confrontation and crushing the overseas mass movement.

Our position has been more clearly reaffirmed by the fact that compatriot Choe Chung-hwan, now staying in Europe and reportedly involved in the incident, made public at a press conference some time ago his knowledge about the incident.

According to a report, compatriot Choe Chung-hwan, repeatedly clarifying that he has neither conspired with anyone to assassinate Chon Tu-hwan nor received operational funds from the North to be given to certain Canadians, denounced the South Korean ruling faction's persecution and slander of overseas mass movement fighters including himself and his father, Choe Hong-hui, who have nothing to do with the case.

He emphatically said if there was any assassination plot against traitor Chon Tu-hwan, it was cooked up by a high-ranking figure within the puppet ruling circles in collusion with foreigners, or else the South Korean authorities fabricated the plot with wicked and treacherous aims, just as happened in the assassination of Pak Chong-hui in October 1979. He presented new evidence proving that the Canadian figure, who was arrested by Canadian police on charge of involvement in the incident and released on bail, conspired with elements connected with high-ranking officials of the incumbent South Korean authorities to assassinate traitor Chon Tu-hwan and received operational funds from them.

With this, the truth of the slanderous rackets viciously waged by South Korean puppets, preposterously linking them with us and democratic overseas figures, was brought to light. The nonsensical rackets by the South Korean puppets linking the so-called international assassination conspiracy to us are laughable, just like someone who was beaten up inside a house making threatening gestures after he goes outside.

The South Korean puppets, preposterously linking what they fabricated with us and democratic overseas figures, kicked up a frenzy. Their aims are clear. They are attempting to instill in the people a sense of confrontation and deepen the division. They are trying to foster confrontation and division between fellow coutnrymen by creating antagonisms within the nation in such a way as to preposterously drag other people into their own disputes. They are also foolishly attempting to frustrate the antifascist movement for democracy and the spirit of collaboration with communists, which are rapidly growing overseas.

Embarrassed by the fact that the aspiration for democracy and desire to visit the republic are growing among overseas compatriots in recent years and that support for our reasonable reunification proposal is intensifying, the Chon Tu-hwan clique has been desperately scheming to suppress them. However, unable to do as it wants, it shamelessly brought its internal dispute into the open and tried to link this plot to innocent people, thus scheming to create anxiety among overseas compatriots. The maneuvers by the South Korean fascist clique only show that the national reconciliation, unification and so forth raved about by them are all falsehoods aimed at creating unrest.

The Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland sternly denounces with surging indignation the slanderous rackets by the South Korean fascist clique which is spreading fictitious propaganda by preposterously linking the so-called international assassination conspiracy with us. This is an antinational criminal act to create more serious obstacles on the road to the nation's peaceful reunification.

Terrorism and assassination are characteristic phenomena of South Korean society which adopts the law of the jungle as its principle for living and a basic practice of the South Korean puppets who are unscrupulous about the methods they use to realize their political ambitions.

The 15 years of the Syngman Rhee dictatorship, 18 years of the Pak Chong-hui fascist regime and the incumbent murderous Chon Tu-hwan regime are stained with the blood of terrorism and assassination. The Syngman Rhee regime in July 1947 killed by terrorism Yo Un-yong, president of the Working People's Party, on the charge of calling for peaceful reunification and opposing outside forces. In June 1949, it killed by terrorism Kim Ku, who returned after attending the historic North-South joint conference. In May 1956 it killed with poison Sin Ik-hui, the presidential candidate of the Democratic Party who was popular among the people in the wake of the presidential election, and in July 1959 brutally killed Cho Pong-am, president of the Progressive Party, who called for antifascism, anti-imperialism and peaceful reunification.

From the first day of usurping power in the 16 May military coup to his end, traitor Pak Chong-hui, the former dictator, adhered to terrorist acts. He killed Cho Yong-su, president of MINJOK ILBO, Comrade Kim Chong-tae and Choe Yong-to, leaders of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification, Prof Choe Chong-kil and Chang Chun-ha. He is the ringleader of all horrible incidents including the Mun Se-kwang incident, the Kim Tae-chung abduction incident and Kim Hyong-uk terrorism incident.

Traitor Chon Tu-hwan, usurping the power of the fascist dictatorship after the former dictator who lived by terrorist was killed by terrorism, is a most vicious fascist terrorist and human butcher committing barbarous massacre in a more cruel and violent manner than his predecessors. The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique came to power after brutally massacring tens of thousands of Kwangju citizens who were staging peaceful demonstrations advocating democracy and peaceful reunification. By mobilizing the puppet armed forces, it committed most serious murders in the shortest time in South Korea.

The notorious human butchers openly perpetrated political terrorist acts by illegally arresting all their political rivals including Kim Tae-chung and assassinated a number of democratic figures and patriots, famous or unheralded. The murderers extended their terrorist acts even to the overseas compatriots. They dispatched agents and armed hooligans to Argentina to commit terrorism against Choe Hong-hui, president of the International Taekwondo League who was attending the Third International Taekwondo Championship series. However, their conspiracy was uncovered in advance.

All facts show that the South Korean puppets are murderous devils who adopt terrorism and assassination as their profession and that they are the genuine criminals behind all massacres. A filthy struggle and competition for power is being waged within this group of m rderers. Traitor Chon Tu-hwan maneuvered to systematically discharge those who appeared to be his rivals from the armed forces and posted them in powerless positions. Thus, discord and trouble are becoming more serious.

The so-called assassination conspiracy they put forward of late is a result of the internal power struggle in the incumbent South Korean ruling faction. A sharp or pointed tool cannot be hidden in a handkerchief.

Our people will never tolerate the acts of the South Korean fascist clique which creates obstacles to national unity and the nation's peaceful reunification by waging anticommunist rackets. The Chon Tu-hwan clique should discontinue acts of national treachery adhering to anticommunist calumny, such as maneuvering to scheme the nation's permanent division. It should immediately step down from power before it faces stern punishment by the judgment of history in accord with the unanimous demand of compatriots at home and abroad. The fascist elements can never crush the democratization movement and the spirit of collaboration with communists which are growing among compatriots abroad.

We express the firm believe that the South Korean people and overseas compatriots, looking straight at the real state of affairs, will sternly denounce the Chon Tu-hwan clique pursuing North-South confrontation and the nation's permanent division and will more courageously follow the sacred and patriotic road for democracy and peaceful reunification.

LATE REPORT: SR-71 'INFILTR'TION' PROTESTED

[Text] The U.S. imperialist aggressors have perpetrated espionage activities by infiltrating the SR-71 spy plane into the air above the eastern and western territories of our country. The U.S. imperialist aggressors, straining the situation by staging frenzied war exercise rackets reminiscent of those on the eve of a war, again infiltrated the SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance plane deep into the air above the Kangnyong Peninsula, southwest of South Hwanghae Province, at 0823 on the morning of 29 March.

Thus, they perpetrated a grave military provocation by committing espionage activities against the northern half of the republic.

Prior to this, at 0803, the rascals infiltrated the SR-71 spy plane into the sky within the military boundary, east of Kosong, Kangwon Province. Such espionage activities by the U.S. imperialists are becoming extremely rude and arrogant with the instigation of the war preparation maneuvers by the U.S. imperialist aggressors and the puppet army into a more adventurous stage by warmonger U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger, who sneaked into South Korea.

The cases of espionage activities by the U.S. imperialist aggressors in infiltrating the spy plane deep into the air above the western and eastern territories of our country number some 19 times in March. This clearly shows that the new war provocation maneuvers by the U.S. imperialist aggressors in Korea are entering a dangerous stage.

Our people are closely watching the powder-reeking military exercise rackets by the U.S. imperialist aggressors in South Korea, simulating an attack on the northern half of the republic, and their continued air espionage activities against our country.

If the U.S. imperialist aggressors do not stop the military provocations against the northern half of the republic in defiance of our people's repeated warnings, the rascals will be held entirely responsible for the consequences arising therefrom. The bellicose U.S. imperialists should not misconstrue our people's patience in pursuing peace.

WEINBERGER ARRIVES; SECURITY MEETING OPENS

[Text] Seoul, March 29 (YONHAP) -- The fourth annual meeting of the Korea-U.S. Military Committee opened Monday morning here at the Defense Ministry building, signalling the start of the 14th Security Consultative Meeting between Korea and the United States to be held Tuesday and Wednesday.

The meeting, jointly presided over by Republic of Korea Army Gen. Yun Song-min, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and his American counterpart Air Force Gen. David Jones, was closed to the press. The outcome of the committee meeting will be reported to the plenary session of the security consultative meeting Tuesday.

The Korea-U.S. Military Committee was established in 1978 during the 11th Security Consultative Meeting in San Diego to provide strategic guidelines for the Combined Forces Command.

Meanwhile, U.S. Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger flew into Seoul Sunday afternoon to lead the U.S. delegation to the annual security talks. In a brief arrival statement, he said that "Korea and the United States meet each other as equal partners, whose mutual interests in peace and freedom have helped to insure stability and progress in northeast Asia."

TONG-A ILBO Views Conference

[Editorial: "ROK-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting"]

[Text] The 14th annual ROK-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting is to be held on 30 and 31 March in Seoul. U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger will arrive here, via Japan, to attend a meeting of military leaders from the ROK and United States which will review the situation in Asia and the Pacific, including the Korean Peninsula, assess a plan to modernize the ROK armed forces, improve conditions for repayment of U.S. foreign military sales credit to the ROK and discuss enhancing joint ROK-U.S. defense capabilities.

The meeting, to be held at a time when "Team Spirit 1982" is continuing, proves that ROK-U.S. relations in the military field are as solid as ever. Despite a rice scandal which erupted some 20 days ago and an arson case at the U.S. Cultral Center in Pusan, to the great concern of the American Embassy here, ROK-U.S. relations were unaffected. The rice scandal charges were groundless, and the Pusan fire was seen as an act committed by impure elements.

Friendly relations between the two countries are urged in light of the centennial of U.S.-Korean relations. We are proud to say that the military ties between the two countries are strong and based on mutual trust. As Weinberger might have confirmed while stopping over in Japan, U.S.-Japan military relations are not smooth. Japan's refusal to increase defense spending, not to mention the fact that the United States suffers a $16-billion trade deficit with Japan, are major problems. U.S.-NATO relations are not smooth. NATO's reluctance to agree to more defense outlays and deployment in Europe of U.S. nuclear weapons are straining those ties.

No such issues cloud relations between the ROK and the United States. To prove this, U.S. Vice President George Bush will visit Seoul in April. This will be followed by a visit by Secretary of State Alexander Haig. Promotion of relations between the two countries is good for the security of the west Pacific and the ROK.

We have no doubt that the friendly relations between the two countries will continue. We would note a few things on the occasion of Secretary Weinberger's visit.

It is hoped that the secretary will confirm how belligerent the communist North Korea Kim Il-song group is. He will have a chance to see a piece of the poplar tree from the very site where 6 years ago U.S. soldiers were butchered by axe-wielding North Korean communists. He will gain a better picture of North Korea's military strength, about which commander John Wickham of the U.S. forces in Korea testified a month ago before the House Armed Services Committee. With North Korea enjoying a two to one military superiority over the ROK, the United States should seek ways to deal with this. U.S. foreign military sales credits offered to the ROK should be rearranged so as to reach the levels of credit offered to Israel, and the ROK defense system should be institutionalized in a NATO-type support system. It is hoped that relations between the two allies will be cemented on the occasion of Secretary Weinberger's visit.

KOREA TIMES Hails Bush Visit

[Editorial: "U.S. Vice President Here"]

[Text] We are pleased to hear that a noted U.S. political figure is to visit Korea soon to meet with government and political leaders here, helping to solidify the existing relations between the two countries.

According to a press release made simultaneously in Seoul and Washington, U.S. Vice President George Bush will make an official visit to Seoul in late April at the invitation of Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun. The detailed itinerary of his Seoul trip has yet to be decided on. It is understood, however, that Bush's visit here will be part of his Asian-Pacific tour, which will take him to Japan, Singapore, New Zealand and Australia.

We attach particular significance to the visit here by the U.S. vice president this year, which marks the centennial of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries on May 22, while reaffirming the close and abiding friendship between them in this phase of international developments in Asia and elsewhere in the world.

It was immediately revealed that the U.S. vice president would pay a courtesy call on President Chon Tu-hwan and talk with him on increased cooperation in all fields, with particular emphasis on the political and defense sectors under the current domestic and international circumstances in this part of Asia.

It is our firm belief that the U.S. leader, while here, will confirm the position of South Korea toward Pyongyang as was eloquently indicated by President Chon's new peace formula for democratic unification through national reconciliation, despite ever-ominous signs of armed challenge from the other part of the divided country.

Even amid the tense South-North confrontation on the Korean Peninsula, the government and people in the republic have gone all out to maintain political and social stability, passing through turbulent national politics during the past. Indications are also that economic restoration is in sight, thanks to pan-national efforts to tide over an unprecedented economic ordeal in the transitional phase.

There is no doubt that U.S. Vice President Bush will be particularly impressed by our unfaltering efforts to achieve a second take-off in the economic domain in the current decade of the 1980's toward the attainment of an advanced national status in the international community in the foreseeable future.

On the occasion of the centennial of Korea-U.S. diplomatic relations, we strongly believe that the two long-time allies will step up their close bonds in all fields based on reciprocity, doing away with the previously vertical relationship.

We recall that the U.S. administration led by President Ronald Reagan confirmed its intention to retract the controversial scheme to withdraw the American troops from South Korea on the occasion of the Korea-U.S. summit talks held in Washington in February last year.

During his brief visit here, the U.S. vice president will be reminded that the United States has no other choice but to retain its troops in South Korea as part of the conventional U.S. security commitment in accordance with the existing defense treaty between the two countries.

So as to display the resolute security position as a deterrent against North Korea, the combined Korea-U.S. forces are currently undertaking a grand military training exercise known as "Team Spirit 1982" which will last until sometime next month.

The visiting U.S. administrator will certainly grasp what is really going on here concerning to the high morale among the Korean armed forces in their readiness to fight any aggressive force from the North, thus discouraging any conceivable miscalculation of our war potential side by side with the U.S. contingent in Korea.

He will also be well informed that the government and people here feel grateful probably more than any other people in the world for what they owe the United States for our brilliant achievements in nation-building thus far.

CHON OBSERVES 'SSANGYONG 17' LANDING DRILLS

[Text] East Coast base, Korea, March 29 (YONHAP) -- The largest ever Korea-U.S. joint landing operations were conducted at a eastern coastal base Sunday morning as part of the ongoing military exercises "Team Spirit 1982."

President Chon Tu-hwan watched the exercises with National Assembly Speaker Chong Nae-hyok and Defense Minister Chu Yong-pok and top Korean military brass.

The landing drills, dubbed "Ssangyong (Twin Dragons) 17," were also observed by U.S. Ambassador to Korea Richard Walker and Adm. Robert Long, commander-in-chief of the U.S. Forces Pacific Command.

About 20,000 Korean and U.S. marines took part in the drill along with 56 warships, led by the aircraft carrier Midway, and hundreds of aircraft, including F15's, F4G's and A4's.

HENG SAMRIN SENDS MESSAGE GREETING VCP CONGRESS

[Text] Phnom Penh, 27 Mar (SPK) -- On the occasion of the Fifth Congress of the VCP, Chairman Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee, on behalf of the Kampuchean party, working class and people sent his warmest greetings to the Vietnamese working class, people and communist party. The message, addressed to the congress, said:

Carrying on the cause of the Indochinese Communist Party -- the prime mover of the working class parties in the Indochinese Peninsula -- the VCP, founded and forged by President Ho Chi Minh, has for nearly 53 years led the Vietnamese people through numerous difficulties and trials, thus writing new pages in the 4,000-year-history of the heroic Vietnamese people for the defense and construction of the country.

The Vietnamese people's great successes over the French colonialists, U.S. imperialism and the two wars of aggression of Beijing hegemonism-expansionism in collusion with U.S. imperialism -- successes won at the cost of great sacrifices -- are a contribution to the cause of the world's peoples fighting against the imperialists for liberation, peace, independence and socialism, successes which have weakened the imperialist forces and increased the forces of socialism, thus contributing to a change in the relations of forces in the world.

The epic of the Vietnamese people, through feats and experience, reflects the invincibility of Marxism-Leninism and the political line which consists of holding aloft the banner of national independence and socialism. It is the experience of the importance of the internationalist policy adopted by a communist party in power and of the great force of a people who fight for the just cause. The epic of the Vietnamese people constitutes a brilliant example of revolutionary heroism, loyalty and actions animated by a pure internationalist solidarity.

The Fifth VCP Congress occurs at a time when the situation inside the country and in the world is favorable, but when there are still enormous difficulties caused by the Chinese hegemonist-expansionists colluding with the U.S. imperialists.

We are convinced that, guided by the clear-sighted resolutions of this present congress, the struggle-hardened VCP will lead the heroic Vietnamese people to carry out well their noble tasks toward the country as well as their internationalist duties in contribution to the revolutionary cause of the three Indochinese peoples and to the revolutionary movement in the world.

During these last decades Vietnam and Kampuchea have helped each other on three occasions and together won victories in the struggle against common enemies.

On 7 January 1979, with the resolute assistance of the heoric Vietnam People's Army, our people toppled the genocidal regime, a monstrous offspring of Maoism. During the past 3 years, following their miraculous rebirth and thanks to the devoted assistance of the Vietnamese children, working class, people and workers, our people have achieved one important success after another in all fields. The Kampuchean revolution is advancing firmly following the line of national defense and construction through a period of transition toward socialism. The Kampuchean people are now living in happiness, independence and freedom.

Our party and our people all over the country have clearly understood that these successes are attributable to the immense sacrifice made in blood by the fraternal Vietnamese people and to the bonds which unite the revolutions of the three Indochinese countries and result from the progress of the revolutionary movements in the world.

At present, our people are mobilizing all their physical and moral forces to carry out successfully the tasks defined by the Fourth KPRP Congress: to firmly defend independence, rebuild the fatherland and advance toward socialism through the period of transition.

Born out of struggle and destined for a brilliant future, our party and our people would like to stress that solidarity with Vietnam is a lasting fundamental strategy and a factor for stability and progress of the PRK. We would also like to stress that the alliance and cooperation of the three Indochinese peoples constitute a vital necessity for the common revolutionary cause in this peninsula just as the alliance and all-sided cooperation with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries constitute the bases of our party's foreign policy.

We are very proud of the great successes that have been recorded and confident in the brilliant future of the revolutionary cause of the Kampuchean people, of the three Indochinese peoples and of the communist and workers movement in the world.

Once again, we wish your congress brilliant successes.

KAMPUCHEA WELCOMES VCP CONGRESS SUCCESS

BK271223 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0405 GMT 27 Mar 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 26 Mar (SPK) -- The journal KAMPUCHEA issued today dedicated its editorial to the Fifth Congress of the VCP, comrade-in-arms of the Kampuchean people in the past as well as at present, particularly in the toppling of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique and in the struggle against the other reactionaries to contribute to peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

The central organ of the front hailed the VCP which was founded and forged by President Ho Chi Minh into an authentic Marxist-Leninist party clear-sighted in the struggle for national liberation, a part of class struggle for more than half a century, a solid party and a party imbued with proletarian internationalism. The journal went on to say:

Leading the movement of struggle for more than 50 years, the VCP took stock of each stage of the revolution and knew how to draw lessons from its successes as well as its shortcomings in order to consolidate its organization, to wisely apply the theory to practice and to define correct and effective strategies and tactics which have brought successive victories to the revolution.

Each congress of the VCP marks a historic stage of the Vietnamese people's revolutionary struggle in particular, and of the Inchinese revolutionary movement in general, as geographic, historic and political factors have bound the Kampuchea, Vietnamese and Lao peoples in a ncessary alliance.

After recalling the various congresses of the VCP since its founding, the journal went on to say:

Many events have marked the period between the fourth congress and this one. The imperialists were driven out of Vietnamese territory, but the destruction caused by the war and the consequences of the former regime in the south of the country are considerable. Chinese expansionism and its lackeys -- the hangmen of so-called Democratic Kampuchea -- waged a two-sided war in the north and the southwest of Vietnam. In the face of this situation, the VCP mobilized the people and its militants to do their best to implement the program of socialist construction throughout the country while coordinating its efforts with those of the KPRP to check the genocide in Kampuchea and lay the first founding stones for stability and peace in the Indochinese Peninsula and Southeast Asia.

The party, government and people of Kampuchea welcome with joy the convening of the Fifth Congress of the VCP which will define the next steps of Vietnam's new revolutionary stage. The Kampuchean revolution will have a good opportunity to learn from the important lessons drawn by the Vietnamese revolution regarding the realities in Kampuchea in order to promote our revolutionary labor.

The journal KAMPUCHEA concluded by wishing the congress of the Vietnamese communists complete success.

HENG SAMRIN SENDS MESSAGE TO INDIAN CP CONGRESS

BK281044 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1441 GMT 27 Mar 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 27 Mar (SPK) -- On the occasion of the 12th Congress of the Communist Party of India [CPI], General Secretary of the KPRP Central Committee Heng Samrin sent his warm greetings to it. The message said, among other things:

SPK: THAI LEADERS LEADING PEOPLE TO DESTRUCTION

[SPK commentary: "Some Irrefutable Evidence"]

[Text] Phnom Penh, 25 Mar (SPK) -- The Foreign Ministry of the People's Republic of Kampuchea has just provided world public opinion irrefutable evidence on the intensification of the Thai authorities' hostile acts against Kampuchea from its liberation from the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime.

Documents gathered by the Kampuchean Foreign Ministry in a white book made public at the end of last week reveals Thai involvement in the scheme pursued by the Chinese expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists to harm Kampuchea. They authoritatively refute the Thai authorities' assertions of neutrality toward our country. Far from being neutral, Bangkok openly plays a principal role in the realization of Beijing's ignoble maneuvers in the region.

The white book shows that Tahi authorities are not only intensifying their activities in the political field but also increase their military actions against the PRK.

In the political field, Bangkok no longer hides its collusion with the Chinese expansionists in working for the formation of a so-called coalition of reactionary Kampucheans, with the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan criminals at its head, aimed at imposing a new war on our people and restoring the pro-Chinese genocidal regime. Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila, during his visit to France in April 1981, declared that we (Thailand) hope that Son Sann and other groups join together under the umbrella of Democratic Kampuchea (synonymous with genocide and with the barbarous massacre of millions of our compatriots -- men and women, young and old). The efforts of Bangkok politicians in this sense are no longer a secret to anyone. The Thai capital became the meeting place after Singapore, of the Pol Pot criminals and the reactionaries of the Sihanouk and Son Sann gangs. Bangkok even brought great pressure to bear on these puppets to oblige them to agree on the form of the coalition and the choice of a chief for the gangs.

The white book also produces documents, photos, maps...attesting to the support and supply of the Pol Pot remnant troops by the Thai authorities, and their efforts, as early as 1979, toward the creation of reactionary Kampuchean political organizations such as the provisional Sereika government for the liberation of the Khmer republic, whose chief was a former mercenary in Lon Nol's service and who maintained close relations with the Thai and U.S. secret services. He was arrested, with 17 members of his government, and prosecuted by the Phnom Penh people's revolutionary tribunal in June 1980. Other high-ranking officers of the Lon Nol puppet army arrested by the PRK's security services also confessed that, under the direction of the Thai and U.S. secret services, they acted to topple the people's power in concert with elements sponsored by Beijing.

Thai armed acts consist of the setting up and defense of Pol Pot bases in the Thai-Kampuchea border region, maneuvers to support terrorist acts, mainly by Pol Pot troops -- aerial reconnaissance, shellings, troop intrusions into Kampuchean territory.... According to statistics which are not yet complete, Thai planes entered Kampuchean airspace 527 times, Thai artillery fired on Kampuchean territory 6,958 times, reactionaries quartered in Thailand crossed the border to wage terrorist activities in Kampuchea 360 times and Thai boats violated Kampuchean territorial waters 5,176 times. At the end of December 1981, they assailed a Kampuchean coast guard and captured its crew. On 11 and 14 February, the Thais fired chemical shells into Phnum Malai (Kampuchea) poisoning many civilians.

In its anti-Kampuchean policy, Bangkok also takes advantage of international humanitarian aid to aid and supply Pol Pot remnant troops. It uses the refugees to nourish the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan-Son Sann-Sihanouk gangs....

In the face of evidence, Bangkok cannot shout its innocence. It placed itself at the service of the French colonialists and later of the U.S. imperialists in their aggressions against the Indochinese peoples. At present it offers its good offices to the Chinese expansionists. How far do the Thai authorities want to go? Why do they sacrifice the interests of the Thai people for an expansionist and hegemonist power? Have some Thai and ASEAN influential circles not warned Prem Tinsulanon's government against its increasingly stronger ties with Beijing's policy?

Letting bygones be bygones and always displaying its good will, the PRK has many times extended. [sentence as received] Recently the PRK has renewed its good will by proposing the creation of a demilitarized zone under a form of international supervision in order to ensure security in the Kampuchean-Thai border zone.... With Vietnam and Laos, the PRK is ready to examine and support any initiative, whatever the source, for the purpose of stabilising the situation along this border. Our three countries are also ready to discuss with Thailand all questions of common interests -- directly, indirectly, bilaterally or between the three Indochinese countries and Thailand. And these contacts are not in any way linked to the question of mutual recognition, de facto or de jure. Some independent observers found these proposals difficult to decline since they are so reasonable.

Beijing's expansionist and hegemonist strategy against the Indochinese countries are without doubt doomed to fail. The history of the Indochinese peoples' resistance against foreign aggression is still fresh. By closing their eyes to reality and by playing the Chinese expansionists' game, Thai leaders lead their own people to their destruction.

PRK MINISTRY WARNS THAILAND ON OIL EXPLORATION

[Text] Phnom Penh, 29 Mar (SPK) -- Today the PRK Foreign Ministry made public a declaration denouncing the illegal activities of Thailand and Thai companies with regard to oil exploitation on the PRK's continental shelf.

The full text of the declaration is as follows:

According to the issue of BUSINESS REVIEW magazine published on 23 February 1982, the "Idemitsu" oil expoloitation company of Thailand, which actually holds 50 percent of the shares of the Amoco company, has obtained from this latter company the oil concession for lots B-5 and B-6 in the Gulf of Thailand -- areas which lie on the PRK's continental shelf.

The activities described by the magazine in question are absolutely illegal because they violate the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the maritime zone and continental shelf of the PRK. The PRK has sufficient historic and legal grounds to affirm that the so-called B-5 and B-6 zones, as well as a number of other zones in the Gulf of Thailand as they were raised [soulevces] by Thailand, are all situated on the PRK's continental shelf.

In the future as in the past the PRK always adheres to the principle of resolving all problems related to its maritime zone and continental shelf through negotiations based on mutual respect for independence and sovereignty and in conformity with international laws and customers. Nevertheless the PRK is firmly determined to defend its sovereignty, territorial integrity and its rights concerning the natural resources in its maritime zone and continental shelf.

The Foreign Ministry of the People's Republic of Kampuchea vigorously denounces all the above-mentioned activities of Thailand and its companies in their search for oil, which are completely illegal, and draws their attention to the fact that any foreign company which searches for oil on the Kampuchean continental shelf without the PRK's permission will be responsible for all consequences which may arise from their illegal actions.

JAPANESE RELIEF DELEGATION VISITS DK 23-25 MAR

[Text] On the afternoon of 23 March 1982, a delegation from the Japanese Relief Program for Kampuchea led by Sister (Elisabeth Sherman) visited our Democratic Kampuchea. The delegation has two other members: Mr (Meraya Mayashodiyo) and Mr (Kishi Yoschi).

On the evening of the same day Mrs Ieng Thirith, minister of social affairs and chairman of the Democratic Kampuchean Red Cross, met and held talks with the delegation at an office of the Democratic Kampuchean Government. Chorn Hay, secretary of state of the ministry of telecommunications; Mey Mann, second vice chairman of the Democratic Kampuchean Red Cross; and a number of Democratic Kampuchean Red Cross cadres were also present during this talk.

During its 2 night- and 3-day stay in our Democratic Kampuchea, the delegation paid a visit to people's villages, a place prepared for the building of a monastery, schools, laboratory, hospital and village for disabled combatants. The guests were very elated to see the people living peacefully and had the impression that, contrary to outside propaganda, this area is quiet.

Upon their arrival the guests handed a quantity of medicines to the Democratic Kampuchean Red Cross as part of a special program for villagers. It was noted that every month this Japanese mass organization, called the Japanese Relief Program for Kampuchea, has handed over medicines, seeds and so forth to assist our Kampuchean people who were forced to flee their native villages to settle in the jungles due to the untold barbarous massacre committed by the Vietnamese enemies.

The delegation successfully ended its visit on the afternoon of 25 March 1982, and safely returned to Japan.

GREETINGS MESSAGES, EDITORIAL HAIL VCP CONGRESS

LPRP Greetings

BK270308 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 GMT 27 Mar 82

[Greetings message from LPRP Central Committee to Fifth VCP Congress -- dated 26 March]

[Text] Dear Comrades:

On behalf of the Lao communists and laboring people, the LPRP Central Committee extends fraternal salutations and warm, cordial greetings to the delegates to the congress and, through the congress, to the communists and laboring people of the SRV.

Inheriting the glorious revolutionary cause of the Indochinese Communist Party, the VCP has led the Vietnamese people to wage a struggle beset with countless difficulties and tests. It has made great sacrifices in this persistent struggle and scored great successes, exposing the total bankruptcy of colonialism, signalling the inevitable collapse of neocolonialism and dealing a heavy blow to the Beijing hegemonistic expansionists' intentions of aggression and annexation. At the same time, it has won many successes in economic construction and cultural development and in daily improving the people's living conditions, thus contributing to the strengthening of might of the socialist community and giving vigorous encouragement to the movements of peace, national independence, democracy and social progress of the various nations in the world.

In their fierce and uncompromising confrontation with the international reactionary alliance which is the most dangerous alliance of the era, the Vietnamese people have, enhancing the heroic and stanch cause of a nation which cherishes independence and freedom and loyal to their obligations to their fraternal comrades, assisted the Kampuchean people in rising up to overthrow a genocidal regime, restore and build a new life and safeguard and develop the gains of their revolution. This has strengthened and consolidated the traditional solidarity among the three Indochinese countries and firmly safeguarded the outpost of socialism in this part of the world.

The new successes of Vietnam in checking expansionism, exposing the true reactionary and traitorous nature of Maoism and in defending the truth of Marxism-Leninism as well as their many valuable lessons in leading the country to directly advance to socialism, from being a colonialized and economically underdeveloped country, testify to the fact that the VCP, the great President Comrade Ho Chi Minh's glorious and honorable party, deserves to be a staunch unit of the international communist and workers movement. They prove the invincible strength and rich, constructive capability of the heroic Vietnamese people.

The LPRP and the Lao people wholeheartedly salute the glorious successes of the VCP and the Vietnamese people and regard them as their own. We firmly believe that under the beacon of the congress -- a congress of the solidarity and unity of the cause of revolutionary offensive, and with their collective intelligence, the Vietnamese people will continue to firmly advance to new heights in the cause of building and defending the socialist fatherland and in carrying out their lofty international obligations.

In their hard and protracted cause of national liberation and in their complex struggle against the expansionists, the imperialists and other reactionary forces for the defense and construction of the LPDR, the Lao people have always had the VCP as their staunch and reliable comrade and the Vietnamese people as their loyal brothers always standing by their side with and giving support and assistance to the Lao people.

On behalf of the Lao party and people, we would like to express profound gratitude for this great and valuable assistance. The Lao people are extremely proud of the splendid development of the special relations, solidarity and all-round cooperation between Laos and Vietnam in the new phase of the revolution. This serves as a guarantee for the inevitable success of the cause of defending and building socialism in each country. Fully acknowledging the vital relations, the LPRP and the Lao people will do their utmost to safeguard and further develop the special relationship between our two countries so that it will further grow and last forever.

May the congress achieve glorious success:

Long live the special relations, militant solidarity and all-round cooperation between the two parties and countries!

May the great President Ho Chi Minh live forever in the revolutionary cause and special solidarity between our two parties and countries!

Long live invincible Marxism-Leninism!

LFNC Greetings

[Greetings message from Central Committee of Lao Front for National Construction to Vietnam fatherland front committee -- dated 27 March]

[Text] On the occasion of the convening of the Fifth Congress of the glorious VCP, the Lao Front for National Construction [LFNC] Central Committee and the Lao people of all tribes extend warm salutations and best wishes to the Vietnam fatherland front and the fraternal Vietnamese people of all tribes.

The Fifth VCP Congress is a very important political and historic event in the political life of the Vietnamese people of all tribes. It will mobilize all the intelligence and bright minds of the entire party, army and people of heroic Vietnam in the cause of building socialism throughout the country. It also constitutes a vigorous encouragement for the Lao people in their enthusiastic emulation to score achievements to welcome the forthcoming third LPRP congress.

The Lao people of all tribes are joyful and proud to see that during the past year the fraternal Vietnamese people -- side by side with the Lao and Kampuchean peoples -- recorded great achievements in many respects in the cause of building and defending the SRV. The Vietnamese people's victories in defeating two wars of aggression launched by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists along Vietnam's southwestern and northern borders were not only for the safeguarding of its independence and sovereignty, but they also constitute direct and effective contributions to the defense of the revolutionary gains of the Lao and Kampuchean peoples, in the interest of peace and stability in this region and the rest of the world.

The victories of the Vietnamese people are attributable to the wise and creative leadership of the gallant VCP, which is an important part of the international communist movement. The VCP has always arduously and patiently struggled for national interests and for the interest of the world revolutionary movement. At present, under the correct and clearsighted leadership of the VCP, the fraternal heroic Vietnamese people are winning new and greater successes in their socialist construction cause.

Having shared weal and woe with the fraternal Vietnamese people throughout the previous revolutionary periods, the Lao people wholeheartedly hail the successes and regard them as their own.

On this auspicious occasion, the LFNC and the Lao people of all tribes once again extend their best wishes to the Vietnam fatherland front committee and, through it, to the Fifth VCP Congress and the fraternal Vietnamese people of all tribes. May the special solidarity and friendship and the fraternal all-round cooperation between the two fronts and peoples of Laos and Vietnam grow and blossom with each passing day.

SIANG PASASONG Editorial

[SIANG PASASONG 27 Mar editorial: "Wholeheartedly Salute the Fifth Congress of the Vietnamese Communist Party"]

[Text] Today the Fifth Congress of the VCP is being majestically convened in Hanoi, the capital of the SRV. This congress is a significant event in the political life of the Vietnamese people of all nationalities throughout the country. The Fifth VCP Congress will review the tasks outlined by the Fourth Congress held in December 1976, and will draw experiences from the party's leadership in carrying out the revolution as well as the achievements recorded since the Fourth Congress. This congress will discuss and adopt the direction of the social and economic objectives for the 1980's as well as the fundamental tasks for the 5-year plan from 1981 to 1985. At the same time, the congress will also elect the Executive Committee of the party Central Committee, which is the highest leadership organization during the interim period between the party's two congresses.

Under the noble and majestic leadership banner of the VCP, all the Vietnamese workers and people have gallantly and heroically traversed a rugged path of revolution, and have scored glorious victories by defeating the three notorious aggressors and firmly taking the country toward socialism. The past 5 year period constitutes the most significant period in the history and the revolution of Vietnam. The VCP and Vietnamese people have firmly adhered to and consistently implemented a correct and just policy, thus creating an enormous impetus for unifying the country in all fields, and bringing a new life to the country from the north to the south. It is the first time in the history of the Vietnamese nation that this nation has been genuinely unified and stable. This is the glorious success of the VCP and the fraternal Vietnamese people who have always cherished and enhanced the excellent tradition of the party and the tradition of heroism in their country. The victory of the Vietnamese people in smashing the two wars of aggression waged by the Beijing reactionary clique and its lackey -- the Pol Pot clique -- along the southwest and northern border areas is of great significance. It serves to further temper and heighten the vigilance of the Vietnamese people so that they can clearly see the treason and smash the dark scheme of the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists. That victory plus those of our people and the Kampuchean people have created a common strategic position and rampart for the three Indochinese peoples to turn the three Indochinese countries into a strong fortress for the socialist bloc in Southeast Asia and to be prepared to completely smash the scheme of waging a new war by the imperialists are reactionaries.

In economic construction and rehabilitation, the Vietnamese people have scored satisfactory achievements, and have managed to rectify all serious consequences of U.S. and Chinese action. The industrial, agricultural and communications foundations have been fundamentally rehabilitated. Production in certain fields has improved greatly. The new socialist production relations in northern Vietnam have been effectively consolidated, while the socialist transformation in southern Vietnam has scored numerous satisfactory achievements.

Agricultural production has increased. During the past 5 years, the acreage for crop cultivation has increased by 1.8 million hectares. An additional 20,000 tractors have been used in agricultural production, and farm mechanization has increased by 35 percent. Young trees have been replanted on a total acreage of 550,000 hectares.

Industrial production has also increased. Compared to 1976, production of electricity has increased by 100,000 kw, coal by 2 million tons, and cement by 600,000 tons. Over the next 5 years, several vital production enterprises will be introduced into production plans. Compared to the period before the liberation, there have been new development in communications work. For example, 1,500 km of old and new railroad tracks and 3,800 km of roadways have been restored and built; 30,000 meters of bridges and 4,000 meters of ferry harbors [figures as heard] have been built; and additional transport vehicles have been put into service.

Numerous achievements have also been scored in the cultural field. New developments have been scored in the educational and public health services. There are a total of 16 million students at the formal education, specialized and university levels throughout the country. An average of one out of three Vietnamese citizens are now in school. Illiteracy and the reactionary and colonialist culture in southern Vietnam have now been completely eradicated. Efforts to use science in serving production have been vigorously promoted. A new constitution which has been promulgated reflects the enormous success of the Vietnamese people in sacrificing their blood and lives over the past half century.

All the victories and achievements scored by the Vietnamese people are closely linked to and cannot be separated from the leadership of the VCP -- which is a genuine Marxist-Leninist party founded, built and nurtured by President Ho Chi Minh -- led by the talented Executive Committee of the party Central Committee headed by Comrade General Secretary Le Duan. Since the conclusion of the fourth party congress, the VCP has admitted some 330,000 new party members, while a number of incompetent old party members have been purged, thus making the party purer and stronger. At present, the VCP has nearly 1.7 million members who act as leading cores and who have cooperated with all the people throughout the country in creating great achievements in all spheres of the revolution.

Laos and Vietnam are two fraternal countries which share a common destiny and enemies. At present, we share a common ideal -- national independence and socialism. The two countries have developed a special relationship which has been nurtured and consolidated for several decades. The LPRP and the VCP are offspring of the same parent -- the Indochinese Communist Party founded by President Ho Chi Minh. After the historic victory of 1957, the relations between the two parties and countries have been enhanced by a new spirit and quality. The mutual cooperation, militant alliance and assistance between the two countries have been symbolized by the treaty of friendship and cooperation signed in Vientiane in 1977, which has proved successful in various fields during the past 4 years of implementation, thus creating a more sincere and purer relationship which is rarely found between the two peoples, which will be increscently consolidated and developed. It is the objective truth and the revolutionary law in the two countries -- Laos and Vietnam -- which cannot be destroyed by any enemies.

In his address saluting the Fourth VCP Congress in December 1976, Comrade General Secretary Kaysone Phomvihan said: There lies in victory of the Lao revolution a direct contribution of the Vietnamese revolution. The blood and perspiration of the Vietnamese internationalist combatants mixed with that of the Lao cadres, combatants and people of all tribes on all the battlefields of our beloved country. The rapid and firm growth and development in all fields in the Lao revolution has been achieved thanks to the great and invaluable assistance and support of the Vietnamese revolution.

The Lao people of all tribes are very proud of the success of the Vietnamese revolution. For the tasks of defending and building socialism, our party and entire people will do everything within our power to consolidate the Lao-Vietnamese special relationship between Laos and Vietnam -- thus making it grow and last forever -- and to further strengthen the alliance among the three Indochinese countries so as to build them into a strong steel fortress for the socialist bloc in Southeast Asia.

We sincerely hope that the Fifth VCP Congress will be crowned with glorious success.

SRV AMBASSADOR VISITS AN-26 CREW MEMBERS

[Text] Mr Chet Sutcharitkun, the Foreign Ministry spokesman, has disclosed during a press conference this morning that the Royal Thai Government had, on 23 March, given permission and accorded facilities for Mr Hoang Bao Son, the Vietnamese ambassador to Thailand, to visit 12 Vietnamese military personnel belonging to the Antonov aircraft which crash-landed in the Thai territory on 19 February this year. The spokesman stated that the Vietnamese ambassador was allowed by the Thai Government to visit and talk with the 12 Vietnamese crew of the said aircraft, including the injured crew who had been receiving medical care by the Thai authorities and are now in excellent health.

Prior to the visit by the Vietnamese ambassador, the Thai Government had dispatched its physician to examine the Vietnamese crew. According to the report by the physician, the 12 Vietnamese crew examined are all in good health.

The visit by the Vietnamese ambassador lasted for about 45 minutes, during which the Vietnamese ambassador was told by all the Vietnamese crew that every crew has been well looked after and has been receiving good treatment by the Thai authorities. The Vietnamese ambassador therefore expressed his satisfaction and appreciation for the kind attention given to the Vietnamese crew by the Thai authorities. He also told the Vietnamese crew that the generosity extended by the Thai Government has made it possible for him to meet the Vietnamese crew.

In connection with the visit to the Vietnamese crew, the Vietnamese ambassador also expressed his appreciation to the Political Department of the Foreign Ministry and the ministry itself and said that the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry had also conveyed its appreciation to the Royal Thai Government through the Thai charge d'affaires in Hanoi.

NATION REVIEW VIEWS SRV KAMPUCHEA POLICY

BK270050 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 27 Mar 82 pp 11, 12

[Article: "Subtle Shift in Vietnamese Policy Over Khmer Expected"]

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila last Friday [19 March] gave a keynote speech purportedly to reactiviate the Institute of the Foreign Affairs. But the pronouncement was virtually a veiled olive branch for Hanoi. A senior official of the Foreign Ministry told the NATION in a recent briefing that the speech was carefully designed and timed for the Fifth Congress of the Vietnamese Communist Party (VCP) which starts today.

He said that the policymakers at the Foreign Ministry expected a shift in the policy of the Vietnamese leadership over the Kampuchean issue following the significant long-delayed VCP Fifth Congress. "We pointed out in the speech our readiness to welcome a possible compromise from Hanoi following the fifth congress which might see a positive change in the Vietnamese policy," he said.

He quoted an excerpt from the speech to back up his comment. The quote is: "Thailand still stands ready for bilateral and multilateral discussions at any level which could pave way to a durable solution to the long-prevailing Kampuchean problem."

Obviously, the Thais intentionally avoided naming Vietnam directly in the speech to prevent any embarrassment which could result from the wrong assessment of the current Vietnamese attitude and the outcome of the fifth congress.

To further demonstrate the Thai flexibility over the Kampuchean problem, Sitthi was quoted as saying that Thailand is mainly pursuing to restore the "equilibrium of interests" in this region.

The pronouncement indirectly reflects the Thai recognition of a certain degree, which has yet to be negotiated, of the Vietnamese influence in the region as well as the Thai aspirations to live peacefully with the communist neighbour.

The official also pointed out that the speech was also designed to try to convince Hanoi of the merits which the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) could give to Vietnam if and when it decided to accomodate with the five-member noncommunist bloc.

"While ASEAN has been making dramatic progress as an economic grouping, Vietnam has been increasingly suffering from its deteriorating economy due to the international isolation spearheaded by ASEAN," he said.

"This is why Foreign Minister Sitthi said that ASEAN is now internationally recognized as a success story of regionalism. Both ASEAN and the Indochinese countries unavoidably have to be interdependent," he said.

The official was refering to Sitthi's statement that because of the aggravating economic problems worldwide, nations must rise above the day-to-day problems confronting them and truly recognize the reality of interdependence.

Nonetheless, as Sitthi pointed out in his speech, the official said that Thailand still retains its stance that the Kampuchean issue be solved within the framework of the UN General Assembly's resolutions which call for the total withdrawal of the Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea and subsequent UN-supervised general elections.

"Of course, we do not expect a drastic change in the Vietnamese policy over Kampuchea following the fifth congress. The Vietnamese are as ambitious as ever to dominate Kampuchea and Laos. Still our diplomatic move would more or less remind some elements in Hanoi of the reality Vietnam has to face," he said.

For one thing, the official said, Vietnam might be increasingly recognizing the reality that it has failed to effectively repress the Khmer resistance forces since the Vietnamese troops marched into Kampuchea in January, 1979.

The policymakers at the Foreign Ministry based the scenario on the fact that Vietnam recently refrained from its familiar statement that the situation in Kampuchea is "irreversible," according to the official.

"If you carefully read the latest communique of the three Indochinese countries, proposing talks with Thailand or ASEAN to stabilize the Thai-Kampuchean border in exchange for a prtial withdrawal of the Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea, you won't find the word "irreversible" in the text. This could be significant in the case of a communist country," he added.

Despite such indication, the only one so far, the official warned against "wishful thinking" that Hanoi after the fifth congress would go as far as pulling out all its troops from Kampuchea in the near future.

"The Vietnamese themselves have admitted that the Phnom Penh regime will be toppled by the pro-Beijing Khmer Rouge within 2 weeks after their total pull-out. This is something Hanoi would never allow to happen," he said.

He said that Hanoi and the Vietnamese people should have already felt the pinch of its policy to subjugate Kampuchea and Laos -- a policy whose implementation has to heavily depend on the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union, according to the official, recently began to demand returns for its assistance to Vietnam which is now bearing the brunt of economic slump. "Unlike in the past, Vietnam recently had to pay provisions and send its workers to the Soviet Union in exchange for $1,040 million loan Moscow granted to Hanoi three years ago," he said.

He attributed the Russian demands for returns from its aid to Vietnam to the Poland crisis which forced the Soviet Union to seek foreign currencies to support the financial standings of its allies in Eastern Europe.

The European countries turned to the Soviet Union for foreign currencies after the European Economic Community (EEC) was prompted to suspend credits to the Soviet allies by widespread apprehension of potential political instability in those countries.

The official added that the Soviet Union sells the agricultural products it receives from Vietnam to acquire foreign currencies to prop up its financial position apart from dumping huge gold bars into the international market.

Possibly reflecting a line of thinking in the Foreign Ministry, the official said that he believed the majority of the Vietnamese leaders are "nationalists" despite the Russian growing influence in the Indochinese Peninsula.

"The Vietnamese allow the Russians to have a certain influence in their country just to receive the Russian aids to fulfil their goals to dominate the Indochinese countries," he said.

He added that at least, Vietnam still maintains its right -- titular through it might be -- to require the Russians to use its military facilities only after the Soviet Union had made such request the use on case-by-case basis.

Moscow reportedly has been demanding privileges to use the military facilities which include the U.S.-built modern naval bases at Da Nang and Cam Ranh Bay on the regular basis.

The official also attributed the Thai analysis on the fifth congress on the fact that Vietnam is spending a lot of budget in the military affairs, although the fact might be open for divergent interpretations.

He said Hanoi's military spendings now accounted for up to 16 percent of the country's gross national product (GNP) -- the figure which might be highest in the world. "How could the country endure such a high rate of military spending for long?" he queried. However, another senior official had earlier told the NATION that Vietnam might be able to endure the military pressure counted by the Khmer resistance forces -- although how long it could stand remains doubtful.

"The Vietnamese soldiers recently began to feed themselves hrough self-harvesting in Kampuchea. This is one way to solve their financial problem, while the other is to divert international relief aid which is originally intended for the poor Kampuchean people, to feed the Vietnamese trops," he said.

The officials appeared to agree with the widespread specualtions that some leaders in Hanoi would be replaced during the Fifth Congress of VCP, but again there are divergent interpretations over the issue.

National Security Council (NSC) Secretary General Squadron Leader Prasong Sunsiri recently told the NATION that Moscow might exert some influence over the expected leadership changes during the fifth congress.

He said that Moscow might be dissatisfied with the way the Vietnamese leaders are using its aid. "Widespread corruption and mismanagement might also prompt the growing interference of the Russians," he said.

However, the source in the Foreign Ministry hinted that there are many possible scenarios for the expected leadership change at Hanoi and among them was the fact that some old Vietnamese leaders might have to be replaced because of their senility.

Vietnamese leaders had earlier said that the fifth congress would see a rejuvenation of the leaderships at all levels of the Vietnamese echelon, though the process at the Politburo would be gradual.

Nevertheless, both seemed to agree that the possibility remained that the Vietnamese delegates to the fifth congress might review the country's relations with the Soviet Union. "It's possible that rival factions in the Vietnamese leadership might manipulate the negative consequences of the Vietnamese heavy dependence on Moscow to be up over their rivals," the official said.

Both Prasong and the official said that Vietnam might one day cut off its links with Moscow, taking into account the fact that the country had antagonized China on which it used to heavily depend.

COMMERCE OFFICIAL SPEAKS ON PRC TRADE TALKS

BK290625 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 28 Mar 82

[Statement to newsmen by Deputy Commerce Minister Thawi Kraikhup on his recent visit to China -- date not given; recorded]

[Text] Thailand suffered a trade deficit of about 3 billion baht in trade with China last year. The purpose of my trip to China was to further promote bilateral trade and economic cooperation. To redress the trade deficit question with China, Thailand has asked China to buy more of its products. Our talks with Jia Shi, the Chinese vice minister of foreign trade, resulted in China buying 5,000 tons of glutinous rice, with delivery in April; 20,000 tons of green peas, with delivery in April and May; and 10,000 tons of 25 percent white rice at a price to be negotiated later, with delivery in April and May. We have a large crop of sugarcane this year and thus have asked China -- and it agrees -- to buy 50,000 additional tons of raw sugar. Chinese representatives will come to Bangkok in early April to negotiate the purchase of 3,500 tons of Virginia tobacco leaves.

The Chinese vice minister of foreign trade has pledged to buy more Thai goods this year to correct the balance of trade with Thailand. I am confident that the trade balance with China this year will be in Thailand's favor.

[Text] According to Foreign Ministry Information Department Director General Chet Sutcharitkun, the SFRY Government has requested through the Foreign Ministry to purchase 13,000 tons of 5 percent rice from Thailand. The amount will be worth about 94 million baht. The Commerce Ministry has agreed to sell the said amount to the SFRY Government. Delivery will be made in early April.

Chet noted that the SFRY Government bought 9,700 tons of Thai rice in 1979. He said the new order is larger than the 1979 order, thus it is a good sign of popularity of Thailand's agricultural products in Europe.

[Speech by Truong Chinh at the Fifth VCP Congress opening session held at Ba Dinh Conference Hall in Hanoi -- live]

[Text] The Presidium, Dear Comrade Delegates:

The Fifth National Congress of delegates of our glorious VCP is being held in an atmosphere marked by enthusiasm and unity among the entire party, people and army who, for the cause of building socialism and defending the socialist fatherland, are courageously advancing on the path of revolutionary struggle. This is an extremely glorious path, but one which is replete with difficulties and hardships.

At this solemn hour, with boundless regret our congress recalls the memory of great President Ho Chi Minh, the founder and trainer of our party, the venerated and beloved leader of the Vietnamese working class and nation, and an outstanding militant of the international communist and working movement. The congress recalls the memory of Comrades Ton Duc Thang, Nguyen Luong Bang and other members of the party Central Committee who have passed away in the period since the fourth party congress. The congress recalls the memory of those party members, people and combatants of the heroic people's armed forces who have valiantly given their lives for the cause of national defense and national construction.

I propose that you comrades observe a minute's silence in commemoration of the martyrs. The minute of commemoration now begins. [about 15 seconds of silence observed] The minute is over.

Dear Comrade Delegates,

Our party's mission is to lead the people throughout the country in successfully building a peaceful, independent, unified and socialist Vietnam and ensuring our nation's everlasting independence and freedom. All for the socialist fatherland and for the people's happiness, such is the aim of the revolutionary struggle and a slogan guiding the daily action of the entire party.

In the period since the fourth party congress, many very important events have taken place in our country. Our people have worked hard to overcome numerous difficulties and have recorded great victories and many achievements in many fields, taking the Vietnamese revolution to a new strategic position and creating greater capabilities for building socialism and defending the fatherland. But besides victories and achievements, we have encountered many difficulties that have beset a country which has been ravaged by fierce and prolonged wars caused by the imperialists and which at present is facing schemes and acts of sabotage and aggression by a new enemy: Chinese expansionism and hegemonism. In leadership and management of the economy and society, our party and state have scored positive points and made progress in some respects, and have also displayed many deficiencies and shortcoming in others.

The present situation poses heavy tasks for our party and people.

This fifth congress of our party will review the implementation of the line set forth by the fourth congress, correctly assess achievements and shortcomings, recognize the actual prevailing economic and social conditions and analyze the causes of successes and difficulties. It will also set forth the main economic and social orientations, tasks and targets for 1981-85 and for the 1980's and the major policies and measures for developing favorable conditions, overcoming difficulties and correctly resolving the important and pressing problems concerning socialist construction and national defense, and the pressing problems concerning production and the people's life and the stepping up of party-building work. This is to allow us to continue the steady advance of our people's revolutionary cause and make a worthy contribution to the revolutionary cause of the world's people. The congress will decide on a number of revisions and amendments to the party's statutes and will elect a new party Central Committee.

With decisions of paramount significance for the successful implementation of the party line and the big and complex revolutionary tasks in the present situation of the country and the international background, the fifth national party congress will mark a vigorous turn for the better in our party's capacity for leadership and for organizing the implementation of tasks, in the quality of its cadres and members, and in the close relations between the VCP and our working class and entire people.

It is for this reason that our people throughout the country and Vietnamese residents overseas, with their love for and deep confidence in their leading party, are keenly following the work of the party congress; and that, for many months now, a vigorous emulation movement has been stirred up in all parts of the country and fields of activity to score achievements to greet the fifth party congress. [applause]

Our congress warmly commends all the people, their armed forces, and party cadres and members who have upheld revolutionary heroism [applause] and untiringly struggled for the cause of building socialism and defending the beloved fatherland, and who are achieving encouraging results in the socialist emulation movement. [applause]

On behalf of the congress Presidium I warmly welcome the 1,033 comrade delegates to the congress, outstanding representatives of the more than 1.7 million party members. [applause]

I am fully confident that, with their revolutionary spirit and their full sense of responsibility to the party and people, the comrade delegates will work to the best of their ability and will make use of the entire party's intellect to contribute actively and effectively to the fine success of the congress, thereby responding to the wishes of the entire party and people. [applause]

The fraternal parties in the international communist and workers movement as well as our friends all over the world have been constantly and wholeheartedly supporting, assisting and showing warm sympathy for the revolutionary struggle of our people and the leadership of our party in the wars of resistance against foreign aggression in the past as well as our present cause of building and defending the fatherland. [applause]

I solemnly propose that the congress extend a warm welcome to the comrade delegates of the fraternal communist and workers parties, of the revolutionary organizations and movements from various countries in the world, who have come to attend the Fifth VCP Congress, bringing the militant solidarity and a valuable inspiration to the party and people of Vietnam. ["Condensed Political Report of the Central Committee to the Fifth VCP Congress," read by General Secretary of the VCP Central Committee Le Duan -- live]

[Text] Dear comrade delegates, esteemed guests: The years that elapsed between the fourth and the fifth congresses of our party were the first of a new stage entered by the Vietnamese revolution, with the birth of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, independent and unified. They were years of economic restoration, transformation and development, of cultural transformation and development in the light of guidelines set forth by the party's fourth congress; they were a period of war to defend the fatherland and of struggle against a new enemy, Chinese expansionism and hegemonism. They were a period in which national independence and the positions of socialism in our country made a steady step towards further consolidation in a closer-than-ever association with the two fraternal countries on the Indochinese Peninsula, and with the Soviet Union and the world socialist community.

They were exciting and complex years in the unceasing advance of the Vietnamese revolution, a period in which our people won very great victories in the defense of the fatherland and initial achievements in the rebuilding of our country in accordance with the sacred testament of the great President Ho Chi Minh.

At present the tasks of our entire party and people before history are extremely heavy. Our fight is still very hard and complex; the enemy is stepping up his hostile policy against our people; the current economic and social situation presents serious difficulties.

The fifth congress of the party is to review the implementation of the lines of the fourth congress, give a correct assessment of the achievements, the shortcomings and the actual socioeconomic situation of the present society, analyzing the causes of the successes and difficulties, set forth the strategic tasks of our revolution in the new situation, adopt decisions and measures to bring into play the strong points of our country, take our economy forward over the difficulties, consolidate national defense, maintain security, and ensure the effective defense of the socialist fatherland.

Part One -- General Situation and Tasks

After the complete victory of our anti-U.S. resistance war in the spring of 1975, our entire people, filled with legitimate pride and new vitality, were animated by a common will to forge ahead and build the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

A brilliant success of our party and people has been the speedy reunification of the country on the state plane, the establishment of the system of proletarian dictatorship in the whole country and the carrying into effect of policies to speed up in all fields the reunification process, and to bring about a life of national concord and communion from north to south. For the first time, our fatherland has achieved real unity on the firm basis of national independence and socialism. The real strength of the reunified country is being brought into play in the healing of the wounds of war, the rehabilitation of the economy, and the building of socialism, and has been given an outstanding manifestation through two wars to defend the country.

After thirty years of war, our people have no more cherished desire than to live in peace, independence and freedom to rebuild the country and their own life. However, the construction work had not been going on for long when our nation had to face new, extremely serious trials due to the hostile policy of the reactionaries in the Chinese ruling circles.

For a long time now, the Chinese leaders have cherished a scheme to annex Vietnam and the Indochinese Peninsula as a whole, so as to pave the way for the materialization of their dream of expansion into Southeast Asia. In their strategic calculations, the Chinese reactionaries intended to weaken Vietnam in all respects, and eventually to conquer our country with a two-pronged attack, up from the south and down from the north. Realizing the schemes of the new enemy and the historic mission of our nation to face and defeat Chinese big-nation expansionism and hegemonism, our army and people, in the light of the resolution of the fourth plenum of the party's Central Committee, made preparations to cope with a possible war of aggression started by China from the north while dealing with determination a fitting riposte to the war of aggression waged in the south by the Pol Pot clique under orders from their boss; at the same time, we strongly supported the National United Front for the Salvation of Kampuchea and the fraternal Kampuchean people in their endeavour to liberate their country and save the Khmer nation from genocide.

Early in 1979, the Chinese reactionaries openly started a large-scale war involving 608,000 troops all along the northern border. With this criminal war, the reactionary clique in the Chinese ruling circles unmasked themselves as a direct and dangerous enemy of our people, and also a very wicked international reactionary force threatening national independence, peace and stability in Indochina and Southeast Asia as a whole. they revealed to the whole world their true colors as counterrevolutionaries, proponents of Great Han expansionism and hegemonism, enemies of socialism and national independence, entertaining the mad dream of becoming a center ruling over the whole world.

Holding high the tradition of dauntlessness and the staunch spirit of our nation, and bringing into play the great might of the system of socialist collective mastery, our heroic armed forces together with our countrymen in the northern border provinces and with the dedicated backing of the whole country, put up a gallant fight, defeated all the attacks of the aggressors, and forced them into a shameful retreat.

The victory of the two wars to defend the fatherland is one of enormous historic significance. Our people have inflicted an initial defeat on the wicked schemes of the Chinese authorities, safeguarded independence, freedom and socialism in Vietnam, fulfilled their international duty to the fraternal peoples of Kampuchea and Laos, and actively defended national independence and peace in Indochina and Southeast Asia as a whole. By their fight and victory, they have helped strengthen the three revolutionary currents of the time and the struggle of the world's peoples against imperialism and international reaction, for peace, national independence, democracy and social progress.

Parallel to, and associated with, the glorious victory won in the war to defend the country, we have strengthened the militant alliance of the revolutions in the three Indochinese countries, whose mutually-linked position has become unprecedentedly solid; we have also strengthened our militant solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union, joined the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance, and broadened our cooperation with the other fraternal socialist countries. These achievements of strategic significance are a guarantee of paramount importance for our people in the successful building of socialism and the effective defence of the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

On the economic front, our people have recorded noteworthy achievements. We have striven hard to overcome the heavy aftermaths of the wars of aggression and consecutive natural calamities. In the main, the war-ravaged establishments in agriculture, industry, communications and transport have now been restored and production has developed in a number of fields. An initial effort has been made to redistribute social labor. Thanks to continuing efforts on the foodgrain and foodstuffs production front, we have staved off famine in the areas heavily affected by natural calamities. Although the working people's living standards are still low, there have been improvements in some respects in many rural areas.

The cultural front has scored many achievements. Education has continued to develop. The literary and artistic work has achieved some progress. In public health, physical education and sports, we have made efforts to forge ahead. The scientific and technological branches have done a good job in meeting a number of requirements of the economy and national defense.

All the great revolutionary achievements which our people have recorded through blood and sweat in half a century of struggle under the party's leadership have been given a concentrated expression in the new constitution.

The past five years will go down in our nation's history as a stage of very glorious victories of the Vietnamese revolution. Overcoming countless difficulties, our people have taken the Vietnamese revolution forward to a new strategic position, more solid than before, and created greater possibilities for the defense of the fatherland and the successful building of socialism.

These victories are due to the steady leadership of our party, a party founded and steeled by President Ho Chi Minh, boundlessly faithful to Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, to the nation's destiny and the people's cause. They bear out the correctness of the lines charted by the party's fourth congress and of the resolutions of its Central Committee. In the extremely serious situation confronting the country in face of the new enemy's aggressive schemes and acts, our party has set forth resolute and clear-sighted strategic directions and correct and timely decisions to take our revolution over an important turning point and ensure its continued development in the right direction. The victories we have won in the past stage have once again highlighted the fine qualities of our nation and of our people's armed forces.

Our congress warmly commends the compatriots from all ethnic groups in the country together with all cadres and fighters of the people's army, people's security, militia and self-defense corps who united closely, fought heroically and achieved outstanding exploits in the two wars to defend our country, writing another glorious chapter into the epics for the independence and freedom of the fatherland, and who are night and day defending our borders, territory, air space, territorial waters and offshore islands, preserving political security, public order and social safety. Our congress lauds the various strata of working people who have made continuous efforts, recorded achievements in economic rehabilitation, transformation and development, cultural transformation and development, and who are tirelessly striving to overcome difficulties and ensure the country's continued advance along the socialist path.

Our victories in the current fight for self-defense and national construction are inseparably linked to the all-round cooperation and active aid of the Soviet Union, the special solidarity of Laos and Kampuchea, the wholehearted support of the other socialist countries and the sympathy and support of the world's revolutionary and peace forces.

From this rostrum, our congress expresses the most sincere and profound gratitude of our whole party and people towards the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and the Soviet state, headed by esteemed Comrade L.I. Brezhnev, towards the great Soviet people, the trusted comrade and brother who has been extending to our people an all-round, great and most effective assistance.

We express our warm feelings and deep gratitude to the peoples of Laos and Kampuchea, the brothers who have been fighting shoulder to shoulder with us for several decades now against the common enemy, and who, together with us, are carrying aloft the banner of independence, freedom and socialism on this beloved peninsula.

We express our heart-felt gratitude to the other fraternal socialist countries which have extended to our people's just cause a great and valuable assistance.

We warmly thank all our friends in the world and have been standing at our people's side and have been generously supporting us.

Dear comrades: On the economic front, our country is now being confronted with many acute problems. The results of the implementation of the economic plans in the five years 1976-1980 have not reduced the serious imbalances in our national economy. Production rises slowly while the population increases quickly. The national product is not in a position to meet the needs of social consumption. There are shortages of food, clothing materials, and other essential consumer goods. Great tensions exist in the supply of energy and materials, in communications and transport. There are still great disparities between financial revenues and expenditures, goods and money, exports and imports. Markets and prices are unstable. The livelihood of the working people is fraught with difficulties. In the economic and cultural life, in the way of life and social safety, there have been prolonged negative manifestations.

The deep root cause of the difficulties in the economy and daily life is the following: Our economy is still primarily one of small production, and moreover suffers the extremely heavy aftermaths of prolonged war and of colonialism; of the past five years, nearly three were spent in war for national defense. Our economy has simultaneously to meet three very pressing basic requirements: To satisfy the needs of national defense, to ensure the people's livelihood, and to build step by step the material-technological basis of socialism. In these circumstances, difficulties and imbalances are unavoidable.

On the other hand, the difficulties have also stemmed from shortcomings and mistakes of the party and state agencies, from national down to grass-roots levels, in economic leadership and management and in the running of our society.

In some definite aspects, these shortcomings and mistakes in leadership and management have mainly caused or aggravated the social and economic difficulties in the past years. The party Central Committee sternly criticizes itself before the congress.

Dear comrades: In more than half a century of activity, our party has devoted a major part of time and efforts to the task of national liberation. Its historic mission, as in the past six years, is to lead our entire people in successfully building socialism, while constantly defending the fatherland and ensuring durable independence for our nation.

However, our socialist revolution unfolds in an international background of complex developments. At present, the Chinese reactionaries, aided and abetted by the United States, are waging a kind of sabotage war against Vietnam on the military, political, economic and cultural fronts, using various forces and resorting to very wicked tricks.

Our country is now in a situation wherein it enjoys peace while having to face a kind of multi-sided war of sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists acting hand in glove with the U.S. imperialists, and at the same time, to stand ready to cope with the possibility of a large-scale war of aggression started by the enemy.

Proceeding from the above-mentioned situation, in the new stage of the revolution, our entire people and army under the party's leadership must closely unite and strive to carry out two strategic tasks:

First, to build socialism successfully.

Second, to stand combat-ready, to effectively defend the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

"All for the socialist fatherland, for the happiness of the people!" Such is the motto of our entire party, people and army, the lofty and sacred mission that all Vietnamese generations from now on must assume before the history of the nation.

The task of combat-readiness to defend the fatherland requires permanent vigilance against the war schemes and acts of the reactionaries in the Chinese ruling circles and of the bellicose imperialist forces; it requires the mobilization of the greatest efforts of our entire party, people and army to resolutely defeat the enemy's multi-sided war of sabotage, and also to get the country constantly prepared and strong enough to defeat the enemy in any contingency.

Our congress highly appreciates the great contributions of the people's army, the people's security, the militia and self-defense corps which have been fighting for over thirty years now under the glorious banner of the party. The people's armed forces will be forever a trusted instrument of the state of proletarian dictatorship in the defense of the fatherland and the preservation of our revolutionary gains.

While not slackening even for a minute the task of consolidating national defense and defending the fatherland, our party and people should put on the front rank the task of building socialism. Our congress affirms the continued implementation of the line of socialist revolution and the line of building a socialist economy mapped out by the fourth party congress.

The general line and the economic line guide all activities of our party, people and army throughout the transition period. All along this revolutionary process, we must have a correct understanding of the general line, concretize it, and base ourselves on it to work out a socioeconomic strategy, development plans, policies and major measures in keeping with the needs and possibilities of our people in each stage.

The stage ahead, which includes the five year period 1981-1985 and stretches up to 1990, is a period of special importance. The stage ahead is one of continuing socialist construction and socialist transformation, further strengthening the political and moral unity of mind of the people, reducing and overcoming difficulties, stabilizing and improving the people's living conditions, stopping and eliminating the negative manifestations, achieving important progress in all fields, creating a new balance of the economy, and at the same time, preparing for even steadier and stronger steps forward in the next stage.

Part Two -- Main Socioeconomic Tasks for the Five Years 1981-1985 and the Eighties as a Whole

The experience of the five years 1976-1980 spells out the need to concretize the party's lines -- the general line of socialist revolution and the line of building a socialist economy in our country -- to map out a socioeconomic strategy for the first stage of socialist industrialization.

Basing ourselves on the party's lines and proceeding from the actual state of our national economy, we define the overall economic and social objectives of the eighties as follows:

1 -- To meet the most pressing and essential requirements, to gradually stabilize and eventually improve to some extent the people's material and cultural life, first of all; to bring about a steady solution to the foodgrain and foostuffs problem, to better meet the requirements in clothing, study, medical care, housing, transportation, child care and other essential consumption needs.

2 -- To carry on the building of the material-technological basis of socialism, with a view mainly to boosting agriculture, consumer goods production and exports; at the same time, to increase the technical equipment for the other economic branches and to make preparations for a more vigorous development of heavy industry in the next stage.

3 -- To complete the socialist transformation in the southern provinces, to continue perfecting the socialist relations of production in the north, to consolidate the socialist relations of production in the whole country.

4 -- To meet the defense requirements, to consolidate national defense, to maintain security and order.

To bring about a fundamental labor productivity, even in the absence of a relatively developed big industry. To this end, we must correctly work out major economic and social policies.

1. The first and most decisive factor is a correct combination of industry and agriculture.

What is the most important, what can and must be done first, is to achieve collective mastery for the sake of a rational and effective use of labor and land, and a vigorous expansion of branches and trades at every establishment, in every locality, and in the whole country; the purpose being to provide jobs for all working people, to exploit all lands, to develop all branches and trades both in width and depth, to achieve a higher social labor productivity, a greater value of gross national product, and a wider variety of products. To this end, we must concentrate our forces on a vigorous development of agriculture and take it a step closer towards socialist large-scale production in a structure closely and correctly combining agriculture, consumer-goods industries, and heavy industry.

The taking of agriculture a step closer towards socialist large-scale production in the eighties includes the following main contents:

Firstly, to arrange for agriculture to carry out the production work and the distribution of produce in accordance with the programs and plans of the whole country. Under these plans, agriculture must strive for a good performance of three tasks: To ensure food supplies for the whole society, to supply agricultural produce as raw materials for consumer goods industries and to create an important source of export items.

Secondly, to step up the scientific-technological revolution in agriculture, actively build material-technical facilities, and take a step in modernizing agriculture.

Thirdly, to complete the socialist transformation with correct forms and steps; to achieve a steady development of the state sector; to strive to perfect the cooperatives and production collectives and raise the quality of the collective sector and to encourage the development of the household economy in the right direction.

Fourthly, to take the district as a most important ground for carrying out the three above-mentioned contents; to actively build the districts along the line of combining agriculture and industry, that is to say, to take the district as a ground for division of labor and reorganization of production; to put to good use labor, land, forest and sea; to carry out intensive farming and crop specialization, develop crop growing and livestock breeding and expand branches and trades.

To take agriculture to socialist large-scale production does not mean in any way to develop agriculture in isolation, but instead as part of a structure which closely and correctly combines agriculture with industry. The development of agriculture must be combined with that of consumer goods industries, both in width and depth, from food-processing and light industries to small industry and handicraft branches in town and country.

To develop agriculture and consumer goods industry is to lay the foundation for the development of heavy industries. On the other hand, to develop agriculture and consumer goods industries, we must turn to good account the available industrial capabilities, build in a rational way the necessary heavy industries to supply electric power, coal, fuel, fertilizers, pesticides, basic chemicals, ordinary tools, semi-mechanized and mechanized tools and building materials. At the same time we must very actively exploit a number of heavy industry products so as to increase the sources of materials and export goods and supply additional technical equipment to other economic branches and to heavy industry itself.

To forther the development of agriculture, consumer goods industry and heavy industry, to meet the requirements of production, construction, national defense, security and the people's life, communications and transport must be improved and strengthened in all respects.

Thus, in the five years 1981-1985 and in the eighties as a whole, it is necessary to concentrate forces on a vigorous development of agriculture, to regard it as a primary front, to take it a step further to socialist large-scale production, to strive to boost consumer goods production and to carry on the building of a number of important branches of heavy industry; to combine agriculture, consumer goods industry and heavy industry in a rational industrial-agricultural structure.

2. To correctly combine the building of the central economy with a vigorous development of local economies in a unified national economic structure.

3. To ensure the correspondence between the productive forces and the relations of production, constantly and closely combine the transformation of the relations of production with the reorganization and development of production.

4. To combine the economy with national defense and national defense with the economy according to a basic and long-term orientation and, at the same time, provide in advance for timely and appropriate contingency readjustments.

5. To combine economic development at home with the expansion of economic relations with foreign countries, first of all with the Soviet Union and the other members of the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance and with Laos and Kampuchea.

6. To broaden division of labor, redistribute and put to good use the work force in the whole country to increase labor productivity. We must decide and carry into effect a correct population policy.

7. To step up scientific and technological work; to link the scientific and technological activities to production, daily life and national defense.

8. To correctly resolve the relationship between accumulation and consumption. To practise thrift is a major and long-term national policy.

9. To establish a new, socialist order on the distribution and circulation front so as to help stabilize the living conditions, boost production and bring about a turn for the better in the economic and social situation.

10. To establish a correct managerial and planning system and renovate the present one; to abolish the mechanism of administrative bureaucratic management based on the state-financing system.

Part Five [as received -- no mention made of parts three and four] -- The international Situation and the Foreign Policy of Our Party and State

The Reagan administration's policy of "playing the China card" and the U.S.-Chinese collusion constitute a factor constantly threatening world peace and especially seriously menacing security and stability in Asia.

The U.S. adventuristic policy is creating an extremely serious danger to world peace. The struggle for the objectives of our epoch is going through rougher, harder and fiercer times than before. However, the imperialists and international reactionaries are coming up against the growth and offensive position of the three revolutionary currents, the desire and will for peace of the peoples inspired by the Leninist foreign policy of peace of the Soviet Union and the other countries in the socialist community.

At the 26th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, Comrade L.I. Brezhnev put forward an important program of peace including many new steps on nuclear weapons limitation and on disarmament, on the prevention and quick elimination of hotbeds of armed conflicts and tension, on the establishment of zones of peace in crucial areas in the world, from Central Europe to the Far East, from the Middle and Near East. The Mediterranean Sea to the Indian Ocean and so forth.

This program of peace is the firm say of a nation, a country which suffered the heaviest sacrifices in World War II and made the greatest contributions to the peaceable life of all peoples.

The VCP, the Socialist Republic of Vietnam and the Vietnamese people once again express their full support for the peace program and the unswerving stand of the Soviet Union, warmly hailing the good-willed and constructive proposals of the Soviet Union in the relations with the West, especially those made recently in Comrade L.I. Brezhnev's important statements with regard to the situation in Europe and Asia, and aimed at checking the arms race, driving back the danger of a nuclear war, consolidating detente and international security and cooperation.

Dear comrades: To tighten friendship and broaden cooperation with the fraternal socialist countries on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism is a primordial problem in the foreign policy of our party and state.

Our people are extremely happy with the brilliant development of the militant solidarity and the cooperation between our country and the Soviet Union since the signing of the treaty of friendship and cooperation in 1978. As the most powerful and firmest ally of Vietnam, the Soviet Union has been firmly standing on our people's side, giving a timely and generous response to our requirements in the consolidation of national defence and the defence of the fatherland. The Soviet Union has supplied our economy with the technical materials and goods most vital for our people's production and livelihood and given us by way of aid a series of major projects forming the first important material-technological basis of socialism in our country.

The cooperation and assistance extended us by the Soviet Union, in the fields of culture, science, technology, training of cadres and skilled workers are being further and further expanded and strengthened. The annual exchanges of goods through trade between the two countries are developing favourably.

Solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union has always been the key-stone of the foreign policy of our party and state. In the interests of the two peoples, we shall in the future strive on for an even more vigorous development of the Vietnam-Soviet Union militant solidarity and all-round cooperation. In our views, this is a guarantee of success for our people's cause of defending the fatherland and building socialism, and for the consolidation of national independence and of the positions of socialism on the Indochinese Peninsula. At the same time, it is a positive contribution to the consolidation and strengthening of the socialist system and to the strengthening of the struggle for peace and socialism in the world.

Close links and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union are a matter of principle, strategy, and revolutionary sentiment. Our party is duty-bound to educate all Vietnamese generations for the purpose of a firm grasp of this principle and this strategy, turning them into a mighty motivating force to bring our revolutionary cause to complete victory.

In the past period, the militant Vietnam-Laos-Kampuchea solidarity has entered a new stage of development and brought about unprecedented changes in the revolutionary situation of the three Indochinese countries.

We hail the Lao People's Democratic Republic, our staunch comrade and loyal comrade in arms who has recorded outstanding achievements in economic restoration, transformation and development along socialist lines and in natonal defense.

We hail the People's Republic of Kampuchea, the sole genuine and legitimate representative of the heroic Kampuchean people, who has won great success in national revival and in the struggle to defend independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity.

Between ours and the two fraternal countries, friendly relations on state and popular planes, and political, economic, and cultural cooperation have undergone a fine development, exchanges of goods have kept increasing. Pursuant to the treaties of friendship and cooperation between our republic, the Lao People's Democratic Republic and the People's Republic of Kampuchea, our party, state and people have done everything in their power to support and help the two fraternal countries with dedication and in a spirit of proletarian internationalism. And all feats of our people in the defense of the motherland, all achievements we record in the building of socialism are closely linked to the valuable assistance of the two fraternal peoples.

Close connections in mutual affection and assistance, association in glory and woe are being more and more clearly manifested in life and going deeper and deeper into the sentiments of each of our peoples.

The special Vietnam-Laos-Kampuchea relationship is a law of development of the revolution in the three countries, a matter of vital significance for the destinies of the three peoples. From one generation to another, our people should preserve the pure friendship and the tradition of solidarity among the three nations, unceasingly consolidate and strengthen the special relationship and militant alliance of the three countries, in a determination to defeat all schemes and acts of sabotage, division and aggression of the common enemy -- the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists acting hand in glove with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces. We regard this as a firm guarantee for the cause of defending independence and freedom and successfully building socialism in each country on the Indochinese Peninsula and also an extremely important factor of peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

The militant solidarity and fraternal cooperation between our country and the other countries in the socialist community have undergone a new qualitative development since our country became a full member of the Council of Mutual Economic Assistance. In the forthcoming period, we shall do our utmost together with the fraternal countries to achieve good cooperation in the framework of bilateral treaties and agreements and promote an unceasing development of this cooperation in the process of plan and policy coordination among the member countries of the Council for Mutual Economic Assistance.

We warmly support the correct and resolute steps taken by the Military Council for the Salvation of Poland to defeat the reactionaries' plot of seizing power and restore order and security so as to resolve the economic and social difficulties of Poland. We strongly protest against the brazen interference of the imperialist forces in Poland's internal affairs in an attempt to hinder the recovery process of socialist Poland. We firmly believe that our Polish brothers will thoroughly smash all reactionary forces, overcome all difficulties and preserve and develop their revolutionary gains. The People's Republic of Poland will forever be a solid link in the world socialist system!

Our people resolutely stand on the side of the fraternal Cuban people, strongly support the Republic of Cuba, an independent and sovereign country, a member of the socialist community, the chairman of the Nonaligned Movement, now struggling against the U.S. imperialists' schemes of aggression and threats of attack. The Cuban people are a heroic, dauntless nation that no aggressor can vanquish. Hands off Cuba!

Our people unswervingly support the just struggle of the Korean people for the peaceful reunification of their country without any outside interference.

As a nation which was once oppressed by imperialism and which has waged a protracted fight against the forces of aggression, our people fully support the struggle of the Asian, African and Latin American peoples to remove from the world all forms of colonialism, to regain and defend national independence and to build a new international economic order.

The Vietnamese people thoroughly practice the line of developing Vietnam's cooperation with the other members of the Nonaligned Movement, contributing to bring into play the active role of the movement in the struggle against imperialism and colonialism, for world peace and the independence and sovereignty of all nations.

We warmly hail the initiative of the People's Republic of Mongolia on the signing of a convention of nonaggression and nonuse of force in the relations between Asian and Pacific countries.

Our people highly appreciate the great role and increasing prestige of India in the Nonaligned Movement as well as her contributions to the maintenance of peace and stability in Asia and elsewhere in the world. We deeply rejoice at the current fine development of the Vietnam-India relations and believe that the friendship and many-sided cooperation between the two countries will consolidate and strengthen further with each passing day.

We resolutely support the Government of the Democratic Republic of Afghanistan and the fraternal Afghan people, who with the assistance of the Soviet Union and the other socialist countries are fighting against the undeclared war of the imperialists and international reactionaries to defend the gains of the April revolution.

The Vietnamese people resolutely struggle to defeat all aggressive and annexationist schemes of the Chinese authorities against our country, but we maintain intact our friendly sentiments towards the Chinese people. Maintaining the policy of friendship and good-neighbor relations with the Chinese people, we stand for the restoration of normal relations between the two countries on the basis of the principles of peaceful coexistence, respect for each other's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity and settlement of disputes through negotiations. We have repeatedly proposed a resumption of the talks which have been unilaterally suspended by China, but the Chinese side has adamantly turned down our proposals. The Chinese leaders have all along been frenziedly pursuing big-nation expansionism and hegemonism. They have not yet given up their scheme of placing Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea into China's grip, regarding the three Indochinese countries as primary targets for aggression and annexation on their path of expansion into Southeast Asia. They now are making new steps forward in the collusion with the United States for the purpose of carrying out this strategic design. That is precisely the real cause of the increasing tension in the relations between the two countries. It is also a factor undermining peace and stability in Southeast Asia. The Chinese rulers must bear full responsibility for the serious consequences of this situation.

Part Six -- To Raise the Party's Fighting Capacity

At present, the historic tasks incumbent on the party are very heavy. The struggle for the building of socialism and the defense of the socialist fatherland is going on with an acute and complex character. Our people's enemies of all kinds at home and abroad are spearheading their attacks at our party, trying by every means to wreck it ideologically and organizationally. The key task in the building of the party now is to continue enhancing its working class and vanguard character, build it into a politically, ideologically and organizationally strong party with a view to ensuring a successful implementation of its lines, enhancing its capacity to lead the building of socialism and the defense of the fatherland, ensuring that it constantly maintains its revolutionary and scientific character and remains a really pure party endowed with a high fighting capacity and entertaining close connections with the masses.

The party must intensify and qualitatively enhance its leadership over the ideological work. The fundamental duty of ideological work is to arm all the party, the people and troops with basic knowledge of scientific socialism, to build up their perseverance and ironlike determination and to give them the necessary knowledge so they can fulfill the two strategic tasks of building socialism and defending the country.

The ideological work must give our party cadres, party members and people a profound comprehension of the general line of socialist revolution and the line of building a socialist economy in the transition period and a resolve to strive for their implementation consciously, with the highest revolutionary ardor of collective masters.

The ideological work must enable everybody to see clearly, without the least confusion, that the direct and dangerous enemy of our nation is the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists, who are colluding with the U.S. imperialists. It must give a clear realization of their aggressive and disruptive schemes and acts against our country, enhance vigilance, ensure a thorough grasp of the party's lines, bring about a constant state of combat readiness and a will to fight in a self-denying spirit to defend the fatherland.

The ideological work must be strongly oriented at enhancing the revolutionary qualities of the party cadres and members, so that they can oppose all forms of individualism and opportunism, resolutely overcome all manifestations of political degradation, organizational indiscipline, degeneration in lifestyle and bureacratic behavior among some segments of the party cadres and members. The party must organize its control task well, which is one of its main leadership functions. Now more than ever before, the control task must be intensified to increase its results.

At present our party has 1,727,784 members working in 35,146 primary organizations. In the new development of the revolution, the great majority of party members have clearly shown the revolutionary quality and creative capacity of the Communists. Tens of thousands of party members have set examples of sacrifice and dedication to the fatherland and the people and fulfilled their duties in an outstanding manner.

However, a number of party members have failed to preserve their revolutionary quality and have damaged the prestige of the party. With a view to keeping the party's ranks pure, it is necessary after this congress to resolutely bring out of its ranks as soon as possible all opportunists, persons with paralyzed revolutionary will, exploiters, traffickers, speculators, embezzlers, bribetakers, bullies. This task must be carried out resolutely and urgently under the close leadership of party committee secretariats at all echelons.

In five years the party has recruited over 370,000 new members, 85.9 percent of whom are members of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union. These are very good young men and girls who have been made the subject of the observations of the masses and recommended by them for admission into the party. This class of new party members has rapidly brought into play its action and given the party a new vitality.

Our party reserve forces are very abundant. We should continue to expand our party ranks by recruiting new qualified members. We should pay attention to those localities where qualified party members are still scarce such as the Nam Bo provinces. More emphasis should be placed on the recruitment of new party members from among workers. We should not fear difficulties and narrowmindedly close our door. Special importance is to be attached to the consolidation of party cells. Each party chapter must adopt measures to educate party members gradually and strengthen the party committees, the leading core of party organizations. The party committee echelons must struggle to increase their knowledge comprehensively, especially to have a profound grasp of all the economic and cultural problems of the people; improve their organizational abilities; develop the effectiveness of the administration and carry out mass motivation well. To strengthen the party committees, the leading core of party organizations at all levels, is a very important task of party building.

Since the fourth national congress, in the face of the new trials of the revolutionary struggle and the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists' disruptive and divisive schemes and tricks, our entire party, from the Central Committee down to party cells, cadres and ordinary party members, has tightened its ranks, strengthened its unity, and preserved its units of will and action.

Our entire party is resolved to do its utmost to preserve and enhance the tradition of unity and oneness of mind of the Communist Party of Vietnam, to put into effect President Ho Chi Minh's behest: "Unity is an extremely precious tradition of our party and people. All comrades from the Central Committee down to the cells must preserve the unity and oneness of mind in the party as the apple of their eye."

We resolve further to increase our vigilance to smash all of the enemy subversive plots and tricks in order to secure ever better unity within the party and to mobilize the strength of all our party, people and troops in the new struggle successfully to fulfill the new tasks to be set forth by this congress.

Dear comrade delegates, the fifth congress is a new milestone in our party's struggle for national independence and socialism, a struggle which is protracted and arduous but also full of exploits. The new period confronts our party and people with tremendous, complicated and heavy tasks. The requirements of the people's life and national defense and of building material and technical bases on which to advance are major and urgent tasks. We have full confidence and strength to successfully carry out these tasks.

That is the strength of the traditional units and oneness of mind in the entire party the strength of the unshakable unity between the party and the people. The resolutions of this congress will certainly further consolidate the unity of the party and strengthen even more closely the blood-sealed relationship between the party and people.

That is the strength of the international solidarity which has linked and will always closely link our party and people to the Communist Party of the Soviet Union and the fraternal Soviet people, the revolutionary vanguard of our times; to the LPRP and the fraternal Lao peoples; to the KPRP and the fraternal Kampuchean people; to the communist and workers parties and peoples of the other fraternal countries in the socialist community; to all communist and workers parties; to the three revolutionary currents in the world.

With such a party, such a people, such international relationships, we shall fulfill any task, overcome any difficulty and defeat any enemy.

Successfully to build socialism in a country predominantly of small production, to defeat all schemes and acts of expansionism and hegemonism on the part of the Chinese reactionaries, acting in collusion with the U.S. imperialists, to defend national independence and peace in Indochina and Southeast Asia -- this is a very heavy, yet very glorious mission that history has assigned our people and party. We are resolved to level all difficulties, march forward with enthusiasm and pride and fulfill our duty to our nation and to the revolutionary cause of the world's peoples.

Under the party's invincible banner let our entire party, people and army eagerly march forward! Long live the heroic Vietnamese people! Long live the glorious Communist Party of Vietnam! The great President Ho Chi Minh lives forever in our cause! All for the socialist fatherland, for the happiness of the people! Our lofty cause will triumph!

Afternoon Session

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 27 -- The Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam this afternoon heard an economic report and a report on party organization prepared by the Central Committee.

The economic report, delivered by Pham Van Dong, Politbureau member and chairman of the Council of Ministers, outlines the general situation and reviews the execution of state plans from 1976 to 1980 and sets the course to take and the tasks to be done to achieve the main economic and social objectives for 1981-85 and till the end of the decade. Pham Van Dong stressed that working people in Vietnam were motivated by a revolutionary spirit, that they were courageous, intelligent, and creative.

The second report was presented by Le Duc Tho, Political Bureau member. It reviews organizational work since the last congress and proposes measures to bring about new changes in the leadership and militancy of the party to make it equal to its tasks in the new situation. The report points out that all success made since the fourth congress had been partly owed to the growth of the party. It urges the entire party to make greater efforts so as to "prove worthy of its role as the leader and very loyal servant of the people," as wished by President Ho Chi Minh in his last testament.

NHAN DAN EDITORIAL PRAISES VCP CONGRESS

[NHAN DAN 27 Mar editorial: "A Congress of Unity, Singlemindedness and Confidence in the Inevitable Victory of the Socialist Fatherland and People's Happiness"]

[Text] The national congress of the VCP is an important milestone marking a new step in the development of our revolution. For more than a year now, in response to the call of the party Central Committee, our entire party has intensively and enthusiastically prepared for its fifth national congress of delegates.

The convening of congresses at all levels to discuss various draft documents before presenting them to the national congress was a broad and major political indoctrination drive which reflected the maturity of more than 1.7 million party members -- both official and alternate -- and the solid unity and singlemindedness in the entire party toward all important issues involving the country and party. From the north to the south and from the factories and worksites to the ricefields, as well as from the defense positions to the laboratories, our people of all strata and the people's armed forces, including many communist combatants, have enthusiastically emulated in overcoming difficulties, stepping up production and standing ready for combat in order to score achievements to honor the congress of their beloved party.

With practical and concrete revolutionary acts, our entire people and armed forces have demonstrated their revolutionary zeal and confidence and love toward the glorious VCP and the party Central Committee, headed by esteemed Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, which has led our struggle from one victory to another, thus bringing honor to the country.

The fifth party congress, which will be opened at the Ba Dinh Conference Hall in Hanoi today, is an important event in our country. Since the fourth party congress, our country has gone through a seething revolutionary stage full of ordeals. With a will of heroism and a stalwart fighting spirit as well as with selfless labor, our people have scored many great achievements in the struggle to defend their fatherland and build socialism. We have also won glorious victories in the two wars of aggression waged by the Chinese reactionaries and their henchmen and recorded many praiseworthy successes in the struggle to restore, improve and develop the economy and carry out educational and cultural development, as well as in many other fields.

The cooperation between our country and the Soviet Union and the socialist community has developed in an all-round manner. The special militant alliance among Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea has been vigorously consolidated and strengthened. This is an extremely important factor guaranteeing success for our people's undertaking to build and defend the fatherland.

Obviously our party is maturing in the socialist revolution. All the party has confirmed the correctness of the revolutionary line and the line for economic development and has gained new experiences from diverse and complex realities. It has recognized even more clearly the problems of a legal nature facing the first stage of the socialist revolution in our country and clearly noted its correctness and errors in applying the set line and in giving practical guidance.

Reviewing experiences with a critical spirit is a scientific attitude and a high sense of responsibility of a Marxist-Leninist political party. It is an important mark of progress. The fifth party congress has the duty to analyze and evaluate the national situation and the actual conditions of the economy, review the implementation of the party's line and define the strategic tasks of the revolution for the immediate future and the orientations, tasks and main targets in the economic and social fields for the 1981-85 5-year period and for the 1980's. The congress will also review party building work and establish the orientations and the tasks that must be carried out to increase the fighting strength and the capability for practical activities of the vanguard of the working class in the socialist revolution, enhance the managerial capability of the state and the collective mastery of the laboring people and consolidate the ties between the party and the masses.

The congress also has the duty to elect a new party Central Committee that symbolizes the will and intelligence of the entire party so as to ensure successful inplementation of the tasks set forth by the congress.

Under the banner "All for the Socialist Fatherland and for the People's Happiness," the fifth congress is a congress of unity and singlemindedness with the entire party sharing a single will to advance resolutely the cause of socialist construction to new successes and firmly to defend the socialist fatherland.

Great President Ho Chi Minh -- the respected and beloved teacher of all our party and people -- told us in his testament: "The party must devise a truly satisfactory plan for economic and cultural development in order to improve the people's life constantly." All our party, people and armed forces are looking forward to the fifth party congress with profound hope and confidence.

[Special correspondent Szolt Szalai report]

[Text] In Hanoi the Hungarian party delegation participating in the Vietnamese party congress has taken part in a mass meeting. On behalf of the Hungarian Socialist Workers Party [MSZMP] Central Committee, the leader of the delegation, Laszlo Marothy, greeted the congress of Vietnamese communists. He said with appreciation that the Vietnamese people under the leadership of the party, in extremely hard conditions, in spite of the constant external threat and imperialist blockade, have had significant achievements in normalizing the war-stricken economy. We are also aware, he added, that with the peoples of Laos, starting out on the road of socialistm and revolutionary Kampuchea, you must make great sacrifices in the defense of your peaceful building work and in averting the attacks, mostly Chinese attacks, threatening the peace of the region. The members of the Hungarian delegation view with deep respect and appreciation the open, frank, critical and self-critical character of the report by Secretary General Le Duan. It is our conviction that in the implementation of the strategic line indicated in the report as the task of economic building, the Vietnamese people will be able to overcome the present hardships and difficulties, Laszlo Marothy said in his speech to the mass meeting. He pointed out that the Vietnamese people can continue to count on the support and internationalist solidarity of the Hungarian communists.

NHAN DAN HITS U.S. STATEMENT ON CHEMICAL WARFARE

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 29 -- "Brazenly charging the Soviet Union with making chemical warfare, the United States is seeking to lessen the great impact of Soviet peace initiatives which are acclaimed by progressive people throughout the world", says NHAN DAN today. The paper is commenting on a statement on chemical warfare made by Richard Burt, director of the Bureau of Politico-Military Affairs, to the U.S. Senate Armed Services Committee on March 22.

"In this 32-page document", NHAN DAN says, "The U.S. State Department repeats its shop-worn slander against the Soviet Union, Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea... but both evidence and analyses are false and full of malice".

"These fabrications have been refuted by the Soviet Union, Vietnam and just public opinion throughout the world", NHAN DAN continues. "The Pugwash conference held by world scientists in Geneva recently pointed out that the U.S. charges were devoid of all scientific values".

The paper also recalls that a group of French doctors have investigated a place in Afganistan where toxic chemicals were alleged to have been used but have not found any evidence of the charge. By resuming the slanderous chorus, NHAN DAN says, the United States seeks to justify its costly armament policy, especially the production of many new chemical weapons. "It is also raising a smokescreen for the deployment of U.S. chemical weapons in many Western countries while trying to divert public attention in the United States and the world from its effort to exacerbate tension in many places, especially in Central America and the Caribbean", NHAN DAN points out.

"The smear campaign, restarted only a few days following President L.I. Brezhnev's important proposals on limitation of the arms race, is also aimed at soothing the mounting peace movement in Western Europe for an end to the U.S. nuclear armament policy", the paper adds.

ENVOY IN THAILAND VISITS DETAINED AN-26 CREW

[Text] On 23 March our Ambassador Hoang Bao Son to Thailand visited the 12 cadres and personnel attached to the AN-26 plane which flew astray into Thai territory on 11 February 1982 and which is still detained by the Thai authorities. Ambassador Hoang Bao Son conveyed to them the regards from the fatherland and their families. The navigator crew made the following specific report to the ambassador:

Seven minutes after takeoff, the plane lost contact with the ground station because of failure of the directional compasses and had to fly at a high altitude to avoid hitting the mountains. Since the three directional compasses showed three different directions, the navigator crew decided to fly toward the sea in order to get back to Ho Chi Minh City. However, the farther they flew, the more they got astray. When they planned to fly back to Phnom Penh, only 700 kilos of fuel was left. They were forced to land in order to save their lives. They knew that they were on Thai territory only after getting out of the plane.

The 12 people of the AN-26 plane were deeply moved by the concern shown to them by our government and people and expressed their earnest desire to return to their country and families.

NHAN DAN STRESSES EDUCATION, MOTIVATION OF YOUTH

[NHAN DAN 26 March editorial: "Satisfactorily Carry Out the Tasks of Motivating and Educating Youths," marking the anniversary of the founding of the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union, 26 March]

[Text] In the long and difficult -- yet very glorious -- revolutionary struggle of our party and nation, youths play an important role and have made many very great contributions. As Comrade General Secretary Le Duan said: Our country's youths bear the glorious tradition of the association of Vietnamese revolutionary comrades and are a strike force that always stands in the front of the struggle for national construction and defense. This is an assertion of the nature and the great revolutionary potential of our young generation through various revolutionary stages.

Today, in the initial stage of the country's advance toward socialism, our party and nation now have a very youthful but powerful strike force of approximately 15 million youths of both sexes. More than half of them reached maturity after the achievement of total national independence and unification.

Youths now account for 65 percent of the working class. The ratio of youths in various newly built modern industrial enterprises is approximately 80 percent. Some 200,000 youths are now working in various public organs. Youths now constitute 54 percent of the agricultural work force. Some 300,000 scientific and technical cadres are youths who are rich in creativity. Many young talents have emerged in the areas of science, culture and art. In the people's armed forces, the ratio of young combatants and cadres stands at 80 percent. In addition to these forces, there are millions of youths now being tempered at various general schools, vocational schools, technical middle schools, colleges and advanced schools.

In our society, however, there are still some youths who fail to grasp revolutionary idealism and to be fully aware of their rights and duties toward the fatherland. Everyone among us is concerned about the fact that a number of youths, especially those living in cities and towns, have developed a lifestyle and a way of thinking incompatible with normal ethical codes and socialist rules.

This is due to the many shortcomings in the care and teaching of youths. It is also due to decadent cultural vestiges and the reactionary and debauched lifestyle which, created by the enemy's neocolonialism and psychological warfare, is prevailing among a section of youths.

Satisfactorily carrying out the tasks of motivation youths and educating youths, teenagers and children is now an urgent and long-term demand in ensuring successful socialist construction and firm national defense. This is an important political responsibility of all of society, especially of various party and state organs, of the economic, cultural and educational sectors and of various social groups, including the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union.

The primary task of the motivation of youths in the new stage is to fully develop the role of youths and their collective master and to mobilize their great latent potentials for national construction and defense. It is necessary to revise the contents and forms of the method of spreading propaganda among and educating youths. Simultaneously, specific steps must be taken to overcome negative manifestations in the ethical behavior and the lifestyle of youths. It is necessary to link the teaching of socialist qualities and communist idealism with efforts to meet the needs of youths, especially in the areas of work and training and in cultural athletic and recreational activities.

As a representative of the collective mastery of youths and a reserve body of the party, the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union should strengthen its primary organizations vigorously and educate youths profoundly on revolutionary idealism. Each youth union chapter must become a center of youths who educate and guide teenagers and children. Each cadres and each member of the Youth Union must exert good influence on nonmember youths by adopting a resolutely persuasuve behavior and by setting good examples in labor, study and social and everyday life activities. Only through the realistic motivation of youths can the union select outstanding members for recommendation to the party and recruit more members for itself in order to ever increase its militancy.

The Youth Union's basic responsibility is to educate youths on collective mastery, making them fully aware of their benefits and obligations to society, so that they can live well ideally, morally and culturally; work with enthusiasm and creativity; wage combat courageously and indomitably; struggle straightforwardly and boldly against negativism; and be noble and pure in friendship and love.

The motiviation and education of youths holds a strategic significance. It calls for even more intensified party leadership. All party committees and organizations as well as the state agencies should overcome bureaucracy, conservatism, officiousness and irresponsibility and carefully study the life, thinking, ideals and aspiration of youths in order to evolve proper educational methods, thereby creating conditions for youths to make contributions and undergo training. In each production and work unit as well as in every family, each cadre and each party member must be a good example for youths to follow.

MARCOS RESETS MINDANAO ELECTIONS FOR MAY

[Excerpts] President Marcos has reset the regional elections in Mindanao from April to May this year. At the same time he announced that Regions 9 and 12 will be placed under a single executive council. The chief executive made the announcement to newsmen after a speech at the graduation of Philippine Military Academy cadets at Baguio. He said he was moving the regional polls in Mindanao at the recommendation of the Batasan and the ruling Kilusang Bagong Lipunan [KBL]. The president said the election for seats in Mindanao's regional assemblies will most likely be held on May 27, 10 days after the Barangay elections. He said he will call a caucus of the KBL after holy week to define the powers of the regional assemblies and discuss the new setup. The president said the Mindanao election will have to be declared by an executive order, since the Batasan is in recess and won't convene until June.

The president said he intends to consult with local KBL leaders on how to merge the executive councils of Regions 9 and 12 into one unit. The merger seeks to simplify and to make more effective the running of the two autonomous regions. During the same interview, the chief executive also said he intends to bring about harmony between the executive and legislative bodies in the autonomous regions.

In his speech before the graduating class of cadets the president said his recent trip to Saudi Arabia has made the prospects for lasting peace in Mindanao more attainable.

NODONG SINMUN REJECTS SOUTH'S CALL FOR TALKS

[NODONG SINMUN 30 March commentary: "Sound of Dog Barking in the Moonlight"]

[Text] There is a saying "the sound of a dog barking in the moonlight." It means that one is telling a dull story to which no one gives heed.

On 26 March the puppets' minister of the national unification again expressed the hope of holding a North-South high-level representatives meeting, which was put forth one month ago but has failed to arouse people's interest. Thus, the South Korean puppets have exposed their difficult situation to the world again.

The so-called high-level representatives meeting by the puppets is a presumptuous and shameless one aimed at thrusting aside our proposal for convening the 100-man joint conference and, instead, pursuing division by monopolizing the dialogue. The puppets are not qualified to talk about dialogue. We will sit together with and earnestly negotiate with those who oppose the division and aspire for reunification, to discuss all matters, big or small, conducive to improving and developing North-South relations and to accelerating the cause of reunification at any time, anywhere; however, we will never sit together with the Chon Tu-hwan ring, which is pursuing division. We have expressed this clearly on many occasions.

Although we have drummed our opinion into the Chon Tu-hwan ring that it is not a partner for us to deal with, why does it repeat the dull story to which no one pays attention? This is really a dog barking in the moonlight.

The dialogue that we are pursuing is for reunification, not for the division. If one wants to maintain the division, he need not trouble himself to hold dialogue because we are, at present, in a divided situation. If anyone wants to hold dialogue, he should be fully prepared for it and should stop doing things such things as aggravating North-South relations, introducing a foreign force into problems concerning reunification, keeping people from discussing matters related to reunification and trying to monopolize the dialogue, and kicking up anticommunist rackets against us. The dialogue which they are trying to hold while kicking up anticommunist rackets, suppressing the patriots and making a habit of hostile activities against us in collusion with the foreign force within the country, is a phony and worthless one.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique is a criminal that cannot be a partner to the dialogue on reunification. As soon as it usurped power with guns and bayonets, the Chon clique begged its U.S. master not to withdraw the U.S. imperialist occupation forces. Running wild to perpetuate the division by again talking about the proposal for a simultaneous entry into the United Nations and the proposal for cross-recognition, both of which have already been rejected, the Chon clique is even clamoring indiscreetly about the theory on achieving reunification in the 2000's.

The Chon clique is also the one who is frantically kicking up the confrontation racket against us by trampling with tank treads the shoots of democracy and reunification, which appeared in South Korea after the previous dictator was assassinated, by atrociously murdering democratic figures and patriotic people and by fabricating anticommunist cases one after another. The only thing that the Chon Tu-hwan clique has done since it came into power is to raise higher a barrier of division and to arrest many people by building more prisons, augmenting police and conducting murderous trials.

The hands and feet of traitorous Chon Tu-hwan -- the human butcher -- are stained with blood of the nation. While talking about dialogue, the Chon Tu-hwan clique is running wild to prepare for a criminal war against the compatriots; the Chon clique is aggravating the situation by waging a large-scale war exercise such as "Team Spirit 1982" with the U.S. imperialist aggression forces.

It is shameless for it to clamor about dialogue, while kicking up the war exercise commotion against us.

In reality, the only things that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is doing are criminal acts against the nation and reunification. These cannot be compatible with the country's peace and peaceful reunification. How can we sit together face to face with such a criminal to discuss sacred matters concerning reunification?

The South Korean people, who are living under the guns and bayonets of fascism, and the patriots, who have dropped dead on the streets of resistance, will not allow us to sit face to face with them.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique should not rave presumptuously about reunification but be prepared to apologize for its traitorous crimes committed before the nation. It is too shameless and silly for them to easily escape punishment for their crimes behind the hypocritical facade of the so-called reunification policies.

It is our consistent policy that we are willing to join hands with anyone who opposes division and sets out on a road of reunification, without reference to his past activities. The South Korean rulers should abandon their double-sided tactics of pursuing division, confrontation and fascism on the one hand and of babbling about reunification, dialogue and talks on the other hand, but should apologize before the nation. And, they should have the U.S. forces withdraw from South Korea, realize democratization in South Korea, abandon the anticommunist confrontation policy, give up the two Koreas policy and immediately release all the people who have been illegally arrested and imprisoned, including Kim Tae-chung.

If they meet this demand, we might be able to sit face to face with them to discuss matters concerning reunification and we might be able to hold the ministerial-level talks and even higher-level talks than that.

Under the present conditions, in which the South Korean puppets seek only division while tenaciously opposing reunification, our proposal for convening a 100-man joint conference is a realistic and reasonable policy which can really accelerate national unity and the fatherland's reunification. The puppet clique should not commit an unjust act of keeping the 100-man joint conference from convening.

No matter how the puppets may try, they cannot suppress the people's aspirations for the reunification and cannot break our will for opening the door of reunification with grand national unity. Though the dog barks, the moon keeps moving across the sky.

WEINBERGER'S ARRIVAL IN SOUTH KOREA SCORED

[Text] Pyongyang, March 30 (KCNA) -- On March 28 the U.S. Defense Secretary flew into South Korea with the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises getting all the more frantic, according to a report. On the same day the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff also flew into South Korea. Earlier, on March 27, the commander of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces in the Pacific turned up in South Korea.

During their stay in South Korea the warmaniacs will "inspect" U.S. Army and puppet army units in the frontline area, "watch" the war exercises and attend the criminal "South Korea-U.S. Annual Security Consultative Meeting."

The U.S. imperialists are sending warlike servants one after another to South Korea to patronize the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique repudiated by the entire Korean people and the honest-minded people of the world and encourage it to antinational acts.

Such criminal acts of the U.S. imperialist aggressors in backing the fascist rogues are giving rise to vehement indignation among our people and the progressive people of the world.

NODONG SINMUN HITS CHON'S 'POLITICAL BURLESQUE'

SK290440 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0401 GMT 29 Mar 82

[Text] Pyongyang, March 29 (KCNA) -- Now the traitor Chon Tu-hwan has launched a propaganda campaign by setting in motion subsidized propaganda media to make it appear as if he had performed any "exploit" in South Korea since he grabbed power. NODONG SINMUN Sunday brands this as a political burlesque to veil his treacherous crimes, create an illusion about his brutal military fascist rule and thus gratify his lust for long-term office.

The author of an article titled "People Will Never Tolerate Puppet Clique's Treacherous Crimes"says: The traitor Chon Tu-hwan has committed never-to-be-condoned criminal acts against the country and the nation, brandishing the bayonet since his seizure of power. The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique first of all, has driven South Korea deeper into a dark abyss, talking about "political modernization" and intensifying the military fascist rule. It has further replenished fascist evil laws, drastically increased the number of repressive forces and ruthlessly cracked down upon the people who call for the right to existence, democracy and national reunification.

Referring to the fact that Chon Tu-hwan clique is brutally persecuting Kim Tae-chung and other democrats, patriots, students, workers and pressmen, the article continues: For the Chon Tu-hwan group it is another means to existence to seek personal pleasure by means of anti-communist confrontation and permanent national split, along with fascist suppression.

Early last year the traitor Chon Tu-hwan visited his U.S. master to beg for the permanent occupation of South Korea by the U.S. imperialist aggression forces and returned to his den after receiving instructions on creating "two Koreas." Since then he has run with bloodshot eyes to keep the nation split indefinitely. His clique maliciously spoke ill of our proposal for the founding of the Democratic Confederal Republic of Korya, a most reasonable and realistic reunification proposal, to lay hurdles in the way of reunification. While clamouring about unification the Chon Tu-hwan clique brought forward the "January 12 proposal", "January 22 proposal", "20-point temporary work" and the like. But all these were nothing but proposals for split in the guise of unification.

The splittist nature of the Chon Tu-hwan clique finds more salient expression in that while preaching the argument for "unification in the 2000's and "infeasibility of unification" in an undisguised way, it resorted to a mendicant diplomacy in a bid to win international support for its "two Koreas" policy. The Chon Tu-hwan clique has persisted in the heinous anti-communist racket to whip up North-South confrontation as part of the "two Koreas" plot.

The rogues begged for a permanent presence of U.S. troops in South Korea under the pretext of the fictitious "threat of southward invasion", while sharply raising military expenses and hastening the building of the munitions industry and increase of the puppet army combat power and took steps to extensively expand puppet army troops in "case of emergency."

The puppet clique intends to induce military equipment worth over 211 million dollars this year again. While frantically stepping up the arms buildup, the military blackguards are ceaselessly holding powder-reeking war exercises to further aggravate the situation.

At present the South Korean puppet clique, together with the U.S. imperialist aggression forces, are staging the large-scale powder-reeking "Team Spirit 1982" joint military exercises. On the other hand, the puppet clique, backed by the U.S. imperialists, is further strengthening military tie-up with the Japanese reactionaries.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique, a group of filthy flunkeyist traitors, introduced foreign monopoly capital at random, thereby precipitating the bankruptcy of the South Korean economy, accentuating its dependence and deteriorating people's living.

The article points to the fact that in South Korea last year the operation rate of enterprises was only 30 per cent, more than 4,000 enterprises suspended operation or closed doors, grain production decreased by 10 million tons and 7.64 million tons of grain was imported, and foreign debts amounted to over 30,000 million dollars and deficit in export to 5,000 million dollars as of the end of last year.

The traitor must apologize to the people for his crimes and step down without delay from "power," declares the article.

VRPR ALLEGES ANTI-CHON TU-HWAN PLOTS IN ARMY

SK300934 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party For Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 30 Mar 82

[From feature program "Hour for armed forces"]

[Text] It has been disclosed by army intelligence officers that the cause of the dismissal of Pak Se-chik, who was known as one of the staunch supporters of Chon Tu-hwan, from his post as commander of the Capital Garrison Command was not due to embezzlement as announced by the government, but a plot aimed at eliminating Chon Tu-hwan. This has now become the topic of the day among men and officers.

It has been disclosed that Chon Tu-hwan, after taking seriously a statement at an August 1981 press conference with foreign reporters by Wickham, commander of U.S. forces in South Korea, who said that some young army generals had persistently sought to eliminate Chon Tu-hwan, conducted an intensive investigation into this charge and eventually found that the ringleader of the young generals was Pak Se-chik. This was, the story goes, the reason for the purge of Pak Se-chik.

It has also been disclosed that the crash of an air force C-123 transport plane on the slopes of the Mt Halla on Cheju Island, in which 53 troops were killed while conducting a so-called infiltration operation postulating an attack against the North, was not due to unusual turbulence as announced by the Defense Ministry, but was engineered by a soldier. This story is now drawing the attention of armymen. According to a troop information and education office of the 7787th Unit of the army, around 1500 on that day, when the plane was approaching the coast north of Mt. Halla prior to landing, a soldier on the plane exploded a hand grenade to blow up the plane. Later, a letter whose author was not identified was found in the area 3.7 kms north of the summit of Mt. Halla, where the debris of the plane was located. The letter reads as follows: To officers and men of the 7787th Unit of the army: We must not become victims of fratricide for the interests of the United States. I hope you will not make yourselves scapegoats in a war which has no good cause. With this expectation and hope, I am killing myself.

When Chon Tu-hwan was inspecting a frontline area early this year, an army officer attempted to shoot him. However, the attempt aborted and the officer was arrested by Chon's bodyguards. And because of this incident, the story goes, the army's chief of staff was replaced and a mass personnel reshuffle was carried out in the army.

SEMINAR SPEAKER ON SELF-DEFENSE CAPABILITY

[Speech by Kim Sun-il, first deputy president of the Kim Il-song Military University, at second session of National Chuche Idea Seminar held in Pyongyang on 26 March to mark Kim Il-song's 70th birthday -- read by announcer]

[Text] The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who has added a brilliant chapter to history with a chuche ray by embarking on a revolutionary road, has attained immortal achievements in the history of the revolutionary struggle of the working class by inventing a unique military idea of self-defense and continuously developing and enriching this idea.

Ideologically and theoretically reflected in a comprehensive manner in the military idea of self-defense are the creditable achievements and experiences attained by the great leader in the military sector in devoting his life to the sacred revolutionary cause for the freedom and happiness of the people. This idea provides a scientific solution to all theoretical and practical questions arising from the revolutionary war.

The military idea of self-defense invented by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is a profound one delineating a principle of scientific and revolutionary military guidance of victory in the revolutionary war for the independence of the working people. The matter of how to correctly establish the principle of military leadership is a key to defining the nature and content of military ideas and making a distinction between the revolutionary and opportunistic stands for military affairs. With the invention of the military idea of self-defense by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, this important and urgent matter has been brilliantly resolved.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: By the self-defense of the country, we mean to safeguard one's country through independent efforts. Thus, the chuche idea of our party has been materialized in the military sector. The principle of making one independently safeguard himself -- the principle of self-defense -- stems directly from man's natural demand to protect and safeguard himself and from the chuche military principle that men play a decisive role in war. This principle very correctly reflects the correctness of the development of the revolution in our era by individual countries and the requirements for constructing an independent country. Accordingly, the principle of self-defense is a scientific and revolutionary principle of military leadership which the working people should consistently abide by in their struggle for independence.

With the development of the military idea of self-defense, the working people have correctly understood the revolutionary truth that the purpose and role of the revolutionary war is to protect and safeguard their independence from antirevolutionary violence. Based on their own judgment, they have independently waged a revolutionary war and carried out all military activities. We should believe not in others' strength but in our own with the military idea of self-defense, and we should safeguard the revolution by adopting this attitude.

The military idea of self-defense helps the peoples of colonial, small and backward countries to firmly believe in their own strength and carry out their role in the struggle to safeguard the revolution. This is the importance of the military idea of self-defense.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has helped the working people safeguard the revolution through their independent efforts by illuminating the road toward fostering the invincible capability of self-defense -- the chuche-type power of coping with war -- by holding that one's independent safeguarding of himself is the guiding principle in solving military questions. To protect and safeguard the sovereignty of the people by smashing the antirevolutionary violence of the aggressors and oppressors, we should foster an invincible self-defense capability evincing chuche-type power. While making preparations politically and ideologically, the military idea of self-defense brightly illuminates the future path of fostering a powerful national defense capability.

The power of making the army and the people firmly arm themselves with the immortal chuche idea and unite around the party and the leader constitutes the political and ideological foundation of the country's self-defense power. The invincible unity of the party and the people around the leader and the party with loyalty to the great leader's wise leadership, to the party and to the leader and a resolve to struggle against the enemy and win victory in this struggle is our political and ideological power, which is more powerful than the imperialist aggressors' nuclear missiles.

To acquire the ever-victorious and invincible self-defense strength, we should be materially prepared to the fullest extent to defend the country on the basis of a self-reliant national economy. We should build up political and ideological strength in the army and people.

Because the great leader has put forth a policy to lay a foundation for a viable self-reliant national economy which can guarantee materially and economically the country's defense strength and meet the demand for the materials from the frontline and rear areas, a creative path to build an ever-victorious and invincible self-defense strength has been provided.

Because the great Comrade Kim Il-song has put forth a revolutionary military line and policy to found the armed forces, which have embodied the military ideology of self-defense, and has wisely led the struggle to achieve the line and policy, he has illuminated the path to building the revolutionary forces and leading the revolutionary army, strengthened and developed the people's army as the 1-a-match-for-100 revolutionary armed forces and turned our country into a powerful one which no imperialist aggressor can play with.

The military ideology of self-defense created by the respected and beloved leader evince greatness, justness and invincible viability because he has made our people and revolutionary armed forces a heroic people and army, which defeated the Japanese and U.S. imperialists and turned our country into one which has an invincible self-defense strength.

On the basis of the principle of self-defense, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has not only illuminated the path to building an invincible self-defense strength, but also illuminated the basic methods of the armed struggle.

Because the repected and beloved leader has created the most scientific and revolutionary military strategy -- the creative chuche strategy -- which contains the basic forms and methods of our era's armed struggle, he has provided a firm guarantee for achieving victory in the revolutionary war. The chuche strategy of the great leader elucidates the methods of the armed struggle on the basis of the decisive role which the people -- the masses of soldiers -- play in wars. The chuche strategy -- the chuche-oriented forms and methods of the armed struggle -- illuminated by the great leader is an ever-victorious strategy with which the revolutionary army and people can defeat the enemy by taking the initiative with strategic and tactical superiority on the basis of political and ideological superiority.

Our people's anti-Japanese war and fatherland liberation war have established the fact that the creative forms and methods of armed struggle illuminated by the great leader's military ideology of self-defense are a powerful and effective military strategy which can drive away any imperialist aggressors and firmly guarantee victory in the revolutionary war for independence of the working masses.

In reality, the military ideology of self-defense created by the respected and beloved leader regards the safeguarding of oneself as the guiding principle in resolving military problems. The ideology is the great ever-victorious military ideology which provides solutions to all problems, such as the buildup of an invincible self-defense strength, military strategy and the art of war.

Only victory and glory await our people's army and people, marching under the banner of the military ideology of self-defense, whose justness and invincibility were brilliantly displayed in the glorious anti-Japanese armed struggle and the great fatherland liberation war.

CHON URGES READINESS AGAINST ATTACK BY NORTH

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan stressed yesterday that complete preparations must be made to crush any type of infiltration, including a surprise attack in the rear, by special forces of the enemy through either coasts or air. He also pointed out the significance of military training to enable both the Homeland Reserve Forces and persons on defense call-up duty to fully display their capabilities at any time when any situation took place.

The chief executive made the remarks during an unannounced inspection of a military unit on his way back to Seoul from Taegu City, where he inspected the Kyongsang-pukto provincial administration and the city government. POLICE ARREST THREE SUSPECTS IN PUSAN ARSON

[Text] Pusan, Korea, March 30 (YONHAP) -- Police searching for the arsonists of Pusan's U.S. Cultural Center fire on March 18 Tuesday arrested three college students as suspects in the blaze which claimed a college student's life and injured three others. Deputy Director Han Ki-hyong of the Pusan Metropolitan Police told reporters that Miss Yi Mi-ok, 21; Choe Chung-un, 19; and Pak Won-sik, 20 were taken into custody. Police put the suspected mastermind of the fire, Mun Pu-sik, 23, a senior at the Koryo Theological College in Pusan, and Mun's colleague Miss Kim Un-suk, 24, onto a wanted list. The arrested persons are all sophomores at the Koryo Theological College and were apprehended at their homes, according to police.

Police said Yi acted on instructions from Mun and Kim to pour gasoline around the entrance of the Cultural Center and set it afire. Choe and Pak are charged with distributing leaflets containing "anti-American catchphrases" from a window at the third floor of the Kukto Theater near the center. Han said the fire was started by "impure leftist elements" in an attempt to disturb society and damage the friendly ties between Korea and the United States.

Mun is the cousin of Mun Chi-sik who is under investigation for involvement in the aborted attempt on President Chon Tu-hwan's life. Police hope that the arrest of Mun will shed light on the North Korean plot on Chon's life which took place in Canada. In a separate case, police arrested Yi Ho-chol at a Seoul restaurant early Tuesday who has been sought for instigating the turmoil at Pusan University and for a possible connection to the Pusan arson.

UNEN CLAIMS SUPPRESSION OF TIBETANS IN PRC

OW281333 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1706 GMT 26 Mar 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 26 Mar (MONTSAME) -- A forceful assimilation and cruel suppression of any outburst of discontent are the main means of Maoist rule over non-Chinese population of China, writes the Mongolian daily UNEN in an article about a disastrous situation of the Tibetan people. Sufferings of Tibet began in the 50's when it was occupied by China. Beijing's exercise of rule resulted in thousand Tibetans thrown into prisons and over 80 thousand people fleeing the country. After the Qoto mutiny Maoists stepped up the militarization of Tibet, turning it into a springboard for expansion in India and Afghanistan. Beijing has set up in the region over 20 military bases, deployed dozens of medium-ranged missiles and is building numerous engineering projects for military purposes. The militarization of Tibet has resulted in a sharp decrease of the native's living standards which are now extremely low. A Tibetan gets 3 times less foodstuffs than an inhabitant of Central China.

Despite the fact that the majority of the Tibetans drag out a miserable, half hunger-stricken existence, every year the Chinese authorities send there tens of thousands of people from the central regions of China. These migrants occupy leading posts in local administrative and economic organisations. They are given best lands and all kinds of privileges.

Science, culture and education in Tibet are in miserable state, the article notes. 70 per cent of teachers are Hans, who teach only in Chinese. There is a great shortage of teachers, schoolbuildings, textbooks. From year to year the grievous situation of the Tibetan people gets worse. And there is nothing to wonder about: A major part of the Tibetan Autonomous Region's budget goes for the needs of militarization.

The Maoist's policy of Sinozation and the militarization of Tibet, based on the great Han chauvinism, UNEN writes, more and more conflicts with the vital interests of the Tibetan people.

Besides rice, the farmers last year planted 72,530 hectares of sweet potatoes, 15,590 hectares of subsidiary crops, 22,760 hectares of beans, 8,190 hectares of tobacco, 510 hectares of jute, 230 hectares of cotton and 2,650 hectares of sugar cane.

Last year, rubber plantation workers exploited 8,850 hectares out of the 22,000 hectares of rubber trees.

The country now has 383,000 buffaloes, 930,500 cows and oxen, 210,600 pigs and 2,882,000 fowls.

Twenty-nine research and experimentation centres, three pumping stations, two repair workshops, 50 saw mills, seven fodder processing plants, 12 fish-sauce factories and 22 water reservoirs were repaired or built.

VODK: VPC CONGRESS 'WILL NOT SOLVE ANYTHING'

BK300525 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 27 Mar 82

[Unattributed commentary: "Rifts are Splitting the Vietnamese Hanoi Clique's Party and Leadership"]

[Text] Before the convening of the Fifth VCP Congress, TAP CHI CONG SAN, organ of the VCP Central Committee, reported that in the past 2 years -- from 1980 through 1981 -- the Le Duan clique purged more than 86,000 party members.

The Le Duan clique began to purge its party members at the beginning of 1980. According to its plan, this purge would have ended at the end of 1980. This purge continued, however, until the end of 1981 due to struggles between the Le Duan clique and other groups. The Fifth VCP Congress, scheduled to convene at the end of 1981, was delayed until the end of March 1982.

The rifts within the Vietnamese Hanoi party and leadership are not new. In the past few years, particularly after Vietnam found itself becoming deeply bogged down and facing a total impasse on the Kampuchean battlefield, these rifts have become more apparent. After sending troops to invade Kampuchea in 1978, the Vietnamese shouted loudly for they thought that they had won a great prize and that they would be able to swallow Kampuchea at a single gulp. Kampuchea, however, is like a tough meat and bone. For 3 years now Vietnam has been unable to chew it.

Vietnam has now come to realize that it is defeated. No matter how hard it tries, Vietnam cannot swallow up Kampuchea through military means. Thus, Vietnam has wastefully suffered heavy losses in its war of aggression against Kampuchea. It has lost the flesh and blood of the Vietnamese people and youths who were killed on the Kampuchean battlefield in addition to its national resources and prestige.

It has gained notoriety as the aggressor against Kampuchea and as a cat's-paw of the Soviet international expansionists. In particular, Vietnam's economy has collapsed due to the Vietnamese Le Duan clique's war of aggression in Kampuchea. It is also due to this war of aggression against Kampuchea that the Vietnamese people have suffered from famine, led a miserable life and fled from their country by the hundreds of thousands.

The Vietnamese people --suffering from the Le Duan clique's bellicose, aggressive and expansionist foreign policy and its corrupt, dictatorial and fascist domestic policy -- are very furious and nurture great indignation at the clique. They have struggled most vigorously against the Le Duan clique, thus causing greater insecurity throughout Vietnam.

Faced with such defeats in all fields, the Hanoi leaders have started to blame each other, thus causing continuous rifts within their party, leadership and army. These rifts have spread more sharp and vigorous with every passing day. Another cause of these rifts is their scramble for power, money and gold for their own families, colleagues and groups. They are struggling fiercely and trying to get rid of each other. This is why there have been many purges within the Vietnamese party, government and army.

Thus, this Vietnamese party congress will not solve anything. It is only a congress for purges in which the Le Duan clique will purge the other groups in conflict with it. It will only cause greater splits and result in further purges.

For this reason, the Vietnamese people will become more hopeless and indignant at the Le Duan clique. Under this situation, the regime and individuals in the Le Duan clique ultimately will be unable to escape total collapse.

The deputy prime minister highly appreciated the visit and wished the Hungarian delegation success in its visit to Laos so as to contribute to the fruitful development of the relations of friendship and the comradely cooperation, in a spirit of socialism and proletarian internationalism, which exist between the two countries. The two sides coversed with each other in a cordial atmosphere from beginning to end.

Frigyes Puja and his delegation arrived in Vientiane that same afternoon. FOREIGN MINISTRY DENIES SITTHI PRC, SRV REMARK

BK291358 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 29 Mar 82

["Statement" by Thai Foreign Ministry spokesman Chet Sutcharitkun -- date not given]

[Text] With reference to the statement made by Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach during an interview with a Netherlands newspaper saying that he had been told by the Thai foreign minister that China would intervene in case of an incursion by Vietnamese troops into Thai territory, the Foreign Ministry denies the above. The Thai foreign minister has never made such a statement to the Vietnamese foreign minister. The Vietnamese foreign minister's interview reflects the fact that Vietnam might be overly obsessed by its concern from China.

MORE FROM COMMERCE MINISTRY ON TRADE WITH PRC

[Text] Chia Kokphon, secretary to the commerce minister, has reported on the results of the recent trade mission to China. Chia said the Thai private sector has reached agreement with China aimed at preventing price cutting on the sale of gunny bags to third countries. Thailand has agreed to sell an additional 100,000 tons of rice to China, 5,000 tons of glutinous rice and 2,000 tons of green peas. China also wanted to buy 10,000 tons of 25 percent white rice but no agreement has been reached on the price. There will be further negotiations on this matter. China has said it will take delivery of the 30,000 tons of rice which have not yet been delivered as soon as possible. Sales of cotton and fishmeal -- of which China wanted about 2,000 tons -- were also proposed during the trip but the quoted prices were not agreeable to China. Chinese officials will come to Bangkok in April to negotiate the purchase of 3,500 tons of tobacco leaves.

VOFA DESCRIBES MEASURES TAKEN TO COMBAT PIRACY

[Station special report: "The True Facts About the Piracy in the Gulf of Thailand"]

[Text] For some time now Thailand's good image has been smeared by unfair accusations from foreign news media who contended that the Thai Government is not seriously trying to suppress the piracy in the Gulf of Thailand, and that the Thai Government views piracy as a means to discourage and prevent the boat refugees from entering Thailand. Those news media also accused Thailand for not accepting assistance offered by other countries for suppressing the piracy and for being indifferent to the atrocities perpetrated by the pirates against the Indochinese boat refugees.

We wish to state that such accusations leveled against Thailand have damaged Thailand's good reputation because they do not contain a grain of truth. The Thai Government has been taking stern measures against the act of piracy in the Gulf of Thailand as seen by the decision reached at the Thai Cabinet meeting early this month with regard to this problem and which can be summarized as follows:

Firstly, the police department, which has the direct responsibility in the prevention and the suppression of piracy against the Thai fishermen, has been ordered to accelerate the operations of provincial police in gathering intelligence data and suppressing the sources of banditry on land as well as undertaking joint operations with the marine police on sea against pirates.

Secondly, the Ministry of Interior together with other relevant agencies including the Fishery Association of Thailand has been instructed to compile records on ship crews and supervise and keep exact records of the movements of large fishing boats to and from the Thai ports.

Thirdly, the Royal Thai Navy has been instructed to set up inspection points in Thai territorial waters for supervising the movements of fishing boats and other cargo ships so as to prevent the act of piracy and prevent Thai fishing boats from smuggling goods into Kampuchea and Vietnam.

Fourthly, the Royal Thai Navy has been instructed to accelerate the implementation of the project to educate Thai fishermen in matters pertaining to national security. This is to be done in cooperation with the Fishery Department and the Fishery Association of Thailand with the purpose of securing cooperation from the fishermen to help the Thai authorities in preventing and suppressing the pirates. This project also includes the establishment of the fishermen groups for self-protection as well as providing assistance to the Thai authorities.

Lastly, a sufficient budget will be allocated to those government agencies -- namely the provincial police and the marine police -- which are responsible for the prevention and suppression of piracy.

But due to the fact that the suppression of piracy in the international waters is also an international problem, Thailand will have to seek aid from foreign countries to prevent and suppress piracy on the Thai coastal seas and territorial waters so long as such aid does not entail unnecessary obligations or have conditions attached.

In an attempt to suppress piracy in the Gulf of Thailand, the Thai Government has instructed the Royal Thai Navy in Songkhla in the southern part of Thailand and other responsible agencies to set up a suppression unit for this purpose and this unit, which has the area of responsibility of 18,000 square kilometers, has already started its operations from 6 February 1981. This suppression unit has been able to protect the Thai fishermen and the Indochinese refugees from the pirates. Recently the Royal Thai Navy had been able to capture the pirates in the Gulf of Thailand who later turned out to be pirates from a foreign country bent on discrediting Thailand for every act of piracy of its own doing.

The above measures and actions taken by the Thai Government are more than sufficient to refute any allegation that the Thai Government is indifferent to the problem of piracy in the Gulf of Thailand. However, the problem of piracy against the Vietnamese boat people must be dealt with at its origin. That is to say if Vietnam is able to control its own people and prevent their exodus to other countries, it is certain that the problem of piracy in the Gulf of Thailand will soon disappear.

NATION REVIEW NOTES CPT SPLINTER GROUP PROBLEMS

[Editorial: "Splinter Group of CPT Poses New Problems"]

[Text] Time was, when it was correctly understood by the Thai Government that communist insurgents in Thailand were trained, armed, instructed, and whatever else by the Pathet Lao and the Viet Cong (the obsolete vocabulary may be pardoned.) Those were the days when both the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China were giving full support to Hanoi in the Vietnam war and it actually did not matter on which side lay the allegiance of the insurgents in Thailand.

The highest authorities in Beijing have confirmed again and again that the Communist Party of China controls the Communist Party of Thailand. But naturally, as in other countries of the world, there has to be a split with Beijing controlling one faction and Moscow controlling another -- control by Moscow in this part of the world means control by Hanoi which is after all the ruling force in Vientiane as in Phnom Penh.

Unlike Beijing, Hanoi has said with the straightest of faces that it has nothing whatsoever to do with the communist insurgents in Thailand. When the Vietnamese foreign minister made that statement in Bangkok 5 years ago, he was very likely speaking the truth because at that time China had already preempted the control of CPT. But Nguyen Duy Trinh never said that he would not try to take control of even a part of the insurgents in Thailand if there was a possibility. On the other hand, Deng Xiaoping, when he was in Bangkok, was quite frank in saying that the Communist Party of China controlled the CPT.

Strictly speaking, to us in Thailand and to the Thai Government it is of little interest who controls since our major interest is that the insurgents are working against Thailand, its government and its people. However, we may be permitted to ask an academic question. Will the formation of a new Marxist-Leninist splinter party (translation: pro-Moscow party) take some of the "power" wielded by the pro-Beijing CPT? The answer has to be in the affirmative because divisiveness always tends to downgrade any structure -- as we see in our own big political parties.

Communist splinter parties always take on such long and complicated names that obfuscate the ordinary man, as they are meant to, so that we will call the pro-Moscow group with its base in Laos only as "Pak Mai." Two points arise from this. The first is that Indochinese enmity, spearheaded by Hanoi, is more toward China than toward Thailand. The second is that any activity that the Pak Mai take against Thailand -- that group is talking about urban terrorism -- will have to be in such a way that Thailand would be made to point its finger at China. We do admit that the reasoning is academic but any student of the three communist parties of India will know that they are more at each other's throat than at that of the government.

Hanoi's thinking, naturally reflected and followed by both Vientiane and Phnom Penh, is that high priority should be attached to isolate China from Southeast Asia. Hanoi is perhaps partly right in considering that she has been responsible for making the United States consign Southeast Asia to the back-burner. A very highly complicated situation is arising and up to now our government and armed forces have been on top of the quick moving events.

The problem that has to be faced is that events are going to move much quicker; and the question to be asked is whether Thailand could still be on top of the situation. The defection of Pak Mai from the CPT shows a new Moscow-Hanoi ploy that nobody is happy about it. The Kampuchean conflict has been rightly labelled as the Sino-Soviet war fought by surrogates -- we want no such thing in Thailand.

MATERIALS ON FIFTH COMMUNIST PARTY CONGRESS

Pham Van Dong Report

OW271802 Hanoi VNA in English 1741 GMT 27 Mar 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 27 -- The following is a summary of the report titled "Main Orientations, Tasks and Targets in the Economic and Social Fields for the 1981-1985 Period and the Eighties as a Whole" delivered at the Fifth C.P.V. Congress this afternoon, by Pham Van Dong, party Politbureau member and chairman of the Council of Ministers:

Main Orientations, Tasks and Targets in the Economic and Social Fields for the 1981-1985 Period and the Eighties as a Whole

Members of the Presidium, comrade delegates, the party Central Committee's political report presented to this congress by the general secretary, Comrade Le Duan, has given a panoramic view of our people's revolutionary cause from the fourth to the fifth party congress. The report has summarized the diverse developments of the country's situation in the first years of the new stage in which our people throughout the country have been engaging in socialist construction and the defence of the socialist fatherland. Analyzing the achievements as well as the weaknesses in our advance, the report affirms that "the past five years can be recorded in our national history as a stage of very glorious victory of the Vietnamese revolution"; and at the same time, it also points out acute problems in the present economic and social situation. On this basis, the report defines the strategic tasks of the Vietnamese revolution, the major guidelines for our people's activities in the immediate first stage including the period of the 1981-1985 Five-Year Plan and the years ending with 1990.

Based on the political report, this report is to review the major points in the implementation of the 1976-1980 plan and present the main orientations, tasks and targets in the economic and social fields for the 1981-1985 period and the eighties as a whole, with a view to guiding the elaboration of the 1981-1985 Five-Year State Plan.

Reviewing the Economic and Social Situation in the Years 1976-1980 and at Present

At present, the economic and social situation in our country is posing many acute problems: The living conditions of our people, of workers and public servants in particular, are beset with difficulties; the sources of energy, materials supply and transport facilities are unable to ensure the development of existing productive capacities; exports cannot pay for imports; markets and prices fluctuate in a complicated way; the managerial mechanism and planning work are still influenced by bureaucratism and a state-financing system; negative phenomena in economic and social life are still lingering.

Our country is living in a state of peace while we have to deal with a type of many-sided sabotage war conducted by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with U.S. imperialism and to stand ready to cope with the possibility of a large-scale war of aggression started by the enemy. This situation requires us to be always vigilant and to pay great attention to enhancing our national defence and security and achieving high combatreadiness.

The economy of the capitalist world in the eighties will continue to be in a fluctuating state. The energy and materials crisis, the soaring prices at international markets, and the sabotage and embargo policy pursued by the U.S. imperialists and Chinese reactionaries are causing new difficulties to our economy.

We possess, however, great capabilities and advantages to overcome difficulties and take the economy forward. There are millions of hectares of farm land which can be reclaimed and put under crops, the capacities for crop multiplication, intensive cultivation and the raising of crop yield, and millions of hectares of forest land which have not been properly protected and exploited.

There are labour forces which have not yet been fully mobilized, the contingent of skillful workers and that of scientific and technical workers which have not been rationally used to accelerate economic activities, develop agriculture, forestry and fishery, diversify occupations and trades, turn out consumer and export goods and step by step build the material and technological basis of socialism.

There are existing productive capacities which have not been used to the full and a number of projects to be completed and commissioned such as cement works, power stations, fertilizer and chemicals plants, motor engineering works, ship-building and ship-repair yards, spinning factories, paper and sugar mills, port facilities, etc.

There are diverse natural resources including minerals, hydro power, oil and gas which are being explored and will be exploited.

There is progress we have made in economic and social leadership and management, new understanding of the country's realities, deeper comprehension of the party's lines, and lessons of experience over the past five years.

There are the great and effective assistance of the Soviet Union and other fraternal socialist countries. Our all-round co-operation with the Soviet Union and the other countries in the Council of Mutual Economic Assistance constitutes a factor of utmost importance helping us overcome difficulties and march forward. The ever closer relations in various fields between the three Indochinese countries have opened up new possibilities for economic co-operation and mutual assistance, thus creating supporting sources to develop the economy of each country. In our economic relations with other countries, we can expand exchanges and co-operation in various forms.

In 1981, the first year of the 1981-1985 five-year plan, our people have made many initial, heartening changes in various fields, especially in agricultural and idustrial production, small industries and handicrafts.

It is worth noting that recently, in the furtherance of the resolutions of the sixth plenum of the Central Committee and the new policies issued by the party and state, a number of establishments, localities and branches have introduced innovations in production, business operations and management. These new factors should be studied in a scientific and profound manner with a view to drawing useful conclusions and promoting application.

In agriculture, we fulfilled and overfulfilled the plan on food production and on many industrial crops in spite of the fact that the supply of fertilizers, insecticides and energy was less than before. The food demand in the countryside was better ensured, farmers were eager to fulfill their duties toward the state, the heavy sequels of natural disasters in the north in 1980 were overcome. At present the system of contractual delviery quotas for working people on a group or individual basis has become a motive force to accelerate the emulation movement to boost production and raise the economic efficiency in agriculture. This form of contractual work has been raising many new questions with regard to the management, organization, and consolidation of co-operatives; crop specialization and intensive cultivation; and the supply of material and technical facilities which must be promptly resolved by the state services with a view to guiding the further advance of agriculture production in conformity with the requirement of developing agriculture and taking it socialist large-scale production. [as received]

In industry as well as in capital construction and communications and transport, the wider scope for initiative in production and socialist business, the application of the system of job-rate and piece-rate wages and bonuses and other policies aimed at stimulating production have encouraged workers at many establishments, many branches and localities to bring into play their creativeness, surmount difficulties in production, and have obtained initial results: the industrial output, especially that of local industries, small industries and handicrafts, was up as compared with 1980; a number of key capital construction projects were under way in keeping with the schedule; a new mode of enterprise: "joint efforts by the central and local services, by the state and the people" has been gradually spreading.

Though the new changes in 1981 were not drastic and widspread enough, they have shown that the abundant labour power and creative talents of our people and of our scientific and technical workers have been brought into play, initially, through improvements by the managerial mechanism, embodied in newly issued policies. They marked a development of the working people's right to collective mastery in economic and social management. The process of preparing the fifth national congress of the party provided an opportunity for the whole party and people to look back and think over the past stage, draw useful lessons, and lighten the path forward. This reflects our growing maturity and contains new factors making us confident: we have grown up further after the years 1976-1980.

The political report has expounded positions of principle governing the elaboration of the economic and social strategy for the socialist industrialization process in the 1980's, and has set forth the economic, cultural and social tasks in the 1981-1985 period. These strategic positions constitute an application of the party's lines of socialist revolution and of building a socialist economy in keeping with the specific conditions of the present stage.

The report has set forth overall targets in the economic and social fields for the 1980's as follows:

1 -- To meet the most pressing and essential needs, gradually stabilize and eventually improve to some extent the people's material and cultural life, first of all to bring about a steady solution to the foodgrain and foodstuffs problem, better meet the requirements in clothing, study, medical care, housing, travelling, child care, and other essential consumption needs.

2 -- To continue building the material and technological basis of socialism, with a view mainly to boosting agricultural production, consumer goods industry and exports, strengthening further the technical equipment of the other economic branches, and making preparations for a more vigorous development of heavy industry in the next stage.

3 -- To complete the socialist transformation in the southern provinces, further perfect the socialist relations of production in the north, and consolidate the socialist relations of production in the whole country.

4 -- To meet the defence requirements, consolidate national defence and maintain security and order.

These overall targets must beconcretized into partial objectives, quantitative norms to be achieved in each branch, each locality, each establishment. This is closely linked to the inventorying and calculations in order to bring into play the capabilities, to work out a balance between the requirements and the possibilities and to lay down executive measures regarding policies, ideology and organization through the establishment of economic-technical projects. That is precisely the process of elaborating the economic and social strategy, working out the state plan, and renovating the management mechanism.

On the basis of the results achieved so far this report will expound the main orientations, tasks and targets in the economic and social fields for the 1981-1985 period and the 1980's as a whole.

In the field of life, we must manage to meet the food requirements of society to the extent of securing enough foodgrain, vegetables, beans, and an increased supply of sugar, molasses, fish, meat, eggs. We must achieve a stable supply of food and fuel rations to the workers, civil servants and armymen, especially in the cities, industrial areas, border areas and offshore islands. We must resolve the problem of clothing for the entire people to a required minimum; ensure the supply of writing paper, school-book paper and newsprint and an appropriate amount of printing paper for other purposes; try with a high sense of urgency to do away with the shortage of medicines, especially essential ones; ensure a better supply of household implements and common articles for personal use; increase the means of transport; make a further step in alleviating the housing shortages; ensure an increased supply of water for domestic use, a rational supply of electricity and hygienic conditions in population areas. While caring for the people's life as a whole, our priority should be given to producers, especially to workers, together with soldiers, cadres and public servants. Along with striving to stabilize and improve to some extent the people's material life, we must pay the greatest attention to organizing the cultural life in each enterprise and co-operative, in villages, "phuong", districts, provinces, towns and cities.

In the field of building the material and technological basis, we must attach great importance to the development in depth, namely, making transformation, addition, and improvement in order to put to good use the existing capabilities; at the same time, we must carry on the development in breadth, undertake new constructions in a selective manner, strengthen the material-technical facilities available for immediate use in the 1981-1985 Five-Year Plan while making active preparations to deploy construction work on a larger scale and at a quicker tempo in subsequent plan. In strengthening the material and technological basis both in depth and in breadth we are to concentrate on boosting agricultural production, increasing the capacity of producing consumer and export goods, creating new sources of energy and raw materials, developing the infrastructure, especially the communications and transport capacity; and at the same time to ensure the adequate supply of ordinary and improved tools of various kinds, and an increased number of medium-size and small machines and equipment for various economic activities, to stimulate the key branches in the first place.

In the field of socialist transformation, we must conduct in a very resolute way the revolution in the relations of production, adopting proper steps and forms. We must establish the socialist relations of production, so that the economic situation is stabilized on healthy foundations, develops in the right direction, and the state controls the major part of the commodities. We advocate the use of a multi-componented economic structure in which the socialist economy plays the leading role. This means that we must correctly step up the socialist transformation. In the 1981-1985 period, we must resolutely carry out land readjustment and complete in the main the taking of the peasants in the provinces of Nam Bo into the collective path, mainly in the form of production collectives, continue to organize and consolidate the farm co-operatives in central provinces, step up the transformation of trade, transport, fishery and industry in the south, make intensive efforts to rearrange and handle the national market, and make a further step toward perfecting the socialist relations of production.

In the field of national defence and security, we must make the greatest efforts for a good performance in the defence of the country and the maintenance of the security of the fatherland. With an economy closely combined with national defence and a defence combined with the economy, we are to work out plans for an active and swift shift from an economy of peace to one of war, in case of necessity.

To achieve the above-mentioned objectives, we must correctly apply the line of socialist revolution and that of building a socialist economy charted out by the fourth party congress and major policies for the eighties expounded in the political report to the fifth congress. While implementing these lines and policies, special attention should be paid to the following very important points:

First of all, we should always firmly grasp the main contents of the socialist industrialization in the five years 1981-1985 and in the eighties as a whole, which are to concentrate efforts to develop agriculture vigorously, regard agriculture as the forefront, take a further step in advancing agriculture to socialist large-scale production, strive hard to boost consumer goods production and continue to build a number of important heavy industries, combine agriculture, consumer goods industry and heavy industry in a rational industrial-agricultural structure.

We must develop agriculture in an all-round manner along with forestry and fishery, first and foremost to boost the production of foodgrain and foodstuffs. In clost connection with an all-round developement of agriculture, we must make the fullest use of all forces from major industrial installations to small-industry and handicraft establishments and individual handicraftsmen to develop the production of consumer goods. In all activities of our national economy, we must attach a great importance to exports, and make tremendous efforts in this regard, so as to create at an early date main sources of export articles of high value. With efforts to be focused on developing agriculture and boosting the production of consumer and export goods, we should create jobs to the highest possible extent permitted by our capacity, utilize to the full labour forces, and expand the division of labour and reallocation of social labour forces.

We must continue to build the centrally-run economy into the backbone of the national economy with a firm grip on key positions; at the same time, we must pay the greatest attention to the development of local economies, bringing into play their important action on agriculture and consumer goods production. We should actively form economic-technical branches to serve as pillars of the economy, while persevering in efforts to build district agricultural-industrial economic units, and provincial economies in the direction of gradually creating a provincial industrial-agricultural economic structure.

We must develop labour division and coordination relations both on a national and local scale, closely linking the central economy to the local ones in a unified national economic structure.

Urban centres, especially the large cities, play a very important role and must promote their ever-increasing impact on the economy, especially in industry, small industries and handicrafts. Central and local authorities are duty-bound to help build Hanoi into a political, economic, scientific, technological and cultural centre worthy of representing the whole country. Ho Chi Minh City with its varied possibilities must become ~~an~~ important centre for economic, cultural and foreign trade activities.

The provinces in the Mekong River Delta and the Red River Delta, with very great and diverse capabilities, are key regions of food and agricultural production for the country.

The midlands and mountain provinces in the north possess a strategic position of great importance in economy and defence, very great strong points economically, and are the site of many industrial centres. The provinces in the Central Highlands also possess a strategic position of great importance in economy and defence, great potentialities, especially concerning forestry, perennial industrial crops and some valuable mineral resources. The coastal provinces of central Vietnam have economic strong points in many respects. The provinces of eastern Nam Bo have all-round agricultural capabilities and many important industrial installations.

While our economy still comprises several components, it is extremely important to expand the positions of the socialist economy and to enhance its dominant role. We must make every effort to consolidate and perfect the state-run and co-operative economic units.

To overcome immediate difficulties and take the economy forward, we must try our best to bring into play the valuable assets and strong position of the economy itself and of our people and our country, while making the best use of the assistance of the Soviet Union and the other countries in the Council of Mutual Economic Assistance, expand our all-sided co-operation and mutual assistance with the fraternal countries of Laos and Kampuchea, considering this assistance and all-round co-operation to be a fundamental factor having character of an economic law to carry out socialist industrialization in our country. With regard to other countries, we should strive to develop trade relations and economic, scientific and technological co-operation on the principle of ensuring independence, sovereignty and mutual benefit.

To achieve the above-mentioned targets and orientations, the 1981-1985 Five-Year Plan is a plan for a further development, restructuring and promotion of socialist transformation of the national economy. These three aspects should be closely associated with each other in order to stabilize the economic and social situation in the main, to meet the most pressing and essential needs of the people's material and cultural life, to reduce the most serious imbalances in the economy, to overcome to an important extent the abnormalities in distribution and circumlation, stabilize in the main the economic and social situation, and create more prerequisites and conditions for a vigorous and steady advance in the years to come.

In all economic activities, we must constantly pay special attention to productivity, reduction in material consumption and production costs quality and efficiency, and strive to bring into play three factors: renewal of management, application of science and technology; and practice of strict thrift, opposing waste.

A feature of pressing significance and special importance is the need for diligently achieving a good rearrangement of the economy in accordance with the following orientations:

We must readjust and improve the structure of production, building, labour, distribution, circulation and consumption, better meet the pressing needs in keeping with the practical possibilities in the forthcoming years, especially with regard to energy, raw materials, communications and transport, and also with the long-term forward direction, thereby promoting a stable and highly effective development of the economy in the right direction.

In rearranging the production facilities, we must as a matter of priority afford material conditions to boost the production of articles serving the people's life, the needs of export and of national defence consolidation. In this spirit, some establishments are to be given additional equipment and machinery and supplied with more energy and materials, while others will have to readjust their production or gear it to another direction.

We must reorganize the production and business network of all branches and trades from the central to local and grass-roots levels, and create a production structure composed of well-fitted parts showing dynamism and in a position to forge ahead.

In rearranging capital construction, we must review the structure of investments, the scale and tempo of capital construction, do away with dispersion and uniform distribution, lack of an overall plan and low economic effectiveness in making investments.

In rearranging the work force we should broaden the division and reallocation of labour within each establishment, each locality, each branch, and in the country as a whole, between different regions, between city and country so as to make the best use of the land, sea, forest and the existing material and technical facilities. Administrative staff must be resolutely cut down in size. Great importance is to be attached to reducing the rate of population growth. The scale and orientation for the training of cadres and workers should be redefined in conformity with the requirements and capacity of the economy in the immediate future and subsequent years; the contingent of trained cadres and workers should be rationally rearranged and used.

In rearranging distribution and circulation, a socialist order must be established on this complicated front, by promptly organizing and expanding the socialist market, limiting and closely controlling unorganized assets; resolutely applying the principle of distribution according to labour and implementing the system of cost accounting, achieving a fair readjustment of the income of various strata of the population. Distribution and circulation should promote its role as a lever for the developing of, and a bridge between agriculture and industry, city and countryside to enhance production and serve the consumer's needs.

In readjusting consumption, thrift must be strictly practiced on investments and production expenses, on cultural and social spending and on defence and administrative spending. Thrift must be concretized into annual targets which must be achieved by all means.

Members of the Presidium, comrade delegates, advancing from a poor country of small production directly to socialism without passing through the stage of capitalist development is a process of arduous and complicated revolutionary struggle in a historical period of several decades. This is a widest, deepest and most radical revolutionary struggle which will lead to the most fundamental and comprehensive changed in all aspects of society, of life, of people. In this revolutionary change, we must show creativeness. The change itself is creative, and it is aimed at a more vigorous promotion of the creative factors in our revolutionary cause.

President Ho Chi Minh said, "To build socialism, we must have socialist people." Experience in all our outstanding units has shown that the working people in our country are not only good workers who create the material and cultural wealth, but also intelligent managers who have made valuable innovations in the management of the economy and of society.

Let our whole party and people march forward, with enthusiasm, unity and confidence, under the leadership of the party Central Committee headed by its respected general secretary, Comrade Le Duan, and realize Uncle Ho's dreams. "Our mountains will always be, our rivers will always be, our people will always be; the American invaders defeated, we will build our country ten times more beautiful."

Le Duc Tho Report

OW281425 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 1100 GMT 27 Mar 82

[Text] At the 27 March afternoon session of the Fifth VCP Congress, Comrade Le Duc Tho presented the party Central Committee's report on party building.

In its first part, the report assessed the strongpoints and shortcomings of the party and of party building work since the fourth national party congress. The report affirmed: Ours is an undaunted Marxist-Leninist party that is firm in its line. It has organized and led our people through all serious trials of the country and has consistently developed the revolutionary offensive spirit of incessantly bringing the revolution forward. Our party has held fast to the banner of national independence and socialism, smoothly coordinated genuine patriotism with pure proletarian internationalism and has exerted great efforts to fulfill its internationalist duty.

Beside its successes achieved in the socialist revolution, our party has experienced shortcomings and committed errors in its economic and social leadership and management. Through its successes and setbacks, our party has further understood the realities of the country and acquired more experience and maturity in economic and social management. The strongpoints and shortcomings in the party's political leadership are closely linked to those in party-building work in its ideological and organizational aspects.

With regard to the common tasks in party-building work, Comrade Le Duc Tho's report pointed out: Considering the reality of the situation of the party and the country and on the basis of the new tasks set forth in the political report, the key tasks in party-building work at present are to continue to uphold the working class and vanguard nature of the party; to make the party stable and strong politically, ideologically and organizationally on the basis of Marxism-Leninism with a view to ensuring the victory of the party line; and to raise the capability and efficiency of the party's leadership in socialist construction and national defense, thus enabling our party to constantly adhere to its revolutionary and scientific nature and to become a party that is really pure, has high combat strength and is closely linked to the masses. The report also pointed to five requirements to bring about deep and basic changes in the party's ideological and organizational work.

In its second part, the report pointed to specific tasks and policies aimed at raising the party's leadership and combat quality.

Gorbachev Speech

OW280751 Hanoi VNA in English 0707 GMT 28 Mar 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 28 -- On behalf of the Soviet Communists and the entire Soviet people, the C.P.S.U. delegation has conveyed its warmest fraternal greetings to the congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam, to all communists and working people of Vietnam. In his address at today's session of the 5th Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam in Hanoi, M.S. Gorbachev, Political Bureau member and secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, said:

"Comrade L.I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Central Committee of the C.P.S.U., chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R., who takes constant concern of the consolidation and strengthening of the Soviet-Vietnamese relations, has asked our delegation to convey to the Fifth Congress of the C.P.V. sincere wishes for a fine success of the congress. He has emphasized that as in the past, the Soviet Union will always stand in the future shoulder to shoulder with Socialist Vietnam in endeavours for economic development, better welfare of the people, and the promotion of the gains of socialism. The Vietnamese comrades may firmly believe in the solidarity and support of the Soviet people."

The Soviet chief delegate went on: "This congress of the C.P.V., one of the glorious fighting detachments of the international communist movement, is a great event not only for the Vietnamese Communists. Your experiences, your achievements and your problems and, of course, the answers to these problems, are very useful to the other fraternal parties. The creative activities of each Marxist-Leninist party contribute to the moral enrichment of the whole international communist movement.

"The recapitulating report of the Central Committee of the C.P.V. presented by Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of the C.C. of the party, has left us very deep impressions. This important political document has analyzed the internal and external situation of the building of socialism in Vietnam, set forth great tasks, mapped our orientations and measures to resolve them. The report of the C.P.V. Central Committee as well as those presented by Comrades Pham Van Dong and Le Duc Tho sketched a panorama both of today and tomorrow, the pretty future of the cour ry to which the Vietnamese people under the leadership of the party are marching and which they are sure to reach.

"The period which has elapsed since the Fourth Congress of the C.P.V. is not a simple one. On the one hand, there are the heavy wounds left by a protracted war against the imperialist and colonialist aggressors; then cam a new aggression. On the other hand, there are very new problems to be solved.

However, in spite of all difficulties, the C.P.V. has managed to consolidate the independence of its country, it has got valuable experiences in the building of socialism in peace time, made persistent efforts to grasp a very complicated science, that of running the economy according to the socialist mode, developed and consolidated its relations with the labouring masses. This is a new precious asset in the activities of the C.P.V., a firm springboard for continued advance in the building of socialism.

"The C.P.V., its leaders, Comrade Le Duan, its general secretary, whom all of us regard as an outstanding Vietnamese revolutionary, a celebrated activist of the world communist movement, enjoy a very high prestige.

"The heroic struggle they have waged for the freedom, independence and unity of the country has shown that the Vietnamese Communists are fully capable of conducting a life-and-death fight against the enemy to defend their motherland. And now you are giving evidence of your capabilities of bringing into play the creative forces of the entire people, developing socialist democracy, and heightening the national economy. We firmly believe that the resolutions of this fifth congress will help enhance the influence of the party and consolidate its leading role. The programme of striving on for socialism, a better life of the people, that you have set forth has expressed the aspirations of the Vietnamese people. Therefore, it will become a programme of the entire people."

The Soviet chief delegate added: "Your cause is extremely close to the heart of every Soviet citizen. In a recent speech delivered in Tashkent, Comrade Brezhnev stated: In these very days, the C.P.V. is advancing its fifth congress, and all of us extend to the heroic Vietnamese Communists and the valiant Vietnamese people our cordial greetings and sincere wishes for success in their peaceful labour to build socialism and in the defence of their revolutionary gains".

"We are agreed because of common objectives, and very sincere concern for each other's achievements. The relations between the Soviet Union and Vietnam are built on the firmest and most honest principles that have been proved by history -- the principles of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism. The solid foundation of these relations is the treaty of friendship and co-operation signed in 1978, while the force crystallising them is precisely the unshakable fraternal friendship between our two communist parties.

"In the meetings between Comrade L.I. Brezhnev and Comrade Le Duan, the two sides noted with satisfaction that the Soviet Vietnamese relations have been developing in a dynamic way with regard to both the volume and the quality of the tasks resolved. The Soviet Union and Vietnam are actively and steadily co-operating with each other in all political, economic, ideological and defence fields.

"A symbol of fraternal ties, the high standard of the co-operation between our two countries is the cosmic flight of the Soviet-Vietnamese international team. The hero-cosmonauts Victor Gorbatko and Pham Tuan carried aloft over the earth our banner of friendship.

"We are fully founded to hope that in the years to come, the Soviet-Vietnamese relations will develop in a more varied and vigorous manner. The party bodies and economic services of the Soviet Union and Vietnam have undertaken a very great volume of work to develop further our economic cooperation on the basis of the actual possibilities of the Soviet Union and the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. Suffice it to say that the turnover of goods between the two countries will double in the next five years.

"The technical and economic aid of the Soviet Union to Vietnam will also expand greatly. This will make it possible for the Vietnamese people to exploit the natural resources of the country more rapidly and more effectively, to turn to account in a more rational way the production potential already built, and it must be said that this is a fairly great potential.

"A symbol of the present co-operation between the Soviet Union and Vietnam in the resolution of such problems as those of fuel and energy is the Pha Lai thermic power plan whose first power-generating group will be put into operation this year. It is the reconstruction and expansion of the four biggest coal mines of Vietnam. The completion of these projects will create conditions for stable and steady activities of many industrial and agricultural enterprises. Moreover, we are jointly resolving longer-term tasks. On the Da River, the Hoa Binh hydroelectric plant, the biggest one in Southeast Asia, is being actively built.

"On the continental shelf of South Vietnam, we are making preparations for the exploitation of oil and gas. Before long, derricks will appear off the Vietnamese shores, and this is another concrete evidence of the strength and effectiveness of the Soviet-Vietnamese friendship."

Dealing with the international situation, the Soviet chief delegate remarked: "...U.S. imperialism is playing the role of organizer of the new crusade against peace and progress. The aggressive and militant forces are threatening to bring mankind to the brink of a world thermonuclear war. The ideologists of the U.S. reactionary forces are calling for an extension of the U.S. domination to the whole world. In fact there is no region on earth where the situation has not become complicated as a result of the actions of Washington and its zealous agents....

"In Asia the U.S. imperialists are frenziedly deploying extremely dangerous activities.

"First of all, Washington is playing 'the China card' in an attempt to make the most of the anti-Sovietism and hegemonism of the Chinese ruling circles to further the global strategy of the United States. Having forgotten the lessons of World War Two, the United States is carrying out a line designed to encourage Japanese militarism into an instrument of its expansionist policy in Asia.

"All this is real, undeniable. In spite of these facts, the imperialist circles are resorting to the most cunning methods to spread misinformation, lies and slanders; they try to deceive the peoples, mislead public opinion and make believe that international tension is caused by socialism.... The imperialists who pose as defenders of human rights did not say anything when Pol Pot, a disciple of the Maoists, brazenly massacred hundreds of thousands of his compatriots. And now when the Kampuchean people with the assistance of fraternal Vietnam have revived and are building a peaceful life, they stage-manage the adoption of slanderous resolutions of all kinds while preparing an armed intervention with the participation of traitors to the Kampuchean people, including Pol Pot. Beijing and Washington are inflating the so-called "Kampuchean problem" which does not exist in fact; this problem has been settled for a long time now by the Kampuchean people themselves. They are pursuing long-term perfidious objectives to create a permanent hotbed of tension in Southeast Asia, to fan up a conflict between two groups of states in this region -- the Indochinese countries and the ASEAN countries. That is indeed a shameful policy!

"Nobody can check the development of history, and that is precisely the reason why this is an objective process. This process expresses the will of the nations for peace and progress. A typical example of this is the victory of the Vietnamese people in the struggle against the colonialist rule, and against the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, and the victory they have won in the two wars started by the Beijing hegemonists against Vietnam in recent years. At first they pushed the stooge Pol Pot clique to fight against the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, then they directly staged an aggression against Vietnam.

"We appreciate the lofty activities of Vietnam to consolidate the solid fraternal ties with socialist Laos and with Kampuchea, who has stated that the path of socialist development is her goal. The solidarity of the three countries on the Indochinese Peninsula is an important factor of peace and stability in Southeast Asia, dear comrades. Progressive public opinion in the world supports your just cause; the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist countries always stand at your side.

"The increasing role of Vietnam in the international community, in the Non-Aligned Movement, her clear-cut stand in the maintenance of peace and the defence of the right of all nations to follow the path of independent development, all this is a factor of increasingly important significance for the consolidation of security in Asia and all over the world. And we are very pleased to note that in the international area as well as in the resolving of the tasks of peaceful construction, we have always been standing shoulder to shoulder.

"Comrades: This is not the first time the Communists have to riposte to the plots of the class enemy who wants to overthrow or at least to encroach on world socialism, and to check the revolutionary process. But if they failed to achieve this in the past, they are all the more unable to do so now because the Soviet Union and the other socialist countries already have a great economic potential, a mighty political force and a solid national defence; in the world, the forces of the communist movement, the workers' movement and the national liberation movement have grown powerful; the aspirations of all nations for peace have become stronger than ever.

"The C.P.S.U. and the Soviet Government resolutely pursue the line charted by the 26th congress of the party, unswervingly strive to carry into effect the peace programme for the eighties adopted by the congress. All the proposals and initiatives put forward some days ago by Comrade L.I. Brezhnev at the 17th Congress of the Soviet Trade Unions in Tashkent have supplied new and very firm evidence of this. As you know, these proposals and initiatives aim at solving the problem of reducing nuclear means in Europe on the basis of strict compliance with the principle of equality, at securing a resumption of the Soviet-U.S. talks on strategic arms limitation expanding mutual trust measures on the seas and oceans, building a region of peace and stability in Asia, reaching agreement on other essential problems regarding the prevention of a new world war.

"The Soviet initatives have received a broad response in the world. The socialist countries have spared no effort to make the international climate healthy. This has been evidenced by the actions and initiatives of the Soviet Union on the initiating and applying of mutual trust measures in the Far East; the proposal of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea on turning Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and stability, on the normalization of relations with the A.S.E.A.N. countries; the proposal made by the People's Republic of Mongolia on the signing of a convention of non-aggression and non-use of force in the relations between Asian and Pacific countries.

"We fully support Vietnam's stand on resolving the situation in Southeast Asia expounded in the activity report of the Central Committee of the C.P.V. We stand for extinguishing hotbeds of conflict, resolving disputes through negotiations, and it is very good that this policy of the socialist countries in Asia has enjoyed the approval of authoritative circles in many Asian countries.

"The Soviet Union highly appreciates the independent and progressive foreign policies of India and other peace-loving countries in Asia.

"In the present situation, the solidarity of communist and workers' parties has a particularly important significance. Our movement came into existence under the slogan of proletarian internationalism. There lies the great strength of the movement. And practical experience has shown that those parties that depart from the principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism to pursue some transient political objectives are bound to encounter ultimately great difficulties and to become scapegoats of the class enemy. Solidarity is the main condition for gaining new successes for socialism and peace."

On behalf of the Central Committee of the C.P.S.U., of the entire Soviet party and people, the Soviet chief delegate wished the Communists and the entire people of Vietnam "new, great successes in the building of socialism, the path to which has been charted by the Fifth Congress of the C.P.V."

Kaysone Phomvihan Speech

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 28 -- Kaysone Phomvihan, general-secretary of the People's Revolutionary Party of Laos Central Committee, has extended, on behalf of the Communists and people of Laos, "warmest and best greetings to the congress, the Communists and the heroic people of Vietnam."

In his welcome address at today's session of the 5th Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam in Hanoi, the Lao chief delegate praised the late President Ho Chi Minh as "an outstanding fighter of the international communist and workers' movement, who rendered great services by bringing the light of Marxism-Leninism to the struggle for national salvation of the three peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea, founded the Indochinese Communist Party, the predecessor of the present People's Revolutionary Party of Laos."

Kaysone Phomvihan went on: "Since the fourth party congress, the Vietnamese people, under the leadership of the party headed by esteemed Comrade Le Duan, have written a splendid page in their glorious national history and won ever greater confidence, love and admiration from brothers and friends in the world.

"Just emerging from the fierce and long wars against colonialism and neo-colonialism, with wounds not yet healed, the Vietnamese people have to wage a new fight against aggression by the big-nation Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with U.S. imperialism and other reactionary forces. With their glorious exploits in defeating the two aggressive wars launched by the Beijing reactionary forces and their Pol Pot-Ieng clique of flunkeys, the Vietnamese people have not only firmly defended their fatherland but also helped the fraternal Kampuchean people free themselves from a genocidal disaster, restore their country and build a new life, contain the plots of expansion, aggression and annexation by the reactionary circles in the Chinese leadership, thus making a very important contribution to the struggle for peace and stability in the region and in the world as a whole....

"At the same time, with extraordinary energy and endurance and with industrious and creative labour, the Vietnamese people have recorded many important achievements in economic building and cultural development, and in strengthening their forces in all fields, and drawn many valuable experiences in their advance direct to socialism from an under-developed, former colonial country.

"Vietnam's historic victories of an epochal character have proven that the Communist Party of Vietnam is a staunch and experienced contingent of the international communist and workers' movement, that the Vietnamese people are very heroic, absolutely loyal to the party and the fatherland, and have perserveringly fought with self abnegation for independence, freedom and socialism and for discharging their internationalist duty. The poeple's revolutionary party and the people of Laos warmly welcome the victory of the Communist Party and the fraternal people of Vietnam and consider it as their own victory."

The Lao chief delegate praised the special Laos-Vietnam friendship which, he said, will further flourish and can be broken by no reactionary forces. He added: "The implementation of the treaty of friendship and cooperation between the Lao People's Democratic Republic and the Socialist Republic of Vietnam has achieved fine results as shown in the building of the Laos-Vietnam border into a permanent border of friendship and peace, in diversified activities in the political, economic, cultural and technological fields and in the swearing of brotherhood between border provinces of the two countries. These results have constantly strengthened our forces in all fields, firmly ensure the independence and the prosperous development of each country, and at the same time, constitute an important factor for preserving peace and stability in this region....

"Fully conscious that the special Laos-Vietnam solidarity, the militant alliance and all-round cooperation constitute a law of existence and development of the two countries, our party has always care [as received] for safeguarding the Laos-Vietnam solidarity, and urged our cadres party members and people of all nationalities to do their best to foster this solidarity, resolutely oppose all wicked divisive schemes of the enemy. Our party has particularly educated our young generations in cultivating this special relation to make it bear fruits and remain ever green.

"We are proud that in all crucial and fierce trials in the past as well as at present, we have always been with Vietnam and have done our best to contribute to the victories of our dear brothers and comrades. We will, in future, continuously (?advance) our close coordination and increase our mutual support in all fields in order to bring into the fullest play the position of each country for the successful defence and building of socialism in each country."

Heng Samrin Speech

[Speech by Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee, on 28 March -- read by announcer]

[Text] The KPRP delegation is very elated and proud to join the glorious VCP, the working class and the heroic people of Vietnam in participating in this historically significant event. We have brought here the profound sentiments of a nation which has just been freed from the disaster of genocide, the deep loyalty of a contingent of cadres succeeding the lofty cause of the Indochinese Communist Party, and the wish of the whole party and people of Kampuchea for the brilliant success of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam.

Esteemed and beloved comrades, right from its birth, under the guidance of beloved Comrade Nguyen Ai Quoc (President Ho Chi Minh), the Indochinese Communist Party the predecessor of the three parties of Vietnam, Kampuchea and Laos, creatively applied Marxism-Leninism to the concrete condition of the three countries, charted out an accurate revolutionary programme for the people's democratic national revolution of the three Indochinese countries. Since then, under the clear-sighted leadership of the Communist Party of Vietnam, the Vietnamese people have over half a century travelled a path full of difficulties, hardships and trials, and have written the most glorious pages of their nation's history...The defeat of two big imperialists, including the ringleader of imperialism, constituted an immortal song of the heroic Vietnamese people who have opened a new era following the great victory in Vietnam, that is, an era full of hope that within only 7 years has brought changes to the world situation. Vietnam's victory is the victory of Marxism-Leninism, of the line of holding aloft the two banners -- the banner of national democratic revolution and the banner of socialism -- of the strategic alliance of the three Indochinese peoples, and of the fraternal socialist countries, the communist-worker movement for national liberation and all the peace and progressive forces throughout the world. The VCP is worthy of being the vanguard of the working class, the revolution and working people of Vietnam and of being one of the most valiant vanguards of the international communist movement. The Kampuchean party and people are elated and proud of this.

Your party congress this time is held after your victories over the two wars of aggression launched by the reactionary Chinese clique in collusion with U.S. imperialism, and at a moment when the three Indochinese countries are living in a state of peace while having to cope with a many-sided sabotage war conducted by the common enemies and with the danger of a large-scale war. That is why the task of the congress is very great, complicated and heavy.

We are deeply convinced that under the clear-sighted leadership of a party which has been steeled in the flame of struggle like the Communist Party of Vietnam, with the correct line for socialist revolution charted out by the fourth congress and with the programme of action to be adopted by this congress, with the tradition of staunch and undaunted struggle, and with their industrious and creative labour, the heroic Vietnamese people will surmount all difficulties, overcome all obstacles, march forward to thwart all plots and acts of war by the enemies, and advance rapidly, vigorously and steadily on the path of socialist construction.

Esteemed and beloved comrades, for many generations, our people have been well aware of the revolutionary stages of the three Indochinese countries. Many fraternal Vietnamese people sacrificed their lives in a protracted, most difficult struggle, unprecedented in the history of the world. However, they have achieved brilliant victories.

"After long years of sorrow and darkness under the yoke of colonialism and imperialism, especially under the genecidal disaster cause by (?Maoism) all the Kampuchean patriots including those who had lived in the old regime and were indoctrinated with extremist nationalism are well aware of who are friends and who are enemies, particularly those who have many times fought to liberate their nation from genocide and are now creating conditions to ensure the people's right to live in independence and freedom.

Over the past three years, in the coordinated struggle against the common enemies as well as in the rebirth of the Kampuchean people, there have also emerged numerous noble symbols of the friendship between Kampuchea and Vietnam and the profound sentiments between the peoples of the two countries. However, no words can be used to match the indescribable sacrifice of many Vietnamese mothers who sent their beloved children to fight side by side with our people. No words can be used to describe the march of the communist combatants of the two countries who traveled through streams, creeks, mountains and forests in order to seize victory over their common enemy, seize back the right to live in independence and freedom for the two nations and to build the special friendship between Kampuchea and Vietnam. At present, in the western border of our country, the beloved sons of our two nations are fighting side by side in the same trench. In factories, worksites and many outlying remote villages and communes, workers and peoples of the two countries are striving side by side to revive a devastated nation. The sweat and blood of the peoples of the two countries have further been shed for the Kampuchea-Vietnam friendship. Our people are well aware that while helping the Kampuchean people, the Vietnamese people are also carrying out their internationalist duty toward the brotherly Lao people, defending their northern border, overcoming the aftermath of war and enduring much suffering. Yet, in the common struggle the Vietnamese people have always accepted for themselves the greatest difficulties.

Time passes, but those lofty symbols will never fade in human memory. For our whole party and people, the word "Vietnam" is very sacred. Vietnam means revolutionary heroism, Vietnam is synonymous with proletarian internationalism, Vietnam means purity of soul, loyalty in friendship, unity and noble sacrifice. Vietnam's contribution will forever be embedded in the heart of each Kampuchean patriot in the present and future generations as well.

As stated in the resolution of the Fourth Congress of the People's Revolutionary Party of Kampuchea "...Solidarity and all-round cooperation with Vietnam and Laos is the party's strategic thought, the subjective demand of historical necessity, a determinant factor for Kampuchea's destiny, the pure revolutionary sentiments and the consistent stand of the Kampuchean people in the new epoch....

The whole party and people of Kampuchea pledge to preserve their close solidarity, friendship and all-round cooperation with the fraternal Vietnamese people as the apple of their eye, and are always heightening their vigilance so as to shatter all designs aimed at sowing division among the three Indochinese countries, causing division between Kampuchea and Vietnam, the Soviet Union and the other fraternal socialist countries.

Esteemed and beloved comrades, "The past three years have also seen the wonderful victory of our people in their reconstruction and in defence of their reborn nation. From being a society in which all forms of social life had been abolished, where the people were denied the right to live and lived under the constant fear of being mowed down by hoes, cutlasses, mallets and guns, in a society of barrack-type discipline, Kampuchea has been revived with schools, kindergartens, hospitals, markets and pagodas having been reopened. Songs of love for life, love for the new regime, hatred of the enemy, songs of praise for the loyal friends have risen everywhere, from the ricefields to the remote mountainous areas.

"In the past year, many great events have occurred in the political, economic and social life of our people. Elections of local power and the National Assembly, the fourth party congress, the adoption of the new Constitution and the setting up of the national government, the emergence of comprehensive emulation drives have proved that our people earnestly desire to live in peace and construction, are firmly confident in the people's revolutionary party, closely attached to the new government, a government really for the people, rejoice at the alliance of the three Indochinese countries, and believe in the great family of the socialist community. Our entire party and people are well aware that the victories of the Kampuchean revolution cannot be separated from the generous, unswerving assistance and great sacrifices in in flesh and blood of the fraternal Vietnamese people, and that these victories are linked to the historic victories of the revolutionary lines of the three Indochinese countries. These victories are attributable to the great development of the world revolution. We are convinced that in the near future, the revolutionary currents of the countries in this subcontinent will combine into a great torrent to wash away the reactionary dirt and to drown the acts of war of the Beijing hegemonist-expanionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists.

"On this occasion, allow me, on behalf of the whole party, and people of Kampuchea, to express our deep gratitude to the parties and peoples of Vietnam, Laos, the Soviet Union and the other genuine socialist countries and friendly countries throughout the world for their sympathy, support and great assistance."

Esteemed and beloved comrades, the entire party and people of Kampuchea are currently striving to implement the general tasks set forth at the Fourth KPRP Congress in order to defend firmly national independence and build the fatherland in a gradual advance through a transitional period toward socialism. Our most sacred task is the defense of our fatherland. The outstanding victories scored in the past have made us confident of the bright future of the cause of the revolution of the Kampuchean people, the peoples in the three Indochinese countries and the communist and workers' movement in the world.

Cuban Delegate's Speech

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 28 -- At this congress, the Communist Party of Vietnam brilliantly affirms the just and glorious path it has followed over more than half a century since the party was founded.

This view of the Communist Party of Cuba was voiced by its chief delegate Jesus Montane Oropesa at today's session of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam. He went on:

This is a congress which highlights the unshakable loyalty of the Communist Party of Vietnam to the principles of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism. This is a congress which demonstrates the party's determination to work toward the tasks of economic development, toward selfless service to the interests of the people, towards staunchly defending the socialist fatherland.

All of us who have the honour to attend this congress with Vietnamese communists will return to our country with much greater confidence that the Vietnamese cause is invincible, that with the clearsighted leadership of their vanguard party, the resolute support of the whole people, the unshakable revolutionary alliance with the brotherly Indochinese countries of Kampuchea and Laos together with the solidarity of the Soviet Union and the socialist community, of all revolutionary, progressive and democratic countries and forces in the world, nothing and nobody can alter the path that the heroic Vietnamese people have chosen. In the past, the colonialists and militarists could not achieve that. Yesterday the U.S. imperialists, with all their might, could do nothing. Today, the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists surely cannot subjugate Vietnam.

Dear comrades, here in your midst we can witness clearly what a revolutionary and fighting nation is like. Here we can feel what a politically conscious, one-minded and organized people is like, a people that knows the value of freedom that has had to struggle very arduously through many generations to regain its independence and unification. Here in your midst one can understand fully how extraordinary the work, the teachings, the thoughts, the example and the everlasting behest of immortal President Ho Chi Minh can be.

... In your struggle, we have always been on your side, our solidarity is steadfast and unshakable. Particularly we wish to express our support for the proposals put forth by the Governments of Vietnam, Kampuchea and Laos aimed at accelerating the search for a negotiated solution on the basis of reason and honour for the regional conflicts and through which to help create an atmosphere of peace and cooperation in the region.

Concerning the Cuban situation, Jesus Montana Oropesa said: "Cuba is striving for peace. Cuba does not want war at all. Cuba supports all sincere and constructive initiatives leading to negotiated solutions to conflicts. Yet, Cuba has clearly told the United States that Cuba will never be frightened by piratic activities and threats and momentums. We would rather sacrifice than relinquish the truth, morality and revolutionary nature. We Cubans, as you Vietnamese, are thoroughly imbued with 'There is nothing more precious than independence and freedom.' Dear Vietnamese brothers, today is struggle, tomorrow is ours," he concluded.

French Delegate's Speech

OW281705 Hanoi VNA in English 1650 28 Mar 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 28 -- "It is with very great emotion that I address you, on behalf of the French Communist Party whose ties with the Communist Party of Vietnam dates back to the dawn of the French communist movement."

In his speech at today's session of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam in Hanoi, Paul Laurent, Political Bureau member and secretary of the French Communist Party Central Committee, said: "Who does not remember that in 1920, Comrade Ho Chi Minh, the founder of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, was among the revolutionaries who were going to build the new party of the French working class, at the Tours Congress in 1920. Since then, the solidarity of the French communists has never failed the cause of the gallant Vietnamese people who, during diverse trials in their history, has always shown courage, heroism and perseverance. After long and bitter years of struggle, first against French colonialism, then against American imperialism, you have conquered the sovereign right for your people to be master of its future. In the conscience of peoples of the whole world, vivid memories still remain of the savage bombings which caused injuries to Vietnam, ravaged and devastated your land, sowing death and sorrows. Several generations of Vietnamese have thus paid with their blood the price of freedom and independence.

At present, the sequels of this war, which resulted in the partition of Vietnam for over two decades, still leave their marks on all the economic, social and political realities of your country. Could it be otherwise in a country which has only recently emerged from this long nightmare?

In this context, the course of action taken by the people and Communist Party of Vietnam is even more prominent. With the same will that prompted you in your fight against the colonialists and imperialists, you are building a new society for Vietnam, reunified at last. With great attention and very keen interest, the French Communists are following the work being done here, in your country. We are aware of the complexity of the task you are fulfilling.

The terrible legacy of past years still continues to cast a heavy shadow on the future of your country. And there are many things to be invented by the peoples regarding the building of socialism! But the French Communists, who know their Vietnamese comrades well, have full confidence in your capacity to overcome difficulties and to forge the socialism that the people of Vietnam want to have. We French Communists are also conscious of the importance and the state, for this part of the world, represented by the building of a strong, independent socialist country, having at its disposal the means to guarantee its security, capable of playing its role in favour of peace and non-alignment.

For all those reasons, added to the very long-standing friendship and militant comradeship between French and Vietnamese communists, we entertain deep feelings of solidarity for the struggle you are now conducting to develop socialism in your country."

After describing the situation in France, the French chief delegate added: "The historical ties of friendship between the Vietnamese and French peoples are profound and close. It would be a waste not to apply oneself to developing them incessantly. We French Communists are striving to develop a great policy of cooperation between France and Vietnam which meets the needs of Vietnam, and conforms to the capacity of France and to the interests of the two peoples and their two countries.

"Within the frame work of the new international order which it will henceforth advance, France can and must contribute to the development of Vietnam. They must do everything so that Vietnam can live in peace, playing its role legitimately in the world. An independent, peaceful, rich, happy Vietnam -- isn't it the interest of France in Southeast Asia? France and Vietnam have every interest in developing their relations.

Our two peoples and our two countries have an interest in having these relations developed, and this is what every French Communist really wishes for."

We wish you success in the implementation thereof. We are confident that your party which has splendid traditions of heroism and sacrifice will be able to answer the historic challenge it has taken up."

The Polish chief delegate went on: "I have come to your country at a difficult time for ours. To defend the highest values of internal peace and of socialism and the fundamental interests of peace and security in Europe and in the world, it turned out to be indispensable to apply exceptional measures. Time has confirmed the soundness of the measure adopted. In our country, stabilization in progressing, social discipline has been increased, order and calm prevail. However, the political struggle is still on. Be assured, dear comrades and friends, that we will do everything so that socialist Poland will continue to make her sensible contribution to the consolidation of the community of socialist countries for the sake of peace and international cooperation. Poland was and will remain a lasting link of the socialist community."

Miroslaw Milewski added: "Poland and Vietnam have been united for long years by a close friendship and cooperation. Our destinies were similar in the past. Our two nations had to fight for the freedom and unity of their motherlands. We were with you in the most difficult hours, those of your liberation struggle. To the extent of her possibilities, Poland was active in the international arena in favour of the reunification of Vietnam. Now we are developing a cooperation advantageous for the two countries in all fields of life. As in the past, we are now extending our full support to the policy and initiatives of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam in defence of her sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity; for the strengthening of the friendly ties among the Indochinese states, for the establishment of a zone of peace, stability and cooperation in Southeast Asia.

[Text] Hanoi, 28 Mar (PAP) -- Miroslaw Milewski, PUWP CC Political Bureau member and CC secretary, who heads a PUWP delegation to the 5th Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam, addressed the congress today and conveyed its participants cordial greetings from the PUWP CC, the Polish Communists and the Polish working class.

"I have come here at a difficult moment for Poland," Milewski said further. "Poland is going through the effects of a socio-political crisis brought about by a (?coincidence) of several objective causes and conditions as well as subjective errors in leading the party and the state.

"Discontent of the society was exploited by forces hostile to socialism inspired by capitalist centers (?of subversion) to question the fundamental assumption of our political system and constitutional order.

"At the 9th Congress of the PUWP held last July we drew conclusions from the criticism voiced by workers and worked out a programme for a socialist renewal of the country. We strove to implement this program [word indistinct] political means building on a broad front of national accord. Regrettably, our efforts were rejected and our opponents staked on confrontation. Counterrevolutionary forces in Poland were leading to anarchy, economic collapse and put in jeopardy the foundations of socialist statehood.

"It became necessary, in defense of supreme values of internal peace and socialism as well as fundamental interests of European and world peace and security, to apply extraordinary measures. It was (?our own) Polish decision. We took it in a sovereign manner.

"Stabilization in the country is progressing, social discipline has improved; order prevails. However, political struggle continues. The Polish United Workers' Party is the guarantor of [words indistinct] the consequences of the crisis in Poland. Poland has been and will remain a durable link in the (?socialist) community.

"We draw satisfaction from the internationalist stand, support and assistance offered Poland by the socialist countries, particularly the Soviet Union," Miroslav Milewski continued. "We are grateful for this also to the Socialist Republic of Vietnam."

"Poland and Vietnam are linked by long years of close friendship and cooperation. Within her possibilities, Poland undertook actions in the international forum favouring the unification of Vietnam. Like in the past, also now we give our full support to the policy and initiatives of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam aimed at defending its sovereignty, independence and territorial integrity, to strengthening the ties of friendship between Indochinese states, to creating a zone of peace, stability and cooperation in South-East Asia.

PLO Delegate's Speech

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 28 -- We are convinced that your congress will find out correct solutions to thwart the schemes of aggression and solve the economic problems.

Addressing the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam today, Samih Abu Kuwayq, head of the P.L.O. delegation, said: "Your congress is held when the imperialists and reactionaries' attempts at aggression against Vietnam are increasing, at a time when difficult economic conditions are challenging the will of the Vietnamese people. We are convinced that your congress will find out correct solutions to thwart the schemes of aggression and solve the economic problems....

"We declare that we resolutely condemn the U.S. policy and their activities to undermine international peace and security, to oppose security and liberation of the struggling peoples, thereby opposing our Palestinian people, our Arab people in the Middle East, and peoples in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America.

The Vietnamese revolutionary evolution and that of Palestine have reaffirmed that the closeness making us come nearer to each other is a special one, the closeness that has emerged from the armed struggle against occupation, the closeness of similar sorrows and disasters caused by imperialists to our peoples. It is abundantly clear that the victory of the heroic Vietnamese people has placed us in the forefront trench to fight imperialism and Zionism. The closeness of the Vietnamese and Palestinian revolutions was prominently stated in the Vietnam-Palestine joint statement at the conclusion of the visit to Vietnam last October by Y. 'Arafat. The Socialist Republic of Vietnam has reaffirmed its resolute and consistent support to the struggle of the Palestinian people under the leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization to liberate the fatherland. Palestine has, on its part, warmly appreciated the historic victory won by the heroic Vietnamese people under the leadership of the Communist Party of Vietnam -- the party founded and trained by President Ho Chi Minh through the struggle against colonialism and imperialism to reunify Vietnam and take the whole country to socialism.

The Palestine Liberation Organization reaffirms its full support to the Vietnamese people in their new revolutionary stage under the leadership of the Communist Party of Vietnam to build socialism and defend Socialist Vietnam, against all aggressive designs of imperialists and reactionary forces.

Today, at the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam, we reaffirm the firm revolutionary stand of the Palestinian revolution toward Vietnam and the glorious struggle of the Vietnamese people."

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 28 -- We would like to extend to you the sincere and warm greetings of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front (F.M.L.N.) of the El Salvador and wish the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam brilliant success.

Speaking at today's session of the Vietnam party congress in Hanoi, Salvador Cayetano Carpio, member of the F.M.L.N. Supreme Command, first commander of the Farabundo Marti People's Liberation Forces, said: "The Salvadoran people deeply admire the heroic and courageous Vietnamese people, who have fought against the domination by imperialism and indigenous reactionary forces, won complete freedom, and are now taking the Vietnamese society forward in the correct direction of independence, national unity and socialism. It is the very staunch will to cope with, to fight against, and to defeat imperialism and other international reactionary forces that is now expressed right here at this fifth party congress and right in each Vietnamese Communist. We hold that this is not only a congress of the Communists but of the entire Vietnamese people - the whole nation, who have joined the party in the fight to sweep away the imperialist aggressors and reunify the country.

"With their victory over the barbarous enemy of nations, the Vietnamese people have set for the world's people an excellent example of heroism, undauntedness and courage and have proven that no force can subdue a nation which is determined to stand up to fight at any cost for their liberation.

"We realize that today in face of tasks and duties to be fulfilled and new difficulties to be surmounted and new enemies to be foiled in defence of the fatherland and socialism, the intelligence and talent of the Communist Party and the people of Vietnam which have been demonstrated in the fight against colonialism and imperialism will be again brought into play to bring about continued victories.

"Vietnam is of great significance toward nations such as our Salvadoran people, who are struggling against oppression, domination by the domestic reactionary forces and imperialism. In the struggle for freedom and national sovereignty we stand on the side of the Vietnamese people. That's why we protest against and condemn all invasions under whatever pretext against Vietnam. Like before, today and for every we will side with Vietnam, the glorious Communist Party of Vietnam and the heroic Vietnamese people."

He concluded his speech by saying: "We firmy believe that your party and people will turn the resolutions of the fifth congress into effect and will make ever greater achievements in socialist construction and in the defence of your socialist fatherland. To our Salvadoran people, the immortal Vietnamese people and President Ho Chi Minh are a boundless revolutionary inspiration".

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 28 -- "It is a great and singular honour for me to represent the African National Congress [ANC] of South Africa at this esteemed congress" declared Stanley Mabizela, head of the delegation of the African National Congress of South Africa at today's session of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam. He went on: "I bring warm greetings of the African National Congress of South Africa to the Communist Party of Vietnam, and to you, the delegates of this important congress of your party. This is party of President Ho Chi Minh, a man, a hero, a legend in his lifetime who successfully waged and inspired not only the epic struggle that gave the Vietnam people their freedom but a man who continues to inspire at present similar struggles and therefore is today revered the world over. Comrades, through you, we greet the heroic and unconquerable people of Vietnam."

The A.N.C. chief delegate continued: "In our life and death struggle against a ruthless and powerful adversary we draw tremendous inspiration from Vietnam's heroic history of struggle against various aggressors whose aim was to enslave you people. The fact that you were able to defeat the most powerful imperialist power in the world, the United States of America, has been an enormous moral booster to our people and to the combatants of our armed forces. Dear comrades, when we of the African National Congress look towards the example of your party and of your unconquerable people we are mindful of the great sacrifices you have made. We are also mindful of the principles of international solidarity you have shown for ours and other struggles. In this respect we pledge our solidarity to you as we have always done; we pledge our solidarity to you as you continue your noble tasks of repairing your war wounds and building socialism. We pledge our solidarity to you as you guard your borders to ensure that the gains of your revolution are safeguarded. In this respect we have forthrightly condemned the treacherous action of the Chinese leadership who attacked your country in a cowardly manner, and who seek to impose their hegemony over the whole of Indochina. We applaud the strong fraternal links of the peoples of Vietnam, Kampuchea and Laos who have kept the agents of imperialism at bay. We know very well the treachery of the Beijing renegades. For years they have been supporting renegade groups and puppets in Africa in their fruitless efforts to impose their reactionary line."

"We wish you well in this esteemed congress of your outstanding party and are confident that you will continue to lead the people of unconquerable Vietnam along the glorious path of peace, socialism and progress," Stanley Mabizela said.

GHAZALI CLARIFIES MAHATHIR REMARKS ON KAMPUCHEA

BK231533 Hong Kong AFP in English 1507 GMT 23 Mar 82

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, 23 Mar (AFP) -- Malaysian Prime Minister Dr Mahathir Mohammed has never stated directly that Malaysia might withdraw its recognition of Democratic Kampuchea in the United Nations, Foreign Minister Tan Sri Ghazali Shafie told parliament today.

Tan Sri Ghazali explained in the senate that the prime minister had in fact said that Malaysia strongly regretted that the Cambodian problem was still dragging on.

In view of this situation, the prime minister stated that it might no longer be beneficial for Malaysia to support the ousted Khmer Rouge regime's Democratic Kampuchean Government if the factions opposing Vietnam could not reach agreement in setting up a coalition government in Cambodia, he said.

Tan Sri Ghazali added that the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) were of the view that the statement and warning made by Dr Mahathir was timely and in keeping with ASEAN's practice. He said that the agreement former Cambodian head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk who heads the Moulinaka anti-Vietnamese group and Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan following their meeting in Beijing recently was still unclear.

The foreign minister added that Son Sann had still not been able to have discussions with those two leaders to seek agreement to setting up a coalition government.

Tan Sri Ghazali added that all the leaders of ASEAN together were taking steps to resolve the Cambodian problem through a political solution and not through war in the interest of peace and stability in the region.

DHANABALAN, SITTHI DISCUSS KAMPUCHEA SITUATION

BK291156 Singapore Domestic Service in English 1100 GMT 29 Mar 82

[Text] Foreign Minister Dhanabalan says there is a position change or a softening on the part of the Khmer Rouge with regard to the proposal to bring about a coalition of the three Kampuchean resistance factions. The shift seemed apparent from what he has read in the papers following the meeting of Prince Sihanouk with Mr Khieu Samphan of the Khmer Rouge in Beijing recently. He assumed the leader of the KPNLF, Mr Son Sann, would get in touch with ASEAN on this matter at some stage. ASEAN would have consultations with him. Things, he said, would move slowly. He added that one could not expect dramatic development all the time. Mr Dhanabalan was speaking to reporters after the visiting Thai foreign minister, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila, held talks with him at city hall. The meeting lasted 2 hours.

Responding to a reporter's question, Mr Dhanabalan reiterated that ASEAN had taken the view that it was up to the three Kampuchean resistance factions to get together. They have already been told by ASEAN that this was their problem. If they want ASEAN to help it, it was prepared to do so. So far ASEAN has not heard from them. He pointed out that there was a question of ASEAN coming out with any new proposal to bring the three Kampuchean resistance factions together.

Marshal Sitthi said he discussed with Mr Dhanabalan the situation in Thailand and the change of chairmanship of the ASEAN standing committee. Thailand will take over from Singapore as chairman of the committee in the second week of June. Marshal Sitthi is now holding talks with Mr Lee Kua Yew. Tonight he will attend a dinner hosted by Mr Dhanabalan.

The Thai leader, who arrived in Singapore this morning, leaves for Kuala Lumpur tomorrow.

SUZUKI LIFTS FREEZE ON F-4 FIGHTER REMODELING

[Text] Tokyo, March 27 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Saturday approved the lifting of a freeze on yen 1.3 billion (dollar 5.3 million) earmarked in fiscal 1981 to remodel F-4 jet fighters. The current fiscal year ends March 31.

The yen 1.3 billion appropriation was suspended last month when opposition claimed the government had been trying to mount a bombing capability on the F-4 as part of the remodelling job in violation of its purely defensive policy. The government later said the face-lifting work does not run counter to the 1968 policy because the new bombing capability does not pose a threat to Japan's neighbors. The Defense Agency plans to remodel 132 F-4 Phantom fighters at about yen 1 billion each in an attempt to increase the combat capability of its mainstay aircraft.

OFFICIAL SAYS PRC MAY BE USING 'SOVIET CARD'

[Text] Tokyo, March 31 (KYODO) -- A ranking Foreign Ministry official said Wednesday that China may be using its "Soviet card" against the United States in a Sino-American dispute over U.S. sales of arms to Taiwan. Akitane Kiuchi, director general of the ministry's Asian Affairs Bureau, made the remark at a meeting of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives.

The Japanese Government has up to now refused to make any comment on the Sino-American friction over the arms sale, saying that it was a matter of negotiations between China and the United States. But Kiuchi's remark Wednesday was regarded as the government's admission that China might be using its "Soviet card" as a means to check Washington's policy toward Taiwan.

Kiuchi made the statement in response to a question by Eiichi Tamaki, a member of opposition Komeito. Tamaki asked about China's stance toward a proposal for improved Sino-Soviet relations made by Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev in a speech at Tashkent last Wednesday. Kiuchi said it was worth noting that China reacted prudently in saying that it would take note of the Brezhnev proposal.

The director general explained that as far as Japan could learn through such a forum as Japan-China working level talks, Beijing continued to view Moscow as a "hegemonist." However, he pointed out that Sino-American relations are getting to be delicate over America's arms sale to Taiwan. He said China's expression of "taking note" of the Brezhnev proposal could be regarded as China using its "Soviet card" to shake the United States and let the U.S. know that Beijing would improve its relations with Moscow. But Kiuchi indicated that essentially this was not a move for betterment of Beijing-Moscow relations.

WORKING-LEVEL TALKS WITH PRC BEGIN IN TOKYO

[Text] Tokyo, March 30 (KYODO) -- The international situation was discussed Tuesday by Japanese and Chinese Foreign Ministry officials at the first day session of the two-day Japan-China working level consultations held at the Foreign Ministry. The Japanese delegation to the meeting is led by Deputy Foreign Minister Kensuke Yanagiya and the Chinese groups by Vice Foreign Minister Fu Hao, who formerly served as ambassador to Japan. Bilateral problems are expected to be discussed on Wednesday.

Since no pending problems exist between the two countries at present, in particular, the consultations are expected to center on analysis of the international situation. The Japanese side hopes to seek the frank views of the Chinese officials on the U.S.-China-Soviet Union relations, which are in a delicate state. Both sides also are expected to discuss the concrete itinerary in Japan of Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang, who is scheduled to pay an official visit to this country in the latter part of May.

NODONG SINMUN HITS ROK-U.S. SECURITY MEETING

[NODONG SINMUN 31 March commentary: "Reckless Conspiracy"]

[Text] On 29 March, the so-called 4th South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting for war was held in Seoul. According to news reports, the meeting participated in by the U.S. and South Korean military leaders discussed issues such as reinforcing the U.S. occupation forces in South Korea and the puppet army and improving their combat capability, provided the South Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command [CFC] with tactical and strategic plans and came to an agreement that both sides would expand their military cooperation.

At the meeting, Jones, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, who presided over the meeting, said that the matters discussed would contribute to deterring a war in Korea and maintaining peace.

He has not come to South Korea with a plan for peace in mind. For over a month and a half, the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercise racket, called a test war against us, has been continuously undertaken in South Korea. The U.S. high-altitude spy planes have been infiltrating into the territorial air east and west of our country almost every day, thus systematically committing acts of espionage against the northern half of the republic. At a time when the hostile acts and acts of espionage against us have been continuing undisguised, U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger has sneaked into Seoul and has repeatedly held military conferences with the South Korean puppets since 30 March.

These ominous moves are those that can be seen only on the eve of a war. That Jones discussed with the South Korean puppets issues such as reinforcement of military strength and improvement of combat capability at the South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting at this very moment is for accelerating preparations for war, not for maintaining peace. The argument about deterring a war or maintaining peace is nothing but a U.S. shield to justify its policy of aggression and war against another country.

On the pretext of a slogan for peace, they have not only maintained their aggression forces in South Korea for as long as 37 years, they have also reinforced military strength by continuously introducing military personnel and war equipment, expanded military bases and strengthened the puppet army's equipment.

Since the present U.S. administration proclaimed its plan to intensify its confrontation attitude by means of force in Korea and Asia, such maneuverings have been going on undisguised. Since they came into power, they have nullified the plan to withdraw the U.S. ground forces from South Korea advocated by Carter. They have reinforced their air force in South Korea and augmented its equipment with new combat equipment, expanded the U.S. forces' facilities by investing $100 million last year and reinforced the puppet army's equipment by supplying new weapons worth hundreds of millions of dollars.

To build up the combat capability of the U.S. forces and the puppet army and strengthen their combat readiness as well as to build up military strength, the U.S. imperialists have been repeatedly kicking up reckless war preparations rackets. In the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercise, which the U.S. imperialists have waged in South Korea since the mid-February, they are even mobilizing aircraft which can carry nuclear weapons, vessels which carry nuclear arms and military personnel who handle nuclear weapons.

Because of the U.S. imperialists' buildup of military strength and war commotions, which is evincing a more reckless nature with each passing day, peace is being seriously threatened in Korea, the situation is being aggravated and a serious situation, in which a war might break out at any time, is being formed. This has been the truth about their argument about deterring war and maintaining peace.

Their real purpose for building up military strength and instigating the South Korean puppets to a military adventure is to maintain their military occupation in South Korea, to perpetuate the division and to hold continuously onto South Korea as their colony and military base. Babbling nonsense at the meeting that the U.S. Forces Command, which has assumed a different shape as the CFC, is the core for defending South Korea, the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique -- the loathsome stooge of the U.S. imperialists -- earnestly begged its master not to withdraw from South Korea and to supply it with more weapons. This shows that those who have been rejected by the people, isolated completely and cornered, again exposed their nation-selling nature of maintaining their life under the aegis of the masters.

Today Korea's peace and peaceful reunification are urgent demands of the times and nation. The first step toward easing tension and removing the danger of a war in Korea is to change the armistice agreement into a peace agreement. The buildup of military strength or an arms race can never be a deterrence to war nor can it be a means to maintain peace. On the contrary, the buildup of military strength and an arms race will only result in aggravating the situation, thereby touching off a war.

If the United States is really interested in maintaining peace in Korea, it should not pursue a war policy, reinforce its military strength and instigate the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique to a military adventure, but should pay due attention to our proposal for changing the Korean armistice agreement into a peace agreement, act with discretion, withdraw its aggression forces from South Korea and take its hands off Korea. In this way it will meet the U.S. people's interest. If it wants to find a real way out, the Chon Tu-hwan right should stop committing acts of treachery of selling the country and nation as the foreign force's stooge, and should step down from power in conformity with the demand of the people.

VRPR RAPS WEINBERGER'S REMARKS ON SECURITY

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] U.S. Secretary of Defense Weinberger, who is now visiting South Korea to attend the so-called 14th Annual South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting, is prowling about many places, making absurd remarks. On 29 March he showed up in the frontline area near Panmunjom and inspected frontline units of South Korean Army and U.S. forces where he made powder-reeking statements to inspire war hysteria. On the same day, lecturing to a meeting at the Choson Hotel in Seoul on the subject of so-called regional security in the 1980's Weinberger also made similar bellicose remarks.

Weinberger's visit to South Korea, together with the frantic "Team Spirit 1982" war exercise which has entered the full-scale stage, signifies an ominous move. Furthermore, his act of prowling about the frontline units, upon arrival in Seoul, to inspire war hysteria and of speaking jargon about security in his lecture cannot but be the center of attention. This is clear evidence proving that his current visit to South Korea is aimed at completing preparations for a new war of northward invasion.

In his lecture, Weinberger uttered such war gibberish as the superiority in military capability of the North, the continuous stationing of U.S. ground forces in South Korea and the supply of sophisticated military equipment to the South Korean Army. This, in a nutshell, is nothing but sophistry to justify the U.S. military buildup on the Korean Peninsula, the permanent stationing of U.S. forces in South Korea and to accelerate preparations for a war of northward invasion.

As you know well, whenever the opportunity presents itself, the U.S. war maniacs and the Chon Tu-hwan ring clamor about the superiority in combat capability of the North and the military buildup in the North.

This is nothing but a fabrication to mislead public opinion. Whenever they needed to increase military spending the U.S. war maniacs and the Chon Tu-hwan ring clamored about an alleged weakness in their military capability and an alleged military superiority of the North. Whenever they needed to threaten the North, they talked about their powerful military strength, the annihilation of the enemy at an early stage and so forth.

In fact, the U.S. war maniacs are increasing the military capability of the U.S. forces in South Korea on a large scale and are trying to justify the permanent occupation of South Korea by the U.S. forces under the pretext of the military superiority of the North. They are waging such a large-scale war exercise as the "Team Spirit 1982" military exercises under the pretext of the nonexistent threat of the North in a bid to step up preparations for a war of northward invasion.

This notwithstanding, Weinberger's clamoring about the combat capability of the North and the need for the presence of U.S. forces in South Korea is brigandish logic turning black to white and is a trick to justify the permanent occupation of South Korea by the U.S. forces, the military buildup of U.S. forces in South Korea and the South Korean Army and war preparations.

Therefore, Weinberger's remarks this time cannot be interpretered other than as absurd remarks in a bid to step up preparations for a new war on this land. It is by no means accidental that public opinion at home and abroad today says that Weinberger's visit to South Korea this time is reminiscent of the time when Dulles, a U.S. warmonger, visited South Korea just prior to the outbreak of the Korean war to endorse the war provocation plan.

The U.S. war maniacs should renounce the anachronistic delusion and withdraw from this land without delay, taking along the U.S. forces stationed in South Korea and all lethal weapons, as called for by the people at home and abroad.

'TEAM SPIRIT 1982' LANDING EXERCISE REPORTED

[Text] Pyongyang, March 31 (KCNA) -- The U.S. imperialist aggression forces and the South Korean puppet army held a large-scale landing operation exercise at a place on the east coast of South Korea on March 28 in a simulated attack on the northern half of the DPRK as part of the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises, according to a report. Mobilized in this provocative military rehearsal were U.S. forces and puppet army more than 20,000 strong including Okinawa-based U.S. Marines, a mobile battle group of the U.S. Seventh Fleet and many airplanes.

The U.S. imperialist warlikers staged the landing operation exercise amid frantic naval bombardment and bombing and then an "inland ground operation" advancing deep into the rear of the opposite side, making quite a bluff. With such provocative war exercises the U.S. imperialists once again showed the world people their dirty colours as the very one heightening tension and the criminal obstructing the independent and peaceful reunification of our country.

KCNA SAYS ANTI-U.S. SENTIMENT RISING IN SOUTH

["The United States Is Open Patron of South Korean Fascist Clique" -- KCNA headline]

[Text] Pyongyang, March 30 (KCNA) -- The anti-American sentiments are now rapidly mounting among the South Korean people. In openly patronizing the Chon Tu-hwan group, a most heinous fascist gang, the United States fully revealed its wicked nature as the strangler of democracy and human rights in South Korea and the enemy obstructing the independent and peaceful reunification of our country.

U.S. imperialism is the criminal who is egging human butchers bossed by Chon Tu-hwan on to the massacre of fellow countrymen and the back-stage manipulator of the bloodbath by the military rogues. It was the United States that permitted the mobilization of puppet army units when the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique staged the "December 12 army purge coup" as a prelude to the reactionary offensive for prolonging the "Yusin" dictatorial system, a system for the permanent split of the nation. It was also the United States that mobilized several puppet army divisions under the "South Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command" at a time when the military blackguards were running wild in cracking down upon the popular uprising in Kwangju.

Early in August 1980 when angry voices denouncing the fascist clique's murderous trials of democrat Kim Tae-chung and others were ringing out from among the progressive people of the world, the United States challenged unbiased world public opinion through a statement of its State Department spokesman that "the legal procedures in Seoul should be permitted to go ahead." As a result, a capital punishment was inflicted upon democrat Kim Tae-chung as well as upon more than 200 persons involved in the Kwangju popular uprising.

The U.S. imperialists are criminals who zealously backed and instigated the Chon Tu-hwan clique's usurpation of "power." It was thanks to the backing of the U.S. imperialists that the traitor Chon Tu-hwan, who had been an insignificant man in the puppet army without any influence or foothold up until the October 26 incident, could seat himself in the "presidential chair" in a few days.

According to an announcement of Wickham, commander of the U.S. Eighth Army occupying South Korea, right after the criminal "December 12 army purge coup" a group of few puppet army officers wanted to get rid of Chon Tu-hwan and raised the matter to Wickham, saying that they would remove Chon Tu-hwan if the United States approved it, but the United States stopped them. When the traitor Chon Tu-hwan seized the puppet presidential chair at the end of August 1980 at the criminal "National Congress for Unification," inviting the hatred and curse of the people, the United States quickly reacted to this, sending an official of the U.S. State Department to the puppet embassy in Washington to offer "congratulations." Such act, contrary to practice, showed that the United States is a patron of the butcher.

It is a consistent policy of the United States to patronize and support such murderers as the Chon Tu-hwan clique to prop up the crumbling neo-colonialist ruling system in South Korea. The true color of the United States as neo-colonialist ruler has been brought to full light. Through their experience the South Korean people have clearly realized what is the root cause of their misfortunes and are convinced that as long as the neo-colonialist rule of the United States is not terminated, they cannot be freed from misfortunes and hardships.

This is eloquently proved by the fact that leaflets carrying anti-American slogans "We denounce U.S. neo-colonialism" and "U.S., get out" were scattered when the "American Cultural Centre" was set to fire recently in Pusan.

REPORT LINKS WALKER HILL FIRE TO PUSAN ARSON

[Text] Pyongyang, March 31 (KCNA) -- A fire broke out at the "Walker Hill," a pleasure resort of the U.S. Army, on the river Han in Seoul on the morning of March 30 when the anti-U.S. sentiments of the South Korean people were mounting higher, according to a report.

Though many fire-engines were mobilized, the flames raged, licking the building for an hour. A terrible commotion took place at the pleasure resort with "hotel" facilities, when the fire occurred. Two persons got heavy burns. The puppet authorities have not made public the cause of the fire.

The fascist clique is seized with greater uneasiness by the fire at the U.S. Army pleasure resort in Seoul following the recent fire set to the "American Cultural Centre" in Pusan.

FOREIGN MINISTRY HITS U.S. NICARAGUA POLICY

[Text] Pyongyang, March 31 (KCNA) -- The spokesman of the Foreign Ministry of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea issued a statement on March 30 denouncing the U.S. imperialists for further intensifying undisguised armed intervention and hostile acts against the Nicaraguan people these days. The statement says:

Lately the U.S. imperialists are further intensifying undisguised armed intervention and hostile acts against the Nicaraguan people, thereby extremely aggravating the situation in Nicaragua and Central America. They are massing large aggression forces in the border area of Nicaragua and frequently infiltrating reconnaissance planes into her airspace, while organizing a "special unit" armed with large military equipment and massively infiltrating part of it and the Somoza remnants into Nicaragua.

The ever intensified reckless acts of the U.S. imperialists are a wanton infringement upon the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Nicaragua, a sovereign and independent state, and an open challenge to the Latin American people and the peace-loving people of the world. The Nicaraguan Government bitterly denounced the U.S. imperialists' aggressive and interventionist acts against Nicaragua, proclaimed an emergency mobilization order throughout the country to mobilize all forces for coping with a war and called for the convocation of an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council.

The Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Korean people decisively denounce the reckless aggressive and interventionist acts of the U.S. imperialists against the Nicaraguan people and express full support to and firm solidarity with the Nicaraguan Government and people in their just steps and resolute stand for defending the national independence, territorial integrity, sovereignty and gains of the revolution.

The Nicaraguan people who achieved the victory of the revolution through an arduous armed struggle for freedom and liberation, are successfully hewing out the road of building an independent new society under the leadership of the Sandinist National Liberation Front, smashing at every step the armed intervention, subversive manoeuvres and sabotages of the imperialists and domestic reactionaries. This is an encouragement to the Latin American people who have risen in the struggle against imperialism and dictatorship and for democracy, and a hard blow at the U.S. imperialists and their stooges.

Frightened at this, the U.S. imperialists are desperately trying to block the victorious advance of the Nicaraguan revolution and stifle it in its cradle, and ignite new war in the Central American region. To conceal their criminal acts the U.S. imperialists are now distorting the fact, like a thief crying others thief, to make it appear as if the fierce resistance of the Salvadoran people were actively "backed" by Nicaragua.

With nothing, however, can the U.S. imperialists justify their reckless armed intervention against Nicaragua or call a halt to the just struggle of the Nicaraguan people who have determinedly risen, upholding the slogan "let us defend the people's power and the Sandinist revolution."

The U.S. imperialists must give up their anachronistic delusion and stop at once their aggressive and interventionist manoeuvres against the Nicaraguan people. If they persist in the aggressive and interventionist acts against the Nicaraguan and other Central American peoples in defiance of the repeated warnings of the Nicaraguan people and all the peace-loving people of the world, they will be unable to escape an ignominious defeat.

The Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Korean people will do everything possible, in the future, too, to actively support and encourage the sacred struggle of the heroic Nicaraguan people for firmly defending the gains of the revolution and building a new Nicaragua, thriving and prospering.

KIM IL-SONG SENDS LETTER TO NICARAGUA GOVERNMENT

[Text] Pyongyang, March 31 (KCNA) -- The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, on March 30 sent a letter of solidarity to Daniel Ortega Saavedra, coordinator of the Council of the Government of National Reconstruction of the Republic of Nicaragua, in reply to his letter sent through the chairman of the summit conference of the non-aligned countries in connection with the critical situation caused by the U.S. imperialists' intensified manoeuvres of military aggression against Nicaragua and other Central American countries these days. The letter of solidarity reads:

I received the letter you sent me through the chairman of the summit conference of the non-aligned countries in connection with the critical situation caused by the U.S. imperialists' intensified manoeuvres of military aggression against Nicaragua and other Central American countries these days.

We could clearly realize through your letter the criminal nature of the U.S. imperialists' armed interventionist manoeuvres committed in Nicaragua and its neighbourhood and express indignation once again at their ceaseless manoeuvres of aggression and war in many parts of the world. The military provocations the U.S. imperialists are perpetrating against Nicaragua and other Central American countries are not only an outrageous infringement upon the sovereignty and independence of Nicaragua but also a grave threat to world peace and security.

The Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Korean people vehemently denounce the new military aggressive manoeuvres of the United States against Nicaragua and strongly hold that the United Nations should take decisive steps to check the U.S. imperialists' military interventionist manoeuvres, as demanded by the Nicaraguan Government.

Both the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Republic of Nicaragua are member nations of the Non-Aligned Movement and the peoples of the two countries are close comrades-in-arms advancing hand in hand on the same front of the common struggle against imperialism and for independence.

Our people will make all efforts to actively support and encourage the just struggle of the fraternal Nicaraguan people against all manner of domination and subjugation and for defending the country's sovereignty and the gains of the revolution and for building a prosperous, new society.

No matter how desperately the U.S. imperialists may try, they can never block the road ahead of the people for freedom and liberation.

Today the Nicaraguan people are enjoying the unanimous support of the peoples of the non-aligned countries and other peaceloving people of the world.

Convinced that the Nicaraguan people, firmly rallied around the Sandinist National Liberation Front, will thwart and frustrate the new military aggressive manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and certainly win victory in the heroic struggle for defending the independence and sovereignty of Nicaragua with honor, I express firm militant solidarity with you.

VRPR ALLEGES CONFLICT, DISTRUST IN SOUTH REGIME

[The VRPR editorial department's 29 March Information on the "ad hoc meeting of the Cabinet members concerned held at Chongwadae"]

[Excerpts] At bay through isolation at home and abroad, calling an ad hoc Chongwadae Cabinet meeting in an effort to bridge over the worsening situation, Traitor Chon Tu-hwan on 5 March told his Chief Secretary Yi Pom-sok to call in Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun, Director of the Agency for National Security Planning Yu Hak-song, Foreign Minister No Sin-yong, Culture and Information Minister Yi Kwang-Pyo, Minister of the National Unification Board Son Chae-sik, Minister of Government Administration Kim Yong-hyu and Secretary of the Democratic Justice Party Kwon Chong-tal to Chongwadae. However, the long meeting of the ministers concerned which was held to discuss the 12 January proposal was reportedly an unusual one at which some resistance and distrust were disclosed.

At the meeting Chon Tu-hwan made a wanton harangue such as follows: The lesson given by the U.S. advisors is that politics must be sought in duplicity. Hitler also said that, if necessary, people must be deceived shamelessly. If we are to maintain the truce line, North-South dialogue must be resumed. If dialogue is resumed, it will serve a double purpose. The North reportedly contends that consideration will be given if an apology is made for the Kwangju incident and others. However, if I should make an apology, I should have stayed in the army and I should not have engaged in politics. I put forth the 12 January proposal to seek dialogue and to placate the sentiment of the people. However, it didn't work. This is big trouble.

In addition, for the lack of the people's support for the 12 January proposal, the cause of which he thought was the inefficiency of the public relaitons work of the minister of culture and information, Chon blamed the minister. Chon also condemned the director of the Agency for National Security Planning for failure to placate the antigovernment sentiment of the people. Saying that the overseas missions were put to shame because of their poor press conferences, he questioned the Foreign Ministry measures to win support of the foreign countries to which the overseas missions are assigned.

Dismayed at the horrible and tense atmosphere suddenly created in the meeting room, the ministers thought talk, if anything happens, it would mean the end of them. They were just anxious to read Chon's thoughts and to escape the situation. Mad and pacing to and fro in the meeting room, triator Chon Tu-hwan forced the ministers to say something.

Under pressure, Chief Secretary Yi Pom-sok said that, in any rate, the public relations work was poor and was the cause of failure in winning people's support. Even now, he continued, all the mass media organizations must be mobilized and the propaganda activities on the 12 January proposal must be intensified.

Stricken by Yi's remarks, Culture and Information Minister Yi Kwang-pyo could not repress his anger over the remarks of the chief secretary who was trying to shift the blame on to him. Springing to his feet, he emphatically said: In mid-January, 450,000 copies of the Korean language edition of the speech on state affairs and the 12 January proposal were published and distributed on 22 January throughout the nation. Later, 10,000 copies of the English edition and 4,000 copies of the Japanese edition were additionally published and sent to the foreign missions in Seoul, ROK missions overseas, Koreans abroad and the international organizations. Also, propaganda activities are continuing through radio and television broadcasts and papers and magazines.

He emphasized that nothing was wrong with the public relations work. He said that, perhaps, the problem is the opinion of some scholars, journalists and government employees who say that the 12 January proposal and the proposals for 20 pilot projects are copies of someone else's proposals.

Thus, the meeting urgently held to work out measures for the implementation of the 12 January proposal had become a quarreling site at which they just tried to shift the blame on to each other.

Since the meeting at which the confrontation among the ministers was disclosed, the friction among them is still continuing. Thus, the distrust is further growing in the power circles. Concerning this dirty conflict among those in the Chon Tu-hwan group, people say that the end of the Chon dictatorship is in the offing.

FRIENDSHIP AGREEMENT SIGNED WITH ROMANIA 25 MAR

[Text] Pyongyang, March 31 (KCNA) -- A plan of cooperation between the Korea-Romania Friendship Association and the Romania-Korea Friendship Association for 1982-1983 was signed in Bucharest on March 25, according to a report.

The plan was signed by Sin In-ha, DPRK ambassador to Romania, and Gheorghe Stuparu, vice-chairman of the Romania-Korea Friendship Association.

ROK-U.S. SECURITY MEETING ENDS; COMMUNIQUE ISSUED

[Text] Seoul, March 31 (YONHAP) -- South Korea and the United States Wednesday reaffirmed that the security of the Republic of Korea is pivotal to both the peace and stability of Northeast Asia and to the security of the United States.

The 11-point joint communique issued by Korean Defense Minister Chu Yong-Pok and U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger at the end of the two-day Security Consultative Meeting (SCM) said that the continuing military buildup of North Korea and its aggressive posture causes a grave threat to the security of South Korea and to the peace and stability of the region. Secretary Weinberger reiterated the firm commitment of the United States to render prompt and effective assistance to repel armed invasion in accordance with the Korea-U.S. mutual defense treaty of 1945. The U.S. nuclear umbrella will continue to provide security to South Korea, according to the joint statement.

The two ministers agreed that reinforced U.S. forces in Korea attest to the firm U.S. resolve to defend Korea, as well as render a significant contribution to the peace and stability of Northeast Asia. The communique said the two sides will improve their early warning capabilities, broaden the exchange of strategic information and further develop ROK-U.S. joint military exercises. Weinberger pledged to carry on the modernization of U.S. forces in Korea and assured Minister Chu that the United States, with congressional approval, would seek to improve the terms for FMS (foreign military sales) credits to Korea.

Chon Calls for Economic Aid

[Text] President Chon Tu-hwan emphasized yesterday the necessity of solidarity among free world nations in the quest for peace and stability without being bent too much upon their own interests. At the same time, he said that Korea needed economic growth to a certain level to enable it to play fully a role in security cooperation with the United States.

"To attain economic development, both military assistance and economic cooperation from the United States are required continuously," said the president. According to presidential spokesman Yi Ung-hui, the president made the remarks when he met with U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and his party for about 30 minutes at Chongwadae after he gave the Order of National Security merit, Tongil Medal, to Weinberger.

Weinberger was quoted as responding to the presidential remarks by saying that U.S. President Reagan shared identical views with President Chon. "The United States will increase its defense power to a proper level not only for its own defense but to help strengthen the defense power of its allies as well as friendly states on a solid basis," he was quoted as saying.

As to President Chon's views that Korea's economic growth is essential to promote Korea-U.S. security cooperation, Weinberger revealed that this was one of the major policies of the Reagan administration. The spokesman quoted the defense secretary as having told the president that the United States was well aware of the fact that Korea used a great portion of its GNP for defense purposes. At the same time, Weinberger said he was pleased to convey to President Chon Reagan's firm defense commitment to Korea. President Chon continued talks with Weinberger and his party during a luncheon he gave for them.

Further Reports on Talks

[Text] Korean and U.S. delegates to the Security Consultative Meeting broadly agreed yesterday that the maintenance of military equipment of U.S. forces in Korea and the Asian region and the supply of their parts by Korean defense industries would be mutually beneficial.

The two delegations shared the view that such maintenance and supply programs would not only help the Korean defense industrial plants increase their operation rates and develop technology but also help the United States cut its transportation and other costs. They also agreed in principle to further improve joint cooperative bonds in the defense industry sector, to strengthen the U.S. logistics supply system for emergencies and to develop the function and operation of the annual Security Consultative Meeting (SCM), conference sources said.

The 14th SCM opened at the Defense Ministry yesterday with the attendance of 14 Korean and 13 U.S. officials. Defense Minister Chu Yong-pok and U.S. Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger are leading the high-powered delegations. After an hour-long first session, Chu and Weinberger had exclusive talks for an hour. Conference sources said the Korean and U.S. representatives reviewed the overall security and military situation with emphasis on seeking ways of effectively detering the ever-mounting threat from North Korea. High on the agenda were continued strengthening of ROK and U.S. armed forces, sales of Korean defense products to third nations, softer terms for U.S. military sales credit and exchange of strategic information.

Minister Chu said in his opening speech that improvement in the amount and conditions of U.S. foreign military sales (FMS) would contribute substantially to the advancement of Korea's forces improvement plan. Noting the fact that peace in Korea is the paramount national objective carried out despite various economic difficulties with enormous funds dedicated to national defense, he said: "Resolution of these issues will be very conducive to our mutual interests."

Weinberger said that the U.S. administration had proposed an increase in FMS credits in FY 83 to the level of $210 million, an increase of 25 percent over the 1982 figure. He went on that the United States would continue to upgrade its communications, logistics, POL (petroleum, oil and lubricant) and munitions war reserve material. "We continue to make it plain to the North Koreans that the United States and the Republic of Korea are close friends and, in a fight, we will combine our efforts to defeat them," he said. He also revealed that in the mid-1980's, the U.S. Army's M48A5 tanks in Korea would be replaced with M60A3's as part of an effort to simplify worldwide training and logistic support of the U.S. tank fleet. The M48A5 tanks will be offered to Korea for purchase under FMS procedures, he said.

In the afternoon, Weinberger and Chu visited a central air base to participate in a ceremony dedicating the facilities of the 25th Tactical Fighter Squadron, set up for the newly-arrived A-10 Thunderbolt II close-air-support aircraft.

[Text] The Ministry of Information, Press and Culture organized an international drama day at the Bassac River Front Theater Hall at 0800 on 28 March under the chairmanship of Comrade Chheng Phon, minister of information, press and culture.

First of all, Comrade Chheng Phon expressed profound thanks to the Vietnamese and Soviet cultural representatives for their presence at the ceremony. The comrade minister then stressed: The genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime destroyed our national culture almost completely and killed almost 80 percent of our male and female performers. For this reason, following the great victory of 7 January 1979 we set plans to rehabilitate the national culture to serve our party and people. Within only 3 years, thanks to their sense of patriotism and the realization of their role and with the correct guidance of the KPRP, our male and female artists improved themselves both in terms of quantity and quality. This clearly indicates our brilliant success in the field of the arts.

In conclusion, the comrade highly appraised artists in their contribution to national construction and economic rehabilitation.

Afterward, Comrade (Nguyen Bac), representative of Vietnam's Ministry of Culture, made a speech on the SRV's arts and culture. The comrade stressed: Arts in the old regimes reflected only rotten and wicked scenes to serve only the reactionary capitalists. This is why we set plans to improve art performances to serve the new society. Since the victory on 30 April 1975, our artistic sector has developed gradually. In particular, drama has successfully served our people in contributing to national defense and construction.

In conclusion, Comrade Aleksandr Bursov, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy, spoke on the new annals of the Soviet arts which have developed vigorously and are well-known throughout the world. Following the victory of the October Revolution, the guidance for the Soviet art performers was to focus on upholding national customs and realism which reflect real life in Soviet society.

The ceremony ended at 1100 in a most joyous and intimate atmosphere.

[Unattributed commentary: "Why Does the Vietnamese Le Duan Clique Boisterously Clamor About Its Party Congress?"]

[Text] In convening the current party congress, the Vietnamese Le Duan clique noisily rolls drums to make it sound as if this is a grand event. But it is noticed by all that the current Vietnamese party congress is held at a time when Vietnam is facing a thousand and one inextricable difficulties. From the 1976 congress to the current one, Vietnam was unable to solve anything. On the contrary, Vietnam has brought to itself many more complicated problems. Vietnam has faced more ruin, economically, financially and socially. It is drowned in internal rifts and has become extremely isolated in the international arena. The developments in Vietnam from the 1976 party congress to the current congress are as follows:

Inside the country:

1. Vietnam's economy, both in the agricultural and industrial fields, has collapsed. Vietnam suffers from food shortages every year. The Vietnamese people's livelihood has deteriorated more seriously.

2. The Vietnamese people have fled from their country in hundreds of thousands and even in millions.

3. Vietnam is drowned in widespread internal rifts and infighting between Le Duan's clique and other grops. As a result, over 86,000 Vietnamese party members were purged. The Vietnamese Government was repeatedly reshuffled and some deputy prime ministers and ministers were removed.

4. Insecurity is widespread throughout Vietnam. Insecurity has spread not only in the southern and central parts and the highland area of the ethinic minorities, but also in the northern part of Vietnam where people have rioted and opposed the clique as proved by the burning of warehouses at Haipong Port.

Outside the country:

1. Vietnam has become a Soviet satellite. Vietnam has served as a Soviet base and as an Oriental Cuba for the Soviet Union.

2. Vietnam has sent over 300,000 troops and administrative personnel to invade and occupy Kampuchean territory where it is now being deeply and inextricably bogged down.

3. Vietnam has stationed from 50,000 to 60,000 aggressor troops in Laos and imposed its colonial yoke on Laos.

4. Vietnam has pursued a hostile policy and launched activities against China, and caused armed provocations against Thailand.

5. Vietnam has become extremely isolated in the international arena. All the peace- and justice-loving peoples and countries the world over which uphold the UN Charter despise Vietnam. They have cut and suspended aid to Vietnam and condemned it for its aggression against Kampuchea.

All of this constituted more difficulties that Vietnam has created for itself in the past years. These difficulties, internally and externally, are worsening. The Le Duan clique can never solve them. Even with this party congress, Vietnam cannot solve these problems. This is because Vietnam has implemented an oppressive domestic policy against the Vietnamese people, suffered from internal rifts and widespread corruption, and pursued a foreign policy of aggression and expansion. Particularly, it has refused to end its war of aggression in Kampuchea and to withdraw its troops from Kampuchea. Vietnam has been unable to solve its economic and financial crisis and its internal rifts. The Vietnamese clique can convene its party congress, but it can never solve its internal rifts and conflicts. It can neither deceive nor calm the anger of the Vietnamese people. The Vietnamese people in general have lost their trust in the Le Duan clique. It has been 7 years now since the liberation and reunification of Vietnam. If the Le Duan clique paid attention to solving the living conditions of the Vietnamese people, the people's life would have now improved to some extent. But, on the contrary, the people's life has kept worsening. There is no hope for a better life for them.

Thus, no matter how hard the Le Duan clique tries to publicize its new face, it can deceive no one. Everyone is well aware of the clique's evil face. The peace- and justice-loving peoples and countries throughout the world are not so foolish as to fall for the tricks of the Hanoi expansionists. No matter how hard Vietnam tries to propagate its maneuvers of peace, negotiations and promises, no one believes in it. No one trusts Vietnam's promises. One looks only at what Vietnam has done. If Vietnam wants peace to be restored in Southeast Asia and to coexist and have normal relations with the neighboring countries in the region, the Le Duan clique must abandon its policy of aggression and expansion against Southeast Asia, end its war of aggression in Kampuchea, withdraw all of its troops from Kampuchea and mobilize its manpower and national resources to rehabilitate its economy, build its country and solve the living conditions of the Vietnamese people. It should not obstinately carry on its war of aggression and occupation of Kampuchea in opposition to the UN Charter, resolutions of the UN General Assembly and the world's demands as it is doing now.

Since January 1979 the day of the victory of the entire Kampuchean people over the genocidal Pol Pot regime, stooges of Beijing hegemonists and expansionists, a new era marking the era of independence, freedom and socialism has been opened to the heroic fraternal Kampuchean people, said Khamsouk Keola.

The two personalities further stressed on the achievements in various fields in the national construction tasks in their respective country, and saw the necessity to enhance and consolidate the special friendship relations and all-round cooperation for the cause of peace and stability in this region and the world.

The continual aggressive acts against the three Indochina countries carried out by Beijing ruling circles in close collusion with U.S. imperialism were also disclosed by the two personalities.

POST ANALYZES VCP CONGRESS, SRV FOREIGN POLICY

[Editorial: "Hanoi Hardliners Firmly in Control"]

[Text] Vietnam is officially a communist country, ruled by the communist party, and as in all such countries the party makes all policies, all laws, all important decisions. The fifth party congress underway in Hanoi is extremely important for these reasons. Whatever the party decrees is the law of the land. Period.

The congress must therefore give pause to the optimists among us that Hanoi is at, or approaching, the point where it is willing to negotiate in good faith on its foreign policy. There is nothing wrong with optimism, of course. But Vietnam's communists have clearly shown that their line is one of toughness, stubbornness and confrontation rather than compromise.

The communist party Secretary-General, Le Duan, was highly applauded when he said that Vietnam's close association with the Soviet Union was the cornerstone of his nation's entire foreign policy. He was applauded again when he referred to what Vietnam calls its "special relationship" with Kampuchea and Laos -- countries in which 25 percent of Vietnam's huge standing army is deployed. This attitude bodes poorly for the chances of any meaningful talks with the Vietnamese over the area's most pressing foreign affairs problem -- the military occupation of Kampuchea by Vietnam and its protection of a regime whose unique claim to legality rests solely upon "elections" in which all opposition was banned.

Heng Samrin, the ex-Pol follower installed as president of Kampuchea by Vietnamese arms in 1979, was an honoured guest and speaker at the Vietnamese party meeting in Hanoi. He said Vietnam was "the apple of our eye" for Kampucheans and swore eternal friendship with Vietnamese Communists. Well he might, of course, since without that friendship pledge he would be in some prisoner of war camp or worse.

It is sincerely troubling to hear, on the one hand, Vietnam and its neighbours constantly calling for talks with Thailand and ASEAN while, on the other hand, it is clear that such talks would be used only to try to force acceptance of a puppet regime in Phnom Penh and a never-ending Vietnamese garrisoon of the Thai frontier.

Neither Thailand nor its allies seek the return of the dreaded Khmer Rouge regime to power in Phnom Penh, despite what Vietnam claims or even believes. Thailand and its allies, quite rightly, wish an end to military occupation of a neighbouring country. They also wish Kampucheans to be able to pick their leaders. And they are firmly on record that they will accept any decision of the Khmer people, to include election of communists to power, even Heng Samrin himself.

But the party congress in Hanoi has shown that Vietnam remains fixed with its obsession that the Kampuchean situation is irreversible. The official party economic programme is that the country must be ready to go to war quickly if necessary. War, we might ask, with whom?

The stubborn inflexibility of the Vietnamese foreign policy is, as we said, troubling. Negotiations means, specifically, some give and take on both sides. Vietnam's idea of negotiations appears still to be to force its policy on others.

We can only hope that the new communist hierarchy which emerges from this congress will change this stubbornness and bring an end to the too-old Vietnamese insistence on confrontation as the only way of dealing with other countries.

VOFA URGES SRV TO PROVE SELF BY TROOP WITHDRAWAL

BK301114 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in Thai 1000 GMT 29 Mar 82

[Text] Recently when meeting with UN Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar before leaving for Hanoi, Ambassador Ha Van Lau, head of the SRV permanent delegation to the United Nations, told the secretary general about Vietnam's proposal for peaceful negotiations to improve relations between the three Indochinese countries and China and Thailand, as well as other ASEAN members. Those with a superficial view might believe that Vietnam is adopting a more constructive attitude in its foreign relations with other countries. However, if one has closely followed the problems in Indochina and Kampuchea, one can easily see that the problems have arisen from contradictions between the words and deed of Vietnam. The first contradiction which can easily be seen is Vietnam's reference to the relations between the three Indochinese countries and China and Thailand as well as other ASEAN members. Here, Vietnam is trying to mislead others into thinking that the problems in Indochina are conflicts between Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea on one side and China and the ASEAN countries on the other. As a matter of fact, Thailand and the ASEAN countries are not directly involved in any conflict with Vietnam. It has been accepted internationally that the problem in Indochina was caused by Vietnam's military aggression and occupation of Kampuchea, in violation of international law and agreements and endangering regional as well as global stability and peace. The problem has become a concern of the international community, of peace-loving and other concerned countries which realize that a joint effort is needed to make Vietnam stop its aggression and to give to the Kampuchean people the right of self-determination.

Despite a serious economic situation in the country, Vietnam has been able to continue with its aggression because of assistance from a world power outside the region. This again makes it clear that the problem in Indochina is not a regional problem as Vietnam keeps saying. It is a problem involving a global strategy and all countires must pay attention to and together try to solve it. The fact that Vietnam always tries to distort the truth of the problem cannot be interpreted as Vietnam is sincere about solving the problem caused by itself.

Regarding relations among countries in the region, Vietnam also tries to divide Southeast Asian countries and claims that those countries have problems in their relations. But Thailand adopts a policy of friendship and good relations with all countries. For instance, it has given full cooperation to all its ASEAN partners based on the ASEAN concept of economic, trade and cultural cooperation and has promoted friendly relations with those countries. It has promoted relations with Laos, a close neighbor with cultural ties, based on agreements reached by the Thai and Lao Governments. The Thai interior minister visited Laos early this month in order to strengthen economic, trade, cultural and sports relations between the two countries. On Kampuchea, Thailand has maintained appropriate relations with the Government of Democratic Kampuchea which is recognized by the United Nations. As to Vietnam, Thailand has no direct conflicts with it except for Thailand's opposition to the Vietnamese military aggression against Kampuchea and its threat to Thailand's border areas. Thailand's policy is in line with other ASEAN partners' peaceful policy.

How then can Vietnam convince others that there are problems in relations among the countries in the region? If there are problems, they are related to Vietnam's aggression against Kampuchea and Vietnam's lies using other countries as a cover to instigate differences in the region.

Another suspicious thing about Vietnam's sincerity is the fact that while clamoring for peaceful negotiations, Vietnam still has over 200,000 troops inside Kampuchea, posing a threat to Thailand's border area as well as to peace in Southeast Asia.

With weapons in its hands and acts of aggression committed by it against others, how can Vietnam convince others to believe that it is the one ready for peaceful negotiations as a means to solve the problem. If it wants to prove its good will and sincerity about solving the problem through peaceful negotiations, Vietnam must first pull its troops out of Kampuchea. This will be the first step towards improving the situation. Vietnam will then be able to prove to others that it is peace-loving and abides by the UN Charter as Vietnam's propaganda says.

NATION REVIEW 'HAPPY' WITH LATEST ASEAN ACTION

[Editorial: "ASEAN's Last Ditch Effort in Kampuchea"]

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila has just completed a visit to Singapore and Kuala Lumpur and has said that there will definitely be an ASEAN summit very soon. As far as we can figure out such a summit can be held only after May 1 since, first, we have the Rattanakosin bicentennial celebrations and, second, immediately after the Prime Minister Prem Tinsulanon leaves for Europe returning only on May 1. Since there are no urgent intra-ASEAN problems that need the attention of the leaders of the five countries, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi has said it is a sort of final effort of the members of ASEAN to get the three feuding factions of the Khmer patriotic front to come to a definite understanding. The groups are led by Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Khieu Sampan and Son Sann.

But there is an optimistic note in what Sitthi said in Kuala Lumpur yesterday because he presumes that the three Khmer groups are leaving it up to ASEAN initiative. Of course there are wheels within wheels in all this politicking and until now there has been more frustration than any positive results. Singapore Foreign Minister S. Dhanabalan also sees some silver lining because he has said that the Khmer Rouge are softening their stand -- but again that does not automatically mean that Son Sann who heads the KPNLF will agree.

In all the pettifogging in which the three Khmer groups have indulged in up to now they seem to have lost track of two important factors. It is because of the very intense ASEAN efforts that world opinion has been mustered against the invasion and occupation of Kampuchea by the Vietnamese. It is also ASEAN that has made the necessary diplomatic thrusts to hold the UN seat for Democratic Kampuchea. The second point is that China is the only country that is supplying weapons to the guerrillas who are fighting the Vietnamese war machine. But until now, neither ASEAN nor China has been able to make the three factions see the light.

When the ASEAN effort was made in Bangkok both Sihanouk and Son Sann groups agreed to a loose coalition and, when last month China made the effort in Beijing, both the Khieu Samphan and Sihanouk groups agreed to the coalition. Sihanouk is the only person who seems to have understood the delicacy of the situation, and how important the coalition is if world opinion is to continue on their side so much so greater aid could be directed to the coalition and not just to the Khmer Rouge whose international reputation, to put it mildly, is highly questionable.

We are happy that, under these difficult circumstances, ASEAN considers it essential to make another effort toward the political solution of Kampuchea's problems. Ever since the Vietnamese invaded Kampuchea, ASEAN members have fought for justice and peace in Kampuchea in every world forum and have won signal victories. But they cannot continue to do so without the support of those factions who seem to be long on self-interest and short on patriotism.

SITTHI ON TOXIC CHEMICALS USE, TRADE WITH TAIWAN

BK251446 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 25 Mar 82

[Text] Concerning the reported use of toxic chemicals in Kampuchea by Vietnam, evidence of such use is being awaited from the United Nations.

Foreign Minister Air Chief Marshal Sitthi Sawetsila has this to say: [begin recording]

[Sitthi] One is awaiting for such evidence.

[Question by unidentified reporter] The United States has claimed that it has the evidence.

[Answer] Yes, but the United Nations, which comprises many countries, has said that there is evidence but it cannot identify where it was gathered. The UN representatives cannot enter the country in question.

[Question] Is it true that the Taiwanese trade office in Thailand will be closed down?

[Answer] This is the first I have heard of this matter. You seem to know more than I. [laughter]

[Question] Some merchants have asked me about it and asked me to ask you.

[Answer] You must ask the Commerce Ministry.

[Question] Has this issue ever been raised?

[Answer] No. Trade is trade. Even mainland China, according to our agreement, has no objections to Thailand continuing to trade with Taiwan.

[Question] So there is no problem about the Taiwanese trade office here being closed down, am I correct?

[Answer] You must ask [words indistinct]. As far as I know there is no change in our existing trade with Taiwan. Taiwan continues to buy our goods; the amount it buys from us depends on its demands. [end recording]

On the prime minister's trip to Europe, the foreign minister says: [begin Sitthi recording] Several economic ministers will accompany the prime minister on the trip. The private sector was informed yesterday about the itinerary and in the afternoon the private sector met with officials concerned on preparations for the trip. Most topics to be discussed during the trip will deal with trade and investment -- our export to countries which impose restrictive quotas and high tax rates, tapioca exports from our country and opening markets for our textile products. The deputy finance minister will be a member of our delegation. There will be meetings with representatives of major British banks. I heard that discussions with the British prime minister will focus on economic issues. [end recording]

Dear delegates,

Dear esteemed guests:

The Fifth VCP Congress represents the culmination of a process of stringent preparatory work that took more than 1 year to finish. It has combined the collective minds of the entire party to lay down the line for resolving the important and pressing problems that arise in the path of development and the progress of the revolution in our country. At this moment, we joyfully report to the entire party, people and armed forces that the Fifth National Congress of party delegates has successfully fulfilled its momentous duty. [applause]

The congress has discussed and unanimously passed the reports of the party Central Committee that set forth the strategic tasks in the struggle to build socialism and defend the fatherland; lay down the orientations, tasks and main targets in the economic and social fields for the 1981-85 5-year period and for the 1980's; and reach decisions on the orientations for party building and the problems of supplementing the party statutes.

The congress has elected a new party Central Committee to ensure that the entire party will successfully implement the momentous tasks adopted by the congress.

The work of the congress vividly symbolizes the unity and identity of views of our entire party. The activities being performed in all parts of the country at this time reflect the close bond between our people and their leading party. Our entire country has been living in harmony with the party congress. From this congress, the voices of our international brothers and friends, filled with profound sentiments, have reverberated far and wide throughout our country, bringing to our Vietnamese communists and people the profound friendship, militant solidarity and sincere support of the great Soviet Union, the two fraternal neighboring countries of Laos and Kampuchea, other fraternal countries in the socialist community, the international communist and workers movements and revolutionary people the world over. And also at this congress, our distinguished guests have had an opportunity to witness manifestations of our party and people's deep gratitude for the fraternal parties and countries and for our militant friends throughout the five continents. [applause]

We heartily welcome the great contributions made by the compatriots and combatants throughout the country in preparing for this congress. We thank the various mass societies, religious organizations and noted personages for sending their greetings. QUAN DOI NHAN DAN PRAISES PARTY CONGRESS

[QUAN DOI NHAN DAN 27 March editorial: "All for the Socialist Fatherland and the People's Happiness"]

[Text] Today the fifth party congress is grandly opening in the Hanoi capital. From all parts of the country, 1,033 distinguished delegates representing 1.7 million members of our party have assembled at the Ba Dinh Conference Hall to decide on problems crucial to the advance of the nation in the 1980's.

This is a congress of a historic period in which our nation is engaged in peaceful national construction while having to struggle against a war of comprehensive sabotage waged by the Chinese expansionists in collusion with U.S. imperialism, and to stand ready to cope with a war of large-scale aggression that may be started by them. Convened under the motto of action -- all for the socialist fatherland and the people's happiness -- this congress will reflect the iron will of all the party, people and armed forces to overcome all challenges and build a prosperous and powerful socialist Vietnam.

Since the fourth party congress, our country has undergone extremely great trials. Immediately after having concluded two wars that lasted for almost 3 decades, our people had to cope with two new wars waged by the Beijing hegemonists and expansionists in collusion with U.S. imperialism. We have waged a war for national defense while building the economy amidst the ruins of war and advancing forward from a poor and backward small-scale production system in spite of the economic encirclement by imperialism and sabotage by enemies from both without and within.

Under the light of the fourth party congress resolution, we have made efforts to overcome many challenges and recorded big successes of great significance in many fields. Our country was rapidly reunified in all respects. For the first time, the dictatorship of the proletariat was established throughout the country and the strength of the people's collective mastery was developed. With this strength, we defeated the Beijing reactionaries and their lackey, the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique, defended our socialist fatherland firmly and fulfilled our international obligation toward the two fraternal countries of Laos and Kampuchea.

We have striven to overcome the serious aftermath of the protracted anti-U.S. war and the great difficulties resulting from the two new wars and natural calamities; further increased our production capacity; and created more and more new positive factors for continuing to advance the economy. We have made intensive efforts to develop education, culture and public health, push ahead science and technology, and meet the requirements of the economy and national defense.

The past 5 years have marked a period of glorious successes of the Vietnamese revolution. Our people have created a new revolutionary strategic stance that is more stable then in any previous periods, accumulated many useful experiences and developed great capabilities for defending the fatherland and building socialism.

These great achievements have been scored with the firm leadership of our party -- a party which is unswervingly loyal to Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism, to its nation, and to the teachings of great President Ho Chi Minh, its founder and trainer. They are the fruits of the correct, clear-sighted, decisive and timely policy line and strategy, as well as of the correct resolutions of the party Central Committee -- headed by esteemed Comrade Le Duan -- which has led our revolution through an important turning point, thus enabling it to continue to advance.

They are also the results of the wonderful heroic quality, the stalwart will and the invincible strength of our people and People's Armed Forces and Security Forces who have united singlemindedly in carrying out the two major strategic tasks -- defending the fatherland and building socialism.

Our successes in the struggle for national defense and socialist construction are always inseparable from the great and valuable sympathy and support from the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea and other fraternal socialist countries, as well as from progressive people throughout the world.

As the party's highest leadership organ, the fifth party congress will analyze the situation in the country in all aspects; evaluate the achievements, shortcomings and actual economic condition at present; review the implementation of the line adopted by the fourth party congress; point out the causes of successes and difficulties; and determine the strategic tasks for the new revolutionary stage and the guidelines and objectives for the 1981-85 period and the 1980's. These are periods of special importance.

The first and immediate stage of the process of advancing the entire country to socialism is the stage for us to make a basic change in the national economy, achieve a new equilibrium, and create favorable conditions, for accelerating socialist industrialization. The struggle for national construction of our entire party, people and armed forces must be focused on the basic objectives for the 1980's. These objectives involve stabilizing and improving the people's livelihood, building the material bases of socialism, accelerating socialist transformation, and ensuring that all the needs from national defense and security are met.

Faced with these basic issues, the congress, which symbolizes the quintessence and intellect of the country, will outline the major policies and measures to advance the country in the new stage under a common and correct socialist revolutionary line already laid down by the fourth party congress.

The fifth party congress is an event of great historical importance in our country. It is also an event of decisive significance for the destiny of the country in the 1980's.

VCP CONGRESS FOREIGN DELEGATES ADDRESS MEETINGS

OW310103 Hanoi VNA in English 1549 GMT 30 Mar 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 30 -- Foreign delegates who attended mass meetings held in Hanoi yesterday and today in honour of the Fifth VCP Congress all highly praised Vietnam's achievements in national defence and construction, and reaffirmed support for the people of this country. Bulgarian head delegate Milko Balev said:

"The fraternal friendship between the Bulgarian Communist Party and the Communist Party of Vietnam, between the Bulgarian and Vietnamese peoples, is developing incessantly.... Forged in the struggle for freedom and socialist construction and in the struggle for independence against the U.S. imperialists and the Chinese aggressors, the Bulgaria-Vietnam friendship has become stronger and has blossomed magnificently. The Vietnamese people have had and will always have the support of Bulgaria, and they can always depend on the Bulgarian people's assistance.

"In the spirit of great communist ideals and on the strength of the treaty of friendship and cooperation between Bulgaria and Vietnam, our two parties, governments and peoples have cooperated with each other in politics, economy and culture...

"You can be sure that what Comrade Todor Zhivkov said in Hanoi in 1979 during the visit of a Bulgarian party and state delegation led by him has the force of law for the communists and the entire people of Bulgaria. He said then: 'We, the fraternal socialist countries and progressive forces of the world will never leave socialist Vietnam in the lurch. Forever, in the struggle to defend the freedom, independence and territorial integrity of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam as well as in socialist construction, we will side with you, beloved Vietnamese brothers and sisters'."

Kenneth Kvist (VPK) [Sweden's communist left party] said:

"Vietnam has won a very special place in the hearts and minds of the Swedish people. Your long struggle against imperialism and your final victory was unprecedented in the history of mankind. So was the solidarity with your people, both in strength and breath. For many young people the struggle of Vietnam became awakening to political consciousness. In the same way that Spain had been for their parents, these people are called the 'Vietnam generation,' and they constitute a large segment of our party.

"Also today solidarity with Vietnam is very much alive in Sweden. The efforts of imperialist propaganda to destroy this solidarity have failed...the struggle of the solidarity movement, of the workers parties and the progressive opinion in Sweden have made it possible for the assistance to continue in spirt of the rightists trying to abolish it....

"Vietnam has won an outstanding position in the world [word indistinct] struggle for independence, peace, justice and social progress. Therefore, it is a primary duty for us communists to defend Vietnam's independence and peace and support your efforts to rebuild your country, develop its resources and improve your people's living conditions. Knowing how devastated the U.S. left Vietnam and what further damage your country and people have suffered from new military aggressions, U.S. economic warfare and natural calamities, we see your endeavours to solve difficulties with compassion and admiration. No country in the world takes so good care of its citizens with such small resources. In fact, much richer countries, which have enjoyed long peace have much more illiteracy, higher infant morality and so on...

"Dear comrades,your role in anti-imperialist struggle and for the anti-imperialist movement has been and is outstanding. You are now facing the problems of reconstruction and development. We are confident that your experienced party will find wise and effective solutions also to these problems. The Left Party Communists (V.P.K.) shall continue to support you with firm solidarity. We wish you great success".

Arvo Aalto (Communist Party of Finland) said: "Finland and Vietnam are separated by a great distance. But this does not prevent us from following with sympathy all that has been done in your country in implementation of the decisions of your party's previous congress to repair war damage, to effect socialist changes in the south of your country, to integrate the north and the south, so different because of their social and economic development, although external factors of which you have no control, have seriously disturbed your work. You have shown by your work your capacity to surmount even big difficulties. The results obtained are encouraging, and they guarantee your nation's socialist future. We sincerley congratulate you on the results of your work which constitute an important contribution to the cause of world peace...

"It was thought at many places in the world that the Vietnamese people, at long last, would be able to build their country as they wished and in peaceful conditions. But it was not so. We say, with sadness and discouragement, that your country was victim of heinous aggressions, including an armed aggression -- now by the Beijing leadership. Our party condemned the Chinese aggression as energetically as we had condemned the U.S. attempt to destroy your nation with its huge war machine. Our solidarity with your people is unshakable. We highly value the initiatives of Vietnam and the other Indochinese countries to ensure peace and stability in Southeast Asia. We have enclosed the important contribution to world peace in the form of the constructive proposals jointly made by Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea for making Southeast Asia a zone of peace, stability, friendship and cooperation".

Milos Jakes (Communist Party of Czechoslovakia) said: "We have every reason to take pride in the successes you have won in the first years of your post-war restoration and socialist construction in a unified Vietnam. Your successes would have been greater if you had not been subject to attacks by imperialism and international reaction. We most indignantly condemn the Chinese aggressors' criminal attacks against your sovereign territory. They intended to 'punish' Vietnam for its internationalist position and principled policy. We resolutely condemn the Beijing expansionists and the reactionary circles subservient to them for their plots and provocations against the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea.

"We highly value your foreign policy of peace which has gained great prestige in Asia and the world as a whole. We higly value the selfless and fraternal internationalist assistance you have accorded to the people of the Lao People's Democratic Republic and the People's Republic of Kampuchea in their struggle for a better life. We note with satisfaction that the Socialist Republic of Vietnam is a steadfast component of the big family of the socialist community and an outpost of socialism in Southeast Asia. We note with satisfaction that your party is a firm detachment of the communist and international workers' movement."

Harkishan Subjeet Singh (CPI-M) [Communist Party of India-Marxist] [said:] Our party has always considered the Vietnamese liberation struggle against U.S. imperialism as an integral and decisive part of the world struggle against imperialism for peace, freedom, democracy and socialism. The ultimate great victory recorded by the Vietnamese people in their liberation struggle just before international labour day on May 1st, 1975, has greatly contributed to seakening imperialism on a world scale. Our party has always held that it is our international proletarian responsibility to support Vietnam, the Communist Party of Vietnam and the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, and we have constantly striven to do our utmost in discharging this obligation.

"Much to our regret, soon after its final liberation, Vietnam had to face new difficulties caused by the hostile attitude of the People's Republic of China and the piratical acts of the reactionary Pol Pot regime in Kampuchea...

"Dear comrades, on behalf of the Communist Party of India (Marxist), I wish to convey to you our congratulations on the big successes of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. We wish you many new successes in building a prosperous and strong socialist Vietnam."

Jacinto Suarez (Sandinista National Liberation Front of Nicaragua) said: "From this forum, I have the honour to convey the congratulations of militant friendship of the Sandinista National Liberation Front of Nicaragua (F.S.L.N.) to President Ho Chi Minh's people and party to whom the whole mankind is grateful...

"We say that the whole mankind is grateful to Vietnam because imperialism's defeat in Vietnam has paved the way for our new successes...

"The militant friendship between Vietnam and Nicaragua is as vast as the sea. We are proud of your friendship, and Nicaragua will always side with you in any circumstances or any aggressions, whether from U.S. imperialism or Chinese expansionism. Nicaragua will always unite with you because we will never give up solidarity and internationalism. "Loyal to this sacred principle, we have recognized the People's Republic of Kampuchea. "As internationalist fighters, we are opposed to Zionism, apartheid, colonialism and neo-colonialism anywhere in the world."

Djelloul Bakhti Nemiche (Algerian National Liberation Front Party) said: "May I reaffirm our resolute and constant support for the noble revolutionary cause of the Vietnamese people in building socialism and defending their socialist motherland....

"We firmly believe that the militant solidarity which has been tested in our common fight against colonialism and imperialism, for independence and freedom, will remain a solid basis for the development of our friendship and cooperation in building our respective countries, for our people's happiness, and for peace, national independence, democracy and social progress in the world."

Luciano Barca (Communist Party of Italy) said: "We are proud of greeting such a people as you, who are endowed with an ancient civilization which, with its struggles and conquests, has enriched the heritage of values and culture of the whole mankind.

"We know well the strugglies you have waged for centuries to affirm your national rights and defend your independence. In the period following World War Two, our people, particularly the youth, lived the various stages of your struggle and success as stages of a common struggle against imperialism and neo-colonialism. In Italy the name of President Ho Chi Minh is as popular as that of the most beloved leaders of the working class. He knew how to creatively apply the teachings of Marx and Lenin to the peculiar conditions of his country and to closely combine the struggle for national independence and with that for socialism...

"Your experience shows that it is possible and even necessary to add genuine patriotism to international solidarity and to draw to the side of combatants not only the countries and parties which stand for socialism, but also democratic and peace forces of very different orientations. This is proved by the very broad solidarity expressed to you in Italy...

"We convey to you our most sincere wishes for your rehabilitation and development along the large path charted by the October Revolution, which we consider to be the greatest historical event of our century, and for your people's patriotic and socialist struggle."

Karl Heinz Schroeder (German Communist Party) said: "We are very moved because your party congress has set new, great tasks to continue promoting the cause of peace and raising your people's living and cultural standards. We now better realize the very big problems posed to your country by the consequences of U.S. imperialism's war of aggression...

"We are greatly impressed by the spirit of international solidarity expressed throughout your party congress... Your country's selfless assistance to the fraternal Kampuchean people threatened with extinction is a shining example of genuing humanitarianism, of genuine international solidarity...

"We have indignantly condemned the Chinese leaders' attacks on socialist Vietnam, as we have condemned their opposition to our people's interests, their collusion with the Reagan administration, and their encouragement and support to the N.A.T.O. armament policy.

"We thank you for the invaluable contributions of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, of Comrade Ho Chi Minh's party, and of your people, to the maintenance of peace and to the growth of socialism."

Kil Il-tae (Workers' Party of Korea) said: "Carrying on President Ho Chi Minh's cause, the communists and other people of Vietnam conducted a prolonged struggle full of sacrifices against imperialism. Through a prolonged, hard struggle against the U.S. aggressors, the Vietnamese people completely liberated and reunified their country. At present the Vietnamese people are engaging in a socialist emulation movement to fulfill this year's national economic plan to welcome the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam with labour achievements and high political enthusiasm. We sincerely wish you and the entire people of Vietnam further success in discharging the tasks to be laid down in the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress."

(Rahim Ajina), (Iraqi Communist Party) said: "We wish to express our joy at your successes in overcoming the war consequences, reunifying the country, improving the material and moral life of the people, solving economic and social problems, and consolidating the material and technical basis of the national economy.

"With our Arab and Kurd national character, our people have always followed with admiration the heroic Vietnamese people's struggle. We admire the Vietnamese people's staunchness in using all their military and economic strength to defeat the French colonialists, and especially, the U.S. imperialists. We take this as a lesson for us.

"During the days of the Dien Bien Phu victory, the liberation of Ho Chi Minh City, and also today, our party and people have always expressed our solidarity with the Socialist Republic of Vietnam in its determined and successful struggle against the war of aggression and expansion waged by the Beijing ruling clique in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and the Pol Pot junta. We support your policy in coordinating the common issues of Vietnam, Kampuchea and Laos."

'Ali Shayi Hadi (Yemeni Socialist Party) said: "Having paid the price of independence, sovereignty, freedom, security and stability with the lives of their best sons and daughters and having won in their hard struggle against the U.S. aggressors for national liberation, the Vietnamese people clearly understand the meaning of freedom and peace....

"The Yemeni Socialist Party and the Government of the People's Democratic Republic of Yemen would like to affirm their sympathy with and support for the efforts of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea toward building a peaceful and stable Southeast Asia. The reactionary and imperialist forces must end their aggressive actions and their interference in the internal affairs of countries and nations in the region. We fully support the constructive well-meaning proposals of the Indochinese countries concerning the question of peace and stability in Southeast Asia and the convening of a regional conference between the Indochinese and A.S.E.A.N. countries. We condemn all forms of interference in the internal affairs of the People's Republic of Kampuchea, and highly value the internationalist position taken by the Communist Party of Vietnam regarding this question.

"From the bottom of our hearts, we would like to congratulate you, comrades, on the occasion of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam, and we are entirely confident that the resolutions of the congress will constitute a new inspiration to the great Vietnamese people in the continuation of their struggle on all fronts."

Bernie Taft (Communist Party of Australia) said: "You've paid a great price for national liberation and national independence. The whole of mankind owes you a big debt which it can never pay in full. Your struggle for national liberation and national independence has deeply impressed the whole world's people.... Dear comrades, the close relations between our two parties was forged in the struggle against the Vietnam war. We have developed and promoted these relations, and we want to enhance them further. We wish you success in the task of restoring your country and in overcoming the difficulties you have encountered and are still encountering."

Prem Sagar Gupta (CPI) [Communist Party of India] said: "The Indian people have always unanimously sided with you in all your struggles. Our people hold the Vietnamese people in great stead and have taken joint actions in support of Vietnam. The hearts of our people are beating in rhythm with your. Whenever we speak about Vietnam we say 'Mera nam tera nam Vietnam Vietnam'....

"The Indian-Vietnamese friendship is developing and will continue to develop fruitfully. Our struggles are the same. We are one. Our friendship will shine for ever and will guarantee peace, stability, and progress in this region."

(Rakotomalala Manan Ignace) (Madagascar Independence Congress Party) said: "To visit Vietnam is the wish of the majority of Madagascans because the 30-year struggle of the Vietnamese people for liberation is also the struggle for the liberation of Madagascar, hence our people's understanding of it and their sympathy for it. "For this reason I'm pleased that I not only have the privilege and honour to come and see a courageous and noble people who love peace and labour, but also was invited to the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam, a staunch party, which, as I think, will have a good influence on the development of the Third World in the eighties... .

"Although our countries are geographically far apart, the relations and solidarity between Vietnam and Madagascar in the common fight have existed for a long time.... "We have come here to reaffirm the friendship and cooperation between the two nations and parties at government, city and trade union levels.... Through this congress of the fraternal Communist Party of Vietman, we express here our international solidarity for the benefit of social progress and detente, of the elimination of all forms of colonialism, and peace."

Jorge Insunza (Chilean Communist Party) said:

"The Vietnamese people have shed their blood for their freedom and national reunification and also for the freedom and happiness of mankind as a whole. With staunchness and fortitude, determination and resourcefulness, you have shouldered and simultaneously and satisfactorily accomplished your national tasks and internationalist duties, realizing this truth the Chilean people have given you their profound solidarity....

"We are confident that you, comrades, will record new and still bigger successes under the leadership of the Communist Party of Vietnam, a political party which relies on the people, which has Marxism-Leninism for compass, and which always enjoys the effective solidarity of the Soviet Union, the other socialist countries, the working class, and national liberation movements in the world."

Mariano Matsinha (Frelimo Party) said:

"By defeating U.S. imperialism, the heroic people of Vietnam, wisely led by the Communist Party of Vietnam, have inflicted a mighty blow on imperialism's global strategy. On the other hand, they have made a decisive contribution to the cause of peace in this region of the world. No aggressor army can resist the great strength of a whole nation. This historical dialectic has been proved by your experience.

"The F.R.E.L.I.M.O. Party highly values the leadership provided by the Communist Party of Vietram to the Vietnamese people in the cause of socialist construction. "The achievements you have recorded in implementing your five-year plan are results of the efforts exerted by your people towards eliminating the state of backwardness created by imperialist wars. We are very satisfied that in spite of untold difficulties, you have made significant advances in rebuilding your country. The people of Mozambique regard the revolutionary gains of the Vietnamese people as of their own."

Mohammed Farhad (Communist Party of Bangladesh) said: "The name of Vietnam has deeply moved the hearts of all revolutionaries because Vietnam, the Communist Party and its leader, Ho Chi Minh, are symbols of heroic struggle, of selfless sacrifices, and of the road to glorious triumph. Vietnam has defeated the mightiest enemy of mankind. Vietnam's example has been a moral inspiration to freedom fighters in our struggle for national independence in 1971.... "In a street in the centre of Dacca, a small monument has been erected in memory of two young fighters -- two students fallen on Jan. 1, 1973 when the police fired at a demonstration in support of Vietnam, demanding an end to the bombing of Hanoi. Comrades, it is the place where our fraternity was sealed and strengthened with blood. It will remain there for ever...

"Let me say frankly on this occasion that nothing can be more bitter to mankind than the Chinese authorities' policy of deception. They have waged an aggressive war against Vietnam! Maoism's insanity has reached its peak! The dangerous Washington-Beijing collusion has done great harm to the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea and other nations in southern and Southeast Asia."

[Manfred Pohl report from Hanoi]

[Excerpts] The head of the SED delegation to the Fifth VCP congress Konrad Naumann, member of the Politburo, conveyed fraternal militant greetings from the SED, its Central Committee and its general secretary, Erich Honecker, during a rally held at the Hanoi Workers' Club.

Foreign guest delegations taking part in the Fifth Vietnam CP Congress here in Hanoi spoke today in factories and institutes in the Vietnamese capital. Young girls and women with large bouquets of flowers lined the entrance to the workers' club as the SED Central Committee delegation, led by Konrad Naumann, entered.

It is a great honor for us, Konrad Naumann said in his greetings address, to be able to speak to the inhabitants of the capital city of socialist Vietnam at this rally. We have great regard for the glorious revolutionary tradition of the Vietnam Communist Party and its city of Hanoi, whose citizens, in the 1945 August revolution, with their powerful uprising against colonial domination, gave an example to the whole country and who, during the aggression of U.S. imperialism, heroically resisted the bombing terror of the air pirates. Today, the name of the capital is a shining symbol of the indefatigable efforts, selfless work and the heroic struggle of the Vietnamese working class and all working people in the construction of socialism and the defense of the socialist homeland.

The SED Central Committee delegation is deeply impressed with the atmosphere, the creative work and the open discussion at the party congress, he said. Despite great difficulties and extremely complicated conditions, the Vietnamese people, inspired and led by the battle-tested communist party, are solving fundamental questions of the socialist revolution which occupies a new strategic position in the further advance along the path of socialism. In people's minds, Vietnam is not only a symbol of the heroic struggle against imperialism and against the hegemonic ambitions of the Beijing leaders, but also a symbol of the resolute efforts of an economically poorly-developed former colonial country to shape its socialist future.

SRV ASSAILS ISRAELI ACTIONS AGAINST PALESTINIANS

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 30 -- A spokesman for the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry today strongly condemns the barbarous repression of Palestinians in Israeli-occupied areas. The spokesman recalls the firing at demonstrators and strikers since March 18, the forceful dissolution of councils of Arab Palestinians, the arrest of Palestinian mayors, and the curfew in western Jordan. "These frenzied actions, however, have failed to quench the struggle of Arab Palestinians now raging west of the Jordan River, in Gaza, on the Golan Heights, and even in Jerusalem," the spokesman says.

"These criminal fascist actions were part of the dark scheme of the Israeli aggressors to annex and permanently occupy Arab territories they have seized and to wipe out the resistance movement of the Palestinian people under the leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization for their fundamental national rights," the spokesman points out.

He declares: "The people and the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam strongly condemn these criminal acts and demand that the Israeli aggressors put an immediate stop to them and respect the Arab Palestinian people's inalienable basic national rights. The Vietnamese people will consistently support the just cause of the Palestinian people; we firmly believe that the latter, with the support of the Arab people as a whole and of the peoples of the non-aligned countries and the whole of progressive mankind, will certainly thwart all criminal plots and moves of the U.S.-abetted Israeli aggressors."

NHAN DAN HAILS BREZHNEV'S TASHKENT INITIATIVE

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, March 30 -- The Hanoi paper NHAN DAN today paid high tribute to the peace initiative concerning Asia made by President Brezhnev in a recent speech in Tashkent. The paper says in a commentary: "President Brezhnev's statement concerning Asia has brought into relief the Soviet Union's peace policy, which has been clearly expounded in the Soviet stand regarding India, Japan and China, three major states on this continent."

The paper notes that these are important proposals to broaden the struggle for peace and detente and against the arms race. It goes on: Following up the Soviet peace proposals with regard to western Europe, South Asia, the Indian Ocean, West Asia, the Middle East, the Persian Gulf, etc, the new proposals for Asia further exemplify the sense of responsibility and the tireless efforts of the Soviet Union for world peace and security.

Asia is the site of several current dangerous flashpoints. The increasing tension on this continent is due to the schemes and acts of the Chinese expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists. The latest Soviet proposals point to the correct approach to solve the current problems, and, in fact, they are practical and imperative measures to deal with the present situation.

NHAN DAN goes on: "Together with the Lao and Kampuchean peoples,the Vietnamese people have made active efforts to safeguard peace and stability in Asia and to oppose the threat from Beijing expansionism in collaboration with U.S. imperialism. The three Indochinese states have made and are making every possible effort to set in motion the dialogue between the two groups of the Indochinese countries and A.S.E.A.N. countries, and they are prepared to talk with Thailand on peace and stability for the region. Vietnam has also asked China to put a definitive and complete end to its hostile armed actions against Vietnam along the common borders of the two countries and resume the talks which were unilaterally suspended by the Chinese side".

NHAN DAN reaffirms the foreign policy of the socialist countries of consolidating peace, resolutely countering all acts of the enemies of peace, engaging in peaceful cooperation with all who so desire, consolidating the friendship among the faternal socialist countries, uniting with all forces of social progress and defending the sovereignty of nations.

"Together with the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea, Mongolia, Afghanistan, India and other peace-loving countries in Asia, Vietnam has tirelessly worked for the cause of peace and stability on this continent, thus contributing to the consolidation of peace on this planet. The United States, China and their followers should understand that the majority of mankind is on the side of justice and peace," NHAN DAN stresses in conclusion.

[Excerpts] President Marcos indicated yesterday that the Philippine Government will soon seek a renegotiation of the RP-U.S. bases agreement to resolve pending issues and remaining irritants. This will be brought up when the bases agreement is discussed during the visit of U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

In a talk with newsmen in Baguio City, the president confirmed that the high point of his coming talks with Weinberger will be the status of American bases in Subic in Zambales and Clark field in Pampanga. The president told newsmen that while the controversial bases agreement, which was last amended in 1979, was not due for renegotiation until 1984, or after 5 years, the Philippine Government would press for an early start in bilateral talks. The president pointed out that agreement still had to be reached on a number of issues that had been left pending, such as those involving CIQ, or Customs, Immigration and Quarantine matters.

Government quarters said the Philippines was well within its right to ask for the early start of the negotiations. They pointed out that the Philippines was always on the short end of incidents that arise because of the ambiguities of inequities of the agreement.

MARCOS TO EXAMINE FOREIGN TIES WITH SUBVERSIVES

HK140105 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 13 Mar 82

[Text] Our lead story today is the reported linkage of local subversives with a foreign power. President Marcos said yesterday he would look into the possible link-up between local subversives and a foreign power. Earlier, newsmen had said there appeared a pattern of activities indicating a connection between the foreign power and the local ideologists. They pointed to the landing of weapons in the Bicol region, the smuggling of arms by a foreign ship in Mindanao, and the alleged discovery of propaganda materials on board a foreign ship at the Manila south harbor.

Similar subversive and espionage activities have been reported by Singapore, Indonesia, and Malaysia, all members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations along with the Philippines and Thailand. The other day, Labor Minister Blas Ople disclosed the alleged entry in the country of communist agents reportedly to contact some local union leaders with leftist leaning. Ople said the foreign agents were mostly Asians who have been positively identified as working for communist countries in the Eastern bloc and Moscow. The local leftist labor leaders are reportedly under surveillance.

The president said he had received some verbal reports, but added that all of them had to be integrated to find out if any single country has a definite plan for subversion.

NEW UNITED FRONT OPPOSES MISUARI FACTION OF MNLF

OW261343 Quezon City RPN Television Network in English 1100 GMT 26 Mar 82

[Text] Feelers have been allegedly received by the government from the MNLF [Moro National Liberation Front] for new talks on cessation of hostilities. However, the MNLF is being opposed by a new united front formed by the Bangsa liberation group, the Hashim Salamat group and that of (Dimas Bendatun). The united front has broken away from the Misuari faction of the MNLF.

Sources at Malacanang say the united front could make it difficult for a new round of talks between the MNLF and the government. Nevertheless, a government panel is being readied following the arrival of President Marcos from Saudi Arabia yesterday.

TALKS WITH PRC END; KOREA, INDOCHINA DISCUSSED

[Text] Tokyo, March 31 (KYODO) -- Top ranking Japanese and Chinese diplomats wound up two days of talks here Wednesday after reaffirming plans to realize an exchange of visits by government leaders this year to mark the 10th anniversary of the restoration of diplomatic relations between the two neighboring nations. The diplomats also exchanged views on bilateral problems and on matters related to the Korean Peninsula and Indochina. The Japanese side was headed by Deputy Foreign Minister Kensuke Yanagiya, and the Chinese delegation by Vice Foreign Minister Fu Hao, a former ambassador to Japan. Wednesday's session lasted from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. at the Foreign Ministry.

Japanese officials said both sides reaffirmed Premier Zhao Ziyang's planned visit to Tokyo on May 30 and Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki's trip to Beijing in late September. They said Yanagiya and Fu agreed to press ahead with smooth economic cooperation between the two countries.

The Japanese group thanked the Chinese for their efforts to find the offspring of Japanese left behind or abandoned in China at the end of World War II. Two groups of so-called "war orphans" visited Japan this year to locate their relatives. The Chinese delegation was reported to have told the Japanese side that it would continue to extend assistance in the Japanese efforts to help the "orphans."

On the situation in Korea, Japan and China agreed that the North and South should work themselves on future reunification of the divided countries. However, the Chinese delegation reportedly expressed its support for the North while the Japanese group claimed that China should also listen to the South.

In discussing the Indochina problem, China called for a complete withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea, respect for the Kampuchean people's self-determination, Kampuchean neutrality, independence and non-alliance. The Chinese side also was reported to have said that the time is not ripe for a fundamental settlement of the Kampuchean question. It also reportedly said that China would support Kampuchea's struggle against Vietnam, would put pressure on Vietnam and press for establishment of a coalition among the three Kampuchean groups opposed to the Vietnam-backed Heng Samrin government.

Japan said it supported the policy of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) aimed at achieving a comprehensive political settlement. The Japanese delegation also expressed its support for China in trying to bring the three Kampuchean groups together.

USSR ENVOY MEETS SAKURAUCHI, DESIRES GOOD TIES

OW311253 Tokyo KYODO in English 1217 GMT 31 Mar 82

[Text] Tokyo, March 31 (KYODO) -- Newly appointed Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Pavlov Wednesday asked Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi for efforts to establish solid, good neighborly relations between Japan and the Soviet Union.

Paying a courtesy call on Sakurauchi at the Foreign Ministry, the Soviet Ambassador conveyed the good wishes of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrey Gromyko to the Japanese foreign minister.

He told Sakurauchi he had talked with General Secretary Leonid Brezhnev, Premier Nikolay Tikhonov and other Soviet Government and party leaders just before his departure for Japan. He said he was optimistic about the future of Japan-Soviet relations, although he was aware of the present complicated problems between the two countries.

SDF DESIRE UPGRADED AIR DEFENSE CAPABILITY

[Text] Tokyo, March 31 (KYODO) -- The top uniformed officer of Japan's Self-Defense Forces [SDF] said Wednesday the country's defense capability has declined relatively and expressed interest in upgrading air defense power. Gen. Tsugio Yata, chairman of the Joint Staff Council, told a news conference that Japan's defense capability has dropped compared with the level of the armed might of the Soviet Union.

Commenting on a U.S. request for Japan to defend air and sea lanes up to 1,000 nautical miles from Japan, Yata said such assignments must be handled by destroyers and anti-submarine aircraft. Yata said because the Soviet Union's Backfire bombers are deployed in Asia, the defense of the sea lanes cannot be assured without air cover provided by the Air Self-Defense Force. Asked if Japan needs aircraft carriers, which it currently does not have, Yata said that was a different matter.

SAKURAUCHI: VISA FOR DPRK'S HYON 'DIFFICULT'

OW310849 Tokyo KYODO in English 0653 GMT 3 Mar 82

[Text] Tokyo, March 31 (KYODO) -- Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi said Wednesday the Tokyo government finds it "extremely difficult" to issue an entry visa requested by Hyon Chun-kuk, leader of the (North) Korea-Japan Friendship Association. The remark, made at a Diet committee meeting, was interpreted as a rejection of the request.

Hyon wants to visit Japan for talks to extend the current nongovernment bilateral fishery agreement that is due to expire in June. Japan has no diplomatic relations with North Korea.

The Foreign Ministry's Asian Affairs Bureau chief, Akitane Kiuchi, later told the committee Hyon broke his promise when he visited Tokyo last year as a guest of a Japanese dietmen's group. At that time, the North Korean was granted a visa on condition that he would not conduct political activities while he was in Japan. But he criticized the South Korean Government of President Chun Tu-hwan and the Tokyo government regarded this as a violation of his entry condition.

GRANT FOR PHYSICAL EDUCATION TO BE GIVEN TO PRC

OW291313 Tokyo KYODO in English 0235 GMT 29 Mar 82

[Text] Beijing, March 29 (KYODO) -- Japan will give a grant of up to yen 50 million (about dollar 200,000) to China to promote sports education, Japanese officials said Monday. They said diplomatic notes on the aid were exchanged here Monday between officials of the two governments. Included in the Japanese aid is equipment for physical education research for the Beijing Physical Culture Institute and the China Judo Association.

PRC PLACES ADDITIONAL ORDER FOR STEEL PRODUCTS

[Text] Tokyo, March 30 (KYODO) -- China has placed an additional order with Japanese steelmakers for shipment of 112,000 tons of ordinary steel products in the first half of this year, industry sources said Tuesday. This means China is committed to take 1,167,000 tons form the six major steel companies in the period.

The figure shows a marked gain from 985,100 tons in the second half of 1981 and 914,000 tons in the first half of the year. The increased orders apparently reflected growing steel demand from manufacturers of consumer durable goods and other products. Chinese semiannual orders last topped the 1-million-ton level in the second half of 1980, at 1,085,000 tons. The figures do not include tubular steel and specialty steel products.

NODONG SINMUN HITS 'TEAM SPIRIT 1982' EXERCISE

[NODONG SINMUN 1 April commentary: "Dark Cloud of War Is Coming From South"]

[Text] The U.S. imperialists, who have been frantically waging the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercise in South Korea, have recently undertaken large-scale landing operations against us along the east coast as a part of the exercise. According to news reports, the landing operations, dubbed "Ssangyong-17," were undertaken in an atmosphere of a real warfare under cover of darkness, with various fighters including F-111's and F-4's, armed helicopters, naval transport vessels, tanks, armored personnel carriers and field guns mobilized and with a total of 20,000-strong marines of the United States and South Korean puppets mobilized.

This shows that this war exercise commotion of "Team Spirit 1982" is not a simple repetition of previous exercises of its kind but a criminal test war and a preliminary war aimed at attacking and invading our republic at any time.

In reality, to complete their preparations for a war of aggression against us through this war exercise, the U.S. imperialists have not only mobilized even nuclear weapons, various missiles which can carry nuclear warheads, special units which handle nuclear arms, new fighter-bombers which can carry nuclear bombs and strategic aircraft, they have also been undertaking operations of attack, airlift and close support at land, sea and in the air, while deploying, on a large scale, the U.S. and puppet armed forces to areas near the military demarcation line on the assumption of an all-out attack against us. Thus, this war exercise is reaching an extremely grave stage at which no one can assure that the exercise will not develop into an act of all-out war against us.

Coincidentally, the U.S. warmongers including U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger, the chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff and the commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific Forces have sneaked into South Korea -- the field of operations where rifle bullets and cannon balls roar -- and discussed war at the South Korea-U.S. Annual Security Consultative Meeting and the South Korea-U.S. Military Committee Meeting.

In view of the foreign news reports that the U.S. leaders, who plan and execute the U.S. imperialists' aggressive policy, have inspected military facilities in South Korea and have made a commitment to give military support and fulfill their commitments toward the puppets, their junket to South Korea is an aggressive one aimed at inspecting the U.S. forces and the South Korean puppet army's war exercises and the general preparations for a war and at intensifying war maneuverings against us. This is very much reminiscent of the war merchant Dulles' junket to South Korea for the purpose of a final, on-the-spot inspection of preparations for a northward war on the eve of the 25 June war 32 years ago.

The U.S. imperialists, who have been aggravating the situation to the extreme by waging war maneuvers reminiscent of the eve of war in South Korea, have been guilty of grave military provocations by committing acts of espionage against the northern half of the republic by infiltrating the high-speed, high-altitude SR-71 reconnaissance planes day after day.

Because of the U.S. imperialists' and the South Korean puppets' machinations of aggression and war, South Korea is becoming the most tense place in the world. A grave danger in which a war might break out at any time is hanging low over our country. At a time when we are patiently trying to realize the country's peace and peaceful reunification and voices at home and abroad calling for realizing the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo and the proposal for holding the 100-man joint conference are rising high, the machinations by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets, who are bringing the situation to the brink of war by kicking up a reckless war exercise commotion, are criminal acts that cannot be tolerated and arrogant provocations against the Korean people.

That the Chon Tu-hwan clique is clamoring about so-called peaceful reunification or dialogue at the instigation of the U.S. imperialists is a shameless tactic to cover up its warlike and aggressive nature. Peaceful reunification and war maneuvers can never be compatible. For them, peace means war. The war exercise game and machinations for building up military strength frantically being waged by the U.S. imperialists and the Chon Tu-hwan ring in South Korea clearly establish the fact that they do not want peaceful reunification or dialogue in Korea but pursue only anticommunist confrontation and war.

The U.S. imperialists and South Korean puppets are babbling boisterously about a nonexistent threat of a southward invasion. It is a sheer lie. A threat of invasion in our country comes only from the South.

Our people are keenly watching the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets' dangerous war maneuvers with a high vigilance. The U.S. imperialists should immediately stop its act of dangerously playing with fire, jeopardizing peace and the security of Korea and the world, and should abandon their aggressive ambition against our country and immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along all U.S. troops and all lethal weapons including nuclear arms. The Chon Tu-hwan clique should stop war exercise maneuvers aimed at massacring compatriots at the instigation of the U.S. imperialists and step down from power without delay in conformity with the demand of the South Korean people.

If the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets continuously stick to war machinations without regard for the unanimous demand of the people, nothing good will await them. Anyone who plays with fire will be burned to death.

VRPR DENOUNCES S. KOREA-U.S. SECURITY MEETING

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] The so-called 14th Annual South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting, held for 2 days from 30 March, ended after adoption of an 11-point joint communique making the issue of transfer of war materials the key points. In this so-called joint communique, the two defense ministers of South Korea and the United States, under the pretext of South Korea's security, reaffirmed a series of issues such as strengthening the combat capability of the U.S. troops stationed in South Korea and the South Korean Army, completing an offensive posture, military cooperation between South Korea and the United States, development of a cooperative system for munitions industry between the two countries and development of South Korea-U.S. joint military exercises. Every item contained in the joint communique was replete with frantic war fever and were expressions that reek of gunpowder.

This shows that the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan group are maneuvering to provoke another 25 June and to drive our people to the calamities of war at all cost. At the same time, the whole course of the South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting and what was plotted in the meeting prove that, regarding provoking a war of northward invasion as an urgent task, they are frenzied to complete perparations for it.

This was patently exposed in what they reaffirmed in the joint communique: That the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan group are to expand war materials, accelerate strengthening of military power and completion of an offensive posture, ease conditions for loans for foreign military sales, develop a cooperative system for munitions industry with South Korea, continue strengthening combat capabilities of the U.S. troops stationed in South Korea and the South Korean Army, while rapidly transfering war supplies to the Chon Tu-hwan clique. They even babbled, openly, that the United States will continue reinforcing South Korea's security with the U.S. nuclear umbrella, exposing nakedly their war maniacal intention that the United States will not hestitate to annihilate our people by triggering a nuclear war on the Korean Peninsula and driving our people to the calamities of a nuclear war.

This is tantamount to an open declaration that the United States, in fact, is intent on achieving its ambition of prolonging the South Korean fascist dictatorial system on the whole land of Korea by instigating the Chon Tu-hwan clique to provoke a nuclear war on this land.

As you all may know, today the maneuvers of the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan clique to provoke a new war can be seen as entering a reckless and extremely serious stage. The United States is increasing such sophisticated equipment as A-10 planes and F-16 fighters in an attempt to strengthen the U.S. ground and air force units in South Korea. Last year it expanded the military facilities of the U.S. forces in South Korea by spending $100 million and provided to South Korea new-type weapons valued at several hundred million dollars in a bid to strengthen the South Korean Army. Along with this, the United States has repeatedly staged a reckless war exercise racket on this land. The "Team Spirit 1982" war exercise, which has been staged in South Korea since February, is mobilizing airplanes capable of carrying nuclear weapons, naval ships capable of carrying nuclear weapons and even military personnel who can handle nuclear weapons.

The contents of the meeting between the U.S. war maniacs and the Chon Tu-hwan ring this time and the agreements in their joint communique vividly prove once again such is the U.S. policy of aggression against Korea. The South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting is not only a vicious meeting for war between a boss and his stooge but also a heinous plot in a bid to make South Korea a tool of the U.S. military strategic plan and a dangerous land as a source of a new war. The current meeting for war between the U.S. aggressors and their stooges and their maneuvers for building up military capabilities, are rash acts of trying to respond to the aspiration for peace on the Korean Peninsula and its peaceful reunification with a war and are a violent challenge and provocation to the people of the world.

The United States should stop its military buildup schemes and withdraw from this land without delay. The Chon Tu-hwan ring should discontinue its treacherous acts and step down from power without delay. Our people will not tolerate such war preparation schemes by the United States and the Chon Tu-hwan ring and will doggedly struggle against them.

DFRF MEETING CALLS FOR RELEASE OF KIM TAE-CHUNG

SK010417 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0352 GMT 1 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 1 (KCNA) -- The 69th enlarged meeting of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland [DFRF] was held on March 31 at the People's Palace of Culture. Placed on the platform of the meeting hall was a portrait of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Attending the meeting were Comrades Yim Chun-chu and So Chol, members of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea; Comrade Ho Chong-suk, secretary of the C.C. WPK; Chong Sin-hyok, chairman of the Central Committee of the Chondoist Chongu Party; Yo Yon-ku, director of the Secretariat of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland; Hong Ki-mun, vice-chairman of the Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of the Fatherland; Yom Tae-chun and Chong Tu-hwan, Presidium members of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland; Yom Kuk-yol, vice-chairman of the Central Committee of the Korean Social Democratic Party; members of the Standing Committee and members of the Central Committee of the Democratic Front for the Reunification of the Fatherland; and observers.

The meeting discussed the problem of more extensively waging at home and abroad the movement for rescuing South Korean democrat Kim Ta-chung in connection with the fact that a graver danger is befalling him.

Yo Yon-ku, director of the Secretariat of the DFRF, made a report at the meeting. She said: The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique launched a big fascist offensive on May 18, two years ago, massively arresting and imprisoning Mr. Kim Tae-chung and other democratic figures and patriots, while expanding an "emergency martial law" throughout South Korea, sentenced him to death on groundless "charges" and, when this touched off a wave of vehement protest at home and abroad, it kept him in detention as a life timer and played the foolish drama of "commuting" the life imprisonment to "20 years in prison" on March 2 this year to deceive and flout world public opinion.

The Chon Tu-hwan group's "commutation" is nothing but a trick to placate public opinion at home and abroad, bury the Kim Tae-chung issue in darkness for ever and veil the viciousness of its fascist suppressive rule, she noted, and said: A rumor is afloat saying that though the murderers bossed by Chon Tu-hwan recently took the step of "commuting" the penalty passed on Kim Tae-chung outwardly, they in actuality are weaving a wicked plot to kill him in secrecy. We can not sit idle at a time when Kim Tae-chung's life is endangered by the South Korean military fascist clique, the reporter noted, and stressed: To rescue him from the clutches of fascist murderers is an urgent demand which brooks not a moment's delay.

Voices denouncing the traitor Chon Tu-hwan's suppression of and murderous scheme against Kim Tae-chung should be continuously lifted up so that the traitors' crimes may be brought to full light in the world and a movement for rescuing Kim Tae-chung be waged more powerfully in South Korea and throughout the world, the reporter said.

Then speeches were made. A letter to the South Korean people was adopted at the meeting. Whether Mr. Kim Tae-chung is saved or not depends on the struggle of the South Korean people, the letter notes, and stresses: People and personages of all strata in South Korea should firmly unite and wage a massive resistance against fascism and for democracy to overthrow the military fascist rule and save Mr. Kim Tae-chung and other democrats and patriots.

Saying that the U.S. and Japanese reactionaries are to blame for the grave danger to the life of Mr. Kim Tae-chung, the letter calls upon the South Korean people to determinedly rise against the criminal acts of U.S. imperialism in manipulating behind the scene the puppet clique's suppression of Mr. Kim Tae-chung and Japanese reactionaries subservient to it. The meeting also adopted a letter to the governments, political parties and organisations of all countries of the world and the international organisations.

KOREA HERALD Appraises Talks

SK010016 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 1 Apr 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Upgraded Korea-U.S. Alliances"]

[Text] The outcome of the 14th Annual Security Consultative Meeting between Seoul and Washington is more reassuring and specific than expected. Not only did it reaffirm the traditional ties of security cooperation between the two governments but also it went a step further by pledging to initiate new categories of concrete efforts for developing such cooperative relations. The successful progress of the bilateral talks of defense chiefs was supported by the personal commitment of U.S. President Ronald Reagan to the defense of Korea as conveyed to President Chon Tu-hwan in a letter carried by the visiting U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger early this week. The American leader expressed a conviction that the just closed Seoul meeting will prove mutually beneficial and lead to greater levels of defense cooperation.

Beginning with the reiterating of Washington's resolve to remain a Pacific power and its readiness to render prompt and effective assistnce to repel armed invasion against the republic, a joint communique wound up the two-day meeting laying down a number of military programs for immediate implementation along with broader foreign policy objectives. The two sides aired the view that the continuing military buildup of North Korea and its aggressive posture posed a grave threat to the security of the Korean Peninsula and stability in the region. They agreed that Korea is pivotal to the peace of Northeast Asia and vital to the security of the United States.

Pointing out that it is essential to ease tensions and create an atmosphere for national reconciliation through dialogue between South and North Korea for durable peace here, Secretary Weinberger expressed his full backing for Seoul's far-reaching proposal for peaceful reunification. Pyongyang will do well to heed the constructive exhortation before embarking upon a self-defeating adventure.

It was again made clear by the 11-point communique issued yesterday that Korea will continue to be protected under the American nuclear umbrella and reinforced U.S. forces. Our defense capabilities and chances of lasting peace will continue to be enhanced and ensured through the effective functioning of the ROK-U.S. Combined Forces Command and the United Nations Command.

The ongoing programs to modernize American forces by upgrading ground forces and deploying A10's and F16's in Korea and to improve our forces have been successful. And yet, there is still left much room for closer consultations to widen the scope of cooperation. Especially positive actionis required on the part of Washington to ameliorate the terms for the provision of foreign military sales. As noted in the communique, the development of the Korean defense industry, including the use of Korean facilities for the maintenance of U.S. defense equipment is in need of speedy action. This area also holds out meaningful promises conducive to keeping conventional arms balance in the region.

Accords on improving early warning capabilities and broadening the exchange of strategic information and on developing joint military exercises as well as augmenting stockpiles of war reserve materials and expeditious transfer of war material are all significant additions to the asset of the existing Korean-American alliance. The alliance has to remain strong as a mainstay of peace and security in this part of the world.

EPB EXPECTS 7-PERCENT ECONOMIC GROWTH IN 1983

SK010037 Seoul THE KOREA TIMES in English 1 Apr 82 p 7

[Text] The Economic Planning Board (EPB) has worked out the 1983 budget guidelines with emphasis on a tight fiscal policy, estimating next year's economic growth rate at the 7 percent level. The EPB guidelines also feature a zero-based formula under which budgetary factors for the preceding year are not considered. The key budget plan forecasts that 1983 prices would be remarkably stabilized thanks to favorable tones at home and abroad. Defense expenses will account for 6 percent of the gross national product (GNP) next year. The percentage is almost the same level as now and in the previous years. The tight fiscal policy-oriented budget plan stresses improvement of the budgetary balance by eliminating waste and inefficiency, the EPB explained.

Management rationalization, according to the budget guidelines, will be vigorously pushed ahead for state-run enterprises. Thus, the government will curb public utility charges as much as possible. The budget plan, however, leaves the pay increase scales for government officials undecided yet.

VOPB MARKS 34TH REVOLUTION ANNIVERSARY

BK281428 (Clandestine) Voice of the People of Burma in Burmese to Burma 0030 GMT 28 Mar 82

[Unattributed article: "Let Us Honor the 34th Revolution Day While Resolutely Waging the Self-Preserving, Just Revolutionary War"]

[Text] The people's democratic armed revolution is 34 years old on 28 March 1982. On this auspicious day we humbly salute the tens of thousands of martyrs who have fallen in this revolution while struggling heroically and brilliantly.

On 28 March 1948 -- 34 years ago -- the Antifascist People's Freedom League [AFPFL] government started violently attacking the Burma Communist Party [BCP]. The attack was aimed at eliminating the BCP as well as the BCP-led people's democratic revolution against imperialism, feudal landlordism and bureaucrat capitalism. In order to preserve itself as well as to carry on the tasks of the people's democratic revolution, which were yet to be accomplished, the BCP had to resort to armed revolution against the AFPFL government's armed counter-revolution. Without the armed struggle the BCP would not have any place to exist and the cause for the complete liberation of the people would have met failure.

Despite the different names -- such as, the AFPFL government; the "clean" AFPFL government; the caretaker government; the "pyidaungsu" government; the revolutionary council; and the Burma Socialist Program [BSP] government -- all these reactionary governments, against which the armed struggle was directed throughout the 34 years, represented imperialism, feudal landlordism and bureaucrat capitalism. These governments also share the same goal in opposing the BCP and in oppressing the people. Basically they are the same although their words and deeds in some cases may differ.

Regarding the issue of bilateral negotiations to end the civil war and to build peace in the country as desired greatly by the people, the AFPFL government, which ruled Burma for 10 years, said: There is no need for negotiations; surrender unconditionally, pledge never to take up the armed struggle, sympathetic consideration will be given if surrendered, and compete against the AFPFL within the framework of parliamentary democracy. The military government, which has ruled Burma for 20 years, did make some negotiations. Its demands, however, were: surrender unconditionally, abolish the communist party, the people's army, and the base areas; and join the BSP party, and its incarcerated armed forces.

What these demands mean is that since the AFPFL government called itself a government of parliamentary democracy -- which allowed for opposition parties to exist -- it did not openly ask for the abolishment of the communist party but instead attempted to carry out a complete political assassination of the BCP.

For the BSP-military government, since it has publicly declared itself as a one-party dictatorship government, it would not permit an opposition party. Therefore, it asked for the abolishment of the communist party and said: Join the BSP party and you will get socialist democracy. This was in fact an attempt to erase even the identity of the BCP and to kill it off completely.

In essence, it is apparent that all these reactionary governments had identical objectives of abolishing the communist party and the people's democratic revolution, and of oppressing and exploiting the people under imperialism, feudal landlordism and bureaucrat capitalism.

There is yet another common objective of reactionary governments. That is to make a threat which says either surrender or face complete annihilation. The AFPFL government carried out communist suppression by clamoring repeatedly that it would completely annihilate the communists in 6 months, or in 1 or 2 years. The BSP-military government has also adopted resolutions at meetings to quickly annihilate communists and completing eradicte them, and it is currently implementing these resolutions.

All successive reactionary governments have adopted slogans and passed resolutions to smash the communist party. For the past 34 years, however, the communist party has continued to exist. Similarly, statements have been made for many years over 30 years or so, that only mopping up campaigns needed to be carried out to wipe out the communists or that communists now exist only as bandit gangs in the jungles.

An announcement by the military government, however, admitted: Between 1962 and 1973 -- a period of 12 years -- more than 9,000 men had been killed and injured on its side. According to some reports, there are currently more than 5,000 handicapped amputees who are former soldiers for whom the military government must find jobs, food, clothing and shelter.

No one can guess how many more sacrificial victims there will be in the future so that the role of the reactionary military government can be perpetuated. As long as the reactionary government continues its armed counterrevolution, the communists -- as they have done so in the past -- will continue to wage the struggle resolutely until victory is ultimately achieved.

Who actually is being completely annihilated and eradicated although campaigns to such ends are directed at communists? According to facts, wasn't it the AFPFL government -- the perpetrator of civil war -- which has ceased to exist completely as of today?

U Nu, who repeatedly called for the eradication of communists delivered a long speech as the prime minister of the AFPFL government at the 1955 conference of Burma army commanders. Although the speech in essence urged the elimination of communists U Nu also said: While I was in a most joyous mood on 4 January 1948 because we had obtained our life-long desire of independence a most depressing thought crossed my mind. I feared that our Burma army might follow the example of our great ancestors who had fought might for might for power.

U Nu's fear has now come true. The military clique has followed the precedences set by our great ancestors. It was the people of all nationalities in Burma who decided that the AFPFL government -- the one which had betrayed the cause of liberation of the Burmese people and started the reactionary civil war by trampling on its own forces -- should end its role on the stage of political history in Burma. It was the army, however -- which raised fears in U Nu's mind and which followed the steps of our great ancestors -- which implemented the decision.

History is created by people. Nothing can go against the wish of the people. All decaying, reactionary things receive the punishment of the people. How, when and who will mete out the punishment are other separate questions. The AFPFL government and its parliamentary democracy system had undergone a trial judged by the people. Without fail, the military government and its socialist democracy will also meet the same fate.

As contained in the statement of the BCP Central Committee issued on 14 June 1981, the BCP is prepared to hold another round of talks whenever the opportunity arises although the Ne Win-San Yu military government had unilaterally abrogated the negotiations this time. Taking into consideration all conditions at home and abroad, the BCP -- with keen foresight and a sense of responsibility -- will continue to struggle to end the civil war and build peace in the country, to gain full democratic rights for the people and to build national unity. At the same time, it will resolutely wage a self-preserving, just revolutionary war to counter the reactionary military government's reactionary civil war.

Recently, Trade Minister Tang Sardem attended a work session of the provincial people's revolutionary committee to discuss and set targets for the successful purchase of these goods. This work session was also attended by Comrade Kim Yin, secretary of the Kompong Thom provincial party committee, and many cadres of various provincial and district services. Following detailed discussions, the meeting participants unanimously decided to launch a mass persuasion campaign in the province to increase the production of various kinds of crops so as to make it possible for the state to purchase products from the peasants.

The session also solved a number of other matters, particularly the question of readying equipment, transportation means, silos and so on in order to make a greater contribution to efforts to restore and develop the national economy.

The Ministry of Trade also took charge of dealing with a number of questions such as having money available for the purchase of products, equipment and transportation means.

[Text] Tokyo, March 29, KYODO -- Former Premier Pol Pot is still in military command of the anti-Vietnam united front of Kampuchea despite an earlier report that he had retired from the front line due to serious illness. This was disclosed Monday by the fifth delegation of the Kampuchea relief center which recently returned from Democractic Kampuchea (Pol Pot regime).

The delegation members, led by Professor Mitsusada Fukasaku of Nara Women's University, told a press conference Monday in Tokyo that they learned directly from Minister of Social Welfare Ieng Thirith that Pol Pot is still in command of his anti-Vietnam troops. They learned that though suffering from malaria, Pol Pot is still in command of anti-Vietnamese fighters at Democratic Kampuchea's military foothold in Phnom Malai.

The delegates spent two nights in Phnom Malai in the middle of March. They flatly denied a report that the Kampuchea military foothold in Phnom Malai was occupied by Vietnamese forces.

KAYSONE DISCUSSES 'BYPASSING TO SOCIALISM'

BK310400 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 1000 GMT 10-17 Mar 82

[Feature article by LPRP General Secretary and LPDR Prime Minister Kaysone Phomvihan: "The Strategy of Bypassing to Socialism"]

[Text] The process of bypassing on the road to socialism is a continual development of the revolution in our country. Relying on Marxism-Leninism and the experiences of various fraternal countries, after completing the national democratic revolution in 1975, our party adopted a policy of social transformation along the path of socialism. The adoption of this path was a result of the political program of the LPRP which laid down the following objective: To create the necessary conditions for moving directly to socialism, bypassing the period of capitalist development.

After laying down this objective at the second congress in 1972, the LPRP has continued to outline and consolidate its strategic taks in conformity with the political, economic and social conditions of the bypassing period. Our party has consistently applied various socialist revolutionary principles as stipulated by Marxism-Leninism in marching toward socialism, and has creatively implemented these principles in conformity with the reality in Laos. The analysis of the reality is a fundamental principle of Marxism-Leninism, and is used by us in outlinging our strategic tasks in the bypassing period.

What are the special aspects of the current situation in Laos?

First, it must be noted that Laos is an outpost of socialism in Southeast Asia, and stands at the forefront of the confrontation between socialism and capitalism in the region. Our country, which was under the yoke of colonialism and was the target for aggression by imperialism for several decades, still remains the target of earnest attacks and sabotage by various reactionary forces. The reactionary feudalists, the colonialists, the U.S. imperialists, the hostile cliques in the ruling circles in Thailand and the other ASEAN countries, and the Beijing big-nation expansionists and hegemonists have broadly colluded with one another. We must be constantly vigilant against their collusion. The enemies of our revolution have colluded in opposing us. They have trained and armed commando elements and bandits, and sent them into Laos to carry out psychological warfare with a view to destroying our economy and creating disturbances so as to overthrow the people's power and hold back the evolution of socialist transformation in Laos.

Our party regards as its first priority the peaceful construction of the country. This is closely linked to the consolidation of the national defense forces and their combat efficiency so that they will be able to safeguard national independence and the revolutionary fruits of our people. Past historical experience undeniably attests to this truth: In carrying out a revolution, if one fails to defend oneself, one will be doomed. In each stage of our struggle we must be able to identify our principal enemies so that we can concentrate our efforts on defeating them. To deal with our enemies we must apply the principle of resolutely smashing their schemes and absolutely safeguarding the fruits of the revolution. In implementing this principle we must adopt a careful strategic approach, which is very important for a small country with weak economic power and national defense forces. While following the principle of no compromise in dealing with major problems, our party must never try to create political crisis for our foreign affairs sector. This determination, tempered by care, is one of the special characteristics of our relations with Thailand, the other ASEAN countries, the United States and other Western countries. Generally speaking, our foreign policy is aimed at creating peaceful international conditions conducive to the socialist construction in our country. This policy is, first of all, aimed at developing cooperation with all countries in Southeast Asia on the basis of respect for each other's independence and on the principles of peaceful coexistence in order to ensure peace, stability and prosperity in this region.

Experiences drawn from these special characteristics are linked to our national tasks and international obligations as well as to the socialist transformation of our country. The LPRP regards Laos as a part of the socialist family. We have concentrated efforts on consolidating our revolutionary solidarity with Vietnam and Kampuchea, which has just saved itself from the genocidal regime of Pol Pot and Ieng Sary. We attach special importance to the development of cooperation with the Soviet Union and other fraternal countries. We largely rely on our own strength as well as the assistance and support of the socialist countries, which constitute an important factor ensuring the successful defense of the fruits of the revolution and socialist construction in Laos.

Another special characteristic which hampers the consolidation of the strategy of bypassing is the low level of economic and social development in our country. Laos has no heavy industry. Before the revolution only a few hundred light industrial enterprises operated throughout the country, producing mainly food products. Only a handful of those industries employed more than a dozen workers. At that time the United States helped Laos set up several industrial enterprises using imported raw materials. However, the products from these enterprises belonged to the Americans and their henchmen. Such enterprises became bastions of capitalism and the comprador bourgeoisie in our country. Under the new regime, those enterprises have been nationalized.

Generally speaking, the Lao economy we inherited from the feudalists and colonialists was marked by its agricultural, natural, individualistic and scattered nature. Even though industrial production was developed in some localities, it was only a cottage industry. Agricultural productivity was very low and failed to satisfy the people's need for food. Even though a number of new crops were planted in several localities on an experimental basis, work distribution was limited only to within a village or even a family. Trading was only carried out in the plains and urban areas. The development of trade was hampered by the lack of communications routes to the sea.

The development of the economic structure from various components is a special characteristic of the current (?economic system) in our country. These components are as follows: the mass component, which includes agricultural and industrial enterprises nationalized by the state, agricultural cooperatives which employ an estimated 40 percent of farming families, and handicrafts; the combined economic component which includes state capitalists; the private capitalist component; and the small production component which remains scattered and is controlled by individuals. Most of the Lao people still live under conditions established by the backward feudalist system. This means that in building the socialist system not only must we do away with the capitalist system, but the entrenched feudalist regime as well.

What experiences can we learn from this strategy? First of all, we cannot change its direction so that it follows the bypassing procedure step by step until we attain socialism. Of course, we are capable of doing away with developed feudalism and capitalism, but we will not be successful in advancing toward socialism unless we make preparations to build a new society. Therefore, the party is unable to accommodate any change if it lacks a firm foundaton. The party is unable to accommodate any immediate attempts to achieve socialist transformation without taking the current objective conditions into consideration. This means that we cannot achieve socialist transformation only through administrative means. Lenin repeatedly emphasized that such attempts will only hamper socialist construction.

The party has tried to adhere to reality with a view to adopting the most suitable method. The Seventh Plenum of the LPRP Central Committee in 1979 noted: Our country is in an early period of transition. According to our estimation, the bypassing to socialism must be in several stages and will take between 20 and 25 years or more depending on the evolution of the situation.

The party plenum also stressed that in bypassing to socialism, the social and economic transformation and socialist construction must be simultaneously fulfilled and closely related. Of these two tasks, socialist construction must take precedence. Why is that? It is simply because we seldom have anything for direct transformation. Every change in Laos will be achieved only when new production forces and new production relations are created. The decisive transformation in the present stage of the revolution has been fulfilled as follows: The old state apparatus has been (?destroyed); the administration of the laboring class has been set up; land in rural and urban areas, natural resources, property of the capitalist comprador bourgeoisie and [word indistinct] and other reactionaries have been nationalized; over 500 economic enterprises have been set up among the masses; and an efficient system of state control of the activities of the heads of private enterprises has been established.

To enter the new stage of transformation, which is equally significant and meaningful with what we did in the past, it is necessary for us to build the material and social foundations for such transformation. This means that we must develop production forces, ensure the conditions for building new production relations and improving the people's living conditions, and so forth. Certainly, these tasks can be fulfilled only when suitable material and technical foundations are established on the basis of the existing economic structure, such as the private capitalist economic structure.

[Passage indistinct] another characteristics of special importance, to which we have always paid attention in formulating our strategic plans during the transitional period, is the composition of the people of various tribes in the country. No tribe can be regarded as the majority one. Nearly 70 tribes with different levels of economic, social and social development live in Laos. The tribal question is one of the major problems of the Lao revolution and socialist construction in Laos. Our party is trying to resolve this issue while carrying out its overall cause of socialist transformation. The party is striving to tighten unity among the nationalities and tribes, taking into consideration the special aspects of each tribe and our harmonious interests in the struggle for a bright future.

Cultural backwardness has become a significant obstacle to our cause of bypassing to socialism. Our people have a rich and ancient culture. However, our cultural development was checked by colonialism. Before the revolution some 97 percent of the population were illiterate. We have achieved considerable success in stamping out this illiteracy. And now more than 80 percent of the people can read and write. Yet, more and greater efforts are needed in this regard. What we have achieved is only an initial step on the path of cultural revolution. These are the main special aspects experienced during the period of the transition to socialism in Laos. Our party has given importance to this issue in formulating the strategic line for the transition and in adopting tactics and forms for implementation.

The LPRP Central Committee Plenum in 1977 adopted a program on the simultaneous implementation of the three revolutions -- the revolution on production relations, the scientific and technical revolution and the ideological and cultural revolution. The first revolution serves to pave the way for the other revolutions, the second one is the key and the third one should go a step ahead of the others.

These three revolutions lie in the same process of development. They are related to and affect each other. Building new socialism, new production forces, new production relations, and new men is the objective of these revolutions. This objective can be achieved only when the three revolutions are carried out simultaneously. But each of the three revolutions maintains its specific position in the social development process. It maintains its specific roles and purposes in addition to its decisive characteristics in the building of socialism.

What are the objectives of the revolution on production relations in the early period of the transition to socialism? First and foremost, in carrying out this revolution, it is to reorganize the structure of the ownership system. This means that it is necessary to do away with the capitalist economy which is built on the basis of private enterprises and replace it with the socialist ownership system which is composed of two forms -- all-people ownership and collective ownership. The socialist production relations must then be guaranteed to take a decisive role in the national economy. The laboring people must be allowed to maintain collective rights in the country. A way must be paved for the small, scattered production to advance toward a new socialist production.

Under the present circumstances in Laos, the initial objective is to turn the natural economy into a commercial economy. The aim of the revolution on production relations is to completely do away with this natural economy. This means that this revolution must be carried out in all localities -- even the remote areas. An example of this is Thailand where there are both modern cities and ancient countryside. The elimination of the natural economy will create a decisive factor for changes in the (?psychology), customs, daily life and labor style of the people in rural areas, who, in the present, have not yet come to understand how to engage in labor or make a living in a modern way. Those people have lived as members of their respective tribes, and have earned their living only by engaging in labor in accordance with tradition. The transformation of the natural economy has its own specific characteristics. Laos cannot join in CEMA's commercial, financial and other fields if it does not achieve considerable development in production and trade exchanges. The revolution on production relations has a fundamental significance, but it cannot fully bring about socialist production by itself. Neither can it guarantee the development of new production relations.

In Laos, the urgent problem of the bypassing to socialism is how to develop the new production forces and how to increase the efficiency of work. An answer to this question rests in scientific and technical progress. This is why our party, in the three revolutions, considers the scientific and technical revolution as the key point. What are the objectives to be reached in carrying out this revolution? Based on the practical conditions in Laos, scientific and technical achievements must be utilized in industrial and agricultural production. It is also necessary to consolidate economic management, make use of advanced production lessons from other countries, and effectively make use of assistance in the scientific and technical field given by various socialist countries. In addition, it is necessary to fully take advantage of our capabilities in industrial and handicrafts production while raising its efficiency by developing mechanical production.

Therefore, it can be said that the scientific and technical revolution in a backward country is aimed solely at doing away with poverty and backwardness. It is also an initial step on the road to the complete victory of socialism.

As for the ideological and cultural revolution, it is an important, basic factor for the advance to socialism. It is aimed at changing the senses of the masses and their customary life and building new men who maintain a high level of revolutionary ideology and maintain a broad culture. It is also aimed at building highly capable cadres who can manage the economy and society.

Until recently most Lao people were illiterate. This is because it was the policy of the colonialists and feudalists to keep the people uneducated. The ideological and cultural revolution must stay one step ahead of other revolutions. The party has paid special attention to educating and training youths. Based on the major guideline of the LPRP, newspapers, radios, films, artistic and literature works must be widely expanded so as to meet the daily increasing requirements in socialist construction. On the other hand the party has also struggled to oppose the ideological and cultural vestiges left behind by the feudalists and colonialists, and to oppose the depraved customs left behind by the old social system.

The building of new socialist culture and men is a significant problem. It will serve and push forward production relations and the scientific and technical revolution so that they develop effectively. Our party maintains good sense in the face of the enormous difficulties to be overcome in the period of transition. However, we are well aware of the abilities of our nation and people. Although we started from a very low level in production, production relations and culture, in building the foundations of socialism we have not actually started from zero.

The achievements scored in restoring and developing the national economy in accordance with the 3-year plan -- from 1978 to 1980 -- prove that our laboring people, under the party's leadership, are capable of solving big problems in the economic field. Dozens of factories have been set up during that period. The second phase of the Nam Ngum hydro-electric dam project has been accomplished. As a result, the production of electricity has increased enormously. More than 5,000 kilometers of roads have been repaired or built. Airline and road transport companies have also been set up.

Our country is well endowed with natural resources. This has created good conditions for economic, forestry, agricultural and livestock-breeding development. We also have plenty of sources of energy along with iron ore, coal, nonferrous metals, raw materials for industrial development, cement and so forth. In implementing the social and economic development plan for 1981-85 -- which is the basis for the first 5-year state plan set forth by the party Central Committee in its eighth plenary session -- it is expected that these natural resources will be utilized as much as possible.

A basic objective of our 5-year plan is to step up economic construction, expand the state and collective economic sectors, improve the people's standard of living and consolidate national defense potentials. The state will accelerate scientific, technological and cultural progress throughout the country.

It is expected in the first 5-year plan that the gross national product will increase by 65-68 percent, that the volume of agricultural production will increase by 23-24 percent, that industrial production will be doubled, and that illiteracy among youths will be eliminated by the end of 1983. The implementation of the plan must be consistent with the change in our social structure. In particular, by the end of the 5-year plan the number of workers and state employees must increase to between 40 to 50 percent of the entire population. If this plan is effectively implemented, it will be a decisive step in the initial phase of the period of bypassing to socialism in Laos.

What are the main problems of the country's economic development? The first is that of structure. To resolve this problem, it is necessary to include industry, agriculture and forest exploitation in the national structure of centralized agro-industry. Agriculture and forestry must serve as a force boosting the development of industry. Therefore, industry must push agriculture and forestry to develop rapidly.

In the initial stage of the period of bypassing to socialism, there are no favorable conditions for rapid industrial development in our country. The country currently lacks the capability to produce equipment, nor does it possess management cadres and workers for building living quarters and industry. For this reason, in building the socialist economy in our country, we must start from developing agriculture and forestry. In so doing we must meet the people's requirements and national defense requirements. We must supply raw material to industries that produce goods for export to exchange for industrial machinery and equipment. The main duty of agriculture in the near future is to solve the grain problem so as to advance to resolving problems regarding purchasing of consumer goods. In mustering the peasants to become members of agricultural cooperatives, the party is aware of important conditions for turning agriculture and forestry into the base for industry.

Moreover, in building the state economic foundations for agriculture and forestry, we have taken into account the actual acreage of cultivated land, natural resources, economic lessons and the local people's customs and have found it necessary to correctly restore production. The fair distribution and utilization of our natural resources and labor must conform with the 5-year state plan. The party has also attached importance to building correct relations between the local economy and the central economy. This means that we must apply the principles of democratic centralism to the national economy.

In the past, particularly during the 1976-77 period, our economic policies were marked by excessive centralism. We are now trying to rectify this and, at the same time, avoid economic waste. The party has made the following observations: In the early stage of the construction of socialist economy -- a period in which agriculture and forestry are the starting point of industrial development -- it is necessary to speed up expanding the local economy. This is why the state has concentrated its efforts and other major means on this economy, with a view to laying the foundations for the central economy. To achieve this aim, it is necessary to advance toward the process of reorganizing centralized work distribution and mutual cooperation to carry out production work. This must begin at the provincial level and later be implemented throughout the country.

With regard to the true situation in Laos, this line is appropriate since it responds to the objectives of the transitional period -- a period in which we are moving from small, scattered production to large-scale socialist production.

The lessons gained from economic construction in our country and in other socialist countries show: In developing the national economy, it is necessary to employ the law of value and the law of relations of goods and equipment. These laws, for example, include balanced management, funds, pricing and profits. All this is aimed at building correct relations between production and consumption and between accumulation and consumption. This is why the organization of efficient exchanges and distribution was once more important than other aspects. Nevertheless, we relaxed our attention on this issue.

The Seventh Plenum of the LPRP Central Committee completely eliminated such attitude. The plenum emphasized: The questions of ensuring the growth of the national economy, encouraging the process of restoring extensive production, meeting the people's material requirements and ensuring the increase of social accumulations will be resolved only when goods distribution and exchange are effectively organized, when a fair pricing system is implemented, when trade transactions are guaranteed, and when circulation expenses are reduced to boost the goods exchange and respond correctly to industrial requirements. All this will be a favorable condition for eliminating various economic contradictions in the transitional period -- contradictions between production conditions and the people's requirements and accumulations to boost economic development, to increase consumer goods and to improve the material life of the masses.

In resolving these complex problems, we have applied various lessons learned by various fraternal countries, the Soviet Union in particular, in bypassing to socialism. New economic policies contained in Lenin's writings, such as his work on the immediate task of the Soviet power regarding agricultural taxes, are of great importance. The contents and spirit of these books have been assembled into a strategic line as formulated by a plenary session of the LPRP Central Committee. As a matter of fact, this is Lenin's main principle being applied to the true situation in Laos.

Lenin's work on trade: We must profoundly and thoroughly understand trade since it is a link joining various historic events. We, the state power of the proletariat; we, the communist party leading the way. As for Laos, trade is a channel for distribution. This has become a main slogan during the current period of the transitional period.

We are doing everything possible to promote domestic trade which will be double in the last year of the 5-year plan. We are making vigorous contributions to promoting and developing foreign trade, which is expected to increase in our plan. The state is to some extent promoting state-controlled private trade. The government is encouraging trade exchanges between the town and the countryside. This is why it has adopted many measures to develop transportation. Domestic transportation will increase by 85 percent as stipulated in the current plan. The adoption of stable and unified tax collection procedures will be beneficial to efforts to increase production and consolidate cooperative work. The increasing volume of trade transactions and our guaranteed distribution of food supplies to the people have contributed to the increase in grain production. For example, a citizen can now produce rice in the dry season. However, this is not compulsory.

Taxes obtained from a cooperative's income have been considerably reduced. Taxes will not be collected in some areas. for example, the mountainous areas where cultivation is difficult. Tax will be exempted for 3 years for the farmers who have just reclaimed wasteland.

All these measures are aimed at transforming the old production relations and replacing them with the new production relations. This is to build a new structure of labor sharing and new material and technical foundations in order to directly advance to socialism.

History has entrusted on our party a heavy responsibility for the fate of the revolution and the future of our nation. To honorably and gloriously carry out this responsibility, we must regularly consolidate the three unities -- unity among the entire people, unity within the party and the unity between Laos and the fraternal socialist parties.

The all-people unity in the period of bypassing to socialism characterizes the alliance among the laboring people in towns and the countryside, intellectuals and the people of all strata, including those representing the leading groups that accepted transformation so as to become true laboring groups. The alliance between workers and collective peasant groups is a core for the great unity. In carrying out the three revolutions, the party has always paid attention to improving the quality of the officials in charge of training and organizing the working class in order to ensure their leading role in society.

The LPRP is also actively doing training and educational work among the peasants in order to mobilize them to carry out socialist collectivization. The most important role in fulfilling tasks in the transitional period is assumed by the ranks of intellectuals in the country. This is why we have paid attention to training them to understand Marxism-Leninism and join in a close alliance with workers and farmers. The party is also giving support to representatives of the national capitalists as well as religious personalities and other groups of people in society who approve of the patriotic and progressive stand and support state policies.

In our struggle to consolidate the all-people unity, we give special importance to various tribes. The party is constantly developing its activities aimed at improving training among the ethnic minority groups and consolidating the educational system and assistance in the cultural and public health spheres in the various areas inhabited by the ethnic minority people. This is to train cadres of various tribes for socialist construction. All these activities are also aimed at ensuring broad unity among the masses in the national front and in social organizations such as trade unions, youth unions, women's unions and so forth.

The consolidation of unity within the party is a vital issue for us in our capacity as the leading force of the people and designer of the socialist contstruction cause. The party must closely unite and remain singleminded. It must have a common ideal and cause. Only by so doing can the party assume a perfect role in persuading the laboring people and the entire people to struggle to approach socialism. In striving to consolidate party ranks, we are well aware that the LPRP was formed and organized in a country which has its own special conditions and which has backward social relations. This is bound to affect the attitude of our cadres and party members.

Therefore, it is necessary for us to continue the struggle against petty capitalist attitudes, against the peasants' narrowminded and self-satisfied ways of thinking and against the effects of the feudalist, capitalist and imperialist ways of thinking. Meanwhile, we must vigorously counter all opportunist phenomena, the ways of thinking misguided by petty capitalism and other wrong tendencies.

One of the main directions for the party's ideological activities is to train party members and the entire people to understand the internationalist way of thinking. This direction is physically formed from the LPRP's strategic line aimed at consolidating solidarity with the fraternal parties in the various socialist countries and with the international workers and communist movement.

Solidarity with the socialist countries and various progressive forces in the world once contributed to our victory over the colonialist and imperialist aggressors. This solidarity is currently helping our people to advance correctly along the path of socialist construction.

NATION REVIEW: SRV KAMPUCHEA POLICY UNCHANGED

BK010136 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 1 Apr 82 p 4

[Editorial: "Hanoi Congress, Kampuchea and ASEAN"]

[Text] What has emerged from the much-publicized Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam which has just been completed is not so much that there have been major changes in the Political Bureau but that there is a clear signal for all to understand that there will be no changes in Hanoi's policy toward Kampuchea. As a matter of fact, we may be even bold enough to say that the present Vietnamese policy of occupation and annihilation of all resistance in Kampuchea gets greater emphasis since the commander of the Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea, Lt Gen Le Duc Anh, has been elevated to full membership in the Political Bureau.

There is no doubt that Le Duan, in his keynote speech on Saturday, pulled out all the stops and his mea culpa on behalf of the Vietnamese leadership put the whole congress on a footing that promoted expectancy in Hanoi watchers and they were not disappointed all -- the conference opened with a bang and concluded with a bang. There was not a shade of whimper and, if the congress exuded anything, it overflowed with confidence. General Secretary Le Duan of the Communist Party of Vietnam, while flaying the Hanoi leadership for mistakes in almost every field of activity, also had something to say about ASEAN.

The TASS report on what he said about the subject has not received much publicity. Le Duan said, according to TASS, that Vietnam "is always ready to coordinate efforts with ASEAN countries to make Southeast Asia a region of peace and stability." However, he said, at present relations between Vietnam and the ASEAN states "are encountering obstacles created by Beijing and Washington which are trying to derive benefits for themselves." Le Duan expressed the hope, according to TASS, that the ASEAN countries, proceeding from the basic interest of the region, will go to "a dialogue in the name of establishing peace, friendship and cooperation."

Naturally, Thailand is interested in what all this means in terms of Kampuchea. Le Duan also said that the Soviet Union is Vietnam's best friend and that China is its worst enemy which in turn means, as we understand it, that the Vietnamese are not in any hurry to change their policy toward Kampuchea however well-orchestrated may be the opinion of the world as expressed in the United Nations and other international forums.

In strictly military terms, it has come as a surprise to many that the patriotic guerrilla forces have been able to hold the Vietnamese war machine at bay for four dry seasons. But the fifth congress does not seem to think so because Lt Gen Anh has been promoted to full membership of the Political Bureau in spite of the fact that he commands the Vietnamese forces in Kampuchea. It is true that Van Tien Dung replaced the genius of Dien Bien Phu, Vo Nguyen Giap, as minister of defence not too long ago and Giap's exclusion from the Political Bureau could only be due to tactical differences -- after all he belongs to the generation of Ho Chi Minh although only 70. Since Dung continues still as Political Bureau member and as minister of defence as Anh has been elevated, there is every reason to believe that Hanoi leadership is quite satisfied with events in Kampuchea.

NATION REVIEW REPORTS SON SANN ON KAMPUCHEA

[23 March 1982 statement by KPNLF leader Son Sann issued in Paris]

[Text] On March 13, 1982, a Bangkok newspaper published an article alleging that I had deliberately wrecked a tripartite summit of the Kampuchean resistance in Beijing.

It is my duty to bring forth certain facts: First, there exists an old invitation from the People's Republic of China dated since 1981, to which I had renewed my acceptance in January 1982, by providing the Embassy of the PRC in Paris the names of the KPNLF delegation members who would be travelling to Beijing. This invitation was confirmed on February 19, 1982, by the Embassy of the PRC in Paris which expressed the wish that this visit be undertaken soonest.

I was in the province where I must meet with my countrymen refugees in the various departments of France. I have had a reply given that we were going to do what was necessary in order to leave quickly, and I have had a request made for a meeting on the subject of this visit with his excellency the ambassador of the PRC in Paris who had fixed a date for March 2, 1982.

I had wanted to inform him that General Dien Del was with the front in the field, and that another member of the KPNLF delegation, Dr Gaffar, was being hospitalized for malaria, and that both were going to do what was necessary to join me as quickly as possible, but that we have many formalities to fulfill since we are all refugees.

On Sunday, February 28, 1982 (while I was in Toulouse where we celebrated the third anniversary of the creation of the Khmer People's National Liberation Armed Forces -- KPNLAF -- in the presence of Buddhist monks and numerous countrymen coming from Toulouse, Bordeaux, Marseille, Lyon, Limoges, Brive, etc.), the Embassy of the PRC in Paris called to say that his excellency the ambassador would not be able to receive me on March 2, 1982.

I returned to Paris in the evening of February 28, and the day after, on March 1, 1982, I had had my travel document and that of Mr Penn Thal deposited at the Embassy of the PRC, and we had requested visas from the PRC. In spite of his illness, Dr Gaffar had joined the delegation in Paris.

The invitation to our delegation, dated last year, and renewed this year, did not have as objective the tripartite meeting in Beijing of the Kampuchean resistance.

On the other hand, Prince Norodom Sihanouk had let me know in January 1982, that should His Excellency Mr Khieu Samphan come to see him in Beijing for a new tripartite summit there, the prince would invite me to come to China also.

To his message which was received only on January 22, 1982, I replied on January 31 that since I had been invited by the People's Republic of China, I would come to Beijing as soon as I have completed my earlier engagements in order to see Chinese personalities, and to greet him personally.

On February 23, 1982, I received a cable from the prince dated February 22 inviting, in his own name and on behalf of His Excellency Khieu Samphan, a KPNLF delegation to a new summit meeting in Beijing with a view to "Concretising the anti-Viet Kampuchean coalition."

On February 24, 1982, I replied that in the absence of precision (on the new proposals), I confirmed my January 31 message, that is, as soon as I would have completed my earlier engagements I would come to Beijing to meet with Chinese personalities, and to personally greet the prince. If necessary, I will see His Excellency Khieu Samphan.

From February 23, to 28, 1982, a period of five days, it was materially impossible for our entire delegation (a member of which was still in the field, and another hospitalized) to fulfill necessary formalities for refugees, and to arrive in Beijing before March 1, 1982.

Concerning the tripartite summit in Beijing, we have never been officially brought up to date neither on the agenda nor the results of the talks which had been held in Beijing.

Now that the agreements between the prince and His Excellency Khieu Samphan have been reported in the media, it appears that all the points in the agreements are precisely the principles set forth by Democratic Kampuchea during the meetings of the ad hoc committee in Bangkok, the principles which the KPNLF had rejected in Bangkok.

Accepting these principles now would be for the KPNLF, at the very least, a lack of correctness toward Thailand, Singapore and other ASEAN countries which have approved the "loose coalition government" solution. It would also be for the KPNLF a blow to its credibility necessary for a political solution in conformity with the United Nations resolutions.

In fact, and this is crucial, Kampucheans in the interior and abroad have not authorized us to accept these principles!

In sum, I can only recall what I have stated on March 1, 1982:

"It was with the objective to liberate Kampuchea from the north Vietnamese invaders, and after consultation with the Kampuchean people and with members of the KPNLF that I subscribed in Singapore to the 'desire to form a coalition government of Democratic Kampuchea with a view to continuing the struggle in all forms for the liberation of Kampuchea from the Vietnamese aggressors,' and not for anything else. The 'loose coalition government' solution proposed by Singapore and Thailand, approved by the five countries of ASEAN, and already accepted by Prince Norodom Sihanouk and I, has also as objective 'the liberation of Kampuchea from the Vietnamese aggressors,' and nothing else.

"Like the tripartite meeting in Singapore, it is in order to show our good will and our keen desire to liberate our motherland that the KPNLF authorized me to go to Beijing as soon as possible, to where I had been invited since last year by Chinese authorities. At that occasion, I would be able to meet personally and separately Prince Norodom Sihanouk and His Excellency Khieu Samphan to explore the possibilities of forming a loose coalition between the three parties, respecting the principles which governed the formulation of the 'loose coalition government' solution.

"The separate negotiations in Beijing, if all interlocutors are sincere and have as sole objective 'the liberation of Kampuchea from the Vietnamese aggressors,' could be continued there or elsewhere under a more appropriate form, for example in an ASEAN country willing to receive us, until the formation of an efficient coalition for the liberation of our motherland.

"The main thing, in fact, is that the world in general, and Hanoi in particular, be convinced of the common will of all Kampucheans despite their differences, to arrive at forming a coalition and to struggle until the complete liberation of Kampuchea from the Vietnamese occupiers!"

[Begin recording in Russian fading into translation] Esteemed Comrade Le Duan, esteemed Comrade Truong Chinh, esteemed Comrade Pham Van Dong: On behalf of the CPSU Central Committee, the USSR Supreme Soviet Presidium and the USSR Council of Ministers, I warmly and sincerely congratulate you on the occasion of your reception of this noble order. I am extremely happy to convey to you the cordial greetings and heartfelt franternal congratulations from Comrade Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the CPSU Central Committee and chairman of the USSR Supreme Soviet Presidium. Soviet Communists and the Soviet people as a whole know well and highly respect Comrade Le Duan, an outstanding son of Vietnam, a famous activist of the international communist and workers movements, a principled fighter who inexorably struggles for the total victory of the Marxist-Leninist ideology. The Soviet people also know well and highly respect Comrades Truong Chinh and Pham Van Dong, whose lives and activities are a bright example of selfless service to the Vietnamese people, and their revolutionary efforts. The Order of Lenin you have received is a symbol of the profound admiration felt by all Soviet citizens for your exploits and also for the imperishable armed exploits of the Vietnamese people in their struggle for national independence, peace, democracy and socialism.

Esteemed comrades, currently the Fifth VCP Congress is resolving problems relating to your country's future and the great programmatic tasks in the struggle for socialism. This congress eloquently proves the VCP's solidarity around its Central Committee as well as the optimistic revolutionary spirit of the brother and sister Vietnamese people and their confidence in their won strength. We warmly wish the fraternal Vietnamese people great achievements in implementing the congress resolutions and in their endeavor to build socialism and turn Vietnam into a powerful and prosperous state.

For its part the Soviet Union will continue to give socialist Vietnam resolute support and assistance. The great family of socialist nations, of which heroic Vietnam is a loyal member, is making increasingly greater efforts in the struggle for peace and against the threat of war. We are looking ahead with confidence.

On behalf of our comrades present here, I, from the bottom of my heart, wish you, comrades, good health and new achievements in your tireless activities for the interests of the fraternal Vietnamese people, for the futher consolidation of our friendship and cooperation, for the victory of socialism and for peace. [applause] [end recording]

On behalf of Comrade Truong Chinh and Pham Van Dong and on his own behalf, Comrade Le Duan made a speech. He expressed his sincere and profound gratitude to the CPSU Central Committee, the USSR Supreme Soviet Presidium and Comrade Brezhnev for their decision to confer on them the order named after the great Lenin. He affirmed that the great honor should go first to the glorious VCP and the heroic Vietnamese people. He continued:

[Begin Le Duan recording] On receiving the noblest award from the Soviet state, we recall with affection Comrade Ho Chi Minh, the first Vietnamese who saw in Leninism a way for national liberation and for the liberation of the laboring Vietnamese people, who founded and forged the VCP along the path of Marxism-Leninism and the path of the October Revolution, and who initiated and promoted the great Vietnamese-Soviet friendship. The conferment of the Soviet state order on us is another brilliant expression of the Vietnamese-Soviet solidarity and friendship, an acknowledgement of the contributions made by the Vietnamese people to the cause of revolution and peace of the people of the world.

Guided by Leninist ideas over the past half century or more, the Vietnamese people, under the correct leadership of the VCP and the great President Ho Chi Minh, have risen up from their long enslavement to fight for their fatherland's independence and freedom and successively fought and defeated truculent imperialist forces. They are now struggling against all aggressive schemes and acts of sabotage of the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists to effectively defend their Vietnamese fatherland and contribute to the cause of revolution and peace of the world's people. [applause] [end recording]

Comrade Le Duan, in his speech, highly valued the Soviet Union's unswerving peace foreign policy and affirmed his total support for the peace program of the 26th CPSU Congress and the many important initiatives Comrade Brezhnev successively proposed relating to the peace in Europe and the rest of the world and his total support for the most recent statement Comrade Brezhnev made at Tashkent on 24 March relating to the Soviet Union's peaceful and good-neighbor relations, cooperation and friendship with major Asian nations. This statement and the Soviet Union's former proposals, which manifest the noble sense of responsibility of the CPSU and the Soviet state toward the peace and security of all nations, will certainly receive the sympathy and support of the people of all nations. Comrade Le Duan continued:

[Begin Le Duan recording] The Vietnam-USSR friendship and cooperation treaty signed in November of 1978 has raised the relations between our two parties and states to a new stage. The VCP and the entire Vietnamese people pledge to do their best to constantly consolidate and promote the great friendship, militant solidarity and all-round cooperation with the Soviet Union, considering it as the foundation of their foreign policy, an extremely important factor ensuring the Vietnamese people's successful building of socialism and the effective defense of their fatherland, and contributing to consolidating national independence and socialism on the Indochinese peninsula and to preserving peace and stability in Southeast Asia.

On behalf of the VCP and the Vietnamese Government and people, we wish to express to the CPSU, the Soviet Government and the entire fraternal Soviet people and to the venerated and beloved Comrade Brezhnev, outstanding leader of the CPSU and the Soviet state, faithful inheritor of the undertaking of the great Lenin, eminent activist in the international communist and workers movement and a great friend of the Vietnamese people, the profound gratitude of our party and people for the great and valuable support and assistance the Soviet Union has given Vietnam. We wish to express our thanks to Comrade Brezhnev for his greetings on the occasion of the VCP's convening of its fifth national congress of delegates. We thank the CPSU Central Committee for dispatching a delegation, headed by Comrade Gorbachev, to our party congress.

On this occasion, we sincerely wish the Soviet people many outstanding new achievements in implementing the historic resolutions of the 26th CPSU Congress to mark the 60th founding anniversary of the USSR. [applause] [end recording]

The ceremony to award the Order of Lenin to Comrades Le Duan, Truong Chinh and Pham Van Dong proceeded in a solemn atmosphere filled with a spirit of internationalism and fraternal feelings. Ending the ceremony, the participants drank a toast to the ardent, steadfast and lasting friendship and fraternal and militant solidarity between the two parties, states and peoples of Vietnam and the Soviet Union.

CORNERSTONE LAID FOR HANOI STATUE OF LENIN

[By station correspondent Kim Cuc]

[Text] At a moment when the Vietnamese people are welcoming a grand historic event, the Fifth VCP Congress, good news has reached us. At our party Central Committee request, the CPSU Central Committee has decided to present to our people a statue of Lenin which is to be erected in Hanoi. This is an event of historic significance marking a new step in the relations of overall cooperation between the Vietnamese and Soviet peoples. The erection of the statue of Lenin in Vietnam constitutes an honor to our people and will help us show our respect for and profound gratitude to the great Lenin, the master of the world proletarian revolution, whose thoughts will always remain the torch of victory for the Vietnamese revolution.

This morning, before the opening of the Fifth VCP Congress, a solemn ceremony for laying the symbolic cornerstone of the foundation of the statue of Lenin was held at the Chi Lang flower garden in Hanoi. Present at the ceremony were Comrades Truong Chinh, Nguyen Duy Trinh, Le Van Luong, Tran Quoc Bao, Le Quang Dao, Nguyen Thank Le, Nguyen Co Thach and Tran Huu Mai; representatives of various organs and mass organizations at the central level and in Hanoi; heroes of the armed forces; labor heroes and Uncle Ho's good nephews and nieces. Also present were Comrade Gorbachev, head of the CPSU delegation to the VCP congress; comrade members of the Soviet delegation; comrade heads of the delegations of fraternal communist and workers parties; Comrade Chaplin, Soviet ambassador to Vietnam; and comrade ambassadors of socialist countries in Hanoi.

After the playing of the Vietnamese and Soviet national anthems, Comrade Le Van Luong delivered a speech pointing out the great significance of the erection of the statue of Lenin in the capital city. He stressed that the erection of the statue of the great Lenin on this historic land near Ba Dinh Square, where President Ho Chi Minh, Lenin's disciple, read the declaration of independence, symbolically and vividly manifests the boundless gratitude of our party, working class and people to invincible Leninism, the close solidarity between our party and the Vietnamese socialist state and the Soviet Union, the pillar of the socialist community, and the aspiration for peace and social progress. Comrade Le Van Luong went on:

[Begin Le Van Luong recording] Spurred on by Leninism, the CPSU has led the Soviet working class and laboring people to achieve the Great October Revolution, which ushered in a new era for mankind. Implementing Lenin's teachings and following his path, the Soviet people have successfully built socialism and are steadily advancing toward communism. The Soviet Union has now become a socialist power and has unceasingly developed its role as a trustworthy backbone for revolutionary forces and world peace.

The peace program worked out by the 26th CPSU Congress and the peace initiative advanced by Comrade Brezhnev at the All-Union Central Council of Trade Unions Congress on 17 March 1982 reflect the Leninist foreign policy of the Soviet Union and the socialist community and originate from Lenin's peace decree, which has motivated hundreds of millions of people to struggle against the bellicose imperialist forces led by U.S. imperialism to achieve detente and safeguard peace.

To our party, a party of the Vietnamese working class founded and trained by President Ho Chi Minh a half century ago, Lenin's great theories have become a guide and compass for all actions of our party and people. Comrade Ho Chi Minh, one of Lenin's most outstanding disciples, absorbed the quintessence of Leninism and popularized the great Lenin's ideas in our country.

By skillfully coordinating patriotism and proletarian internationalism, he founded and trained our party in accordance with Leninist principles. By creatively applying Marxism-Leninism and the precious experiences of the October Revolution to the specific situation in our country, our party led the Vietnamese working class and people to successfully achieve the historic August revolution and to defeat, one after another, the French and U.S. imperialists and the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in the aggressive wars they waged, to firmly protect the fatherland and to advance the entire country toward socialism. Comrade Le Duan, general secretary of our party's Central Committee, has said: Every step in the Vietnamese revolution is linked to events that occurred on Soviet territory, the homeland of the great Lenin. For this reason, our party and people are extremely grateful to Lenin, the October Revolution, the CPSU and the people of the great Soviet Union. To unite and cooperate with the Soviet Union in all fields constitutes a cornerstone of the international line and foreign policy of our party and our state. To closely unite and cooperate with Laos, Kampuchea and other fraternal socialist countries and with world revolutionary movements constitutes a principle and consistent policy of our party and our state. [end recording]

Comrade Gorbachev, head of the CPSU delegation, delivered a speech stressing the important political significance of the erection of the statue of Lenin in Hanoi. He affirmed the strong development of the socialist system spurred on by Leninism and pointed out that international solidarity among socialist countries constitutes a force that can smash all pernicious schemes and maneuvers of the imperialists and international reactionary circles.

He continued: Under the VCP leadership, the Vietnamese people have won wonderful victories in the struggle against imperialist aggression, achieving the historic mission of completely liberating Vietnam and reunifying the fatherland. Under the VCP leadership, the Vietnamese working people are now steadily advancing along the path of socialist construction. Certainly you comrades are facing many difficulties, but we are convinced that the brave Vietnamese people will overcome all difficulties and hardships in their struggle for the fatherland's happiness. The Soviet people are well aware that Vietnam is trustworthy, firm link of the socialist community and that the Vietnamese people have worthily contributed to the struggle of the peoples of the world for national independence and social progress and to the fight against all reactionary, imperialist and hegemonist forces. Experience shows that these forces have used every means such as applying political, economic or military pressure and making threats to undermine the administration of the working people and weaken the socialist community.

We are also aware that world socialism can never be defeated by anyone. We have the necessary means to cope with all propaganda moves against socialism. We have enough strength to dauntlessly protect the peaceful work and security of other nations and to frustrate all provocative and aggressive acts. The conditions ensuring success in these efforts are socialist internationalism, the friendship and fraternal solidarity of socialist nations and the vigorous mutual assistance based on comradeship and militant solidarity of the peoples of socialist countries. Vladimir Lenin once hoped for the realization of such a relationship among nations and struggled to achieve it.

On this occasion, may I convey my wishes for the great success of the Fifth VCP Congress opening tomorrow. The Soviet people are convinced that, armed with the resolutions of the congress, the Vietnamese working people will surely score new achievements in building and protecting socialism in Vietnam.

Comrade Gorbachev concluded: Dear comrades, the Soviet people will always stand beside you in this great undertaking.

In an atmosphere filled with friendship and militant solidarity between close comrades, Comrades Truong Chinh and Gorbachev removed the piece of cloth covering the symbolic cornerstone of the foundation of the statue of Lenin and bearing the following phrase: "The statue of Lenin, the great leader of the world's proletariat, will be erected in this flower garden."

The solemn ceremony ended in an atmosphere filled with internationalist feelings and with the playing of the song "As If Uncle Ho Is Present on This Happy Day of Great Victory." The working class and people of Hanoi and across the country will soon be able to admire the statue of Lenin in the Chi Lang flower garden. It will be a source of pride and encouragement for our entire people in building socialism, defending the country and satisfactorily implementing the resolutions of the Fifth VCP Congress.

DEFENSE OF SEALANES TO BE DISCUSSED WITH U.S.

OW011315 Tokyo KYODO in English 1151 GMT 1 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 1 (KYODO) -- Japan and the United States will hold intensive discussions on what Japan must do to protect its sealanes up to 1,000 miles from its coast, a Defense Agency official said Thursday.

Akira Shiota, director of the agency's defense bureau, told the Diet the matter will be a major theme of discussions between the two countries at various levels. Japan has learned that the United States is greatly interested in Japan's own defense of its sealanes, he said.

When U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger met with Defense Agency Chief Soichiro Ito in Tokyo last week he proposed discussions of the matter later this year. If Japan builds up sufficient sea and air capability, it is believed likely the United States will switch the Seventh Fleet, now based in the Western Pacific, to the Indian Ocean.

SUZUKI TO HOLD DEFENSE BUDGET TO 1 PERCENT OF GNP

[Text] Tokyo, April 2 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Friday he will maintain the government policy of holding Japan's defense spending below 1 percent of its gross national produce (GNP).

The defense budget in fiscal 1982 accounts for about 0.93 percent of Japan's projected GNP, up from 0.91 percent in fiscal 1981 which ended March 31. But it is expected to reach, or even exceed, the 1 percent ceiling in coming years if Japan's GNP does not grow as much as it had.

Suzuki said it is yet to be seen whether the GNP in fiscal 1982 will go up 5.2 percent as tentatively estimated by the government or if it will not go beyond 3 to 4 percent. He was referring to a statement by Defense Agency Chief Soichiro Ito Thursday that Japan's defense spending in relation to its GNP should be determined through a "high political judgement." The Defense Agency is now working out its shopping list for armaments for fiscal 1983-87.

'TEAM SPIRIT' OPERATIONAL EXERCISES REPORTED

[Text] Pyongyang, April 2 (KCNA) -- The U.S. imperialist aggression forces and the South Korean puppet army on March 30 staged a so-called special joint operational exercise in the central sector of the front in a simulated harassing operation in the rear of the northern half of the DPRK, according to a report. Part of the "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises, this provocative military rehearsal was participated in by paratrooper units of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces and the puppet army and many military transport planes. This exercise took place after the U.S. defense secretary inspected the frontline area to whip up a war fever.

On March 28, the U.S. imperialist aggression forces and the South Korean puppet army staged a large-scale landing operation exercise at a place on the eastern coast, simulating an attack on the northern half of the DPRK. On March 29 and 30, they held a joint base-defence exercise. With the mobilization of the ground forces of the puppet army and U.S. air planes, they raised much ado in the sky and on the ground, in a simulated operation for "crushing someone before infiltration into their base."

These facts show that in defiance of the vehement protest and denunciation of our people and the world's progressive people the U.S. imperialist aggressors are rushing to the brink of war, rendering the situation more strained.

VRPR DENOUNCES U.S. PLAN FOR A-10 DEPLOYMENT

SK011256 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 1000 GMT 1 Apr 82

[Text] The Reagan administration, which originally planned to deploy 24 A-10 antitank aircraft in South Korea as part of a plan to strengthen the U.S. armed forces in South Korea, is maneuvering to double the number to 48.

This is a serious challenge to peace and the peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula. At a time when the people at home and abroad are loudly calling for immediate withdrawal of U.S. troops and military equipment from South Korea, the U.S. administration is trying to bring more military equipment into South Korea. This will not be tolerated. The U.S. imperialists, instead of threatening peace and the peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula, should leave South Korea without delay, as is demanded unanimously by the people at home and abroad.

NODONG SINMUN URGES WORLD UNITY AGAINST U.S.

[NODONG SINMUN 1 April special article: "Let Us Prevent War and Defend Peace"]

[Text] Today, preservation of peace in Korea has become a most urgent issue of our times. Our people, accelerating the great socialist construction in the northern half of the republic and struggling for the independent and peaceful reunification of the country, are unanimously calling for a security of solid peace in Korea. At the same time, world people struggling for sovereignty, independence and social progress also desire the elimination of the tense situation in the Korean Peninsula and the preservation and consolidation of peace there. Nevertheless, against the desire of our people and world people, the U.S. imperialists, accelerating preparations for a new Korean war, are staging the large-scale war exercise commotion called "Team Spirit 1982" in South Korea, aggravating the situation.

Not only in South Korea, but everywhere in the world the U.S. imperialists are intensifying the maneuvers of aggression and war and seriously threatening peace and security. The complicated and urgent situation created in Korea and other parts of the world by the U.S. imperialists urgently demands that the struggle intended to prevent war and defend peace be intensified more than ever.

1) The U.S. imperialists' maneuvers aimed at igniting a new war of aggression in Korea have now reached a very dangerous stage.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught as follows: Because of the ceaseless provocative maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean fascist military elements, the situation of our country is always tense and the danger of war which can break out at any time always lingers in our country.

Among the U.S. imperialists' new war maneuvers, the joint ROK-U.S. operational exercise, the so-called "Team Spirit 1982," draws special attention. This military exercise is not a mere exercise but an exercise for a war of aggression and, because of this war exercise commotion, the situation on the Korean Peninsula has been strained to an extreme degree. This "Team Spirit" exercise which is staged for 70 days from 13 February through 26 April, first of all, in its duration, outranks the scale of ordinary military exercises and resembles the course of a full-scale war. The joint ROK-U.S. operational exercise is participated in by huge numbers of troops totalling more than 160,000 U.S. and puppet troops mobilized from South Korea and outside U.S. military units.

From the U.S. mainland, Hawaii, Guam, the Pacific Ocean and the Japanese mainland and Okinawa, the units of every branch of every service such as the 25th U.S. Infantry Division, other U.S. Army units, the fleets organized with the aircraft carrier Midway and other warships of the 7th U.S. Fleet, U.S. Marines and U.S. Air Combat Groups have been sent to South Korea to participate in the operation. Moreover, for the exercise, new nuclear weapons, personnel for nuclear operation, other numerous sophisticated modern weapons and equipment and vehicles of various kinds have been deployed.

As a result, South Korea and its surrounding waters are, like a real combat field, now filled with horrible aggressive troops and mass destruction equipment. Based on this large-scale military deployment, on the ground and sea and in the air of South Korea including the area adjacent to the military demarcation line, the U.S. imperialists, taking our republic as a target for an offensive, are frantically staging a comprehensive war exercise including seize-and-hold operations, airlift operations, landing operations, river-crossing operations, antisubmarine exercises, joint special troop exercises, and close-support operations. They have now entered a stage of carrying out a full-scale offensive operation. The points of all the lethal weapons are aimed northward and all ground units, warships and air groups are maneuvering with the North as a target. Synchronized with this, SR-71 high-speed, high-altitude reconnaissance planes infiltrate our territorial airspace more frequently than ever before to commit espionage acts. At present, the land of South Korea is filled with the roar of gunshots and all kinds of gunsmoke.

At this stage, U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger, who works out and implements the war policy of the U.S. imperialists, and the U.S. chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific Forces have come to South Korea to conduct an on-the-spot inspection of the exercise. They have secretly discussed war preparations by holding the so-called ROK-U.S. annual security talks and the meeting of the ROK-U.S. Joint Military Committee. All this is a development of a situation which cannot be overlooked and an ominous military move reminiscent of the eve of the ignition of a war of aggression.

It is not by chance that people throughout the world say that the "Team Spirit" military exercise is an experimental war and a preparatory war to ignite a war of aggression -- a nuclear war -- against our republic. Who can guarantee that this extremely dangerous play with fire for which many soldiers have been mobilized will not turn into an offensive operation against us? The "Team Spirit" war exercise shows the wicked nature of the U.S. imperialists, more rapidly advancing along the road of military adventurism against the Korean people.

Today the United States, in its aggressive world strategy, is attaching great importance to its Korean strategy. It attaches special importance to the strategic position of the Korean Peninsula and considers it a basic element of its Korean policy to continue the occupation of South Korea. Through the continued domination of South Korea, the U.S. imperialists are scheming to maintain its last Asian colony, secure South Korea as a bridgehead to the continent and a strategic military stronghold against our republic and other countries and, using it as a base, expand its sphere of influence. The U.S. reactionary ruling circles outrageously say that the Korean Peninsula, together with Europe and the Middle East, is important to the interests of the United States and that they will not hesitate to use force of arms to protect it. This means they will maintain South Korea as a military stronghold to scramble for a sphere of influence in the Far East and will dominate Korea by force.

This is the essence of the military adventurism of the U.S. imperialists' policy in Korea. The U.S. imperialists fear the growing power of the DPRK and its growing influence over the South Korean people, as well as the people of Asia and the world. Therefore, the U.S. imperialists are dreaming a wicked dream to weaken and obliterate our republic in a military adventure.

To realize this vicious ambition, the U.S. imperialists are perpetuating the division of our country with the policy of two Koreas and accelerating new war preparations by continuing the occupation of South Korea. It is no secret that they have declared that the Korean Peninsula is one of the danger spots where war could break out and that they are scheming to us it as an important test of the strategy of strength. The current U.S. reactionary ruling circle says that the past 30 years constituted an era of East-West confrontation in Europe and that in the rest of the century, East Asia will be the focal point.

With an adventurous strategy toward Korea, the U.S. imperialists, spreading a deceptive story about the military superiority of the North and the threat of southward invasion and clamoring about the military balance, are intensifying the policy of the occupation of South Korea and drastically increasing their forces there. The formation of the U.S. forces in South Korea is being reorganized in accordance with the requirement of modern war. Air and naval forces are being beefed up and military hardware enhanced and updated.

It is a well-known fact that the U.S. war maniacs have deployed in South Korea F-16 fighter-bombers and A-10 close-support fighters, established a strategic air force control center, almost doubled the number of naval forces in South Korea with personnel who have combat experience and deployed many warships such as frigates and guided-missile destroyers. They are moving the focus of the strategic deployment of the heinous 7th Fleet to Korea's East Sea and turning Chinhae into a base of operations.

To increase ground troops along with naval and air force personnel, the U.S. imperialists have armed the U.S. 2d Infantry Division with 155 millimeter self-propelled howitzers and portable missiles -- sophisticated lethal weapons -- which have not been supplied to any other overseas U.S. units. They have been shipping sophisticated weapons and military hardware to South Korea, such as artillery pieces, new model tanks and radar equipment. In addition to the hundreds of nuclear weapons which have already been deployed in South Korea, the U.S. imperialist war maniacs are wickedly scheming to ship neutron bombs and nuclear missiles to South Korea and equip warships of the U.S. 7th Fleet with cruise missiles.

The efforts to increase the military capabilities of the puppet armed forces have been stepped up. Last year the U.S. imperialists appropriated several hundred million dollars in military aid for the South Korean puppets and gave them sophisticated fighter-bombers, early warning equipment, missiles, tanks and communications equipment. They are trying to offer more military aid to the puppets in the next fiscal year. They have announced an emergency plan for transferring $2 billion worth of ammunition and other military hardware to the puppets in a contingency. South Korea has thus been converted into a place where the U.S. imperialists' weapons of mass destruction are massed and a dangerous powder keg. If the U.S. imperialists do not want to start a war against the Korean people, why are they so eager to increase military capabilities in South Korea, which is scores of thousands of miles away from the United States?

It has been well known that the U.S. imperialists have formulated a war plan against us, established a tactical operation system and made all personnel and material elements serve for the implementation of their war policy. Their scheme to provoke a war is more clearly reflected in that they have increased aggressive armed troops not only in South Korea but also in the area surrounding it, such as the Japanese mainland, Okinawa, Hawaii and Guam, made haste in forming the U.S.-Japan-South Korea military alliance and formulated a plan to deploy troops of Japan's Self-Defense Forces to a Korean war under the pretext of a study of a contingency in the Far East. After activating a quick reaction force for deployment on the Korean Peninsula in the case of a contingency, they have put it on alert.

The war exercise rackets kicked up by the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets in South Korea and the areas surrounding it are aimed at completing such war preparations. Today, the U.S. war machine is impetuously maneuvering on the Korean Peninsula. Because of the U.S. imperialists' war rackets against the Korean people, South Korea has become a powder keg, tension has heightened on the Korean Peninsula and the grave danger that a war might break out at any moment has been created. Under circumstances in which the aggressive U.S. imperialist forces and the executor of the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression, the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique, exist in South Korea and in which they have traversed the road of reckless war adventure, the danger of a new war in Korea is very great.

If a war breaks out in Korea because of the U.S. imperialists' indiscreet rackets, this war would easily expand into a world war in light of the military and strategic position of the Korean Peninsula and the nature of military forces confronting each other in this area. Under circumstances in which nuclear weapons are deployed in South Korea, the war provoked by the U.S. imperialists would develop into a nuclear war. Not only the Korean people but also the Asian and the world's peace-loving people are deeply concerned over the tension created on the Korean Peninsula.

2. As clearly shown by the grave situation on the Korean Peninsula, the U.S. imperialists' policy of aggression and war has reached a very reckless stage.

Ignoring the dangerous consequences of this policy against the peoples of other countries and world peace, the U.S. imperialists have been engrossed in trying to fulfill their wild aggressive desire. Aggression and usurpation are the true color of imperialism. An aggressive war against the peoples of other countries is the natural product of imperialist policies. Just as we cannot imagine monopoly capitalists who are not greedy for excess profits, we cannot imagine imperialists who do not follow the policy of aggression and war.

The U.S. imperialists surpass all aggressive forces in opposing other countries and the people's cause for independence, progress and peace. The U.S. policy of aggression and war has assumed the wicked nature of adventurism, and the U.S. imperialists are quickly declining in the face of a crisis.

The reactionary imperialist forces have been greatly weakened by the fierce struggle between the anti-imperialist forces of independence and the reactionary imperialist forces in the international arena. In particular, the position of the U.S. imperialists, who have emerged as the greatest aggressors and acted tyrannically, has become difficult. Because of its policy of aggression and interference against other countries, the United States has been rejected by people throughout the world. It is tottering in extreme disorder and confusion because of an unprecedentedly catastrophic economic crisis, depressed industrial production, inflation and in increase in unemployment. The U.S. imperialists have lost most of the monopolistic influence and leadership they once enjoyed as boss of the capitalist world. Many Western countries no longer link their destiny to the United States, and they are extricating themselves from U.S. domination and control.

Even within NATO, once subservient to the United States, the U.S. imperialists' policy of military adventure and their leadership confronts opposition from many allies. Friction and strife between the United States and other Western countries has increased daily in the economic sector. The influence of U.S. industrial production on the Western world has declined. The dollar is no longer able to influence and control other capitalist countries. The myth about the greatness of the U.S. imperialists has been shattered. Even a U.S. Government-sponsored medium has said that America today is a shackled giant and that no matter what action it may take the United States will be unable to regain the heights it occupied in the past for the domination of the world. All these facts reflect the pitiful appearance of the U.S. imperialists, treading the road of decline.

Even though the imperialists have become weak, their aggressive and piratic nature will never change. Frightened by the strengthening of the anti-imperialist forces of independence and uneasy about the crises at home and abroad, the U.S. imperialists are running wild to maintain and strengthen their influence. Despite the fact the U.S. imperialists have declined, they are trying to fulfill a wild desire for conquering the world. To fulfill this desire, they are eagerly clinging to the line of war -- a timeworn policy of strength. The policy of strength is the basic policy of the imperialists, who regard aggression as a means for survival. The more serious the crisis they face, the more eagerly they seek military adventure. This is their stereotyped method.

Today the U.S. imperialists are running wild to overcome political and economic crises by adopting the method of war. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: Today the international situation is very complicated. Because of the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers for aggression and war, tension has been heightened and the danger of a new world war has increased with each passing day.

After emerging at a time when the U.S. imperialists faced serious crises at home and abroad, the present U.S. administration, under the aggressive and bellicose slogans for the reconstruction of a powerful United States and U.S. supremacy and while stepping up its efforts to increase armaments, has outrageously challenged world peace. Linking most areas in the world to vital U.S. interests, it has announced that it will wage all kinds of wars at any place. This means that, if necessary, the United States will choose a certain area in the world and designate it as a target of a military offensive. According to a message issued by the U.S. Congress at the beginning of this year, the U.S. war maniacs will spend a record amount in peacetime for military purposes in fiscal year 1983 and will appropriate greater funds for military purposes in the 5 years following fiscal year 1983.

Brazenly advocating a theory about nuclear war in a contingency, the U.S. imperialists have formulated a strategic plan for increasing military capabilities, especially the production of weapons of mass destruction. They have been eager to produce various nuclear warheads, including neutron bombs, and B-1 bombers and MX missiles -- the carriers of these warheads.

Foreign media say that, since World War II, no U.S. Government has formulated such a huge plan for nuclear weapons. This shows that the U.S. imperialists' strategic plan is a criminal plan to drag the world into a nuclear holocaust.

Engrossed in increasing armaments, the U.S. imperialists have maneuvered to strengthen their aggressive military bloc. They are attempting to accelerate the process of militarizing Japan in the Pacific region, strengthen the U.S.-Japan security system, complete the tripartite U.S.-Japan-South Korea military alliance and form a new aggressive military bloc by rallying other countries around this military alliance. The Rimpac military exercise was staged to achieve this end.

The U.S. imperialists are trying to increase the military capabilities of NATO countries in Europe and deploy new offensive nuclear weapons such as Pershing II and cruise missiles. They are attempting to form a new aggressive military alliance in the Middle East in place of CENTO. They are making a similar attempt in Latin America. How eagerly the United States is accelerating war preparations is reflected by the fact that it has augmented overseas troops now numbering 500,000 men, built more military bases overseas and forged ahead with preparations to deploy a Rapid Deployment Force composed of thousands of soldiers.

As demonstrated by history, the result of a policy of military expansion and alliances is war. The U.S. imperialists' frantic maneuvers to increase military expenditures and capabilities and strengthen aggressive military alliance cannot be construed as other than acts provoking a war, even a nuclear war. While accelerating war preparations, the U.S. imperialists have directed the spearhead of aggression at opposing the world's anti-imperialist forces of independence. Socialist countries which have expanded on a global scale, newly emerging countries which have embarked on the road of building a new society after accomplishing the historic cause of national liberation and nonaligned countries are powerful anti-imperialist forces of independence in our era. With the emergence of these forces, a basic change has taken place in maintaining the global balance of power. The anti-imperialist revolutionary and antiwar peace-loving forces have decisively overwhelmed the imperialist antirevolutionary, aggressive forces enacting a historic change leading to the collapse of the colonial system and the decline of the imperialists' sphere of domination and influence.

The U.S. imperialists contend the major aim of their aggressive global strategy is to weaken the powerful revolutionary force in our era and to place newly emerging independent countries under their domination by subjugating them. To achieve this, the U.S. imperialists, in addition to committing aggressive acts, have used a cunning trick of making Asians, Europeans and Middle East people fight each other. They have used a similar method in Latin America and Africa.

Proceeding from such an aggressive policy, the U.S. imperialists have committed subversive acts of militarily meddling in newly emerging countries to thwart the people's struggle to achieve national independence and build a new society. They have brazenly attacked people who have risen in a righteous liberation struggle. In particular, to secure major areas of resources and military strategic strongholds, they have greatly increased their aggressive military troops in these areas, increased the number of aggressive military bases and ran wild to make war preparations, babbling about protection of their interests and maintenance of security and the balance of power.

Because of the U.S. imperialists' maneuvers against the newly independent nations and for the control of the major zones of resources and strategically important areas of the world, the Korean Peninsula and other parts of the Far East are turning into a hotbed of new war and, in the Middle East, Europe, Central and South America and southern Africa, a tense situation fraught with the danger of war is being created.

To dominate the Middle East, the world's major oil zone and a strategic vantage-point, the U.S. imperialist war maniacs are drastically concentrating U.S. air and naval forces and army troops in this area and in the Indian Ocean and bringing the situation to the brink of war in the Middle East while encouraging the Zionists' anti-Arab maneuvers. They are persisting in outrageous military intimidation and interference in the internal affairs of the nations in this region.

In Central and South America, too, the U.S. imperialists militarily intimidate Cuba and Nicaragua and the national liberation struggle of the people of the region. This is also a part of the aforesaid maneuvers. The U.S. imperialist aggressors ceaselessly stage provocative military exercise rackets in the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico and are intensifying the policy of intervention by force of arms against the people struggling for national liberation and consolidation of independence.

In the South African area, the U.S. imperialists are supporting the racists, instigating them to carry out armed assault on the Namibian people's struggle for liberation and intensifying military intimidation and intervention maneuvers against the nations of the front.

In Poland, after they failed in the wicked schemes to overthrow the people's government via the antirevolutionary and antisocialist elements and to make the country an outpost of imperialism, the U.S. imperialists have openly disclosed their aggressive nature and are carrying out atrocious anti-Polish maneuvers.

The imperialists' aggressive strategy of directing the spearhead of attack against the progressive forces and making other countries fight among themselves so as to fish in troubled waters is an important cause of local disputes and armed conflicts in many parts of the world. Such armed conflicts, big and small, may expand into a large-scale war. Indeed, it is due to the adventurous policy of the U.S. imperialists that today the sovereignty of the national independent states is violated and the destiny of people flouted tragically one after the other in different areas of the world and peace and security are wrecked and international tensions heightened. As a result, the danger of a new world war is increasing with each passing day.

The U.S. imperialists are the ringleaders sowing the seeds of a new war in all parts of the world and menacing world peace and the security of mankind. The peace and security which they babble about are nothing more than a veil for concealing their heinous plot for aggression and war and their argument for balance of power and protection of concessions is but a pretext to justify their endless arms buildup and aggressive military acts. The U.S. imperialists are the most dangerous aggressive forces and the main enemy of national independence, social progress and peace in our era.

3. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has taught: The prevailing situation calls for the peace-loving people of the world to wage an active struggle to prevent a new world war.

Consolidation of peace in Korea is an important factor for the preservation of world peace. Our party and people regard it as a most important and responsible task to ensure a durable peace in Korea and are making every effort to this end.

Our people are by nature a peace-loving people. They greatly value peace and always long to live in peace. With the intrinsic nature of the state and socialist system under which the people, as the masters of the country, exercise creative labor for themselves, we always want peace and demand that the country be reunified in a peaceful way. Our people do not want to see a war breaking out in our country that would devastate our land. But no one must take our people's desire for peace as an expression of weakness.

Our people do not want to threaten or attack anyone, but they will never allow others to provoke them. The war rackets of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets can not frighten our people. Our people are a dignified people who hold that the independence and honor of the nation are dearer than their lives. They are a heroic people who crushed the enemy's aggression with their indomitable fighting spirit and confidence in victory. The U.S. imperialists must clearly see the revolutionary spirit and staunch will of our people and stop the reckless play with fire aimed at igniting a war and withdraw from South Korea, taking along all their troops and weapons, including nuclear weapons.

The South Korean puppets must be aware that if they play a shameful role as servants of the U.S. imperialists, they will gain nothing but self-destruction. If the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets persist in aggravating the situation and taking the road of war, defying our repeated warnings, our people will rise as one and smash the enemy for the sake of the honor of the fatherland and the nation. If a war breaks out in Korea, it will not bring anything good to the United States. The U.S. imperialist war maniacs must abandon the notion that in this war the Korean people alone would have to suffer sacrifices, while they would benefit. They must realize that the policy of strength and the policy of nuclear blackmail are not omnipotent.

Our people's just struggle against the war maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppets and for peace in Korea and its peaceful reunification is contributing to the cause of world peace. Under the uplifted banner of independence, friendship and peace our people will firmly unite with the peoples of the socialist countries, the peoples of the nonaligned countries and other peace-loving peoples of the world and continue the powerful struggle to frustrate the imperialist maneuvers of aggression and war and safeguard peace and security.

Today, struggling to eliminate the danger of war and to safeguard peace and security is the most urgent task facing the peace-loving people of the world. The people of the world should resolutely fight against increases in military funding and production and storage of destructive weapons by the imperialists, their brazen interference in the internal affairs of other countries and subversive activities and sabotage against them. At the same time, they should wage a persistent struggle for the dissolution of aggressive military blocs, withdrawal of foreign military bases and troops from other countries, creation and expansion of nuclear-free peace zones in different parts of the world and realization of universal total disarmament.

This movement against war and for peace will play a big role. It is good that voices opposing the imperialist arms race and the production and deployment of sophisticated nuclear weapons and calling for the establishment of nuclear-free peace zones are being raised in Europe and other regions.

If the people of broad strata do not tolerate the imperialist policy of aggression and war but rise as one in the stugggle against it on all continents and in all regions of the world, they can check and frustrate the reckless moves of the imperialist warmongers who are engrossed in making preparations for a war of aggression.

It is imperative in opposing the imperialist policy of aggression and war and defending world peace to strengthen the militant unity of the peoples of socialist countries, the nonaligned countries and to the Third World countries and all other peace-loving people of the world. Only when the unity of the world's peace-loving forces is cemented is it possible to isolate and weaken the imperialist aggressive forces, deal a heavy blow at the U.S. imperialists everywhere they have stretched their talons of aggression, bind them hand and foot and dismember them and successfully smash the imperialists' crafty moves and divide-and-conquer strategy.

In this regard, it is important to strengthen the unity of the Nonaligned Movement -- the powerful force against imperialism and for independence in an era in which we must confront imperialism and the forces against war and for peace. When the nonaligned countries, which have most of the human and material resources of the world and in which important military vantage points are located, unite firmly and advance shoulder to shoulder, a serious political, economic and military blow will be dealt to the imperialists. Defending independence is a fundamental requirement for consolidating the unity of the movement against imperialism and for peace and one of the basic elements to weaken the imperialist aggressive forces and smash war maneuvers.

Historically, the imperialist aggressors have always craftily sought to make other countries fight among themselves and have fished in troubled waters. At present, the U.S. imperialists are using the same tricks and exploiting their stooges and followers in the aggression of other countries. If the countries subordinated by the U.S. imperialists stop following them and if the peoples of all world countries take the road of independence, the U.S. imperialists will become isolated and powerless. If Europe becomes independent, if Japan takes the road of independence in Asia and if the countries of the Middle East defend their independence, a world war can be prevented.

This is an era in which the people who were once oppressed and maltreated have emerged as the masters of history and the world's people are struggling for sovereignty, independence and peace. The days during which the U.S. imperialists persisted in the policy of strength and decided the destiny of peoples of other countries are gone forever. It is an irreversible trend of history that imperialism perishes and the cause against imperialism and for independence triumphs. If the world's people unite and wage a vigorous struggle for peace, they can prevent a new war and achieve lasting peace.

NODONG SINMUN SCORES U.S. POLICY ON NICARAGUA

[Text] Pyongyang, April 1 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today, in a commentary printed in connection with the ever intensified criminal manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists against the Nicaraguan people, says that the U.S. imperialists must give up the anachronistic delusion and immediately discontinue the aggressive and interventionist manoeuvres against the Nicaraguan people. The undisguised hostile acts of the U.S. imperialists against Nicaragua are a wanton infringement upon the sovereignty and territorial integrity of Nicaragua, a dignified sovereign state, and prove that the U.S. imperialists aggressive and interventionist acts have become very grave, notes the commentary. The author of the commentary says:

Rallied close around the Sandinist National Liberation Front, the Nicaraguan people are heroically struggling to check and frustrate the new military aggressive manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists and defend with honour the independence and sovereignty of their country. In his letter of solidarity sent to the coordinator of the Council of the Government of National Reconstruction of the Republic of Nicaragua, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song resolutely denounced the new military aggressive manoeuvres of the United States against Nicaragua and declared that the Korean people would do everything possible to actively support and encourage the just struggle of the fraternal Nicaraguan people against all manner of domination and subjugation and for defending the sovereignty of the country and the gains of the revolution and building a new prospering society.

The aggressive and interventionist manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists against Nicaragua proceed from their vicious design to stifle in its cradle the Nicaraguan revolution which is victoriously advancing and removing its daily growing influence in the Central American region. Denouncing the U.S. imperialists for distorting the fact to make it appear as if the mounting resistance of the Salvadoran people were actively "backed" by Nicaragua and for slandering Nicaragua as an "armed interventionist in Central America," the commentary says: This is a shameless trick of the U.S. imperialists to mislead world public opinion and justify their armed intervention in Nicaragua.

The commentary says: If the U.S. imperialists think that they can stifle the Nicaraguan revolution by "strength," it is a foolish daydream. The Nicaraguan people have determinedly risen up to defend the gains of the revolution, frustrating the U.S. imperialists' manoeuvres of aggression and intervention, isolating and blockade. Nothing can call a halt to the just cause of the Nicaraguan people.

KIM IL-SONG INSPECTS MONUMENTS, BUILDINGS 1 APR

[Text] Pyongyang, April 2 (KCNA) -- The great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song on April 1 went round the newly-built Tower of the Chuche Idea, Arch of Triumph, Moranbong Stadium and Grand People's Study House in Pyongyang.

He was accompanied by members of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea. Also accompanying him in the inspection of the new grand monumental edifices were members and alternate members of the Political Bureau and secretaries of the WPK Central Committee and vice-premiers of the Administration Council.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song inspected the Tower of the Chuche Idea newly built on the bank of the beautiful River Taedong. The Tower of the Chuche Idea is a grand monumental edifice in the age of the Workers Party which has been built as a reflection of the rock-firm will and faith of our party and our people to hand down to the generations to come the great revolutionary idea and revolutionary exploits of the reflected leader Comrade Kim Il-song and carry to completion generation after generation the revolutionary cause of chuche which started and has advanced victoriously under the banner of the chuche idea. The tower rising 170 metres high in all grandeur, occupying a large space on the River Taedong, has been built with white natural granite stones. It is a wonderful grand monumental tower without compare in its peculiar architectural style and scale and in the level of its formative art representation.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song inspected the tower, groups of sculptures showing graceful formative arts, two big fountains jetting water up to 150 metres high in the centre of the River Taedong and expressed deep satisfaction with the fact that under the guidance of the party the constructors and their helpers successfully built the magnificent monumental edifice in less than two years, and extended thanks to them.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song went round the newly-built Arch of Triumph in front of the Moranbong Stadium. The Arch of Triumph has been built thanks to the lofty intention and energetic guidance of our party to convey to the posterity the glorious and brilliant revolutionary historical fact that the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song made a historic speech on October 14, 1945, after his triumphant return home. It is a grand monumental creation built well perfectly in formative arts by introducing the typical architectural style of our nation to suit the modern aesthetic sentiments.

The 60 meter high Arch of Triumph is an immortal monument, most profound and magnificent in its revolutionary content and scale and new and unique in architecture and formative arts.

After going round the arch, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, deeply satisfied with the fact that the builders successfully erected the edifice of eternal value, excellent in designing and construction, extended thanks to them.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song inspected the Moranbong Stadium rebuilt on an expansion basis. The Moranbong Stadium magnificently and beautifully built at the foot of the historic Moral Hill to take on completely new looks has all modern facilities and 100,000 seats. After going round the stadium the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song expressed much satisfaction with the successful construction of the modern stadium by builders and their helpers in a short period of four months in hearty response to the militant call of the party and offered thanks to them.

Saying that the stadium which was but a public ground when he made a speech on his triumphant return home after liberation has been built on modern lines to better harmonize with the beautiful scenery of the Moran Hill under the leadership of the party, he said that the stadium is a great wealth of our people to be handed down generation after generation. He said that various sports activities of children, youth and sportsmen should be conducted and international sports games be organized at the stadium so that it should be managed well.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song went to the Grand People's Study House on the eve of opening. While going round the Grand People's Study House standing imposingly in the heart of Pyongyang, well harmonizing with the Tower of the Chuche Idea rising in all grandeur on the bank of the Taedong River, he was greatly satisfied with the fact that the Grand People's Study House has been built up on a highest level so as to make a positive contribution to the ideological education of party members and working people and to the dissemination of scientific, technical and cultural knowledge among them. He set forth concrete tasks to provide best conveniences, manage and run the study house well so that people may study by effectively using it.

Commanding a bird's-eye view of the whole city of Pyongyang from the observation platform of the study house, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song expressed deep satisfaction over the fact that Pyongyang, which was lying in debris when the war ended, has been built into a modern city in a short period of time to be proud of in the world and gave programmatic teachings which would serve as a guideline in building the capital more beautifully and magnificently. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song posed for a photograph with builders who performed feats of labour in the building of the grand monumental edifices.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE TO PROBE PUSAN ARSON CASE

SK020740 Seoul YONHAP in English 0731 GMT 2 Apr 82

[Text] Seoul, April 2 (YONHAP) -- Korea's ruling Democratic Justice Party will call the National Assembly's Home Affairs Committee into session on April 9 to hear government testimony on the March 18 arson at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan.

Majority floor leader Yi Chong-chan said testimony would be heard from Home Minister So Chung-hwa on the police investigation of the arson case and internal security measures would be discussed. Two key suspects surrendered to authorities in Wonju, Kangwon Province, Thursday, ending the extensive 15-day police manhunt.

Meanwhile, Yi said the Economy-Science Committee will hold a meeting early next week to adopt a report on its subcommittee's investigation into the alleged bribery in U.S. rice imports. The subcommittee investigation concludes Saturday.

Envoy to U.S. Discusses Arson

[Text] Seoul, April 2 (YONHAP) -- South Korean Ambassador to Washington Yu Pyong-hyon said Friday he does not expect Korean-U.S. friendship to be harmed by the recent series of "undesirable" incidents, including the fire at Pusan's American Cultural Center and the alleged attempt by a U.S. firm to export contaminated canned salmon to Korea.

Yu told reporters here that he does not think the Pusan arson indicates anti-American sentiment in Korea but rather is an act committed by mentally deranged persons. Yu has been in Seoul to attend the 14th Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting (SCM) March 30-31.

The ambassador said this year's SCM was the most successful yet, and added that the agreement between the two countries on the speedy transfer of war materials to Korea in the event of an emergency is evidence of the effective security system between the two countries.

KOREA HERALD HITS NORTH'S REJECTION OF TALKS

[Editorial: "Dialogue Is the Answer"]

[Text] Not surprisingly, Pyongyang turned down Seoul's latest proposal that a high-level meeting be held between them to discuss a broad range of issues related to Korean unification, including a South-North summit talk. In the form of a commentary published in NODONG SINMUN, the North Korean Workers Party organ, Pyongyang rejected the proposal as a "splittist measure."

Seoul had originally asked that the proposed meeting at a Cabinet minister's level be held before the end of March. As North Korea made no response, Minister of National Unification Son Chae-sik urged Pyongyang late last month to come to the conference table and jointly consider all proposals and problems, including such North Korean bid as a 100 politicians meeting. At the same time, Minister Son made it clear that the South will keep the avenue open for the proposed talk even after the close of March.

Pressed thus for dialogue, North Korea had to break its month-long silence, publicly at least. But the reason North Korea produced for the negative answer has no convincing grounds.

The minister of national unification explained when he proposed the high-level talk, it would have dealt with a variety of ideas and plans, introduced by both sides so far, to pave the way for the preparation of a unified constitution as called for by President Chon Tu-hwan earlier this year. It should be noted further that the minister said Seoul is ready to put on the conference table even the North Korean talk formula of an unheard-of kind, Pyongyang named 50 to have them represent the South at the proposed union of 100 politicians.

While slamming every door for a South-North dialogue, Pyongyang is trying hard to paint a false picture of the Korean situation abroad with regard to the question of peaceful unification. North Korea has been clamoring abroad that its "Confederal Korea" scheme is the only "realistic" answer to Korean unification. But it keeps refusing to discuss the formula with the South as one of the probable options. What does this contradiction amount to?

As we have pointed out on several occasions, the contradiction shows the deceptive nature of the "Confederal Korea" plan. Like the 100 politicians union proposal, the confederation scheme would have Pyongyang call the tune from beginning to end in unifying the divided peninsula. Such a trick has no part to play in settling the Korean question.

Of course, it may be difficult for North Korea to enter into dialogue with the South at present, due to the heirship problem of an unprecedented kind in the communist world in addition to the basic policy for a closed society. But Pyongyang must realize that the longer it prolongs its closed-door policy, the greater its difficulties will grow in preparing North Korea for peaceful contact with the South.

Writing off, once and for all, the chance of peaceful exchanges between the South and North pending a resolution of the division would drive Pyongyang only into an abject misery. North Korea will do well to note the tendency of international opinions on Korea toward favoring South-North talks as the only practical answer to their problem under the circumstances. This tendency will continue to increase regardless of what the North Korean propaganda machine tells the world. Pyongyang should reconsider its negative stance, and the sooner, the better.

KOREA TIMES HAILS U.S. SECURITY COMMITMENT

[Editorial: "U.S. Security Promises"]

[Text] The United States, our traditional ally seems to be as resolute as ever in its intention to provide prompt and effective assistance for the security of the Republic of Korea in the face of any conceivable eventuality on the Korean Peninsula. Thus, the U.S. administration led by President Ronald Reagan appears to be confident that the continued stationing of American troops in South Korea will effectively play the role of a deterrent force against the potential foe on the other side of the divided country in the days ahead.

At the close of a two-day annual security meeting in Seoul between the two countries ending Wednesday, the defense leaders of Korea and the United States were said to have shared the view that the continuing military build-up by North Korea and its aggressive posture posed a major threat. In a joint communique issued following the annual bi-national security talks, the two countries reaffirmed that the security of South Korea was pivotal to the peace and stability of Northeast Asia and, in turn, vital to the security of the United States.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who led the U.S. delegation to the Security Consultative Meeting here, specifically agreed that the United States would transfer $2 billion worth of munitions to the Korea forces during the first few hours of a military emergency as a means to respond instantly to renewed communist aggression in Korea.

The development of the wartime resupply system and the augmentation of stockpiles of war reserve materiel constituted a major concern among our defense strategists in the 14th annual defense talks, to which our keen attention was drawn as part of the substantial U.S. assistance to be provided for the security of South Korea against Pyongyang.

It is also good to hear that Defense Minister Chu Yong-pok, chief of the Korean delegation to the annual defense talks, and his U.S. counterpart Weinberger reached an accord on the use of Korean facilities for the maintenance of the equipment of U.S. forces in Korea and elsewhere within the Asian region. We can hardly deny that such a forward-looking U.S. defense posture in Korea must be a most significant way to help foster our defense industry, particularly at a time when this country has placed major stress on it as a strategic sector in the course of seeking self-reliant security in the foreseeable future.

While having the U.S. military equipment repaired in this country, it is apparent that Korea will be able to boost the operation of her existing defense industrial facilities by making the best use of them. The United States will substantially save transportation costs involved in the repair of war equipment by taking advantage of the geographical convenience, most understandably.

In view of the fast-developing defense industry in this country, it is our belief that the U.S. defense planners can well acknowledge advanced technical standards among our technical personnel in this sector, along with our high managerial capabilities. Consequently, U.S. strategists are urged to substantially utilize the defense industrial facilities and technical manpower here for the repair of U.S. military equipment by expanding the scope of their use markedly in the days ahead.

At the same time, we are immediately concerned with the U.S. assurance of improving the repayment terms for the U.S. foreign military sales (FMS) credit as the main source of Korea's purchase of military hardware from the United States. It is understood that the United States will continue to improve the FMS terms, "subject to consultations with and the approval of the Congress and other appropriate agencies." We urge U.S. defense planners to make utmost efforts to take drastic action on this particular matter so that they may encourage their Korea counterparts all the more to push through decisive security measures with firm confidence.

SAUDI ARABIAN COMMUNICATIONS MINISTER ARRIVES

[Text] Shaykh Husayn Ibrahin al-Mansuri, Saudi Arabian minister of communications, came to Seoul yesterday for a four-day official visit. Upon arrival at Kimpo International Airport, he was greeted by Minister of Commerce and Industry So Sok-chun on behalf of Kim Chong-ho, minister of construction, who is now on an overseas tour as a presidential emissary. Later in the day, Shaykh al-Mansuri was an honor guest at a dinner hosted by Minister So at Choson Hotel.

His schedule today calls for having a meeting with Yi Kyu-ho, vice minister of construction, on ways to promote economic cooperation between the two countries, especially in the fields of road maintenance and repair, government officials said. The Saudi minister is also due to visit the Korea Highway Corporation in the southeastern outskirt of Seoul. Currently, two dozen Korean firms are engaged in an unspecified amount of construction work sponsored by the Saudi Ministry of Communications, according to the officials. One more firm is now actively seeking to earn a project from the ministry, they said.

The officials said that Korea is hoping to sell more railroad cars, rail and fastening equipment to the Middle East country. Figures released by the Korea Trade Promotion Corp. show that the country has exported a total of slightly over $2 million worth of rolling stock to Saudi Arabia since 1977. Last year, Korea imported a total of $3.6 billion worth of goods including oil from Saudi Arabia, while exporting $1.1 billion worth of goods to that country.

UNEN CRITICIZES WESTERN CONCEPTS OF CHINA

OW310622 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in English 1718 GMT 29 Mar 82

[Text] Ulaanbaatar, 29 Mar (MONTSAME) -- While assessing the post-Mao China many Western Sinologists give different interpretations of the developments occuring in the country, the Mongolian daily UNEN writes in an article titled "Revision of Maoism." Nonetheless, the newspaper stresses, they all come down to an attempt to mislead the Western public opinion asserting that "Maoism has turned into a harmless religion not obligatory for all of the Chinese." But the activity of the present Chinese leadership and the documents of the 6th plenary session of the CCPCC prove quite the contrary -- it is not the "de-Maoisation" which is taking place in China but the adaption of this reactionary teaching to the present conditions of the Chinese reality, UNEN points out.

China, UNEN stresses, a member to the UN Security Council, is one of the few countries in the world which does not come out against the threat of another way, on the contrary it carries out an active military and nuclear build-up, encourages those who seek to re-animate the "cold war" and who strive to resolve international questions from the position of strength. The so-called "revision" of Maoism does not in fact affect in any way the external policy of great Han chauvinists openly encroaching on the territorial integrity and sovereignty of neighboring states, ascertains UNEN. Thus Maoist conceptions most dangerous for peace and security of peoples still arm the present Chinese leadership.

MPRP GREETS BELGIAN COMMUNIST PARTY CONGRESS

OW020540 Ulaanbaatar MONTSAME in Russian 1434 GMT 26 Mar 82

[From 26 March press review]

DK'S THIOUNN DISCUSSES SRV AT ESCAP CONFERENCE

BK010342 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 30 Mar 82

[Text] On 25 March 1982, Thiounn Thioum, minister of economy and finance and head of our Democratic Kampuchean delegation, spoke at the 38th ESCAP conference in Bangkok. He raised two important issues: First, the famine in present day Kampuchea, which is caused by the war of aggression and race extermination of the Vietnamese enemies, and second, the increased and systematic use of toxic chemicals by the Vietnamese enemy aggressors to massacre the Kampuchean people.

Concerning the issue of famine in Kampuchea, Minister Thiounn Thioum said: In our Kampuchea, this issue of food has occurred every year for more than 3 years, that is, since the Hanoi Vietnamese barbarously invaded and committed aggression against our Kampuchea, flagrantly violating the UN Charter. With regard to the present situation in our Kampuchea, the crucial problem is not the usual one of food by but is a question of famine. This problem of famine will recur every year as long as the Vietnamese do not withdraw all of their aggressor troops from Kampuchea and our Kampuchean people do not have the right to be masters of their own destiny. In fact, our Kampuchea has never had this kind of problem before. Kampuchea has a small population. It has fertile plains with regular floods by the Mekong River and different lakes, in particular the Tonle Sap. In 1978, before the Vietnamese enemies invaded our Kampuchea, we had started to export paddy, rubber and fishery products.

Minister Thiounn Thioum stressed: The great famine in Kampuchea that frieghtened the whole world community occurred at the end of 1979, that is, after the Vietnamese enemies committed aggression and invaded our Kampuchea. The famine problem persists in Kampuchea to this day. The international community is paying great attention to this problem and has issued a new and timely appeal for more food aid for the Kampuchean people. This clearly shows that this problem can never be solved as long as its roots have not been unearthed and destroyed. And the root of the problem is, of course, the Hanoi Vietnamese clique's aggression in Kampuchea. If this problem is not solved, the Kampuchean people will continue to suffer tragically.

Our Democratic Kampuchean Government has denounced the Hanoi Vietnamese many times for their use of famine as a weapon to smash our people's resistance. Our government has indicated many times that the war of aggression waged by the Hanoi Vietnamese in Kampuchea is not the usual sort of war but is a war of genocide as it involves the destruction of a people and the swallowing of their territory in the framework of Vietnam's regional expansionist strategy and the world expansionist strategy of their master.

Later, the minister raised the issue of the Vietnamese enemy aggressors' use of toxic chemicals in Kampuchea. He said: The consequences of food shortages are becoming worse due to the Vietnamese enemy aggressors systematic use of chemical weapons. The use of weapons prohibited by mankind not only causes tragic suffering before the victims die, but it also affects the health and bodies of the surviving victims and their children and grandchildren. Concurrently, it is a strong threat to humans and animals because it leaves toxic residues which poison and contaminate the environment for a long time. Therefore, although there are prohibitions in the 1925 Geneva convention and the 1972 treaty on biological weapons, new chemical weapons have been produced and used. At present, Kampuchea is a large laboratory for an expansionist superpower which provides toxic chemical weapons to the Hanoi Vietnamese clique.

We would like to ask the UN investigation committee to pay attention and promptly carry out its work. We would like to ask that an international conference be convened to take appropriate measures in order to put a permanent end to the production and use of toxic chemical and biological weapons and to ensure the complete destruction of such weapons.

Concurrently, the delegation also wishes ESCAP to pay full attention to this issue. In this way, ESCAP will contribute to solving this problem, which not only endangers peace but also affects the economic and social fields that are our primary concern here. This issue affects the development of mankind and the protection of the environment. This crucial problem not only affects the lives of the Kampuchean people and other peoples who are suffering from the aggression of the world expansionists but is also related to the defense of peace and security in the region and the whole world.

At the end of his address, Minister Thiounn Thioum presented the following conclusions:

Although they have increased their use of all types of weapons to destroy the Kampuchean race, and although they have received large amounts of aid from their boss, and despite the fact that they have 300,000 troops and civilian agents in Kampuchea, the Hanoi Vietnamese aggressors and race exterminators have become completely bogged down. It is absolutely impossible for the Vietnamese enemy aggressors to defeat the Kampuchean patriotic resistance forces who are growing ever stronger.

At present, in their efforts to induce everyone to accept their aggression in Kampuchea as a fait accompli, the Vietnamese enemy aggressors have only one course open to them and that is to continue to stage their foolish diplomatic maneuvers. In particular: 1) They will make efforts to divide countries which support the just cause of the Kampuchean people's struggle, especially the countries in the region. 2) They will make efforts to mislead the world that they can dissociate themselves from the Soviets when in fact if they do not receive enormous amounts of aid from the Soviet Union the Hanoi Vietnamese could not continue their aggression against Kampuchea and could not maintain their war machine in Kampuchea, which threatens peace and stability in the region. The Soviet Union and the Hanoi Vietnamese need each other because they have common interests and a common expansionist strategy.

The wish of our Democratic Kampuchean Government is to do everything it can to end in the shortest possible time this savage war that it has been forced to participate in and to remove the great sufferings of the Kampuchean people. Our present struggle is a struggle only for the survival of our nation and is not a struggle for any ideology. Therefore, it is necessary that we cooperate in full with the international community, especially with the ASEAN countries, in finding the correct way to solve the Kampuchean problem while adhering to and calling for the concrete implementation of the UN resolutions and the declaration of the international conference on Kampuchea.

We contribute to these efforts by forcefully attacking the Vietnamese on the battlefields and by seeking to achieve a coalition of all national forces to fight against the Vietnamese enemy aggressors and swallowers of territory. A combination of struggle on the battlefields and increased pressure from the international community is necessary to oblige the Hanoi Vietnamese to search for a real and lasting peace.

SITTHI SAWETSILA SAYS SON SANN GRANTED THAI VISA

BK020404 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 2 Apr 82 p 3

[Text] Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila said yesterday the Thai Government had granted a visa to Son Sann, the leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front (KPNLF), for him to visit Thailand. He said he sent a telegramme to Son Sann who is now in France yesterday.

Sitthi said he hoped that Son Sann would agree to hold talks with the leaders of the other two Kampuchean resistance forces -- the Khmer Rouge and the Sihanoukists -- on the formation of a coalition government to fight against the Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea.

The minister returned from his brief visit to Malaysia and Singapore on Tuesday. He told reporters that ASEAN had renewed its attempt to get the three factions together either in Singapore or Malaysia to discuss the coalition.

There was a report in a Thai weekly that Thailand had deliberately rejected Son Sann's request for visa to return to his stronghold on the Thai-Kampuchean border after he failed to join Khmer Rouge Premier Khieu Samphan and Prince Sihanouk in Beijing in early February.

Sitthi said he understood that there was some progress towards forming an anti-Vietnamese coalition made in the Beijing talks and he was sorry that Son Sann did not take part. But he denied that Thailand had withheld visa for Son Sann in order to pressure him to join in the talks over the coalition. He said no request for visa had been received from Son Sann.

Son Sann is now waiting in Paris to return to his base on the Thai-Kampuchean border where around 8,000 of his followers recently came under heavy attack by Vietnamese forces. The former Kampuchean premier has also called on the Khmer Rouge to come up with a new initiative before he would agree to join the tripartite talks.

However, Khmer Rouge Minister for Finance and Economy Thiounn Thioum declared in Bangkok last week that the Khmer Rouge would not make any more concessions.

VOFA VIEWS SRV BORDER CHARGES, NEGOTIATION OFFERS

BK011258 Bangkok Voice of Free Asia in English 1100 GMT 1 Apr 82

[Unattributed commentary: "An Insight Into Vietnamese Propaganda"]

[Text] Last week Vietnam and the puppet regime it set up in Kampuchea had once again accused Thailand of violating Kampuchean airspace and of firing into Kampuchean territory. Needless to say, the truth speaks for itself that Thailand has never done as has been alleged. Nevertheless, this kind of allegation has still been made over and over again against Thailand by Vietnam. Although Thailand has made explicitly known all along its categorical denial, Vietnam never seems to give up making repetitive, unfounded accusations against Thailand, perceptively with hope that regular and persistent orchestration of propaganda about Thai-Kampuchean border tension over a period of time will eventually create an illusion in the eyes of the world that such tension exists in actuality and is a major issue. Indeed, without realizing it, it is possible that we may one day find ourselves caught in such a Vietnamese trap.

Vietnam has still (?put) so much effort into diverting world attention from the root cause of the Kampuchean problem, which is the overthrow of the legitimate government of Kampuchea by its military force and its occupation of Kampuchea which is opposed by the indigenous Kampuchean people. It has attempted to draw world attention to the Thai-Kampuchean border tension as being the heart of the problem and that the problem is between Thailand on the one hand and Vietnam and the Heng Samrin regime, which it set up, on the other. But Thailand is not involved in the conflict in Kampuchea, although it is severely affected by Vietnamese aggression in Kampuchea.

The new influx of 6,000-7,000 innocent Kampuchean people into Thailand, mostly women and children, as a result of the recent clash between Vietnamese forces and the Kampuchean nationalist resistance group on 17 March this year is but one example clearly illustrating the extent to which Thailand, as a party not involved in the internal conflict in Kampuchea, has to unjustifiably bear the burden caused by the Vietnamese war of aggression in Kampuchea. This new wave of Kampuchean refugees into Thailand adds to the existing heavy burden befalling Thailand in taking care of thousands of Kampuchean refugees who have entered the country over the last few years.

Until now, Vietnam has persistently made its diplomatic move to create its image as a peacemaker by putting forward various proposals which would lure the world into believing its sincerity to solve the Kampuchean problem. But such proposals are only a deception, for instance, the Vietnamese proposal to establish a demilitarized zone along the Thai-Kampuchean border. Considering the fact that the Kampuchean conflict is the armed struggle between the invading Vietnamese army and the Kampuchean nationalist resistance group, then it is far more appropriate that such a demilitarized zone be set up along the Vietnamese-Kampuchean border.

Furthermore, Vietnam has also proposed negotiations between Thailand and the so-called Indochinese states in order to make an impression that there exists a conflict between Thailand and these states. To make this ploy appear more realistic, Vietnam, together with its followers, has launched a propaganda campaign accusing Thailand of violating Kampuchean territory.

It is well known that Vietnamese aggression against and occupation of Kampuchea, which constitute the root cause of the Kampuchean problem, not only violate the UN Charter and international law but also have caused international tensions having repercussions well beyond the region, thus endangering the peace and security of Southeast Asia. The Vietnamese proposals therefore only call for the treatment of the end results which Vietnam itself has created and is trying to gloss over the real source of all the troubles, which is the use of force to occupy Kampuchea.

Vietnam has also declared that it has to maintain troops in Kampuchea because of the Chinese threat and it could not withdraw its troops until the Chinese threat ceased. Given this, Vietnam's call for a settlement with Thailand, which is not a party to the conflict but nevertheless suffers great loss and damage from the Vietnamese action in Kampuchea, is clearly misdirected and not relevant.

It should be noted that all Vietnamese schemes concerning Kampuchea are masterminded for a particular objective, which is to compel the world to accept the irreversibility of its aggression against Kampuchea, and hence to give Vietnam a free hand over the Kampuchean issue. The world also fully realizes that, since Kampuchea is potentially a main source of food supply to Vietnam, another reason for Vietnam to send its troops into Kampuchea was in fact to exploit that country's rich natural resources. In this way, the economic power base of Vietnam would be expanded, which is part of its master plan to become the dominant power in Indochina and the region.

PRASONG REPORTS DRUG-SUPPRESSION TALK WITH BURMA

BK311613 Bangkok Domestic Service in Thai 1300 GMT 31 Mar 82

[Press statement given by Secretary General of the National Security Council Sqn Ldr Prasong Sunsiri on 31 March after returning from Burma with the Thai delegation led by Deputy Prime Minister Gen Prachuap Suntharangkun -- recorded]

[Text] The Thai delegation led by the deputy prime minister had frank talks with the Burmese side. We exchanged views on narcotics suppression on the basis of our mutual interests. The topics of our discussion which I can report to you are the following:

First, we agreed tnat border operations to prevent and suppress narcotics production and smuggling must be on a continual basis. Second, we agreed on the exchange of useful information for our efforts in narcotics prevention and suppression. Third, we agreed that if an emergency arises requiring our close cooperation in narcotics suppression, we would enter into direct contact immediately in order to consult on each matter. Fourth, we discussed the crops substitution program. The long-term result of narcotics suppression depends on prevention. This is very important. We must prevent our people and especially our youths from becoming victims of drug addiction. This measure is no less important than suppression. On the four points I have made, I would like to report to you that Burma has clearly expressed its sincere desire to cooperate with Thailand in solving the problems.

Also during our talks, the Thai deputy prime minister mentioned to the Burmese side our concern for MATUPHUM newspaper journalist, Thawip Kaenthapthim, who disappeared during a trip to cover the Thai Government's campaign against Khun Sa, and whose fate is still unknown. We asked Burma to help us check into the matter because not only the Thai Government, but also the Thai people and the family of Mr Thawip himself are worried about his fate.

CPT REPORTEDLY ELECTS UDOM SISUWAN AS LEADER

BK270707 Bangkok MATICHON in Thai 27 Mar 82 pp 1, 12

[Text] A report from high-level military sources revealed that the Communist Party of Thailand had already opened its fourth congress during which Udom Sisuwan was elected to be the new secretary general to replace the former CPT secretary general, Mit Samanan. The report said that Udom was elected because of his achievements in compromising conflicts within the party and his ability in working with the party's front organizations. Wirat Angkhathawon or "Chang Yuan," who was earlier expected to replace Mit Samanan, failed to win the election and is now living in the PRC.

The CPT held its first, second and third congresses in 1942, 1952 and 1962, respectively. Normally, the party held a congress every 10 years.

A group of army senior officers has proposed to Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon that he grant amnesty to all CPT members to commemorate the celebration of the Bangkok bicentennial and to give them an opportunity to contribute to the development of the country.

Prime Minister Gen Prem Tinsulanon said during an interview on 26 March that amnesty would be granted to all convicts. However, he said he could not recall whether the amnesty would cover the offenses against national security, the monarchy and violations of the narcotics law. The prime minister said: "The amnesty will be effective on 5 May. It is not good to let them out for the time being."

Commenting on this matter, National Assembly President Air Chief Marshal Harin Hongsakun said an amnesty has been in effect since the government of former Prime Minister Gen Kriangsak Chamanan, but the communist terrorists have not yet given themselves up to the government. Asked if an amnesty law should be passed for communist terrorists, Air Chief Marshal Harin said an amnesty law is meant to save the guilty from punishment. Those who are not guilty need no amnesty. The people who have come out on the government side have not been punished. Moreover, the government has even helped find a career for them.

Air Chief Marshal Harin noted: "We should take the opportunity provided by the Bangkok bicentennial to create unity so that we can help each other develop the country. Why should we fight and kill each other? If they realize that they have chosen the wrong path, they should come out and surrender."

He said: [Begin recording in Russian fading into translation] "Dear Comrade Le Duan, dear Vietnamese friends, dear comrades: I believe that all the guests present are of the same opinion in that we would like to congratulate our Vietnamese friends on the successful conclusion of the Fifth VCP Congress. In the past few days, all of us have participated in and witnessed the work of this congress which proceeded with clearly defined objectives. This congress was a congress of the unity of will and views. It testified eloquently to the party's unity and unanimity and to the ever-closer unity of views between the party and the masses.

"The congress asserted strongly that the heroic Vietnamese people now have a true and tried leadership which is prestigious and is clearing the way for advancement to a bright future. This leadership is none other than the VCP.

"It can be said unreservedly that your congress was not only a great event in the history of the SRV but also a great event in international activities. The congress came up with strong solutions to various problems -- which are regarded as not simple -- now facing the new revolutionary stage. It set forth many relatively heavy tasks and rather complex yet practicable goals, and illustrated the bright prospects for national development for the 1980's.

"Dear comrades, from the depth of our hearts, we wish you comrades greater successes in implementing all the plans already laid down by your party. All the resolutions of your congress brilliantly reflect the absolute loyalty of the Vietnamese communists for the causes of Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism. The Vietnamese communists and people have expressed their determination to constantly strengthen their friendship and alliance with their fraternal parties and countries and to consolidate their militant solidarity with various revolutionary organizations of the world's working class and with various national liberation forces.

"As your friends and like-minded people, we are very pleased that now as always, we will continue to advance together in a unified crusade to our sacred objective which is to struggle for the well-being of all nations and for peace and socialism. Allow me to warmly congratulate all those Vietnamese comrades who have just been elected to various leading organs of the party. NHAN DAN REVIEWS, HAILS VCP CONGRESS SUCCESS

[NHAN DAN 1 April editorial: "The Entire Party, People and Armed Forces Single-Mindedly and Valiantly Advance To Turn the Congress Resolutions Into Revolutionary Reality"]

[Text] The success of the Fifth VCP Congress is a great source of encouragement for our entire party, people and the armed forces. Proceeding from the slogan: "All for the socialist fatherland and for the people's happiness," the congress has solved important questions of strategic significance regarding the line, policy and program of action. It has solved urgent problems concerning the economy and the people's daily life in order to advance the Vietnamese revolution steadily on the path of socialism.

Integrating the wisdom of the entire party and demonstrating the aspiration of the people in a spirit of single-mindedness and a sense of responsibility, the congress profoundly analyzed the multifaceted situations of the nation, affirmed the correct line, pointed out errors and shortcomings, set forth tasks, orientations, targets, policies and measures to develop the revolution in the immediate future.

The congress unanimously adopted the VCP Central Committee's political report, affirmed the correct line of the fourth congress, highly valued the party Central Committee's leadership, led by esteemed General Secretary Le Duan. It highly assessed the great achievements of our revolution, commended our people and combatants for upholding the tradition of heroism in the cause of national construction and defense and in maintaining security and social order. The congress also unanimously adopted other important reports on orientations, tasks and main targets in the economic and social fields; on party building and amendment of party statutes.

The unity and identity of views of the congress is of great significance and is a firm guarantee for the success of the revolution. The single-mindedness within the entire party and the close links between the party and the people constitute our invincible strength in building socialism successfully, defending our socialist fatherland firmly, and in stabilizing and improving the people's daily life triumphantly. This is the most essential requirement to overcome all difficulties and ordeals in order to score new and glorious achievements.

Our congress is elated and confident in the fraternal countries, parties and international friends for their encouragement and wholehearted support. This is also a very important guarantee for our victory. The support given by the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea and other fraternal countries in the socialist community remains the primary factor for the success of the Vietnamese revolution.

The congress elected leading organs led by Le Duan, outstanding inheritor of esteemed President Ho Chi Minh, who symbolizes our entire party's wisdom and determination. It highly valued the great contributions made by veteran party members for the cause of national liberation and socialism who, upholding the lofty communist ideal, voluntarily retired from important posts in the party Central Committee which are now filled by younger successors.

Showing the full sense of responsibility for the nation and the people's fate and future, the Fifth VCP Congress firmly and scientifically set forth various strategic tasks and basic targets of the socialist revolution in the present stage and vital policies and measures to implement these tasks and fulfill these targets.

The congress also set forth the foundation of international relations and foreign policies of our party and state on the basis of strengthening relations with the Soviet Union, Laos, Kampuchea and other fraternal countries in the socialist community in the common struggle for peace, national independence, democracy and socialism against imperialism, led by U.S. imperialism, and the great Han hegemonism.

The resolutions of the congress are the principal lines of immediate action and our economic and social strategies. These lines and strategies will guide us in our struggle through various revolutionary programs of action to be carried out by our entire party, people, the armed force, sectors, provinces, cities, districts, precints and all grassroots units in order to fulfill the two strategic tasks and the four revolutionary aims triumphantly.

The new tasks, through which millions of people will turn the congress resolutions into reality, must be satisfactorily organized. As organizer for all victories of our revolution, our party must persistently increase its activities and struggle capabilities.

The resolution on party building must be scrupulously implmented by all party organizations, cadres and party members in order to ensure that our party is always a worthy leader, a faithful servant of the people and the vanguard Marxist-Leninist party of the revolution.

In his speech at the closing ceremony of the fifth party congress, esteemed General Secretary Le Duan stressed: Ahead of us lies a diffcult and complex struggle. However, our entire party, people and armed forces are being reinforced with a new vitality brought about by the historic congress resolutions. We are determined to implement fully the sacred testament of our great President Ho Chi Minh. No opposing force can check our advance.

With the new way of thinking, the new working method and new efforts, we are determined to translate the resolutions of the fifth party congress into lively reality.

All for the socialist fatherland and the people's happiness.

HUNGARY'S MAROTHY ADDRESSES FRIENDSHIP RALLY

AU311813 Budapest NEPSZABADSAG in Hungarian 30 Mar 82 p 3

[Hanoi correspondent "D. P." report on address by Laszlo Marothy, member of the MSZMP Politburo and head of the MSZMP delegation attending the Fifth Congress of the Vietnamese Communist Party (VCP), at a 29 March friendship rally in Hanoi]

[Text] On Monday the MSZMP delegation participating in the congress met with activists of the district at the party school of the Hoan Kiem district of the capital at a mass friendship rally.

"On behalf of the MSZMP Central Committee, all members of our party and the Hungarian people as a whole, I respectfully salute your party's congress and Central Committee, the Vietnamese communists and your country's working people," Laszlo Marothy, head of the Hungarian delegation, began his speech.

"Our delegation listened with great attention and interest to the political report of the VCP Central Committee submitted by Secretary General Le Duan, which, with the exactitude of of the science of Marxism-Leninism, provides a comprehensive and realistic analysis of the experiences of the period that has elapsed since the fourth congress, and the triumphs and achievements of your revolution. In conformity with the conclusions of the report, we Hungarian communists also regard as being of historical significance that, as a result of the victory achieved, in a heroic struggle over several decades, over the imperialist aggressors, the homogeneous Socialist Republic of Vietnam, a bastion of socialism in Southeast Asia, has been established. The correctness of the resolutions of the Fourth VCP Congress is born out, and your people's dilligence and moral values are extolled, by the fact that, under the direction of the Central Committee, under particularly difficult circumstances and despite a constant external threat and an imperialist blockade, you have achieved considerable results in restoring the war-stricken economy, improving the technical standard of your industry and agriculture and your people's health and cultural standard, and shaping their socialist awareness. We greatly continue to value the consistent firmness of principle and steadfastness that has been and is being displayed by the VCP in the face of the political and military aggression of the Beijing hegemonists. Together with all honest people of good intentions, we look with sympathy and solidarity on the internationalist assistance that has contributed to the Kampuchean people's victory over the genocidal Pol Pot regime. We know that, shoulder to shoulder with the people of Laos, which is embarking on the socialist path, and revolutionary Kampuchea, even today you must make more than minor sacrifices to defend your peaceful constructive work and parry the attacks threatening peace in Indochina.

"The frankness, sincerity and critical and self-critical tone with which the Central Committee report dealt with the difficult economic situation that has developed in the country, and the reasons for it, have elicited the esteem and respect of all members of our delegation. We are convinced that the strategic guideline laid down as the task of economic construction in the political report, coupled with the Vietnamese peoples' devoted work and legendary diligence in the course of implementation, will be able to overcome the present tribulations and master the difficulties. As before, you will be able to count on the solidarity and internationalist assitance of our party and the Hungarian communists in the future as well.

"Your congress is being held under historical conditions in which, because of the critical phenomena of the capitalist world and the policy of the imperialist powers, the international situation has become more tense.

"The United States is striving to change the military balance of power of the world to its own advantage; to halt the advance of the forces of socialism, revolution and social progress by force; and to force its will upon them. As a result of such attempts, new critical points and tinderboxes of war have arisen.

International tension is being enhanced by foreign political steps, bearing witness to nationalistic-hegemonistic aspirations, of the Beijing leaders and their overt cooperation with imperialism, disregarding the genuine interests of the Chinese people and constituting a grave danger for the peoples of the world. The socialist countries' cohesion and consistent peace policy are of particular importance in this international situation.

"The repeated peace initiative of the Soviet Union constitute a rational basis for restraining the arms race and resolving other pressing world problems. We support these proposals, because they express our people's interests as well, and we urge their realization as soon as possible. We condemn the attempts of the imperialist powers to shift the burdens of the political, economic and social crisis that has been afflicting the capitalist system on the countries of the socialist community and the developing world, and to worsen the international atmosphere by unleashing new conflicts." In this connection, he condemned the attacks leveled by the imperialists at People's Poland, and continued by emphasizing: "We are in solidarity with your struggle and support the Indochinese peoples' aspiration to being able to work in peace to make their fatherland prosper. We are convinced that the proposals of the conferences of the Indochinese countries' foreign ministers offer a rational solution for diffusing the tensions that have developed in the Southeast Asian area and for restoring good-neighborly relations. We condemn the threats and provocations that endanger peace in the Caribbean area and are directed at isolating Cuba, which is building socialism, and revolutionary Nicaragua; and at continuing the neocolonialist oppression of other Central American peoples that struggle against genocidal dictatorships.

"Our parties and peoples are linked by the common nature of our struggle, Marxism-Leninism -- the great ideal of our age -- proletarian internationalism and the cause of socialism. Both the MSZMP and VCP are interested in intensifying relations among the communist and workers parties and consolidating the unity of our movement. Our bilateral relations are developing in the spirit of comradely concord and fraternal cooperation, and are becoming more and more diverse. Shoulder to shoulder, we are advancing on the path of socialist construction and struggling together against the aggressive endeavors of imperialism and for peace and social progress," Laszlo Marothy said in his speech.

GDR, ALBANIAN DELEGATES SPEAK AT MEETINGS

OW011127 Hanoi VNA in English 0736 GMT 1 Apr 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, April 1 -- The chief delegates of the Socialist Unity Party of Germany (S.E.D.) and the Albanian Workers Party addressed mass meetings here on March 29 in honour of the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam.

At the Hanoi Labour Club, Konrad Naumann (S.E.D.) said: 'In spite of major difficulties and very complex conditions, the Vietnamese people, under the leadership of the battle-hardened Communist Party of Vietnam, have embarked on solving basic questions of the socialist revolution and have won new strategic positions in their advance towards socialism. In their staunch fight, the heroic Vietnamese people have checked the scheme of the Chinese leadership and their henchmen to subdue the Socialist Republic of Vietnam by means of military force and to force Vietnam to bow to Beijing's hegemonist ambitions. Today the Vietnamese people are demonstrating their creative power and spiritual strength with concrete deeds in socialist construction in spite of the imperialist embargo and constant threats to their independence from the Beijing leadership's policy. We know that in their socialist construction, your people still have to overcome numerous difficulties and obstacles and to solve many complicated problems.

"However, we are confident that socialism will triumph in Vietnam. This is because at present the heroic Vietnamese people have become real masters of their destiny and are striving selflessly to attain their objectives in socialist construction. This is because they are led by a party, experienced in battle and loyal to Marxism-Leninism, which involves and mobilizes the entire population in an effort to achieve outstanding successes in socialist construction in the spirit of the slogan 'all for the socialist motherland and the people's happiness'. And finally this is because the Vietnamese people have loyal and reliable friends and allies such as the Soviet Union and the other countries in the socialist community."

Gafur Cuci, member of the Central Committee of the Albanian Workers Party, said: "The Vietnamese people waged an exceptionally heroic struggle against the U.S. aggressors and their allies and stooges. Confronted with the big enemies armed to their teeth and their barbarous crimes, the Vietnamese people stood firm, upholding their noble ideals of national independence, freedom and reunification. They defeated the foreign aggressors, swept them out of their country and achieved their national aspirations for liberation and reunification.

"Under the leadership of the Communist Party of Vietnam, always mindful of the teachings of President Ho Chi Minh -- their beloved leader -- the working class and people of Vietnam have mobilized all forces to further develop their successes in their efforts to restore and develop the national economy and to build a new life in their reunified country."

He expressed the Albanian people's joy at the fraternal Vietnamese people's historic victories and wished them further success after this congress so as to achieve their aspirations.

HUNGARIAN TV INTERVIEWS PHAM VAN DONG, TO HUU

LD311114 Budapest MTI in English 1012 GMT 31 Mar 82

[Text] Budapest, 30 Mar (MTI) -- On the occasion of the current session of the Communist Party of Vietnam, the Hungarian television broadcast a 40-minute programme, "Battles in Peace-Time," tonight. Prime Minister Pham Van Dong, member of the Political Bureau of the Communist Party of Vietnam was also interviewed in the programme. Answering a question on Vietnamese-Chinese relations, he stated:

"I think it is well-known that China, together with U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, tries to destroy our socialist achievements by all means. That is why we have to be always ready for crossing hostile schemes, including another Chinese aggression. Our people resolutely safeguard the country and spare no efforts in building socialism and promoting living circumstances. These two tasks are indispensable from each other.

"Vietnam has never been as strong as she is today. It is partially due to our efforts, and to the relations with our friends living close to, or far from, us. In addition, I have to stress it that, as for the Chinese people, we would like to reinstitute the traditional friendship between our nations. We have submitted several reasonable proposals for normalizing the relations between Vietnam and People's Republic of China. It is regrettable that Beijing leaders always rejected our initiatives."

As for the transformation work in the southern region, the prime minister said the following: "As a result of our victories, south Vietnam also follows the road towards socialism. Despite all this, naturally, we still have problems. Changes take longer than a day. I believe that we will succeed to implement the important task of transformation."

To Huu, member of the Political Bureau of the party and vice-premeir of the Council of Ministers, was also interviewed. As for the aid provided by the socialist countries to Vietnam, he said: "Vietnam, as a member of the socialist community, has received particularly significant assistance from the Soviet Union and the other socialist countries. In the time of the patriotic war in the northern region, and after the reunification took place five years ago in the whole Vietnam, they contributed to the reconstruction of the socialist economy and to the continuous strengthening of our defence power. The Soviet Union and the socialist countries, including Hungary, attach special attention to establish good cooperation with Vietnam in many fields. Hungary has planned to construct 80 establishments, and 45 of them have been completed and put into operation so far."

Then, speaking about the underdevelopment of agriculture, disintegration and low technical level, the vice-premier emphasized: "Collectivization in the southern part of the country constitutes a task for the coming years. We make efforts to establish socialist large-scale production gradually. For this purpose, we would like to cultivate several million hectares and to transfer several million workers into agriculture."

VAN TIEN DUNG ADDRESSES VCP CONGRESS 28 MAR

Part One

[Part 1 of Speech by Senior Gen Van Tien Dung, member of VCP Central Committee Political Bureau and head of VPA party organization delegation, at the 28 March session of the Fifth VCP Congress -- read by announcer]

[Text] Esteemed Presidium, comrade delegates and guests: The congresses of party organizations in the entire army have thoroughly discussed and reached a high identity of views with the party Central Committee documents presented to the congress. The identity of views of the entire party is a firm guarantee for the advance of our country's revolution to new victories.

The army's delegation, on behalf of all the party members, cadres, combatants and national defense workers and personnel, wish to extend to the congress their warm greetings, their absolute confidence and their readiness to implement scrupulously the resolution of the congress.

Comrades, the political report presented by Comrade General Secretary Le Duan has correctly assessed the victories and achievements in the cause of national construction and national defense of our people over the past 5 years. The report has highlighted the victories of extremely great historic significance in the two wars for national defense against the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists. As it has become common knowledge by now, the Chinese leaders have, for a long time, systematically carried out numerous insidious schemes and maneuvers against Vietnam so as to realize their expansionist and hegemonist dreams in Southeast Asia. While our people were waging the struggle against the French colonialist and U.S. imperialist aggressors, they pursued a policy of simultaneously giving aid and exerting pressure on us and sought to join hands with imperialism to limit our victory. This was aimed at perpetuating the partition of Vietnam, preventing it from ever becoming stronger and forcing it to depend on them. For this reason Vietnam's total victory in its anti-U.S. war of resistance was not only a heavy defeat for U.S. imperialism but also a bitter debacle for China's ruling clique.

An increasingly prosperous and powerful independent, unified and socialist Vietnam is a major obstacle in the path of China's expansion to the south. It was precisely for this reason that immediately after our people won complete victory, the reactionary Chinese ruling clique, in collusion with U.S. imperialism, carried out many insidious policies and maneuvers, first covertly and then openly, to oppose, weaken and eventually annex the SRV.

A high point in the development of the Chinese reactionaries' hostile policy against Vietnam in the past years was the war of aggression waged by the Pol Pot puppet army in the southwestern border and thereafter the direct attack by 600,000 Chinese troops along the entire northern border of our country.

With its profound experience, our party Central Committee, headed by esteemed Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, accurately and promptly exposed the Maoist reactionaries in the Chinese leadership as the dangerous and direct enemy of the Vietnamese revolution in the new stage. When the armed conflicts started by the Pol Pot clique, China's henchman, gradually developed into a real war on the southwestern border of our country, the party correctly predicted the scheme of the new enemy. At the same time, it pointed out that in making war on our southwestern border, the Pol Pot clique was executing its masters' order and that a Chinese war of aggression to annex Vietnam would certainly take place. Therefore, along with concentrating on quickly achieving victory on the southwestern border, we had to make urgent preparations in all fields to cope with a new aggression in the north.

Following the guideline thus determined and firmly seizing the opportunity, our army and people acted with determination and swiftness. They counterattacked, dealing fitting counterblows to the enemy in the southwest, while assisting the revolutionary forces of the Kampuchean National United Front for National Salvation and the fraternal Kampuchean people in liberating Kampuchea and saving the Khmer nation from the scourge of genocide. When the Chinese army launched its aggressive attacks against the six northern border provinces, our armed forces, together with the people of various nationalities at the border and strongly supported by the entire country, smashed the invasion right on the frontline of the fatherland.

Our people and troops defeated the cruelly aggressive pincer attack of the enemy, winning glorious victories in the two recent wars for national defense. At a turning point of history when the situation was developing in a very complicated and serious manner, our party's determination reflected extreme clear-sightedness. It was very bold and accurate. Those victories of ours also demonstrated the realistic organizational ability of the party and the various sectors and state agencies in time of war from the central down to the local and grassroots levels on the military front as well as in other domains. They effectively supported our cause of national defense.

War is always a general ordeal for a regime and a country. Our victories in the two recent wars reflect the superiority of the socialist regime, and the proletarian dictatorship and collective mastery system which has been gradually established in each locality and throughout the country.

Although our achievements in building the country and consolidating national defense were restricted obviously by the fierce designs of enemy aggression and sabotage, the short time available, objective difficulties and even subjective shortcomings, they already manifest the spiritual and material strength of the new social regime, the great potentials of our country and the traditions of ardent patriotism and heroism of the Vietnamese people in the war for national defense.

Relying on the size of their country with its numerous population and troops and on the advantage of their country's geographical location adjacent to the seas, land and airspace of our country, the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists thought that they could easily subdue the Vietnamese nation. They made a mistake. With the impetus of the historic Dien Hong spirit, all our troops and people once again defied the new challenge and all rose up as one and took up arms to defend their beloved country.

The people throughout the country singlemindedly agreed to withstand sacrifices and hardships continuously, overcome all difficulties and devote all the material assets and manpower to the frontline in order to meet the great and urgent requirements of the two successive wars.

Just as President Ho Chi Minh generally described the patriotic and dauntless traditions of our nation: Since time immemorial, every time the country faced aggression, that spirit was brightly rekindled to become a very strong and momentous wave levelling all difficulties and dangers and sinking both country sellers and invaders.

Under the new socialist regime, that spirit is being developed to the greatest extent reminding the enemy of the historic lesson that heroic Vietnam is a sovereign country, and of a new lesson that the SRV now is inviolable.

Our victories in the two recent wars for national defense were evidently not only military victories. They were the combined results of our achievements in the military, political, economic, cultural and social fields under the new conditions in which our entire country has been unified and is advancing toward socialism.

On behalf of the Vietnamese People's Army, we would like to express the profound gratitude of all combatants to the glorious VCP and to all the beloved people throughout the country who have constantly endured sacrifices and privations in their struggle to create conditions for our troops to mature with every passing day and to win victories. Our people's victories in the two recent wars for national defense resulted from the close association of our national strength with the strength of the new era.

By waging the war of aggression against our country, the Chinese rulers have nakedly exposed their true nature as reactionaries, expansionists and big-nation hegemonists, an effective ally of the imperialists and all kinds of reactionaries; and the dangerous enemy of socialism, peace, national independence, democracy and social progress, and of their own people.

The Vietnamese people's struggle against Chinese aggression was a just cause. They struggled in the interests of their own nation and for the sake of their international obligations. Therefore, we received timely and effective support filled with socialist internationalism from the Soviet Union, a reliable and powerful friend and ally. We have secured an ever closer militant solidarity and alliance with the fraternal Laos and Kampuchea. We have received strong support and sympathy from the other fraternal socialist countries and all the forces struggling for national independence, democracy, peace and social progress in the world.

Conclusion

[Conclusion of speech by Senior Gen Van Tien Dung, member of the VCP Central Committee Political Bureau and head of the VPA party organization delegation, at the 28 March session of the Fifth VCP Congress -- ready by announcer]

[Text] As the political report has pointed out, in the current situation, the revolution in our country can continue to develop and advance only by simultaneously carrying out two strategic tasks: successfully build socialism and stand ready to fight to defend the socialist Vietnamese fatherland firmly.

Concerning the task of standing ready to fight in defense of the fatherland, as the political report has clearly pointed out, we must mobilize the greatest efforts of our entire party, people and army to defeat resolutely the multifaceted war of destruction waged by the enemy. At the same time we must ensure that the country is always prepared and strong enough to vanquish the enemy in any circumstances. We must distinctly realize that the present dangerous and direct enemy of our people and the peoples of the Indochinese countries and the entire Southeast Asia is the Maoist reactionary clique in the Chinese ruling circles. At the same time we must clearly recognize that the basis and long-term enemy of the revolution in our country and the world revolution is imperialism led by U.S. imperialism.

The Vietnamese people have always set great store by their friendship with the Chinese people, but we resolutely stand ready to smash any wild aggressive design of the Chinese ruling clique. We do not commit aggression against anyone, but we are determined to defend the sacred borders of our beloved fatherland. Lenin once said: A revolution can stand firm only when it knows how to defend itself. We have done exactly that. We have committed to our memory President Ho Chi Minh's teaching that whether in peace or in war, we must hold fast to the initiative, foresee the future and be prepared.

In the current situation these teachings have a profound and practical significance. We must constantly uphold vigilance, ceaselessly strengthen our national defense forces and further increase the fighting strength and the level of combat readiness of the armed forces so as to defend the fatherland firmly. National defense strength can be created and increased only on the basis of the general political, economic and cultural strength of the entire country. Therefore, building the nation's potential in all respects is the most basic problem of the task of consolidating national defense.

The delegation of the army's party organizations fully agrees with the general line and the line of economic building laid down by the fourth party congress and concretized by this congress. It fully agrees with the orientation and task of building an all-people, comprehensive and modern national defense system and building the people's army, as stated in the various documents of the congress.

We deeply understand that successfully implementing the revolutionary line in general and the economic line in particular, as well as successfully implementing the main socio-economic orientations, tasks and targets for 1981-85 and for the 80's, is a firm basis ensuring our people's national defense.

The Vietnam People's Army is determined to fulfill its most political task of standing ready to fight and fight victoriously in defense of the fatherland and the people's peaceful labor. At the same time it is determined to participate actively in building the economy and practicing thrift, thereby contributing to stepping up the building of socialism in our country.

The task of consolidating our national defense must be carried out in a special situation. Our people have to cope simultaneously with a multifaceted war of destruction waged by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists in collusion with U.S. imperialism, and to deal readily with a possible large-scale war of aggression. Such a situation has further accentuated the close relations between national defense and security and has made these two factors heavily dependent on the strength of the entire people.

As a common saying goes: National defense and security are one, because both are aimed at ensuring peace inside the country and the inviolability of its borders.

The people's army always seeks to strengthen solidarity and to achieve unity of views with the people, and to work satisfactorily in unity and coordination with the people's public security forces in the cause of consolidating national defense, defending the fatherland and maintaining political security and public order and safety.

The country's potential in all fields is the basis of its national defense might. The task of consolidating national defense, however, has its specific requirements unlike those of the task of national construction. For this reason the organizational role of the state of proletarian dictatorship under the party's leadership in bringing into play the aggregate strength of the entire country and people to carry out satisfactorily the task of consolidating national defense takes on a particularly important significance.

All the problems posed by the task of defending the fatherland, consolidating national defense and building the armed forces must be reflected in the general programs and plans and in state policies. They must also be institutionalized by laws and decrees, ensured by organizational systems and translated into action by the entire people and army and by all sectors from the central to the grassroots level.

The zeal displayed by our people and their armed forces in carrying out their national defense duties is based on their increasing revolutionary consciousness combined with our age-old national tradition of patriotism. Our party and state always apply themselves to fostering this spirit and these sacred sentiments. At the same time, by implementing correct policies, they encourage cadres, combatants and the entire people to zealously build the army and consolidate national defense. There must be a tightly organized system to guarantee fairness and reasonableness and to combine obligation with interest and voluntariness with compulsiveness. These are necessary conditions for creating continuous mass movements in national defense as well as in national construction.

In history, our nation has, on several occasions, defeated foreign aggressors from the north to protect the Vietnamese homeland and to check their expansion to the south resolutely. Over the past century and more, standing on this vanguard land, our people have had to shed an untold amount of blood to win back from the imperialists the right to be the masters of their country and to build a plentiful and happy life. However, the new emperors of China, in collusion with U.S. imperialism, have refused to leave us alone. Fully conscious of our responsibility for the fate of the nation and even that of mankind, our present generation and the next ones are determined to struggle persistently against them to firmly defend the fatherland and the socialist construction of our people.

Our people are continuing our forefathers' fight for self-defense, which has lasted thousands of years, in the conditions and circumstances of modern times. The Vietnamese nation in the second half of the 20th century is vastly different from that of the 13th century when our ancestors fought against the Yuan army; it is unlike the Vietnamese nation in the 15th century when our ancestors struggled against the Ming forces; it is also dissimilar from the Vietnamese nation in the 18th century, when our forefathers stood up against the Qing invaders.

The superior socialist system in our country and the strength of our time have helped to greatly increase the traditional strength of the heroic Vietnamese nation and of the staunch and indomitable Vietnamese people, who have rich experience in national defense.

Our material forces, though not yet fully developed, will certainly be multiplied many times over and developed to the highest level. This is because we have a just cause, absolute political and spiritual superiority, the age-old traditional Vietnamese culture, the all-round and lofty internationalist cooperation of the Soviet Union, the close militant alliance with fraternal Laos and Kampuchea, the solidarity and active assistance of other fraternal socialist countries, and the broad support of our friends around the world. In addition, we have the military science and military art of the war for liberation and war for national defense which have been tried in continuous tests of strength with numerous big and cruel enemies. This military science and military art are continuing to develop with our absorption of the progressive experiences of Soviet military science and military art.

Under the party's leadership and with the belief that nothing is more precious than independence and freedom, our army and people are firmly confident of our certain victory. Our nation will certainly be victorious and will forever be the victor if the enemy is rash enough to lay his hands on our beloved socialist fatherland.

This congress has reviewed the experience gained in the practice of struggle and has set forth the orientations and tasks for the new revolutionary period. We firmly believe that, in light of the resolutions of this congress, the revolution in our country will be successfully built in our country and that the beloved Vietnamese homeland will certainly be firmly defended.

Closely united around the party Central Committee, the Vietnamese people's armed forces promise the congress that they will fully implement the historic resolutions to be adopted by the congress, and that they will always be worthy of the affectionate trust of the people, the party and the SRV state, worthy of the heroic national tradition and of their own glorious history of struggle, and worthy of the boundless love of venerated and beloved Uncle Ho.

We respectfully wish the congress brilliant success. We wish the Presidium, the guests and all the beloved comrade delegates the best of health.

REAGAN, WEINBERGER GIVE ASSURANCE OF SUPPORT

HK020101 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 2330 GMT 1 Apr 82

[Excerpts] The Philippines was assured yesterday of U.S. help in meeting the challenges of peace and freedom in Southeast Asia. The assurance was given to President Marcos by U.S. President Ronald Reagan in a personal letter brought by U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. In his letter to President Marcos, President Reagan said the United States will not fail the Philippines and its allies in Southeast Asia. President Marcos read the letter after receiving it from Secretary Weinberger at Malacanang yesterday.

The letter also said President Reagan is anticipating the visit to Washington by President Marcos. After reading Reagan's letter, President Marcos said the Philippines is honored by the visit of U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who came to the Philippines to discuss defense and military arrangements with the Philippines.

In response Secretary Weinberger said the United States will remain a true friend of the Philippines and is ready to help the country economically, militarily and politically.

As the Philippines presses for a renegotiation of its military bases agreement with the United States, a most significant decision has come out from the U.S. Supreme Court, wholly on labor relations and practices in U.S. bases in the Philippines. The U.S. Supreme Court has unanimously decided that the Philippine-U.S. labor agreement was part of the bases treaty between the two countries. The decision upheld the preference in the hiring of Filipino workers in U.S. bases over American civilians. The Supreme Court ruling said executive agreements should be considered part of treaties for the purposes of American law, even if they are not ratified by the U.S. Senate. The ruling reversed a decision by the U.S. District Court of Appeals last year, which declared that the base labor agreement was not part of the military bases treaty. The controversy arose from the case filed with the U.S. court by two American civilians dismissed from their jobs in the base to give preference to Filipino workers, in accordance with the labor accord.

SUZUKI SUPPORTS REAGAN ON U.S. MILITARY STRENGTH

[Text] Tokyo, April 3 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Saturday expressed his support for U.S. President Ronald Reagan's policy of boosting American military strength.

Suzuki said the Reagan administration's policy is to maintain a military balance with the Soviet Union while seeking a reduction of nuclear weapons. The prime minister said that this policy is based on America's long experience in negotiations with Moscow that no favorable result can emerge unless Washington has balanced military strength with the Soviets.

Suzuki made the remarks at a meeting of the House of Councillors Budget Committee. Two opposition party members asked the prime minister for his views on America's negotiations with the Soviet Union on arms reduction. "I understand the U.S. position that there would be no steady progress in arms reduction when one side (the Soviet Union) has an advantage and tries to contain the other (the United States)," Suzuki said.

Speaking on the campaign against nuclear weapons, the prime minister said "there can be no progress in arms reduction if (one) merely raises (his) voice saying nuclear (weapons) are absolutely evil and that they should be abolished." He also said that he would not condone anyone using nuclear weapons as a means of war, but added that he could not agree with those who say they can not condone nations keeping nuclear arms as a deterrent.

SUZUKI TO URGE REAGAN TO ALLOW OIL RIGS TO USSR

[Text] Tokyo, April 3 (KYODO) -- Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Saturday he will urge U.S. President Ronald Reagan to ratify the United Nations common fund for control stocks of primary products agreement and allow delivery of already ordered oil rigs to the Soviet Union when they meet at the Versailles summit this June. (?Suzuki made) the statements in response to questions by Socialist Party member Shiro Takeda in the House of Councillors Budget Committee meeting.

The agreement was adopted by the United Nations in June 1980 and was to start functioning by the end of March this year. It aims at helping the developing countries by establishing stocks of the primary products they export to help stabilize prices. The project was to be capitalized at U.S. dollar 750 million and financed 70 percent by the developed countries. Although Japan, Great Britain, China and 19 other countries have long since ratified the agreement, the U.S., which is to finance 15 percent of the fund, has postponed ratification, causing anxiety over whether or not it will be realized.

The oil drilling rigs were ordered by the U.S.S.R. for its Sakhalin Island development project. Japan wants the rigs exempted from current sanctions against Moscow because they were ordered before the sanctions took effect.

SOVIET TRANSPORT PLANE VIOLATES AIRSPACE 3 APR

[Text] Tokyo, April 3 (KYODO) -- A Soviet transport plane violated Japanese airspace near a tiny island west of Kyushu Island Saturday morning, the Defense Agency said.

Shortly after 8 a.m. [2300 GMT 2 April] the Soviet Ilyushin IL-62 turboprop plane flew for some two minutes near Torishima Island, some 60 kilometers southwest of the Goto group, officials said. This was the 13th Soviet violation of Japanese airspace since 1967, the officials said. The transport plane was en route home from a regular cargo flight to Vietnam, they said. The Foreign Ministry said it would file a protest with the Soviet Union.

USSR POSTPONES NEGOTIATIONS ON SALMON FISHING

[Text] Tokyo, April 3 (KYODO) -- The Soviet Union has put off negotiations on salmon fishing in Soviet-controlled northwest Pacific waters due to "lack of preparation," officials said Saturday. The talks were due to start in Moscow next Wednesday, but will now start April 13, the officials said.

The Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries Ministry was notified of the postponement Friday through the Soviet Embassy in Tokyo. Japanese Government officials, including Fishery Agency Department Chief Kiichi Inoue, were to leave for Moscow Monday but have been denied Soviet entry visas, the officials said. The agency is trying to ascertain reasons for the rare Soviet move to postpone officially scheduled negotiations.

SAKURAUCHI, FRG MINISTER DISCUSS WORLD ECONOMY

[Text] Tokyo, April 5 (KYODO) -- Japan and West Germany agreed Monday to cooperate in the revitalization of the sagging world economy at important international conferences, including the summit of seven industrial democracies in France. The agreement came during a meeting between Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi and West German Economic Minister Otto Lambsdorff, here to attend the current Trilateral Commission conference in Tokyo.

Stressing that there are many mutual interests between the two countries, Lambsdorff called for close cooperation in the series of important international conferences this year. Other conferences he cited were the ministerial meeting of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) in Paris and the similar meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) in November.

Asked about U.S.-China and Sino-Soviet relations being strained, Sakurauchi said, "Japan is concerned with the Sino-U.S. relations strained by America's proposed sales of weapons to Taiwan and we conveyed our concern to both the U.S. and China." He discounted the possibility of immediate improvement in the Sino-Soviet relations despite Russia's recently soft stance.

PROTEST LODGED ON ALLEGED RIFLE FIRING 2 APR

[Text] Kaesong, April 2 (KCNA) -- The South Korean puppet army fired many rifle shots at personnel of our side at around 14:28 on April 2 at a point about 650 metres south of the military demarcation line Marker No 0617 in the central sector of the front. The bullets fired by the enemy hissed by personnel of our side in their routine work of maintenance and control near our portion of the Demilitarized Zone on the opposite side, seriously threatening their lives.

Such rifle firing by the enemy is not only a wanton violation of the armistice agreement but also a reckless military provocation which may lead to an armed clash between the two sides. It is very ominous that the enemy committed the deliberate rifle firing at our side at a time when the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean military fascists were holding the large-scale "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises against the northern half of the DPRK, turning all their destructive weapons on the North.

Through a telephone notice the senior member of our side lodged a stern protest with the enemy side against such reckless armed provocation and strongly demanded it to take responsible steps lest similar incident should occur again.

RPR STATEMENT SCORES ROK-U.S. SECURITY MEETING

SK040350 (Clandestine) Voice of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification in Korean to South Korea 0300 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Statement by spokesman of the Revolutionary Party for Reunification issued on 1 April -- read by announcer]

[Text] On 30 and 31 March, war maniacs from the Pentagon held the so-called 14th annual South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting in Seoul together with the Chon Tu-hwan clique and held a joint press conference, announcing an 11-point joint communique.

They discussed issues on rapid transfer during wartime of materiel to South Korea, improving the conditions on foreign military sales and developing a cooperative defense industry system to reinforce South Korea's armed forces, promoting the combat capability of the South Korea-U.S. combined forces and continuous staging of South Korea-U.S. joint operational exercises and massive introduction of modern military equipment necessary for modernizing and strengthening U.S. troops in South Korea.

The Pentagon's war maniacs reaffirmed continuous ensurance of South Korea's security with the nuclear umbrella. At the press conference, the notorious Defense Secretary Weinberger raved about U.S. commitment to defend South Korea, making absurd remarks about a fictitious southward invasion, and exhibited the shameless aggressive nature of the U.S. imperialists.

Weinberger's visit and the entire course of the so-called annual South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting clearly showed how adventurous are the maneuvers of the U.S. imperialists who reviewed and affirmed the progress in preparations for a new war in Korea and studied implementation measures, thus attempting to start a war of northward aggression. The U.S. war maniacs maneuvered for war preparation and inspired a war frenzy in the very place where the unprecedentedly large-scale "Team Spirit 1982" war exercises are being staged simulating an attack on the North. This is an intolerable crime deliberatedly destroying and infringing peace and peaceful reunification of the Korean Peninsula.

The Revolutionary Party for Reunification [RPR] sternly denounces and rejects the Security Consultative Meeting between the U.S. imperialists and their lackeys, branding it a vicious challenge to our people's will and the trend of the times.

The annual South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting was concocted by the U.S. imperialists to conceal their aggressive nature and strengthen their combat forces on the pretext of maintaining security and to accelerate war preparations behind the curtain of peace. The security raved about by the aggressors and nation sellers is security for the U.S. imperialists' facist colonial rule, and the peace they talk about is a slogan to conceal their maneuvers for war. Nevertheless, the U.S. imperialists conspire for war on the pretext that the threat from the North against peace and security is increasing. How shameless this is!

It is a typical trick of the U.S. imperialists to persistently adhere to maneuvers for aggression and war while concealing truth and reversing black and white. The U.S. imperialists have been occupying this land for some 37 years in line with such a brigandish theory and implementing unheard-of fascist colonial rule. Thus, they are keenly watching for an opportunity to provoke a northward aggressive war by massively bringing in lethal weapons.

In particular, with the emergence of the Reagan government advocating a policy of strength, the fascist colonial rule and new war provocation maneuvers in South Korea have reached a new peak. The Reagan government, turning South Korea into a terrible terrorism-ridden land of fascism by manipulating the Chon Tu-hwan clique -- filthy national traitors -- even revoked the U.S. troop withdrawal plan so as to retain this land as its permanent colony and military base and legalized the permanent presence of U.S. troops.

Along with this, the Reagan regime is also constantly increasing modern operational equipment, including nuclear weapons, and is repeatedly staging a war exercise in South Korea. Thus it is heightening the situation on the Korean Peninsula. Consequently, South Korea today has become a most tense area in the international arena and the Korean Peninsula has become one of the most dangerous areas where a nuclear war may break out at any time.

It is not necessary to say that the recent annual South Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting was a war meeting leading the intensified aggression and war provocation schemes of the U.S. imperialists to a more grave stage and was a criminal plot exposing their heinous ambition to drive our people to the disaster of a nuclear war.

The U.S. imperialists' war provocation schemes which have today reached the worst stage are by no means accidental. The crisis of the U.S. imperialists' colonial and fascist rule in South Korea is increasing day by day. This has driven the Yankee aggressors into great uneasiness. Further flustered by the arson case of the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan which was staged under the slogan reading "Yankee go home" the U.S. imperialists are running wild to settle the present crisis by bringing the dark clouds of war to South Korea and kicking up the so-called investigation row.

The U.S. imperialists, who hold an atomic bomb in one hand and the signboard of friendship in the other hand, are trying to threaten and menace our people, who have embarked on the road of anti-U.S. and antifascist resistance for national salvation, with the large-scale test war for a northward invasion. At the same time they are cunningly scheming to soothe the anti-U.S. and antifascist sentiment among our people with the row of the so-called centennial anniversary of the diplomatic relations between South Korea and the United States.

However, no matter how hard they may try to use tricks and appeasement, the U.S. imperialists cannot frustrate the indomitable will of our party and people to drive out the Yankee aggressors, to restore sovereignty, to smash fascism and dictatorship, to build a democratic society, to eliminate the dark clouds of war and division and to achieve peace and peaceful reunification; nor can they block the flames of sacred struggle for national salvation.

It is the urgent demand of the people and the times to make the U.S. forces, a curse to democracy and reunification and the source of aggression and war, withdraw from South Korea and to block and frustrate the war provocation schemes of the U.S. imperialists disturbing peace. The U.S. imperialists should immediately stop the frantic rackets for aggression and war as unanimously called for by our people and the progressive peoples of the world and unconditionally and immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along all aggression forces and military equipment, including nuclear weapons.

The Chon Tu-hwan fascist clique, the stooge group of the U.S. imperialists, has revealed this time, too, once again its true color as the vicious flunkey, traitor, splittist and war maniac by begging for the permanent stationing of U.S. forces in South Korea and begging the United States for more military aid. The Chon Tu-hwan ring should not advance along the road of fascism, division and war under the directives of its U.S. boss but should step down from power before it meets its doom.

We will surely punish and smash the U.S. imperialist aggressors and the Chon Tu-hwan ring, who are trying to force colonial rule and subjugation upon the South Korean people, to heighten tension on the Korean Peninsula, to disturb peace, to maximize the fascist and dictatorial rule and to perpetuate national division, and achieve the cause of sovereignty, democracy and reunification without fail.

1 April 1982, Seoul.

NODONG SINMUN BLASTS ROUNDUP OF PUSAN ARSONISTS

SK030552 Pyongyang Domestic Service in Korean 2329 GMT 2 Apr 82

[NODONG SINMUN 3 April commentary: "Outrageous Offensive of Treachery Against Patriotism"]

[Text] The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique carried out frenzied suppression rackets for more than 10 days on the pretext of searching for so-called criminals after the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan was burned while anti-U.S. leaflets reading "U.S. troops should withdraw!" and "We denounce neocolonialism of the United States!" were scattered.

The fascist hooligans, establishing investigation headquarters in Seoul and investigation centers in each province, waged an all-out search operation and fanatically arrested people by mobilizing the police, agents of the Agency for Security Planning, puppet troops, Homeland Reserve Forces, military investigators and even members of the Democratic Justice Party -- a terrorist political party -- and offering a huge reward. They kicked up a commotion by convening government-patronized meetings and student association meetings one after another in colleges, raving about condemnation, elimination and so forth.

Amid such frenzied commotion, the puppet Home Ministry on 1 April announced that it arrested several college students claiming that they are the masterminds in an arson case at the U.S. Cultural Center and in the leaflet dissemination incident. According to a report, the puppets arrested and detained more than 15,500 people in connection with this case. The puppets, viciously raiding their fellow countrymen like a hungry wolf, are fawning upon their masters. It is a well-known fact that the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique hastily apologized to the U.S. imperialists by expressing deep regrets immediately after the incident and pledged to make utmost efforts to capture the criminals.

The puppet home minister on 1 April, again fawning on the U.S. imperialists, said that he will thoroughly eliminate all anti-U.S. factors in South Korea, thus revealing a criminal plot. All this shows clearly that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a group of matchless traitors and national sellers ignoring the destiny of the nation and people and vice puppets retaining power by fawning upon and following the U.S. imperialists.

The Chon Tu-hwan clique loudly raved that the arson at the U.S. Cultural Center is aimed at destroying the friendly relations between South Korea and United States and making U.S. troops withdraw.

The resolute act by the South Korean people is an eruption of their accumulated indignation against the U.S. imperialists' colonial rule. This is an expression of their firm resolution to achieve national honor and sovereignty.

The South Korea-U.S. friendship raved about by the puppets is nothing but a flowery slogan designed to offer South Korea to the U.S. imperialists as their permanent colony and enforce the people into the miserable status of colonial slaves. Through their long, actual experience over 37 years, the South Korean people clearly realize the aggressive and treacherous nature of the South Korea-U.S. friendship habitually raved about by the puppets and are aware of the fact that as long as the U.S. imperialist aggressors remain, neither democratic freedom nor national reunification can be achieved.

It is totally natural and patriotic for the South Korean people and students to rise in a struggle against the aggressors. The stern act of the South Korean people is a just struggle against the fascist terrorist rule by the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique desperately scheming to maintain power by carrying the U.S. imperialists on its back. Nevertheless, it is welding clubs of fascism, branding such patriotic acts as treacherous terrorism ruinous to the nation and creating social unrest. This clearly shows its nature as extremely vicious treacherous nation sellers.

The puppets raved that the South Korean people's struggle is regarded as support for and sympathy with someone's strategy for communizing the South. This is a despicable trick to justify their barbarous suppression. The criminal suppression by the South Korean puppets is a shameless attack against the patriotic people by treacherous nation sellers and is an atrocious fascist challenge to democracy. This is an outrageous act by those who are rejected by the people and deep in crisis. History will never tolerate treacherous acts and fascist repression by wicked nation sellers. The South Korean people, in particular, will not look idly on the treacherous nation-selling crimes of the Chon Tu-hwan puppet clique.

The South Korean people wish to live with freedom and democracy by putting an end to the rule by the aggressors and their lackeys. The arson case at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan and scattering of anti-U.S. leaflets are clear evidence of this.

The Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique should realize that its fascist repression of the patriotic people will only result in inspiring them, just like pouring fuel on a fire. It should act discreetly and step down from power. The U.S. imperialists should immediately withdraw from South Korea, taking along U.S. troops and aggressive weapons including nuclear weapons, before they are dealt even harder blows.

VRPR HITS S. KOREAN EDUCATION MINISTER'S REMARKS

[Unattributed commentary]

[Text] On 2 April the Ministry of Education convened a meeting of the presidents and deans of 97 universities across the country at the Sejong Cultural Center and discussed the problem of guiding students. Addressing the meeting, Education Minister Yi Kyu-ho babbled about establishing comprehensive measures to guide students and creating an academic atmosphere, branding the recent arson case at the American Cultural Center in Pusan as a destructive activity of impure leftist students to disturb society. This is a tyrannical remark to thwart the anti-U.S. and antigovernment sentiment growing on campuses.

As is known, since school began the students' fighting spirit against the United States and the government has increased daily.

The student movement's growth has been signaled by scattering of anti-U.S. and antigovernment leaflets across the country, including Seoul and Pusan, and by demonstrations staged at Yonsei and Koryo University. Frustrated by this, the Chon Tu-hwan ring, which has intensified its vigilance over schools and the inspection of campus activities to prevent the students' antigovernment struggle from boiling over, has suppressed students since the Pusan American Cultural Center was set afire. Taking advantage of the arson case at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan, they have created a whirlwind of suppression on a nationwide scale in Pusan, Seoul, Kwangju and Mokpo and have indiscriminately arrested and imprisoned students they dislike by mobilizing police, agents of the National Security Planning Agency, army soldiers, Homeland Reserve Forces and even members of the Democratic Justice Party. They have kicked up a commotion by arresting and investigating as many as 16,000 students in only a few days in Seoul alone.

This was the Chon Tu-hwan fascist dictatorial group's way to totally smash the students' fighting spirit against fascism and for democratization. The recent meeting of 97 university presidents and college deans was a part of such suppressive maneuvers. In reality, the resolute action by the students who burned the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan was an explosion of pent-up fury against the U.S. colonial rule and an expression of the firm determination to defend national honor and sovereignty. It was also a product of their resistance against the Chon Tu-hwan ring, which is trying to realize its ambition for consolidating its power and for staying in power for a long time while relying on the U.S. masters. This notwithstanding, the Chon Tu-hwan dictatorial group has suppressed a patriotic act by branding it as violence that harms the country and an act creating social unrest. This clearly shows their truculent fascist nature and their true colors of betraying the country and the people.

The so-called leftist-leaning trend babbled about by the Chon Tu-hwan ring means a just antigovernment activity. The so-called comprehensive measure for guiding students means a comprehensive measure for suppressing students. The ideological criticism education they are babbling about means fascist education aimed at enslaving the students as ideological slaves of the military rule. The traitor Chon Tu-hwan's remarks made by Education Minister Yi Kyu-ho at the meeting of 97 university presidents and college deans are an unbearable challenge to the students and our nation and a shameless attack against patriotism and democracy. This is nothing but a desperate effort by the fascist dictator Chon Tu-hwan ring, which has been in an abyss of ruin and has entered an avenue of death.

We do not know of any people who have surrendered to a fascist dictator's tyranny. The students and our people will not lower the flag of resistance until they end the U.S. colonial rule and expel the Chon Tu-hwan ring. They will persistently struggle.

KIM IL-SONG ATTENDS KWP CENTRAL COMMITTEE PLENUM

[Text] Pyongyang, April 5 (KCNA) -- The fifth plenary meeting of the Sixth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea was held on April 3. The plenary meeting was presided over by the great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song, general secretary of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea.

It was attended by the members of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea. Also present were the members and alternate members of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee, members and alternate members of the Central Committee and members of the Central Auditing Commission of the Workers Party of Korea.

SUSPECTS IN PUSAN ARSON CASE OFFICIALLY CHARGED

[Text] Pusan, Korea, April 5 (YONHAP) -- Mun Pu-sik, 23, and three other suspects of the March 18 arson at the U.S. Cultural Center here were officially charged Sunday by the Pusan Metropolitan Police of arson and violation of national security laws. The other three suspects are Kim Un-suk, 24, Kim Hwa-ok, 22, and Pak Chong-mi, 23.

Mun is accused of masterminding the arson, providing the others with gasoline and leaflets. Mun and his female companion Kim confessed to the charges after surrendering last Thursday to authorities in Wonju, Kangwon province.

Suspect Surrenders in Wonju

[Text] Wonju, Korea, April 3 (YONHAP) -- Kim Hyon-chang of South Cholla Province, 32, who was the target of a new police manhunt in connection with the arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan, surrendered to the authorities at an educational institute of the Wonju Catholic Church Friday afternoon.

Kim came to the light as a prime suspect in the arson case during the police interrogation of Mun Pu-sik, who was persuaded to turn himself in Thursday by Catholic fathers here. Kim, who has been wanted by police since the Kwangju civil insurgence in May 1980, surrendered after the police encircled the Catholic educational institute.

Mun allegedly visited Kim at the educational center early this year, leading authorities to believe that Kim was involved in the Pusan arson as well as other crimes, including the dissemination of seditious leaflets at Pusan Women's College. Kim was brought to Seoul Friday for questioning, but his role in the arson was not immediately disclosed. Kim, who has one theft conviction on his record, took refuge in the Catholic educational center more than one year ago.

Catholic Priests Investigated

[Text] Investigation authorities are looking into possible illegal acts by some Catholic priests with the disclosure of the hiding of suspected conspirators in the Pusan U.S. Cultural Center arson in church precincts, it was learned yesterday.

The authorities are closely examining how Kim Hyong-chang, 31, Mun Pu-sik, 23, and Miss Kim Un-suk, 24, were given shelter at the education center of the Catholic Wonju Diocese, informed sources said. The three people were arrested Thursday and Friday after the church informed the authorities of their intention to "surrender."

A National Police Headquarters announcement yesterday strongly indicated that Fr. Choe Ki-sik, director of the education center and administrator of the diocese, was aware of their involvement in the arson. Especially, the authorities were considering it a serious matter that Kim Hyong-chang, suspected of having instigated Mun to the arson and wanted by police for his role in the May 1980 Kwangju riot, stayed in the Catholic education center for the past two years as a lecturer. Another Catholic priest in Chechon, Chungchong-pukto, was found to have provided shelter for a man wanted by police for his illegal protest action in March 1980.

The sources said Fr. Choe of Wonju was being questioned by an investigation authority about his possible law violation in the course of providing protection for Kim Hyong-chang and the two other alleged conspirators in the arson. It was also learned that Fr. Yi Pyong-ton of Chechon would booked on suspicion of concealing a criminal offender.

The NPH announcement said that Kim Hyon-chang had confessed his instigation of Mun to the Pusan arson to Fr. Choe on March 19, the day after the fire. He reportedly told the priest that "a young student is going to jail because of me" with tears.

An authoritative government source said yesterday that anyone found to have harbored the conspirators in awareness of their crime would face criminal punishment regardless of their positions. The Catholic church, which handed Kim over to investigators Friday after they confirmed his location, said in a statement yesterday that the turnover was made out of respect for his intention to surrender to the authorities. The statement in the name of Wonju Diocese Bishop Chi Hak-sun said that the church would do what it could to help the accused, who had been under its protection, by hiring defense lawyers or other means.

The statement released to the press yesterday said that the church "wishes the revelation of truth," stressing that truth should never be covered up or exaggerated. "The Catholic Church of Korea provided protection for Mun Pu-sik and Miss Kim Un-suk, who visited the church. They expressed intentions to surrender to the authorities and the church arranged their surrender last April 1 conveying their genuine desire to officials. The two persons reached the decision in agony over the social controversy and troubles of many fellow students caused by their act and particularly in the sense of guilt for the death of a student," the statement said.

The church also conveyed to the authorities the intention of Kim Hyong-chang to surrender on April 2, the bishop said. Bishop Chi said it was his understanding that Kim was "not directly involved in the incident." "We wish that truth be revealed. It is our position that truth should never be covered up or exaggerated," the statement said.

The bishop said the clergymen were distressed at having to turn over to the authorities people who had walked into the church. "As we hate sin and violence but not the sinner, we intend to do anything we can to help them, such as hiring defense lawyers. As clergymen, we will also pray for them," the bishop said.

Kwangju Arson Suspect Indicted

SK021314 Seoul Domestic Service in Korean 1000 GMT 2 Apr 82

[Text] Chong Sun-chol, suspect in the arson case at the American Cultural Center in Kwangju, was indicted today. The Public Security Bureau of the Seoul District Prosecution Office today indicted Chong Sun-chol, 27, ringleader of the arsonists who set fire to the American Cultural Center in Kwangju, for violating the martial law decrees, laws regulating the possession of guns and gunpowder and arson.

The prosecution office also indicted Kim Pong-chin, 37, head of a branch temple of the Won Buddhist Church in Yongsan and Chong's relative, Chong Chong-hyo, 31, manager of Tonam-dong branch of the Hanil Bank for offering Chong a hiding place.

Chong Sun-chol is suspected of setting fire to the American Cultural Center in Kwangju at 2100 on 9 December 1980.

Kim Pong-chin, head of the Yongsan branch temple of the Won Buddhist Church, is suspected of having offered refuge to Chong from 29 January to 24 March, when Chong was arrested.

Chong Chong-hyo, the suspect's relative, is charged with providing refuge for Chong in his illegally-operated handbag plant from 5 December 1980 until the end of January 1981 and supplying Chong an allowance.

REAGAN'S VIEWS ON U.S.-ROK RELATIONS ANALYZED

SK030802 Seoul TONG-A ILBO in Korean 2 Apr 82 p 2

[Editorial: "On Reagan's Interview -- Korea's Growth Is an Indispensible Condition for ROK-U.S. Defense Treaty"]

[Excerpts] Answering questions in a written interview to the TONG-A ILBO, which marks the 62d anniversary of its founding, in connection with the centennial of the establishment of ROK-U.S. diplomatic relations, U.S. President Reagan revealed a wide range of views on such matters as ROK-U.S. relations, the North-South Korean question, Sino-U.S. and U.S.-North Korean relations, ROK-U.S. trade questions and economic problems in the 1980's.

Stressing the solidity of ROK-U.S. relations in various aspects, President Reagan guaranteed that the United States will not withdraw its troops from the ROK, in order to prevent insecurity and the threat of an outside attack on the Korean Peninsula, and clearly reaffirmed its commitment to the defense agreement.

Mentioning North-South Korean relations, he supported the ROK proposal for a North-South dialogue. He said its success depends on whether the North will abandon its objective of communizing the South and whether it will be willing to take steps toward reconciliation. Advising the ROK to continue taking the initiative in promoting a dialogue between the North and South, he also said that the North and South should at least make efforts to let the separated families inquire after each other's safety and that he believed such a time has come. We do not know whether this is simply his hope or not. We only hope that the United States will exert efforts to make it happen.

What is more, mentioning Sino-U.S. relations, he said that Communist China has been hoping that security and peace is maintained on the Korean Peninsula as well as progress made in promoting a North-South dialogue. He continued to say that it is important for the United States to continue exchanging views with Communist China for stability of the Korean Peninsula and that Communist China has the potential for playing an important role as a mediator. We expect that the United States can possibly urge Communist China to cooperate in promoting a North-South dialogue.

Touching on U.S.-North Korean relations, President Reagan said that the United States is willing to ease relations between the United States and North Korea if Communist China and the Soviet Union, North Korea's major allies, take equivalent measures toward the ROK, thus restating the U.S. policy of reciprocal recognition. He also said that the issue of informal exchange between the United States and North Korea, because of its informal and individual character, is entirely different from formal dialogue and is according to the principle of respecting the right of free individual travel.

In connection with the question of trade between the ROK and the United States, he said that the United States often forgets that the ROK is one of its major trade partners and has been thinking of the ROK only in the context of security. Now that the ROK has grown to be a major trade partner of the United States it will continue to oppose building artificial barriers in the international trade market.

President Reagan also said that he believes the ROK's economic growth is an indispensible condition for achieving mutual goals of the United States and the ROK. To achieve these goals, we think that the United States should take into consideration the difficulties the ROK is undergoing and take selective measures in the field of trade to ease the ROK's difficulties.

PRESIDENT CHON PRAISES HOMELAND RESERVE FORCE

[Text] Seoul, April 3 (YONHAP) -- Korean President Chon Tu-hwan Saturday called upon members of the country's Homeland Reserve Forces to arm themselves with the volunteer spirit and the patriotism of their ancestors to safeguard national security.

In a congratulatory message on the 14th anniversary of the founding of the Homeland Reserve Forces, the chief executive stressed the importance of cooperation between the military, the government and the general public to effectively repel any surprise attack by the enemy.

Noting that North Korea's war preparations were designed to create both rear and frontline battlefields simultaneously, Chon said that protection of hometowns by the reservists was as important as the defense of the 155-mile truce line by soldiers in active service. He said the need for a strong national security force is greater now than when the Homeland Reserve Forces were activated 14 years ago.

The anniversary ceremonies were held at 13 major cities across the country, including eight provincial government seats, and the presidential message was read by mayors and provincial governors.

GOVERNMENT URGES SOLUTION TO JAPANESE LOAN ISSUE

[Text] Seoul, April 2 (YONHAP) -- The Korean Government Friday renewed its call for an early solution to the economic cooperation issues pending between Korea and Japan, including Seoul's request for six billion U.S. dollars from Tokyo. Director Choe Tong-chin of the Foreign Ministry's Asian Affairs Bureau explained the government's position in a meeting at his office with Minister Kunio Kuraoka at the Japanese Embassy in Seoul.

Japan notified Seoul March 19 of the results of its screening of the 11 industrial projects Seoul proposed for the current five-year economic development plan, expressing its reluctance to offer the full six billion dollars in Tokyo's Official Development Assistance (ODA) credits because of present financial conditions.

In the March 19 notification, Japan offered economic cooperation to Seoul in the form of "mixed loans" such as ODA loans for piped water systems and five other social infrastructure projects, loans from Japan's Export-Import Bank for subway construction in Pusan and two other projects, and loans from the Asian Development Bank or from the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development for housing and road construction projects.

The Korean Government maintains that all 11 proposals are key social infrastructure projects, and that Japan should finance them with long-term low-interest ODA credits, or terms of a similar nature.

Director General Choe stressed the necessity of 2.5 billion-dollar commodity loans, saying that the loans will help offset Korea's worsening international payments position, which is primarily caused by Korea's growing trade deficit with Japan. Choe said, however, that the terms of the loans are unreasonable in view of the special relations between Seoul and Tokyo.

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY PANEL ENDS RICE IMPORT INQUIRY

[Text] The nine-man subcommittee of the National Assembly Economy-Science Committee actually completed its work of inquiring into the real state of foreign rice imports in its ninth meeting yesterday. The rival members of the subpanel are expected to be at loggerheads with each other over how to write the report since the minority Democratic Korea Party plans to insist that a final conclusion on the alleged rice deal payoff scandal be deferred.

Its plan was decided on in a joint meeting of its members on the subpanel and floor leader Rep. Yim Chong-ki yesterday. Rep. Yim claimed that the truth of the alleged kickback scandal was yet to be determined, pointing out that the case was now on trial in the United States. "Therefore, the subpanel must hold back its conclusion on the case," he said.

During the ninth meeting, the subpanel members inquired of the deputy premier-economic planning minister about the improvement of rice import methods. They urged the government to ensure the farmers' interest in the course of deciding on its purchases of rice and barley.

Especially, the minority party members asked the top economic planner whether the government intended to form a "foreign rice import corps" with representatives from all walks of life as its members.

Deputy Premier Kim said in his testimony that the government planned to save for an emergency the 370,000 tons of U.S. rice to be imported this year. He said, "It is hard for the government to export the American rice to third countries because of last year's bumper crops in major rice producing nations."

GOVERNMENT TO REDUCE OIL, COAL IMPORTS IN 1982

[Text] The Energy-Resources Ministry has decided to scale down this year's energy supply-demand program because of decreasing energy consumption, ministry sources said yesterday. According to the sources, the government forecast that oil consumption would decrease by 5.8 percent to 173 million barrels from the originally projected 180 million barrels this year. With the 5.8 percent demand cut, the government is expected to reduce supplies of oil products by 5.6 percent to 187 million barrels from the 196 million barrels.

During the first two months of this year, oil consumption fell by 12 percent from the year-earlier level. To re-arrange the supply program, the government has been negotiating with Kuwait on curtailing by half oil imports from Kuwait. The 100,000 barrels-per-day supply contract with Kuwait expired March 31 this year.

In the case of coal, coal inventories amount to 7,700,000 tons at present and its consumption declined by some 10 percent during the first three months of this year, compared with the record in the first quarter of last year. To prepare for the sagging demand, the government readjusted coal demand downward to 20,670,000 tons from the originally set 22,800,000 tons. In accordance with the reduction, anthracite imports will be slashed from 3,850,000 tons to 2,240,000 tons this year.

During the first two months of this year, electricity consumption increased by 4.4 percent above the same period of last year, compared with the expected 6.5 percent increase. Therefore, the sources said, electricity sales for this year were trimmed by 3.1 percent from 38,820 million kilowatts to 37,600 million kilowatts.

COVERAGE OF CONGO FOREIGN MINISTER NZE'S VISIT

Heng Samrin Meeting

BK031015 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 0400 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] Comrade Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee and chairman of the Council of State, received in audience at the former royal palace at 1400 on 2 April a high-ranking Congolese delegation led by Comrade Pierre Nze, member of the Congolese Labor Party Central Committee Political Bureau, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee and minister of foreign affairs and cooperation of the People's Republic of the Congo.

Speaking on the occasion, Comrade Heng Samrin expressed warm welcome to the delegation's visit to the PRK which clearly reflects the firmer bonds of solidarity, friendship and cooperation between the parties, governments and peoples of the two countries. Comrade General Secretary Heng Samrin expressed profound thanks to the Congolese party, government and workers for their support to the just struggle of the Kampuchean people. At the same time, Comrade Heng Samrin exposed the genocidal crimes of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique and the maneuvers of the reactionary Khmer in exile, namely, Sihanouk and Son Sann, particularly the maneuvers of the Beijing hegemonist-expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists aimed at undermining the Kampuchean revolution and returning to commit aggression and massacre the Kampuchean people. The comrade stressed that the situation in Kampuchea is definitely irreversible.

In his reply, Comrade Pierre Nze expressed great joy over the warm reception accorded the delegation by the Kampuchean party, government and people. He said that through its visit, the delegation has come to understand the real situation in Kampuchea. The comrade promised that upon returning to his fatherland, he would further support the PRK in the international arena, particularly by publicizing the realities in Kampuchea to the nonaligned countries.

Talks With Hun Sen

BK031600 Phnom Penh in French 0457 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 3 Apr (SPK) -- The Kampuchean delegation led by Hun Sen, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs of Kampuchea, held cordial talks on Thursday, 1 April, with the Congolese delegation led by Pierre Nze, member of the Congolese Labor Party Central Committee Political Bureau, chief of the Foreign Relations Department and minister of foreign affairs. The two sides reached a complete identity of views on all matters raised during the talks, particularly in the strengthening of the bonds of friendship between the two parties and peoples in the interest of the two countries. An evening reception was organized in honor of the Congolese delegation. On this occasion, Hun Sen stressed that the Congolese delegation's visit to Kampuchea is a new step in the consolidation and expansion of the bonds of friendship and fraternal solidarity between the Kampuchean and Congolese peoples.

The rebirth and steady progress of the PRK advancing toward authentic socialism, he went on to say, are attributable to the efforts of the people and government under the just leadership of the KPRP and to the timely and precious assistance of the peoples of Vietnam, Laos, the USSR and other fraternal socialist countries, of the peace-loving progressive peoples and of the international organizations.

Kampuchea's minister of foreign affairs denounced the maneuvers of Beijing expansionism which, in collusion with U.S. imperialism, is grossly interfering in the internal affairs of the PRK.

The minister of foreign affairs affirmed the desire of the three nations of Kampuchea, Vietnam and Laos to cooperate with their neighbors, with the intention of turning Southeast Asia into a zone of peace and cooperation in contribution to peace and stability in the world.

The Kampuchean people, he stressed, aspire to live on good terms with the peace and justice-loving neighbors. They maintain solidarity with the peoples of Asia, Africa and Latin America who are fighting for independence, peace, democracy and social progress.

He highly appreciated the firm position of the People's Republic of the Congo against racism and apartheid in South Africa and, on behalf of the party and government of the PRK, expressed deep thanks to the Congolese party, government and people for their support for the Kampuchean people's struggle to defend national independence and build a new Kampuchea.

For his part, Congolese Minister Pierre Nze affirmed the Congolese people's friendship and solidarity with the Kampuchean people in their struggle for national independence and sovereignty. COVERAGE OF VISIT BY FRANCE'S PAUL LAURENT

Chea Soth at Banquet

BK031009 Phnom Penh SPK in French 0506 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 3 Apr (SPK) -- The KPRP and the government hosted a reception in Phnom Penh on Friday [2 April] in the presence of Chea Soth, member of the Political Bureau, in honor of the French Communist Party [PCF] delegation led by Paul Laurent, member of the PCF Political Bureau and secretary of the Central Committee. Hor Nam Hong, deputy minister of foreign affairs of the PRK, was present at the reception.

In his speech, Chea Soth declared that this visit constitutes convincing proof of the bonds of internationalist solidarity between our two countries in the interest of consolidating the socialist community, national liberation movement and proletarian class in the world. He stressed that the KPRP and the Kampuchean people appreciate the successes of the PCF, especially its 24th congress and its participation in the present government.

The historic evolution of French society has reached a new stage, that of the decisive struggle for the gradual establishment of a socialist regime in France in conformity with the sacred aspiration of the French working class and people, he stressed.

Touching on the situation in Kampuchea, the Kampuchean leader unmasked the ambition of the Chinese ruling circles. At present, he said, the Beijing ruling circles continue to feed the political corpse of Democratic Kampuchea and join together Pol Pot, Ieng Sary, Khieu Samphan and other reactionary Khmer forces to oppose the rebirth and national construction of the Kampuchean people.

He recalled the good-willed foreign policy of the PRK and expressed regret that the efforts of the PRK as well as those of Vietnam and Laos have run into big obstacles due to the policy of aggression and interference in other people's internal affairs practiced by China's big-nation expansionist-hegemonist forces wh h seek to block the trend toward negotiations between the group of ASEAN countries and that of Indochina and to break the solidarity of the countries of Indochina, provoking permanent tension in order to carry out their expansionist and hegemonist design in the region.

On his part, Paul Laurent affirmed the support of the PCF for the policy of the PRK in its revolutionary work and stressed that the PCF is opposed to the presence of the Pol Pot representatives at the United Nations. The evening ended with an artistic performance.

Talks With Hun Sen

[Text] Phnom Penh, 2 Apr (SPK) -- Hun Sen, member of the Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs of the PRK, today held talks in Phnom Penh with the delegation of the French Communist Party [PCF] led by Paul Laurent, member of the Political Bureau and secretary of the PCF Central Committee.

Minister Hun Sen talked about Kampuchea's development in all fields since liberation from the bloody Pol Pot regime. Despite the consequences left behind by the genocidal regime of the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary clique, the Kampuchean people were able to eliminate famine and have been reborn. Security has been reestablished all over the country, except on the Kampuchean-Thai border, where tension continues because of the support given to the Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan hangmen and other reactionary Khmer by Thailand.

Minister Hun Sen thanked the PCF for its support for the PRK which has encouraged the Kampuchean people in their revolutionary labor.

Paul Laurent reaffirmed the PCF support for Kampuchea's revolutionary cause and vigorously condemned the clique of Pol Pot and Ieng Sary, assassins of 3 million Kampucheans. He also reaffirmed the PCF position to aid the Kampuchean people in their national reconstruction efforts.

Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs Hor Nam Hong attended the meeting.

HENG SAMRIN SENDS GREETINGS TO HUNGARY'S KADAR

BK040953 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 0400 GMT 4 Apr 82

[Text] Comrade Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee and chairman of the Council of State, recently sent a message to Comrade Janos Kadar, first secretary of the Hungarian Socialist Workers Party Central Committee, and Comrade Pal Losonczi, president of the Presidential Council of the Hungarian People's Republic, greeting them on the 37th anniversary of Hungary's liberation day. The message says:

in this latest decade I notice that some progressive, capitalist countries have been concerned about their security and the future of their national economy. But Hungary has not faced this, that is, it has not had to concern itself with economic and social problems. The rising standards of living of the Hungarian people clearly indicate the wise leadership of the Hungarian party and government, with the comrades as the leaders.

I would like to reaffirm to the comrades that the Kampuchean party, government and people are always prepared to struggle shoulder to shoulder with the fraternal Hungarian party, government and people in order to improve the world situation. I am very happy to see that the bonds of friendship and cooperation between our two countries and peoples have developed in the interest of socialism and peace. I am convinced that these relations will flourish further.

THAI CREW MEMBERS FROM FIVE BOATS FREED

[Text] Phnom Penh, 31 Mar (SPK) -- The people's revolutionary power of Kampuchea recently freed 76 Thai captured by the Kampuchean authorities when they were fishing the territorial waters of the PRK. They are the crew members of six fishing boats from the Thai province of Trat captured in the bay of Kompong Som.

The 520-hp boat No 2233 was captured 4 km north of Koah Rong on 18 February 1982, carrying 25 persons on board. It was equipped with, among other things, radar and a pair of field glasses. The 520-hp boat No 1887 was captured on the same day 5 km west of Kaoh Rong with a 25-man crew. The 360-hp boat No 218 was captured east of Koah Pring, a 240-hp boat was captured near Kaoh Rong and the 62-hp and 250-hp boats no 1832 and 0809 respectively were captured near the port of Kompong Som. The latter boat had a crew of 11 persons.

These Thai admitted that they had illegally entered Kampuchean territory. Heng Sucharit, 48, pilot of boat No 2233 and resident of Bang Mot, Bang Mot District (Thailand); Som Pho, 30, resident of Tha Chalom, Muang District, Samut Sakhon Province, pilot of boat no 1887; Winit, pilot of boat No 1843; and Chan Banchitbunchai, 23, pilot of boat No 0809, thanked the people's revolutionary power of Kampuchea for the manner in which they were treated during their capture.

Before releasing them, the people's revolutionary power of Kompong Som City supplied them with foodstuffs.

This is another proof of the good will of the PRK, which has always pursued a policy of peaceful coexistence and respect for the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the neighboring countries. On the contrary, since the liberation of Kampuchea, not only have the Thai authorities supported and provided shelter to the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan clique and other reactionaries, but they have also conducted almost on a daily basis armed provocations and violations against the sovereignty and territorial integrity of the PRK.

It is to be recalled that on 28 December 1981 three Thai ships intruded into the territorial waters of Kampuchea up to 15 km from Koh Kong, opened fire at a Kampuchean patrol boat and took away the ship and five of its crew members.

VODK ANALYZES CAUSES OF SRV ECONOMIC 'FAILURE'

[Unattributed commentary: "Le Duan Admits Failure in Economic Field, But Dares Not Mention Its Root Cause"]

[Text] In his report to the party congress on 27 March, Le Duan shamefully admitted the serious failure of Vietnam's economy. Le Duan said: At present, we are facing many acute difficulties. Implementation of the economic plan in the 5 years from 1976 to 1980 has not solved our country's economic crisis. Grain production has not met the requirements. Part of the social consumption has had to be met by loans and foreign aid. The supply of energy and raw material, communications and transport proceed slowly. The livelihood of the people in general is fraught with difficulties. There are shortages of food, clothing materials and other essential consumer goods.

What has caused Vietnam's economy to deteriorate to such a catastrophic level? Vietnam emerged from war, regained peace and reunified 7 years ago, but has been unable to rebuild anything. It faces serious difficulties in both agriculture and industry. The first cause is the Le Duan clique's incompetence. The second cause, as admitted by Le Duan himself, is the clique's rottenness, oppression of the Vietnamese people and the corruption rampant from the central party and government levels to the local levels.

The third cause is the Le Duan clique's negligence in solving the people's living conditions. It has repeatedly clamored about improving the Vietnamese people's life, but this has been only on paper and in words, not in deeds. It has not solved the problems of food, clothing and medicine for the Vietnamese people, but has only suppressed, massacred and expelled them from their own country. It has only bled the people white and looted their property to serve its bellicose, aggressive and expansionist policy.

The fourth cause, which is the basic factor that has plunged Vietnam into inextricable difficulties in all fields, is the clique's bellicose, aggressive and expansionist policy, particularly its war of aggression in Kampuchea. The clique's war of aggression in Kampuchea in the past more than 3 years has destroyed Vietnam's economy, brought about internal rifts and tarnished Vietnam's reputation in the world. Vietnam has become extremely isolated and everyone hates it.

Why did Le Duan, who used to be very boastful, have to admit his failure in such a shameful manner? It was because, on the one hand, he could no longer hide the facts from the Vietnamese people or the world. On the other hand, he confessed these mistakes in an attempt to calm the discontent among the Vietnamese people in general who are rising up against the Le Duan clique from the north and south, in the Central Highlands and in the Mekong Delta down to the Camau Peninsula. But, Le Duan only partially admitted these mistakes. He dared not mention the root cause which has brought Vietnam's economy into bankruptcy -- that is, his bellicose, aggressive and expansionist policy, particularly his war of aggression against Kampuchea. If Vietnam carries on its aggressive and expansionist policy and expansionist policy against its neighboring countries, continues its war of aggression and occupation of Kampuchea and further serves as the Soviet Union's cat's paw in implementing the Soviet Union's and its own strategies of aggression and expansion in Southeast Asia, no matter how many more years the Le Duan clique tries to concoct plans, conduct internal purges and restructure its administration, it can never solve anything. The Vietnamese people will suffer even more seriously. They will become more discontented and will rise up more vigorously against the Le Duan clique.

For this reason, the best and most effective solution for the Le Duan clique is to immediately end its war of aggression in Kampuchea, withdraw all of its aggressor troops from Kampuchea and Laos in accordance with the resolution of the UN General Assembly, abandon its hegemony of aggression, expansion, annexation and genocide against its neighboring countries for the setting up of a greater Vietnam, and stop selling itself as a cat's paw and a military base for the Soviet international expansionists.

Press Release on Visit

BK040938 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0430 GMT 4 Apr 82

[Press release on Hungarian foreign minister's visit to LPDR -- no date given]

[Text] At the invitation of Comrade Phoun Sipaseut, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, deputy prime minister and minister of foreign affairs of the LPDR, Comrade Frigyes Puja, foreign minister of the Hungarian People's Republic, paid an official friendly visit to the LPDR from 29 March to 3 April 1982.

Comrade Frigyes Puja was warmly received by Comrade Souphanouvong, president of the LPDR and the SPC; Comrade Phoumi Vongvichit, member of the LPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, deputy prime minister and minister of education, sports and religious affairs.

Comrade Foreign Minister Frigyes Puja visited some economic, cultural and historical sites. The Hungarian delegation also visited Luang Prabang Province.

A delegation of the LPDR Foreign Ministry met with the delegation of the Hungarian Foreign Ministry in an atmosphere of fraternal friendship and mutual understanding. The two sides informed each other of their respective domestic situations, national construction tasks and various achievements. At the same time they exchanged views on current international matters of mutual concern and discussed the promotion and strengthening of the relations and cooperation between the two countries. The two sides shared identical views on all questions raised.

The Lao side highly appreciated and wholeheartedly hailed the achievements recorded by the fraternal Hungarian people under the leadership of the Hungarian Socialist Workers Party [MSZMP] in building developed socialism. It wished the fraternal Hungarian people new and more splendid successes in implementing the various resolutions and the sixth 5-year national economic plan adopted by the 12th Congress of the MSZMP.

The Lao side expressed profound thanks and gratitude for the assistance and support of the party, government and fraternal people of Hungary given to Laos for building socialist bases.

The Hungarian side hailed the success recorded by the fraternal Lao people under the leadership of the LPRP in the cause of socialist construction in Laos. It also saluted the Third LPRP Congress which will be held soon.

Both sides were satisfied with the daily growth and development of the fraternal friendly relations and close cooperation based on Marxism-Leninism and proletarian internationalism and on the various agreements signed between the two countries for common interests. Both sides agreed to seek ways to further strengthen and tighten the friendly relations and cooperation.

The Lao and Hungarian Foreign Ministry delegations reached a unanimity of views on the warmongering and aggressive policies of the imperialists and the Beijing expansionists and hegemonists colluding to intensify the arms race, restore the cold war to oppose the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, and carry out heinous schemes against the movements for peace, national independence and social progress. Such policies are the main cause of the tense situation in the world and Southeast Asia.

The two sides were very gratified that thanks to the all-round growth and strength and the foreign policy of peace of the Soviet Union and other countaries in the socialist community, to the efforts of the nonaligned countries and the various forces of democracy and peace, and to the desire to achieve peace among the people of all strata in the world, mankind is increasingly capable of defending peace and repulsing the dangers of a new world war.

Both sides supported and realized the paramount importance of the peace program of the Soviet Union and varous proposals put forth by various socialist countries at various meetings, which serve as a basis for reducing international tension, ending the arms race and reducing armed forces in order to create an atmosphere of mutual understanding among nations for the defense of world peace and security.

The Hungarian side resolutely supported the proposals set forth by the three Indochinese countries of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea at the 36th UN General Assembly and the proposals set forth by the foreign ministers of the three Indochinese countries in Vientiane in February 1982, aimed at enabling the various countries of the region to make decisions by themselves through continued negotiations by organizing consultations between the Indochinese and ASEAN countries so as to turn Southeast Asia into a region of peace, stability and cooperation without delay.

The two sides pledged to try their best to contribute to safeguarding peace, stability and progress in the world and to strengthening the solidarity among the socialist countries and among nations cherishing peace and social progress.

The two sides were greatly satistied with the glorious success of the current visit of the Hungarian Foreign Ministry delegation. This success reflects the new step in the development of the friendly relations and cooperation between Laos and Hungary.

Report on PZPR Delegate's Speech

AU311657 Warsaw TRYBUNA LUDU in Polish 29 Mar 82 p 7

[Report on speech by Miroslaw Milewski, PZPR Politburo member and Central Committee secretary, at the Fifth Congress of the Communist Party of Vietnam (VCP) in Hanoi on 28 March]

[Text] The chairman of the PZPR [Polish Communist Workers' Party] delegation, Miroslaw Milewski, Politburo member and Central Committee secretary, conveyed to the participants of the congress sincere greetings from the PZPR Central Committee, Polish Communists and the Polish workers class, expressing his recognition and deep respect for the heroic Vietnamese people who, under the leadership of a Marxist-Leninist party, achieved a historic victory over imperialism, united their fatherland, returned peace to the country and transformed it into a socialist state with a developed economy, science and culture. Referring to the speech of Le Duan, secretary general of the VCP, in which he had presented the program and tasks facing the party and nation, M. Milewski wished success in the implementation of this program. At the same time, he thanked Le Duan for the kind words addressed to our nation and party.

I have come here, M. Milewski continued, at a difficult moment for Poland. Poland is today experiencing the effects of a sociopolitical crisis brought about by a conjuncture of various objective causes and conditions, and also by subjective errors in leading the party and state. Society's discontent was exploited by forces hostile toward socialism which were inspired by capitalist sources of subversion to question the foundations of our system and constitutional order.

M. Milewski went on to say that at the Ninth PZPR Congress last July we drew conclusions from the criticisms voiced by workers and worked out a program for the socialist renewal of the country. We strove to implement this program by political means based on a broad front of national agreement. Unfortunately, our efforts were rejected and our opponents opted for confrontation. The counterrevolutionary forces in Poland led us to a state of anarchy and to economic collapse, and threatened the foundations of socialist statehood.

It became necessary to apply extraordinary measures in defense of the supreme values of domestic peace and socialism, and also in defense of the fundamental interests of European and world peace and security. This was our own, Polish decision. We made it independently, convinced that it is in the interests of the Polish people and the socialist community and serves the cause of peace in Europe and the world. Time will show that the steps we took were right. The country is becoming stable, social discipline has increased, and law and order have prevailed. However, the political battle continues.

The PZPR guarantees our overcoming the effects of the crisis in our country. It is rebuilding the Leninist style of action and strengthening its ranks.

The last and eighth plenum laid down where it should be consolidated on Marxist-Leninist principles, and confirmed its will to fight for the preservation of socialism. Dear comrades and friends, you can rest assured that we will do everything so that socialist Poland may continue to play its important part in the work of strengthening the community of socialist states for the benefit of peace and international cooperation. Poland was and will remain a permanent cell in the socialist community.

In the next part of his speech, M. Milewski stressed the great importance of the understanding and support of our battle by communist workers parties. He said that we are pleased with the internationalist stance, support and help of the socialist countries, particularly the Soviet Union. We are also grateful to the SRV for this.

Poland has recently become a target of imperialist propaganda aggression, libel and intolerable pressures which insult the nation's worthiness and the sovereignty of our state. Political and economic sanctions are being applied against us, we are threatened with new missiles being installed in West European countries and aimed at the countries of the socialist community, the Soviet Union and Poland. This constitutes an attack on the Leninist policy of peaceful coexistence and questions the peace structure in Europe. We are resisting these attacks with a huge amount of help from the Soviet Union and the socialist countries, and with the support of all the forces of peace and progress in the world.

Poland and Vietnam are linked by long years of close friendship and cooperation, M. Milewski said. We have shared similar fortunes in the past. Both our nations must fight for freedom and national unity. We were always with you during the most difficult moments of your battle for liberation. Poland undertook activities on the international scene, within its possibilities, for the sake of uniting Vietnam. Today we are developing cooperation in all areas of life which is advantageous to both countries. Now, as in the past, we give our full support to the policy and initiatives of the SRV intended to defend its sovereignty. Independence and territorial integrity, to strengthen the bonds of friendship between the countries of Indochina and to establish a zone of peace, stabilization and cooperation in Southeast Asia.

Comrade Pham Hung's speech points out the important and pressing task of our entire party and people in the new stage: To resolutely fight and defeat the multisided war of sabotage by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists who collude with the U.S. imperialists. He stresses: The struggle to foil the type of multisided war of sabotage by the Chinese expansionists and hegemonists who collude with the U.S. imperialists is an extremely rigorous, complicated, fierce and protracted revolutionary war. To score success in this struggle our entire party, people and armed forces must urgently, simultaneously and comprehensively develop their tasks in all fields and strengthen the responsibilities of all echelons and sectors from the central down to the grassroots level under the unified, concentrated leadership of the party committee echelons. We must make our cadres, party members and people, especially key leading cadres of all sectors, localities and grassroots units, entertain no illusion; not slacken, even for a minute, their vigilance against our people's direct and dangerous enemy; clearly understand his wicked and crafty schemes and acts; heighten their love of socialism; deepen their hatred for the enemy; be politically sensitive; and react quickly and decisively to check and foil all the enemy's sabotage schemes.

We must develop and defend the organizations of all party organization echelons, administrative echelons and mass organizations and make them truly upright, stable and strong and we must achieve unity and oneness on the basis of the party's and state's line, positions and policies. We must promote the education and enhance the revolutionary ethics of all cadres, party members, Youth Union members and vanguard teenager unit members. We must especially continue to educate youths and teenagers, resolutely overcome the manifestations of the degeneration of political qualities and struggle against the negative manifestations within government agencies, enterprises, mass organizations and society while simultaneously carrying out the struggle against the enemy's sabotage.

The Hungarian people, Nguyen Co Thach said, have turned Hungary from an underdeveloped country into one having modern industry, advanced science and technology and ever higher living standards.

These achievements, he noted, together with the correct policy of the Hungarian party and state, have helped enhance the international prestige and position of the Hungarian People's Republic, and strengthen the might of the socialist community and the forces of peace, national independence, democracy and socialism the world over.

Nguyen Co Thach said:

"You are visiting Vietnam at a time when the entire Vietnamese people are jubilantly welcoming the success of the fifth party congress and are endeavouring to implement the resolutions of the congress in order to give a new impetus to their national construction and defence.

"The Beijing expansionists and big-nation hegemonists, in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, are applying a policy of all-round hostility to Vietnam in an attempt to subdue the Vietnamese people. But our people, under the correct leadership of the C.P.V. founded and trained by the late President Ho Chi Minh, and bringing into play the comprehensive strength of their nation while strengthening their special relationship with Laos and Kampuchea and their solidarity and all-sided cooperation with the Soviet Union, Hungary and the other fraternal socialist countries, are sure to overcome all difficulties and trials to successfully build socialism and firmly defend their socialist homeland, thereby making their worthy contribution to the world revolution."

We wish you many new successes in the implementation of the resolutions of the Fifth Congress of the C.P.V. Our party and government highly value the principled foreign policy of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam. We condemn the big-nation policy pursued by the Chinese authorities against Vietnam, and their armed provocations along the Vietnamese-Chinese border. We support the S.R.V.'s initiatives for a negotiated solution to the disputes between the two countries with a view to normalizing their bilateral relations. To ease tension in Southeast Asia, last year the three Indochinese countries made many significant proposals. We condemn the big-nation foreign policy against the Soviet Union and other socialist countries of the Chinese leaders who are lending a hand to the imperialists and other reactionaries, the enemies of detente".

MULDOON REPORTS END OF RELATIONS WITH ARGENTINA

BK050140 Hong Kong AFP in English 0123 GMT 5 Apr 82

[Text] Wellington, 5 April (AFP) -- New Zealand has broken diplomatic relations with Argentina, Prime Minister Robert Muldoon announced here today.

Prime Minister Robert Muldoon announced the decision shortly after delivering a stiff message to Argentina's ambassador to New Zealand, Alberto Aden. Mr Muldoon denounced the the Falkland invasion by Argentina as "naked aggression in today's world." He gave the ambassador seven days in which to leave the country.

New Zealand has also revoked landing rights for the Argentine national airline, Aerolineas Argentinas, which flies a weekly service into Auckland.

Earlier the government offered full diplomatic support to Britain in the Falkland crisis. Mr Muldoon said New Zealand fully supported the British proposal in the United Nations Security Council to seek a diplomatic solution for the crisis.

New Zealand becomes the first Commonwealth country to announce its practical support for the United Kingdom at a time when New Zealand is under threat by sections of the Commonwealth of Nations of being banned from the Commonwealth games in Brisbane this year.

It took 4 years to negotiate what is called an orderly departure program from Vietnam. The new program will be aimed at reuniting families which have been separated during the past 7 years as Vietnamese fled their country.

The minister for immigration, Mr MacPhee, expects the arrangements to be completed in a few months and the migration program will then begin.

TAIWAN, INDOCHINA ISSUES DISCUSSED WITH PRC

BK021103 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 2 Apr 82

[Text] Australia says it has gained a better understanding of China's views on a number of issues, including that of Taiwan, following talks in Canberra between Australian and Chinese Government officials. A spokesman for Australia's Foreign Affairs Department quotes Peter Henderson, the secretary of the department, as saying that the recent talks were useful and informative. Mr Henderson, who led the Australian side of the talks, said Australia had gained a better view of Chinese perspectives from the first-hand contact. The Chinese were led by Vice Foreign Minister Zhang Wenjin.

The Foreign Ministry spokesman said matters discussed at the informal talks included events in Indochina and Southeast Asia as well as Soviet expansion. He said Australia listened to China's views on Taiwan, at present the center of differences between Beijing and Washington over American arms sales to Taiwan. However, the spokesman said there was no question about Australia's policy that Taiwan was part of China.

FUTURE OF SEA LAW TREATY, CONFERENCE EXAMINED

[From the "Australian Insight" program]

[Text] This is "Australian Insight" and I am (Judith Hinckey). Australia has strongly criticized demands by the United States for changes to the draft International Law of the Sea Treaty. The criticism was delivered by (Keith Brennan) who is heading the Australian delegation to the United Nations Law of the Sea Conference presently being held in New York. Mr (Brennan) told the conference that changes to the treaty being demanded by the United States and some other Western nations were manifestly excessive. Political correspondent (Bill Nicholl) reports:

Negotiations for an international law of the sea treaty have been underway since 1974. Essentially, the proposed treaty is an attempt by the international community to bring order and certainty to an area covering seven-tenths of the earth's surface -- an area where legal doubts and uncertainty currently exist. Among other things, the treaty would regulate the mining of seabed nodules containing nickel, manganese, copper and cobalt by private companies and an international enterprise, the United Nations Deep Seabed Mining Authority. After more than 8 years of painstaking negotiation -- negotiations which juggled the interests of advanced Western powers like the United States, of middle-ranking countries like Australia and the numerous nations of the Third World -- after more than 8 years of these negotiations, a draft treaty was produced. It included over 350 articles on every known aspect of the law of the sea. Then came a bombshell. The United States -- the country whose signature was vital if the treaty was to have any real significance -- the U.S. announced it was pulling out of the talks. It would, it said, review its position. That was just over a year ago. The review was completed and the results announced in January this year. President Reagan said his country remained committed to the multilateral process for reaching agreement on the law of the sea, but he added that some provisions in the draft treaty, especially those related to deep seabed mining, were not acceptable. There followed over 230 requests for changes to the draft treaty.

The American proposals were rejected by 77 Third World countries. They have been dubbed the Group of 77 even though their number has since grown to more than 120. They say the American demands call into question the concept of seabed minerals as "the common heritage of mankind." There is now a standoff by both sides, a standoff that has produced something of a crisis in the negotiations.

The current meeting of the Law of the Sea Conference in New York was to have been the final negotiating session. It is due to end on the last day of this month, and the conference chairman, Singapore's Tommy Koh, says that if negotiations are not well underway by then there will be no extension of the 30 April deadline. This is it, he says, this is the end of the road. As both sides tough it out, a paper containing suggested compromise amendments to the draft has been put forward by a group of 10 nations including Australia. Among other things, these offer more say to the United States in the regulatory procedures provided for in the draft. They also offer those companies already working on deep seabed mining greater access rights to the seabed. The Australian Government is concerned that if the compromise amendments are not accepted, almost a decade's work at the negotiating table could be wasted.

The head of the Australian delegation to the Law of the Sea Conference, (Keith Brennan), says there is no possibility of another negotiating session being called. Addressing the plenary session of the Law of the Sea Conference in New York, Mr (Brennan) took what officials in Canberra describe as a swipe at the American position. While not actually naming the United States, he described the demands being put forward by it as manifestly excessive and said they would have to be scaled down.

Mr (Brennan's) words are the public side of desperate behind-the-scenes talks that have been going on in New York to ease the deadlock. What the end result might be is anyone's guess. To quote one Canberra official, the whole thing is in a considerable state of uncertainty. It is like a souffle in the oven; you don't know which way it is going to go.

SEVERAL ISSUES DISCUSSED DURING WEINBERGER VISIT

Marcos, Enrile Invited to U.S.

HK030047 Manila Far East Broadcasting Company in English 0030 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] United States Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger left the Philippines yesterday afternoon for Hawaii, ending a three-nation tour of the Far East, which also took him to Japan and South Korea. The 64-year-old Weinberger arrived at the U.S. Clark airbase after a brief visit to the Subic naval base in Olongapo City in Zambales, and then he was seen off by Philippine Government officials led by Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen Fabian C. Ver.

The U.S. official, in brief remarks after his visit to the Philippines, conveyed his government's commitment of full support to this country and reaffirmed his government's continued support to meet treaty obligations.

Weinberger invited Minister Enrile to the U.S. so that they can continue to discuss vital issues on the basis of personal friends, and he also reiterated that U.S. President Ronald Reagan had invited President Marcos to visit the United States this year.

In his remarks at a dinner on Thursday night in honor of Weinberger at Enrile's residence in Makati, Enrile said the harmonious relationship between the Philippines and the U.S. has contributed so much to the realization of our common goals and objectives.

President Marcos said yesterday that he will discuss with U.S. President Reagan the defense role of the Philippines in this region when he visits the U.S. some time in the fall. In an interview with newsmen at Malacanang, the president said that the country's defense role in case of external aggression in the region can be discussed only on the highest level.

Bases Accord To Be Restudied

HK020821 Manila Domestic Service in English 0800 GMT 2 Apr 82

[Text] President Marcos today said the Philippines and the United States have agreed to carry out a restudy of the bases agreement. The restudy will take into consideration the capabilities and the vulnerabilities of both countries in case of an external attack. The president made this disclosure during an interview with newsmen following his talks yesterday with U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. The chief executive said that in their restudy they will use the experiences of military officers to define the point of which areas need further strengthening.

At the same interview, the president said that studies are now going on regarding issues the president will have to take up with President Reagan when he visits the U.S. He did not propose to disclose these issues, saying they are very secret and would involve the defense plans and role of the Philippines in the event of an attack in the region.

The president said that customs, immigration and quarantine will also be taken up in the restudy, as well as the matter of base perimeter security. However, he said that initially both governments have agreed to strictly enforce the position in the military bases agreement in the matter of perimeter security.

Upgrading Military Capability

HK030452 Baguio Mountain Province Broadcasting Corporation in English 0400 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] The defense role of the Philippines in Southeast Asia will be the top agenda in the forthcoming talks between President Marcos and U.S. President Ronald Reagan in Washington. The issue came up during the half-hour closed-door meeting between President Marcos and U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger.

In connection with the RP defense role, the president told newsmen that the country will be upgrading its military capability. The president also said that it is the stand of the United States that war can only be prevented through strength. He said the Reagan administration adopted the policy in response to growing challenges in sensitive parts of the world.

Renegotiation of the RP-U.S. bases agreement will start early next year. The issues to be discussed include customs, immigration and quarantine procedures. Another matter to be taken up is the rental of the bases. President Marcos said he will take it up with President Reagan when he visits Washington soon. The rentals will be in the context of the economic aid and defense policy.

Marcos on Aid for ASEAN

[Excerpts] President Marcos today disclosed that the United States has agreed to extend assistance to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations to strengthen the capabilities of the nations in the region in meeting threats to their security. However, the president pointed out such assistance will never in any way change the economic role of ASEAN, which groups five nations -- namely, Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand and the Philippines. In an interview with Malacanang newsmen, the chief executive stressed that ASEAN is not a military organization and thus has no military dimension. Mr Marcos made this point clear when asked by reporters how the United States viewed the association in terms of preserving stability in Southeast Asia. His view was conveyed during Thursday's meeting between President Marcos and U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. The chief executive indicated the economic role of ASEAN was clearly conveyed to the U.S. defense secretary.

In the same interview President Marcos said the ASEAN is watching closely the plans of Japan to build itself up militarily. The president stressed that ASEAN will call the attention of the United States if Japan becomes a threat to its neighbors.

REGIONAL DEFENSE REASSESSMENT TO BE CONDUCTED

[Excerpt] The president has said the Philippines will reassess the military capacity and preparedness of its neighbors. He said Philippine security arrangements with the United States would also be reviewed in the light of recent developments. The president was referring to threats to Southeast Asia warned by U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who met with him last week.

HK030533 Baguio Mountain Province Broadcasting Corporation in English 0400 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] The Philippines and Saudi Arabia have concluded an agreement involving joint ventures in irrigation, water development and agriculture. Agriculture Minister Arturo Tanco Jr made the announcement at a press conference in Makati. Upon his arrival (As-Salanan) said he is hopeful of bright prospects for Philippine-Saudi Arabian cooperation in the exchange of resources and manpower.

SUZUKI DENIES PLEDGE TO U.S. ON SEALANE DEFENSE

[Text] Tokyo, April 5 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki said Monday that the defense of 1,000 nautical miles of sea lanes is one of Japan's defense targets and not a pledge reportedly made to the United States. Suzuki made this statement in the upper house Budget Committee in reply to Socialist and Communist interpellators.

But Suzuki admitted that he said in Washington last year that Japan was making efforts to build up its defense capability with a view to becoming able to defend a sea zone several hundred nautical miles off Japan's shores and 1,000 miles of sea lanes, if sea lanes were to be established. But he denied having made an explicit pledge to the U.S. while in Washington that Japan would defend 1,000 nautical miles of sea lanes.

Suzuki made these statements in connection with the general impression that the U.S. apparently took Suzuki's Washington statement as Japan's defense pledge to the U.S. Suzuki declared that there is no promise of which the people of Japan are not informed.

Suzuki said that Japan should decide its own defense role after taking into consideration all such matters as the Japanese Constitution, the fundamental defense policy, Japan's financial condition, and public opinion. Japan's defense role should not be imposed on Japan by other countries, he said.

In connection with the defense of sea lanes, a high-ranking Defense Agency official said that it is necessary to ensure the safety of Japanese ships and that it is one of the fundamental duties of the Self-Defense Forces to safeguard Japanese ships at sea.

SUZUKI, REAGAN REPORTEDLY TO DISCUSS DISARMAMENT

OW021253 Tokyo KYODO in English 1247 GMT 2 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 2 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki will discuss nuclear disarmament with U.S. President Ronald Reagan when they hold separate talks during the Versailles summit of seven industrialized nations in June, government sources said Friday.

Suzuki has been calling for nuclear disarmament and spending the money saved by this to solve problems between the haves and have-nots.

The sources said, however, Suzuki recently started taking a cautious attitude toward disarmament since he believed the antinuclear campaigns in Japan might develop into a campaign against the United States. Suzuki also believes that the Eastern bloc nations might take advantage of this to launch campaigns against the U.S., they said.

The sources said Suzuki did not want to drive Reagan into a tighter corner on disarmament and was expected to basically support the President's position on the issue.

SUZUKI SUPPORTS BRITAIN IN FALKLAND DISPUTE

OW051227 Tokyo KYODO in English 1212 GMT 5 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 5 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Monday told British Ambassador Sir Hugh Cortazzi that Japan would support Britain against the Argentine invasion of the Falkland Islands so long as Britain eschews military force to settle the dispute. Suzuki met the British envoy to Japan at a reception at the prime minister's official residence. Suzuki told the ambassador that he thought all such problems should be settled through mutual negotiations.

NODONG SINMUN HITS REAGAN REMARKS TO TONG-A ILBO

[Text] Pyongyang, April 6 (KCNA) -- NODONG SINMUN today in a commentary says that the recent socalled "special interview" of U.S. President Reagan with the South Korean paper TONG-A ILBO officially manifested once again the aggressive Korean policy of the present U.S. Government persisting in the policy of occupation of South Korea and the line of split and war against the Korean people. This is a malrevised version of the socalled "South Korea-U.S. joint statement" and a new order more zealously instigating the puppet clique to its execution, it remarks. The author of the commentary titled "Criminal Act Openly Encouraging Puppets to War and Division" says:

Reagan held a socalled "special interview" in an effort to give a shot in the arm of the traitor Chon Tu-hwan now in a quandary and instigate him more zealously to treachery. This proves that the Reagan government surpasses the preceding U.S. administrations in pursuing a malicious, hostile policy against the Korean people.

In his socalled interview Reagan said that he had "no plan to withdraw" U.S. troops from South Korea but would do his best to fulfil the "commitments" to "defend" the South Korean puppet clique. This is an aggressive outburst fully betraying the U.S. imperialists" intention to keep occupying South Korea indefinitely and their war scheme. This means that the United States would keep hold on and dominate South Korea as a permanent colony and an aggressive military bridgehead for "world supremacy," throwing full light on the aggressive and bellicose nature of the Reagan administration.

Reagan's claim that the U.S. policy of occupation of South Korea and war is intended to "defend peace and freedom" from someone's "threats" is a sheer lie and hypocrisy and a gangster-like logic for justifying the aggressive policy towards Korea.

In his interview with TONG-A ILBO Reagan actively encouraged the Chon Tu-hwan military fascist clique to the belligerent and splittist manoeuvres, openly ranting that for the fulfilment of the "commitments" he would not withdraw the aggression forces from South Korea, but make "all efforts possible." This tells that the U.S. policy of aggression against our people is unchanged.

If the United States truly wants peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification, it must stop encouraging the South Korean puppets and leading the situation to a dangerous phase, clinging to the anachronistic policy of "strength," and seek a realistic way for a fair solution of the Korean question.

To ease tensions and preserve and make peace durable in our country and promote a peaceful settlement of the reunification question, the armistice agreement must be replaced with a peace agreement.

Whether the U.S. agrees to replace the armistice agreement with a peace agreement and immediately withdraws its troops from South Korea or persists in the policy of aggression and war, sticking to its present obstinate position -- this is a touchstone showing whether it truly wants peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification or not.

The United States must discard its wrong stand of pursuing the splittist line, meddling in the domestic affairs of others' country, and act discreetly with sober thinking and take hands off Korea.

U.S. ARMS DEPLOYMENTS IN SOUTH KOREA REPORTED

[Text] Pyongyang, April 3 (KCNA) -- The U.S. imperialists announced that they would increase the number of "A-10" close support planes to be deployed in South Korea to 48, according to a report. They deployed 6 planes of this type in South Korea already in early March.

The warlikers also blared that they have deployed new type "missile"-equipped helicopters in South Korea and would supply the Second Division of the U.S. imperialist aggression forces in South Korea with "M-60" tanks.

The speakers supported and approved the 1982 state budget, while pointing out that the budget is a scientific and dynamic one which had been correctly worked out so it can help achieve decisive progress in the accomplishment of the second 7-year plan through the vigorous performance of the three revolutions -- ideological, technological and cultural -- and that it can support the four-point nature remaking projects, the new rewarding goal for accelerating socialist and communist construction.

[Text] Comrade deputies: It is the absolute will of the party and all the people and the unanimous aspiration of the nation to achieve the ultimate victory of the Korean revolution and endless prosperity for our people, upholding the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song as president of the government of our republic, the founder of our party and government and a great leader.

Over a period of more than half a century, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has brought about a fundamental change in the position of the fatherland and the fate of our people by wisely leading the struggle of our party and people for independence, socialism and communism and ushered in a new era of great national prosperity. By upholding the great leader, for the first time in a history spanning thousands of years our people have come to find a correct revolutionary course and created a new history of national prosperity and national revival by uniting firmly in a single revolutionary rank.

In the darkest period when our nation was confronted with a life and death crisis, the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song, who was leading the revolution, had put forth the great chuche idea and chuche-type revolutionary lines and saved our nation from colonial slavery and put our country in the rank of proud independent countries by waging an arduous underground revolutionary struggle and a bloody armed struggle.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who achieved the national liberation and independence of the fatherland in 20 years of anti-Janapese revolutionary struggle, has turned our country into a powerful socialist country evincing self-reliance and self-defense from such a backward and poor one, a model socialist country having achieved great upsurges in all fields of politics, economy, ideology and culture, through exploits of creativity and construction over a period of 40 years.

By upholding the great leader Comrade Kin Il-song as leader [suryong] and national leader [yongdoja], our people have become a powerful and proud revolutionary people opening a brilliant future with a firm conviction under the ever-victorious revolutionary party and the endlessly prospering fatherland, breaking away from the tragic condition of maltreatment and contempt the country once endured.

In retrospect, we have encountered many trials that were difficult to overcome on the road of winning the anti-Japanese revolutionary war and the fatherland liberation war waged against the most brutal imperialists and advancing the two-stage social revolution and the cause of building a new fatherland. Although we have undergone several serious trials, the Korean revolution has been able to follow the single road of victory thanks to the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who, taking the lead in the revolution, opened a way out of struggles with his extraordinary wisdom and acumen, overcoming all ordeals with a rock-firm will and tested leadership.

Whenever we think of the outstanding leadership and the great accomplishments of the great leader, who, bearing the unprecedentedly arduous burden of the Korean revolution, has been leading our revolution on the single road of victory replete with struggles, we cannot repress the national pride and dignity endlessly surging in ourselves which come from upholding the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the leader [suryong]. We cannot repress our endless admiration and respect for the leader.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who has brilliantly realized the national aspiration and people's ideals by working without rest or sleep over a 70-year lifetime with tremendous energy, leads the overall work of the party, state and military and is creating endless upsurges in all fields of the revolution and construction.

Thanks to the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who, still displayed the noble spirit he had in the days when he was crossing the ravines of Mt Paektu leading the anti-Japanese armed ranks, energetically leads the whole party, people and army, the might of our party and republic is being consolidated and developed with each passing day and the cause of the chuche revolution, born out of Paektu, is unremittingly advancing toward new victories.

As the founder of the great chuche idea illuminating the revolutionary future of the revolutionary cause for realizing the independence of the working masses, as the genius of the revolution and construction who erected chuche Korea and a model socialist country and as an outstanding leader encouraging the cause of anti-imperialism and the independence of the world's people and the international revolutionary movement to victory, the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is endlessly trusted and respected not only by Korean people but also the progressive people of the world.

Indeed, the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song is a matchless patriot and national hero who has saved our people from crises and led them to today's endless happiness and glory and a great ideologue, theoretician and outstanding revolutionary leader who has achieved immortal accomplishments before the Korean revolution and the world revolution by founding the great chuche idea and brilliantly embodying it. He is a great leader [suryong] of the people who was born among the people and is devoted to giving the people happiness and freedom.

Our party members and people, who know the absolute truth that holding the leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in high esteem is for the ultimate victory of our revolution, the endless prosperity of our fatherland and our people's permanent happiness through the revolutionary struggle and practical experience acquired over a period of half a century, are cherishing and upholding the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the president of the republic. This represents the glory of Korea and national happiness.

To hold him in high esteem at the head of our revolution and follow him generation after generation is the most solemn mission for our nation today after enduring twists and turns. To hold him in high esteem at the forefront of our revolution and follow him generation after generation is the most solemn mission given to our nation by the history after undergoing an arduous revolution and is our people's firm revolutionary will cherished as their rock-firm faith in the brighter future.

Merged into this are the ardent desire of the South Korean revolutionaries and patriotic people, who are struggling for the day when the fellow countrymen in the North and the South will lead a happy life in a reunified country, and the earnest wishes of all overseas compatriots including the 700,000 compatriots in Japan who have gained true national pride thanks to the great leader.

We will staunchly struggle to achieve the cause of national reunification -- the supreme national task -- at an early date and to accomplish the socialist and communist cause by permanently upholding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the leader of our party, our nation and our people following his wise leadership.

By having the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in the high post of president of the DPRK and continuing to wage a vigorous struggle under the leadership of the party and the leader, our people will strengthen the revolutionary power of workers and peasants, make our country prosper and develop and carry to shining accomplishment through generations the revolutionary cause of chuche, which was started and led by the respected Comrade Kim Il-song.

O Chin-u Speech

[Speech at 5 April session of the Seventh SPA of the DPRK by Deputy O Chin-u supporting the KWP Central Committee Political Bureau's recommendation of Kim Il-song as DPRK president -- read by announcer]

[Text] Comrade deputies: It is the rock-firm revolutionary faith and will of our entire people and People's Army soldiers to invariably hold in high esteem the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song -- the founder of our People's Army and supreme commander of the revolutionary armed forces as a whole -- as the president of the DPRK and to consummate the revolutionary cause of chuche under the leadership of the leader.

I warmly support and approve of the suggestion by the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee to elect the great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song as the president of the DPRK, reflecting the unanimous opinion and earnest wishes of all people and People's Army soldiers.

The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song is the ever-victorious iron-willed commander who founded the revolutionary armed forces of the chuche type, the first genuine army of the people in the long history of our nation, and led the two rigorous revolutionary wars to brilliant victories, thereby saving the destiny of the fatherland and people and firmly defending the country's independence and national sovereignty. He is the genius of revolution and construction who has wisely led the struggles of our people for national liberation, class liberation and socialism and communism with his extraordinary wisdom and outstanding leadership and thus built an independent, self-reliant, self-protecting socialist power in this land where only backwardness and poverty had prevailed for long years.

The glorious path of the Korean revolution, spanning from the anti-Japanese revolution to the construction of the new fatherland, the fatherland liberation war and the socialist revolution and construction, is shining with the immortal revolutionary achievements made by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who has led the revolutionary way and the fierce class struggle against the imperialists and all kinds of class enemies to victory by founding and wisely leading our revolutionary armed forces.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who had opened up the genuine road for the Korean revolution under the slogan of "down with imperialism" in the early days when he launched out on a road of revolution, has put forth outstanding lines for achieving national liberation with the organized armed struggle by the (?standing) revolutionary armed forces and organized and led the 15-year-long heroic anti-Japanese armed struggle under the most arduous conditions in which there was no logistical support nor support from any regular army, thus smashing the Japanese imperialists and achieving the historic cause for the fatherland liberation. He smashed the armed invasion of the U.S. imperialists, who took the place of the Japanese imperialists, trying to impose again the destiny of the colonial slaves upon our people, and led the great fatherland liberation way to victory, thereby honorably defending the fatherland's freedom and independence and national dignity.

The historic victory which our people gained in the guerrilla and modern wars against the ferocious Japanese and U.S. imperialists was the brilliant victory of the great leader's chuche-oriented military ideology, original strategy and tactics and his outstanding art of war. It is a precious outcome of the wise leadership of the leader who achieved the victory of the revolutionary war, personally leading in the van, while shouldering all (?burdens) arising from the unprecedentedly arduous and rigorous war and undergoing all sorts of difficulties.

The great achievements of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song who has put forth outstanding revolutionary theory and military theory on the basis of the immortal chuche ideology and who has embodied these theories brilliantly, thus ushering in an era of a new upsurge in the national liberation struggle against colonialism and in the anti-imperialist and anti-U.S. struggle, constitute a militant banner inspiring to victory the struggle of the revolutionary people against imperialism and colonialism and for building an independent new world.

Having the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who smashed two imperialist foes in one generation and set the example for building a new society and achieving national prosperity, at the forefront of our party and the revolution is the greatest honor and happiness for our people and the KPA. With vigorous energy and extraordinary driving force, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song is organizing and leading party and state affairs as well as overall millitary affairs. Under the energetic leadership of the respected and beloved leader, our revolutionary armed forces are being strengthened into powerful forces which can repel aggression from any enemy and reliably defend the fatherland and the gains of the revolution.

Our people and the KPA that have traversed a road of rewarding struggles and brilliant exploits under the leadership of the great leader, since he covered a bloody road of several thousand li with the anti-Japanese banner held aloft, hold it as the most valuable experience gained in their struggles and lives and as their firm conviction that upholding the leader's leadership is the road to the victory of the revolution and to happiness and glory.

The course of our people's struggle, which started and advanced under the banner of the chuche idea, has been long and rugged. Though it may be so, our people were full of revolutionary optimism and confidence even in the days of severe hardships and marched victoriously, overcoming all difficulties in their path. A firm conviction in the minds of our people of a bright future of the fatherland and of the victory of the revolution is based on their absolute trust in the great leader. The will to uphold the leader's leadership under any difficult circumstances is a revolutionary credo that has been engraved in the minds of our people for a long period of over a half century and has been growing more solid with each passing day.

Though the Korean revolution has yet a long and rugged road to traverse, no rigorous trial can destroy our people's rock-firm will to hold the party and the leader in high esteem, and our People's Army and people will invariably remain faithful to their leadership. Imitating the pure loyalty and unyielding revolutionary spirit of the young communists who, in the early days of the Korean revolution, unhesitatingly dedicated their youth and lives to the defense of Comrade Kim Il-song, the sun of the nation, our KPA soldiers will hold in high esteem the great leader and remain loyal to him generation after generation and will thus preserve and add lustre to the dignity and honor of the KPA as the army of Comrade Kim Il-song and the army of the party.

By brilliantly implementing our party's policy of permeating the army with the chuche idea and consolidating the militant power of one-matches-one-hundred by thoroughly arming themselves with chuche strategy and tactics, our KPA soldiers will creditably discharge their mission of safeguarding and defending the party and the leader with their lives and of militarily ensuring our party's cause for the ultimate victory of the revolutionary cause of chuche.

Yun Ki-chong Report on Budget

[Text] Pyongyang, April 5 (KCNA) -- Deputy Yun Ki-chong made a report on the results of the fulfillment of the 1981 state budget and on the 1982 state budget of the DPRK at the first session of the Seventh Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea which opened today.

As a result of a new upswing in socialist construction and the rapid development of the national economy, last year's state budget was carried out with success, the reporter said, and went on: Thanks to the active measures taken by the government of the republic to increase the revenue resources of the state budget, the plan of the state budgetary revenue last year was fulfilled at 101 per cent. This means an 8.1 per cent rise above the revenue of 1980.

Thus, the state budgetary revenue last year reached 20,684 million won, surpassing the level of 20,000 million won. This means that our state budgetary revenue has grown at a very high rate of 11 per cent every year in the last seven years since 1974 when it surpassed the 10,000 million won level. Today the leaping development of our finance ensures in only 7 hours as much budgetary revenue as the annual amount of 1946 though commodity prices were systematically reduced almost every year and the taxation was completely abolished.

The state budgetary expenditure last year amounted to 20,333 million won, 99.3 per cent of the plan. This is an increase of 7.9 per cent above the 1980 figure. As a result, last year's state budget was successfully fulfilled with a large sum of financial reserves amounting to 351 million won after fully meeting the vast needs for funds in the first year of the general march for the implementation of the decisions of the Sixth Congress of the Workers Party of Korea.

With the successful fulfillment of the state budget, our finance last year positively helped towards vigorously pushing ahead with the socialist economic construction and cultural construction, raising the people's living standards and increasing the defense capabilities of the country. Last year the government of the republic increased the outlay of funds for the national economy by 9.3 per cent above 1980 in order to fulfil the second seven-year plan ahead of schedule and attain the ten prospective objectives of socialist economic construction along the main direction of the socialist economic construction indicated by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The reporter pointed to the great successes made by the government of the republic by allocating huge funds to various domains of the national economy. According to the report, the constructors in the domain of the power industry accelerated the expansion project of the Pukchang thermal power plant to successfully ensure the commissioning of the generating equipment, while dynamically accelerating the already started construction of large-size hydro-power, lockgate power and small and medium hydro-power stations. In particular, the workers and technicians in this domain increased the production of electricity to the maximum to fully meet the demand of the national economy for electricity by energetically striving to operate the generators in full capacity.

In the extracting industry, large-scale coal and ore mines with big deposits and good mining conditions including the coal mines in Anju and Tokchon Districts and the Komdok mine were reconstructed on expansion basis in a big way, vigorous endeavours launched to make mining facilities large-sized, modern and high-speed and further advance the comprehensive mechanization of pit work and promising mining reserves secured.

Last year the constructors in the field of the metal industry creditably carried out the reconstruction on an expansion basis of blast furnace No. 2 and the sintering furnace and the construction of the cold rolling mill at the Kim Chaek iron works, finished the expansion project of the steel shop of the Songjin steel works and widely introduced iron-making equipment and metallurgical methods using our domestic fuel.

This expanded metallurgical bases and further strengthened the chuche character of the metal industry of the country.

The constructors in the domain of the chemical industry also performed feats of labour; they actively expedited the expansion project of the July 7 chemical factory, completed the construction of the sulphuric acid shop of the Hungnam fertilizer complex and successfully carried out projects for modernizing the carbide production process of the February 8 vinalon complex and splendidly built the movilon mill, a chuche-oriented chemical fibre production base, in a matter of one year or so.

Last year our heroic workers and constructors erected many grand monumental edifices in different parts of the country and completed the construction of over 2,470 objects in the industrial domain alone to adorn the first year of the general march with proud successes in construction.

Upholding the policy of the technical revolution set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, our workers, technicians, scientists and three-revolution team members boundlessly loyal to the party and the revolution vigorously carried on the mass technical innovation movement; they devised and manufactured many modern machines and equipment of new type and put forward a large number of worthy scientific inventions and innovation proposals positively conducive to the development of the national economy and the improvement of the people's living. Over 60,370 inventions and innovation proposals were introduced into production last year in the industrial domain alone.

As a result of the allocation of huge state funds to the industrial domain and the powerful promotion of the industrial construction and the technical revolution last year, our industry was further perfected, developed and strengthened into a powerful chuche-oriented industry with a solid foundation for a new leaping advance. This is a shining fruition of the chuche-based line of industrial construction put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and patent proof of the validity of our party's financial policy of directing the finance of the state preferentially to the development of industry.

Last year a big success was made in agricultural production, too, with the powerful assistance of industry. With the vigorous acceleration of the construction of new reservoirs and the drainage projects including the completion of the large September 18 reservoir and the project of changing the flow of the Potong River, the irrigation system of the country has been further perfected and as a result of the struggle to acquire new land the area of cultivated land was further expanded.

With the disbursement of huge state funds the state sent tractors and various kinds of modern farming machines to the countryside and increased the supply of chemical fertilizers and agricultural medicines last year, too, to make a new stride forward in realizing the comprehensive mechanization and chemicalization of agriculture. Successfully overcoming the unfavourable weather conditions, the entire agricultural working people and helpers to the countryside did farming in a scientific and technical way as required by the chuche method of farming to reap another bumper harvest last year.

Last year witnessed a new brilliant success in the development of fisheries, too. In particular, a new miraculous record was set up in fish catch; during last winter over 330,000 more tons of fish than that of the same period of the previous year was caught.

In order to firmly defend the security of the country and the gains of the revolution, last year the government of the republic appropriated for national defense 14.8 per cent of the total state budgetary expenditure, thereby creditably ensuring with finance the struggle to implement our party's military line of self-reliance in national defense.

Last year a great progress was made in the socialist cultural construction and the improvement of the people's living. In the state budget the spendings for social and cultural measures last year showed an increase of 7 per cent above 1980. As a result of vigorous construction of schools through an all-people movement, over 5,500 classrooms were built, conditions of experiment and practice improved and the material and technical foundations for education consolidated as a whole.

Last year the Nampo Ship Engineering College, the Tonghae Static Engineering College, the Chongsan Agricultural College and other new colleges were built and the study-while-working higher educational system was consolidated along with the full-time regular one. More theatres, cinema houses and houses of culture were set up in towns and rural and fishing villages and many revolutionary literary and art works of high ideological and artistic value produced last year. As a result, our chuche-based literature and art were brought into fuller bloom. Last year medical services for the people were improved still further.

The Grand People's Study House, a seat of learning of epochal significance in the development of science, technology and culture of the country with a floor space of 100,000 square metres, the modern ice rink covering 25,000 square metres, the Chongryu Restaurant, Pyongyang No. 1 department store and so forth were built magnificently and beautifully in a brief span of time to suit the national emotion and modern aesthetic sentiments. The Moranbong Stadium took on new looks, one more grand fun fair was built in historic Mangyongdae and the construction of the Munsu Street as large as a big town has been successfully accelerated following the completion of the modern Changgwang Street.

Last year the Workers Party of Korea and the government of the republic splendidly erected the Tower of the Chuche Idea and the Arch of Triumph as grand monumental edifices in the age of the Workers Party, reflecting the unanimous desire of our people to highly praise the immortal revolutionary idea and revolutionary exploits of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song and glorify them for ever.

Last year countless modern dwelling houses were built in towns and rural villages to fully meet the demand of the working people for housing, more modernly appointed cultural and welfare establishments in all provinces, cities, counties and workers' districts to further enhance the level of the cultural life of the working people and local construction was actively promoted to make local towns and rural villages as a whole more beautiful.

Last year the state disbursed a large sum running into several thousand million won to successfully ensure such communist measures in our country as the compulsory free education system, the system of nursing and bringing up children at state expenses, the universal free medical service system, the paid leave system, the system of accommodation at health resorts and holiday homes at state expense and the system of supplying food and fuel at state expense.

Thanks to these communist measures taken by the Workers Party of Korea and the government of the republic, our people have become a happy people enjoying an ideal life of future communist society in various fields of social life though they are now living in socialist society.

All these great changes in the material and cultural life of our people clearly show the incomparable superiority of our socialist system in which the popular masses are the masters of everything, all things of society serve them and the state ensures their material and cultural life entirely on its responsibility, and the genuinely popular character of our socialist finance spending money earned by the people for their welfare. The reporter stressed that these proud successes made by our people in the socialist construction and the fulfillment of the state budget last year are a shining fruition of the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

Referring to the state budget for 1982, the reporter said that it was compiled as a mobilising and correct one to accelerate the socialist construction in our country to the maximum, reflecting the urgent demand of our revolution and construction.

According to the report, the state budgetary revenue and expenditure for this year are scaled respectively at 22,546 million won. The state budgetary revenue this year will increase to 109 per cent compared with last year along with the rapid increase of production and the growing inner accumulation in all fields of the national economy. The state budgetary expenditure this year will be 10.9 per cent above last year on the basis of the rapid increase of the state budgetary revenue. The government of the republic envisages an 11.5 per cent increast above last year in the outlay to national economy to accelerate the chuche-orientation, modernization and scientization of the national economy, make a decisive advance in carrying out the second seven-year plan and lay a solid basis for attaining the new long-range goals of socialist economic construction.

At the historic fourth plenary meeting of the Sixth Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song unrolled a new grand blueprint for carrying out the four major tasks of nature-remaking for the eternal prosperity of the country — reclaiming 300,000 hectares of tideland, acquiring 200,000 hectares of new land and constructing the Nampo lockgate and Taechon power station. This year the government of the republic will direct several hundreds of million won in the state budget to successfully ensure the battle to carry out the four major tasks of nature-remaking of weighty significance in attaining the ten long-range goals of economic construction in the 1980's and accelerating socialist and communist construction.

It will increase investments in the chemical industry this year by 20 per cent above last year to thoroughly implement the teachings of the respected leader Comrade Kim Il-song on directing primary efforts to the struggle for hitting the chemical target. In the chemical industry this year the existing production equipment will be repaired and readjusted to be operated in full capacity and, at the same time, nitric ammonium fertilizer, caustic soda and sulfuric acid shops will be built at some chemical factories and medium- and small-size chemical factories be actively developed.

This year's state budget envisages a large allocation of funds, 12 percent greater than that of last year, to the domain of the metal industry in accordance with our party's policy of directing efforts to this industry. Workers in this domain will hasten the reconstruction on an expansion basis of metal factories including the Kim Chaek iron works and the Hwanghae iron works, while directing efforts to the maximum utilization of the existing metal production equipment, and complete the construction of a new smeltery at an early date so that production of steel, rolled steel and various non-ferrous metals be markedly raised this year.

In order to fully meet the rapidly growing need of the national economy for electric power, fuel and raw materials this year, the state envisages disbursement of a colossal amount of fund, 13 per cent greater than that of last year, to the power and extracting industries. The power industry will speed up the construction of the hydraulic power stations including the Wiwon, Namgang and Maekjon lockgate power stations while using the existing generating facilities to the maximum, and continue to vigorously go ahead with the expansion project of the Pukchang thermal power plant to increase the generating capacity markedly.

The mining industry will reconstruct on an expansion basis big coal and ore mines including the Anju District, Sunchon District and Tokchon District coal mines and the Musan and Komdok mines and actively push ahead with the development of new promising coal and ore mines with favourable production conditions.

This year we will readjust the existing machine plants, supplement those processes which are nonexistent and raise the proportion of stamp forging and pressing methods to further develop the machine-building industry in accordance with the demands of the technical revolution at a higher stage.

The government of the republic raised it as an important task in the socialist economic construction this year to strengthen transport work and envisages the disbursement of a large amount of fund to this domain. In order to bring about a new change in the production of mass consumption goods by rapidly developing the light industry, the state will direct much fund to this domain.

This year the existing fishing boats will be speedily made modern and universal, ship-repair bases and bases for the production of fishing tools be firmly built and fish catch be further raised in the domain of fisheries. Along with this, the capacities of the existing freezing factories will be used to the maximum and more processing facilities be built up to freeze, store and process more fish.

The government of the republic will increase the allocation of funds to the agricultural domain by 12 per cent above last year so as to thoroughly implement the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song's agriculture-first policy and effect a new change in grain production. A vigorous drive to further enlarge the area under cultivation will be waged and the comprehensive mechanization and chemicalization of agriculture be actively promoted this year.

To construct more modern dwelling houses and build up towns and villages better this year, the state will spend 9 per cent more fund than that of last year.

Thanks to the measures of the Workers Party of Korea and the government of the republic the living standards of our people will further rise and the genuine superiority of the socialist system of our country where people are its masters and everything serves them be highly displayed in the rich and cultured life of our people this year. The government of the republic envisages a 5 per cent increase of the expenditure for social and cultural measures above last year with a view to accelerating the cultural revolution and fully meeting the social and cultural needs of the working people.

The state will increase this year's disbursement of funds for education to 106 per cent compared with last year. NODONG SINMUN Hails Session

[NODONG SINMUN 5 April editorial: "Historic Meeting Which Will Open an Endlessly Vast Future for the Power of the Republic"]

[Text] Our people are now greeting another exciting event in the proud history of the republic shining with victory and glory. Starting today, the first session of the Seventh Supreme People's Assembly [SPA] of the DPRK, our glorious fatherland, is to be held.

The first session of the Seventh SPA is an historic one which is convened at the proud time when a great turn is being effected in the struggle to model society on the chuche idea under the leadership of our party and an endlessly bright future is being unfolded ahead on the road of the republic. Greeting this significant session, the whole country is now pervaded with an extraordinary upsurge of political zeal. The entire people, including our working class, unanimously participated in the elections of deputies to the SPA with burning loyalty and high revolutionary zeal and expressed their absolute support for the power of the republic. Thus they once again demonstrated to the world the might of unity and cohesion firmly rallied around the party and the leader.

Our working people have staged the vigorous labor struggle to significantly greet this session with the great joy and pride of having elected the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as a deputy to the SPA. As a result, great upsurges are being effected on all fronts of socialist construction and the great monumental structures glorifying the era of the Workers Party are being built in succession.

Our people will soon mark the 70th birthday of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. Convening this SPA session, holding the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the founder and leader of the republic, in high esteem at a time when the whole country is seething with the infinite excitement and joy of greeting the most felicitous national festive days in the history of our fatherland, constitutes much glory and great pride of our people.

Our republic, which has traversed the single road of victory and glory for a long period of time under the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, is today enjoying its era of great affluence and prosperity. Today, all of the people of the country firmly foresee their eternal happiness and future from the might and prosperity of our republic led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

The convocation of the first session of the Seventh SPA is a great auspicious event of historic significance in the political life of our people and in their carrying out the revolutionary cause. The republic is the banner of our people's freedom and happiness and the powerful weapon of the revolution and construction. Only when the power of the republic is constantly strengthened can the independent force of our revolution be firmly consolidated, the complete victory of socialism and national reunification be expedited and the cause of anti-imperialism and independence be vigorously accelerated.

This session will mark a new milestone in providing a firm guarantee for carrying out the cause of the party with honor by strengthening and developing the power of the republic into an invincible revolutionary one. The session will, above all, make the power of the republic more successfully fulfill its function and role in carrying out the historic cause of modelling society on the chuche idea. The modelling of society on the chuche idea is the general task of our revolution. Today it is the most important task facing the power of the republic to brilliantly carry out this lofty cause.

An epochal progress has been made in the struggle to model society on the chuche idea under the leadership of our party. In order to complete the revolutionary cause of chuche pioneered in the forest of Mt Paektu, we should more vigorously accelerate the cause of modelling society on the chuche idea on the basis of already achieved successes.

The power of the republic assumes a very important duty in modelling society on the chuche idea. Only when the function and role of the power of the republic -- which is the powerful weapon of proletarian dictatorship -- are enhanced can the historic cause of completely realizing the independence of the working masses be successfully carried out by actively accelerating the human reform and nature-remaking programs.

This SPA session is to effect a new revolutionary upsurge in the struggle to implement the grand program set forth by the sixth party congress, to open a resplendent prospect for changing our country into a paradise of the people, a better place in which to live, and to inspire all of the people to its realization. Thus, the flames of speed battle will vigorously flare up on all fields of socialist construction, great successes will be achieved in the struggle to implement the tremendous economic construction program in the 1980's and the life of our people will become more independent and creative.

The first session of the Seventh SPA will also bring about an epochal turn in consolidating the political and ideological unity and cohesion of the whole society firmly rallied around the party. The unity and cohesion of the entire people firmly rallied around the party is a foundation for the consolidation of our society and is a decisive guarantee for all victories. It is an honorable duty of the power of the republic to firmly safeguard and strengthen this great unity and cohesion.

Through this SPA session the power of the republic will more solidly cement a political foundation for brilliantly realizing the party's leadership and will be strengthened and developed into a revolutionary power resolutely defending and carrying out the line and policy of the party. Thus, the whole society will be firmly consolidated as a rank, thanking and acting in accordance with the idea and intent of the party and the people's support to and trust in our party will be further deepened.

The power of our republic is a revolutionary power which should carry out the cause of chuche to the end under the party's leadership. The great historic significance of the SPA session lies precisely in making the power of the republic a powerful weapon for firmly defending the organizational and ideological foundation of the party eternally. Indeed, the first session of the Seventh SPA will highly demonstrate the might and honor of the power of our republic advancing while following the leadership of the party, greatly consolidate and develop the state and social system and mark an important occasion in providing a firm guarantee for the completion of the revolution cause of chuche to the end.

Today when they greet the important session which will shine forth in the history of development of the republic, all of the people of the country recall the proud path traversed by the republic with greater hope and aspiration for the future. The power of our republic has advanced along the road of arduous struggle and proud victory, holding aloft the banner of the great chuche idea. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught: Since it was founded, the power of our republic has traversed the road of vigorous struggle and glorious victory and has achieved the immortal exploits which will shine eternally in the history of the fatherland. The working people can shape their destinies with their own efforts and successfully carry out the revolution and construction only when they possess genuine revolutionary sovereignty.

Our people, who suffered all forms of disgraceful treatment in the past because of lack of their own sovereignty, became the masters of the country for the first time only in the bosom of the republic and have come to enjoy an infinitely rewarding life and happiness to their hearts' content. The path traversed by our republic is a history of struggle for brilliantly carving out the destiny of the people on its responsibility and for bringing about the heyday of national grandeur and prosperity. The road traversed by our people for independence, sovereignty and socialist construction faced many difficulties, and our people had to suffer many trials. However, thanks to the power of the republic which struggles, taking the chuche idea as its firm guiding principle, our people have been able to carry out victoriously serious social reforms and vast construction, while surmounting all forms of difficulties and repeated trials.

The power of our republic established a most advanced socialist system on this land, a backward colony and semi-feudal society in the past, and brilliantly carried out the cause of industrialization. Thus it has firmly defended the sovereignty of the country and the prestige of the nation, while smashing the schemes of domestic and foreign enemies. In particular, the power of the republic has achieved great successes in the struggle for translating into practice the party's slogan on modelling the whole society on the chuche idea and has laid a solid foundation for bringing earlier the brilliant future of communism.

The strengthening of the political and economic might of the country through the acceleration of socialist construction under the banner of the three revolutions of ideology, technology and culture is a brilliant success achieved by the power of the republic. The power of the republic has more firmly consolidated and developed the socialist system of our country in the political, economic, cultural and military fields and has epochally improved the standards of material and cultural life of the people by effecting constant upsurges in all fronts of socialist construction.

Today our fatherland is beaming more brilliant rays as a powerful socialist state with independence, self-reliance and self-defense and the people are leading an infinitely happy life to their hearts' content. Our republic exercises complete sovereignty in the international arena and our people have numerous friends and supporters in all parts of the world. Never in the history of our nation spanning 5,000 years has the fatherland developed and thrived so brilliantly as today and have our people become so dignified, proud and independent as today. The increase in the might of the power of the republic and the enhancement of its function and role are another precious success achieved in the course of the struggle for modelling the whole society on the chuche idea.

Today, the unitary ideological system of the party has been firmly established and the work method of anti-Japanese guerrilla type has been extensively established in all organs of the state and among all functionaries. Today, the revolutionary spirit and the strong centralized discipline, under which all economic organs of the state and economic functionaries think and act as one in accordance with the intent of the party center, have been firmly established. As a result, our republic has come to be strengthened and developed into a revolutionary power which can surmount any trial.

This is a reliable guarantee for achieving greater victory in our revolution and construction. With the enhancement of the function and role of the people's power, the ideological and spiritual traits of the working people have varied and the whole society has been filled with revolutionary life habits.

Today, all working people in our country are struggling, devoting their wisdom and energy for the party and revolution, taking the chuche idea as their firm faith and our society has become a politically and ideologically united body of working people with a common ideal and goal. All of the people have high political awareness and revolutionary zeal and are firmly united under one ideology and will. Therefore, in our country today, constant upsurges are being effected in economic and cultural construction and the revolution is being vigorously advanced without the slightest slackness.

Indeed, the power of the republic has successfully carried out in a brief historic period difficult and complicated revolutionary tasks of various stages which had not been fulfilled before in thousands of years and has done a lot of work for the development and prosperity of the fatherland and for the happiness of the people and for the development of the times and the revolution.

The great successes achieved in the development and strengthening of the power of our republic and in socialist construction are the brilliant fruition of the tested leadership of the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song and the KWP. The internal and external circumstances of our revolution in the past period were very complicated. The republic had always to suffer difficulties and trials and faced heavy tasks. However, thanks to the wise leadership of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the power of our republic has been able to traverse the road of victory and glory and to successfully carry out the vast tasks confronting it.

The entire course -- in which the power of our republic took its root amid the flames of anti-Japanese struggle, was born on this firm foundation and has been strengthened and developed into an ever-victorious and invincible revolutionary power today -- is a glorious and brilliant history embroidered with the immortal struggle of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song. The respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song clearly defined the duty of the power of the republic in conformity with the demands of the development of the revolution and the prevailing situation and has wisely led the struggle for its realization.

We have firmly protected the revolutionary nature of the people's government and the cause for socialism under difficult circumstances in which the country is divided and victoriously advanced the revolution and construction because the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song has resolved all questions concerning the strategic task which has loomed before the government of the republic and the improvement of the work method of the functionaries of government agencies and because he has always carefully and comprehensively guided activities to this end.

The idea and policy for building a chuche-type set forth by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song have been brilliantly implemented by our party's positive activities and correct leadership. Regarding the work of endlessly glorifying the republic founded and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as a sacred task, our party has strengthened party guidance of the people's government in various ways.

With our party's correct guidance, the people's government has assumed an appearance as the chuche-type revolutionary government, enhanced its role as a host taking responsibility for the people's daily life and firmly protected the country's sovereignty. Without our party's mature organizational skill and tested leadership, we could not imagine the people's government's contributions to the cause of imbuing society with the chuche idea.

Our people firmly believe that when they follow the KWP's leadership they can solidify the government of the republic and enhance its role, expediting the future of communism. The government of the republic has traversed the road of glorious struggle under the leadership of the party and the leader and achieved a great victory in the revolution and construction. However, our revolution has not been completed. We should pioneer a distant and rough road.

Today, our people are assigned an important revolutionary task of expediting the complete victory of socialism and achieving the fatherland's independent reunification. To successfully achieve this task, we should solidify and develop the government of the republic under the leadership of our party. The upcoming SPA session will unfold a new, bright prospect and a worthwhile task for the government of the republic in the struggle to implement the revolutionary line set forth at the sixth party congress. Thus, the future path of the republic will become much more promising and our revolution will leap to a higher stage.

With great expectations and concern, all the people throughout the country wish the first session of the Seventh SPA success. They are determined to brilliantly implement the magnificent plan which will be unfolded at the session.

The DPRK -- our glorious fatherland -- is the most authoritative and dignified revolutionary government founded and led by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who has devoted everything to the cause of achieving victory in the revolution and happiness for the people over a long period of more than half a century, is now energetically leading the struggle to solidify our people's government into a militant, lively and invincible government and to enact a new upsurge in socialist construction.

The future path of our republic and people tenaciously advancing holding in high esteem the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song under the leadership of our party is promising greater victory and glory. Let us all more vigorously struggle to achieve the endless prosperity of the republic and complete the chuche cause.

[Excerpt] Police yesterday took a Catholic priest in Wonju, Kangwon-do, to Seoul for interrogation to determine whether he provided shelter intentionally to the three people held recently as suspects in the arson at the American Cultural Center in Pusan.

Sources at the National Police Headquarters (NPH) said yesterday Father Choe Ki-sik at the Wonju Diocese and four other persons were brought to Seoul to undergo questioning as to whether they helped to hide the alleged arson suspects. In addition to Fr. Choe, the four under questioning were identified as Mun Kil-hwan, 37, a custodian at the Catholic education center belonging to the Wonju Diocese; Kim Yong-ae, 27, a woman bookstore owner; Yi Chang-pok, 43, a former member of the Urban Industrial Mission; and Chong In-chae, deputy head of the Catholic Farmers Association.

A spokesman for NPH said that Fr. Choe and the four other persons volunteered to come to Seoul to "cooperate" in the current investigation of arson incident. The spokesman, however, said that the five could face prosecution on charges of hiding the alleged arsonists depending on the outcome of the investigation.

The decision to question Fr. Choe and the four other people came following a statement by An Ung-mo, director of NPH, who said in a statement that anyone responsible for hiding a criminal suspect will not be exempt from prosecution regardless of his or her social standing.

CHON CALLS FOR VIGILANCE AGAINST NORTH KOREA

[Text] Seoul, April 6 (YONHAP) -- President Chon Tu-hwan called for continued vigilance against North Korea Tuesday, and said the "stockpiling of military might" was a top priority to ease tension and ensure peace on the Korean Peninsula.

In an address at the commencement exercises of the Korean Military Academy, Chon said, "We can secure peace only when we have military might strong enough to deter a war." "The stockpiling of that might will not only prevent a war, but in the long run, it will bring North Koreans to the conference table," Chon said. "When we are strong enough, then North Korea will be forced to renounce its adventurism and confrontation policy, and respond to our suggestions of peaceful unification."

Chon said a strong army is only possible through unity and discipline, and called on the newly commissioned officers to learn strength through the love and respect of their men.

HUN SEN HOSTS SOIREE FOR CUBAN PARTY DELEGATION

BK051308 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 1230 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] After having official talks with the Kampuchean delegation led by Comrade Hun Sen, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs, the high-level Cuban delegation led by Comrade Jesus Montane Oropesa, chief of the General Department of Foreign Relations of the Communist Party of Cuba [PCC] Central Committee and member of the party Central Committee Politburo and Secretariat, attended a reception hosted in its honor at the Chamka Mon state palace at 1600 on 2 April by Comrade Hun Sen, PRK minister of foreign affairs.

Attending the reception on the Kampuchean side were Comrade Hun Sen, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs; Comrade Kong Korm, deputy foreign minister; and many cadres of the Foreign Ministry. On the Cuban side were Comrade Jesus Montane Oropesa, chief of the General Department of Foreign Relations of the PCC Central Committee and member of the party Central Committee Politburo and Secretariat; Comrade Hector Gallo, Cuban ambassador to the PRK; and all the members of the delegation.

On that occasion, Comrade Hun Sen, PRK minister of foreign affairs, made a speech in which he stressed: It is a great honor for us to receive you on your visit to the PRK, which is aimed at strengthening the fraternal friendship, militant solidarity and close cooperation between our two parties, governments and peoples. This visit is a significant contribution to the strengthening of Kampuchea's revolutionary gains and a great encouragement for our socialist construction in the PRK as well as for our efforts to build peace and stability in Southeast Asia. The Kampuchean people highly appraise the great achievements scored by the proletarian class and heroic people of Cuba under the wise and clear-sighted leadership of the PCC headed by Comrade Fidel Castro. The Cuban people have succeeded in building the first socialist state in Latin America and have turned this socialist state into a strong bulwark against the yankee imperialists and their lackeys and for peace and international security, as well as into a firm base for the peoples in Asia, Africa and Latin America in their struggle to strengthen independence, peace, freedom, democracy and social progress.

On behalf of the Kampuchean party, government and people, we reaffirm our wholehearted support for the fraternal, heroic Cuban people in their valiant struggle against the threat of war and provocations, intimidation, coercion and the economic blockade pursued by the yankee imperialists and their colleagues, and for sovereignty over the Guantanamo Base illegally occupied by the yankees.

The comrade added: After the 7 January victory, our party and people have had the heaviest task of eradicating the vestiges of the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime. While struggling to defend the country and revolutionary gains, we have had to strive to build the country from scrap in order to make it advance toward socialism. Although the enemy of the Kampuchean revolution has been toppled and the state power has fallen into the hands of the people, the Chinese big-nation hegemonist-expanionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and the reactionaries in the ruling circles of the ASEAN member countries have supported and fostered their lackeys -- Pol Pot, Sihanouk and Son Sann -- and sought all perfidious means of subverting Vietnam-Kampuchea solidarity and undermining the revolution in Kampuchea. However, our Kampuchean people, under the correct leadership of the KPRP, have always moved forward and strived to surmount all obstacles for the revolutionary cause, the defense of the national independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity and the reconstruction of the Kampuchean fatherland.

On this occasion, we stress once again that all the victories scored in the past and at present by our people cannot be separated from the great, sincere support and assistance of the heroic Vietnamese people and from the common struggle in the strategic alliance of the peoples in the three Indochinese countries. They are also attributable to the valuable support and assistance of the fraternal socialist countries and the peace-loving peoples throughout the world. We will always remember that in time of need, the Kampuchean people have always received support and assistance in thought and deed from the Cuban party, government and fraternal people. We regard this aid as a most significant contribution to the construction of socialism in accordance with authentic Marxist-Leninist theory on the Angkor land.

In conclusion, the comrade said: We are confident that the fraternal friendship, militant solidarity and cooperation between our two parties, governments and peoples will grow more firm. No enemy can break them. On this solemn occasion, we also express revolutionary salutations to the people of Latin America and the Caribbean, particularly the heroic Nicaraguan, Grenadan and El Salvadorean peoples who, under the clear-sighted leadership of the patriotic heroes — Simon Bolivar, (Saint Martin), (Oregin), Jose Marti, (August Joseph), Sandino and Che Guevara — have fought valiantly throughout history in order to seize and defend their national independence and sovereignty.

In his reply, Comrade Jesus Montane Oropesa, head of the Cuban delegation, said: I convey to the Kampuchean people, your party and government and to Comrade Heng Samrin and other comrade leaders of this fraternal country, fraternal greetings from Comrade Fidel Castro, our great leader. On this occasion, we express thanks to the Kampuchean party, government and people for the militant solidarity and support extended to us in connection with the recent threat made by the U.S. Government. We are elated to see that through their all-out efforts and great sacrifices, in only 3 years the Kampuchean people have been able to eradicate the disasters left behind by the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime. The Kampuchean people, closely united with fraternal countries in Indochina, are now advancing firmly and striving to build their country and defend their national independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity. With the support of the Kampuchean people, the Kampuchean society has developed rapidly with the establishment of a new constitution, the National Assembly, the state institutions and administrative organs from the central level down to the local levels. These achievements have strengthened the revolutionary power and attested that the Kampuchean revolution is irreversible. These significant victories, like those we scored in the past, are attributable to the bond of solidarity, particularly solidarity of the Indochinese people. At the same time, the Indochinese nations have always enjoyed the firm support of the Soviet Union, other socialist countries and the nations throughout the world which cherish peace, justice and social progress.

The comrade added: On our American continent, through the manipulation of the Reagan administration, the El Salvadoran people are being massacred. Faced with successive defeats, the Reagan administration is posing direct threats against that country and launching intervention. At the same time, the United States is preparing to commit aggression against Nicaragua and Grenada. It has rejected all the reasonable proposals concerning solutions to various fundamental problems in the region. These proposals, which were made by Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo, are supported by the Cuban Government, the committee leading the Sandino front in Nicaragua and the committee leading the El Salvadoran revolution.

The comrade continued: In Southeast Asia, in collusion with the Beijing expansionists, they [not further specified] have carried on aggression against Vietnam and Laos and supported the anti-revolution elements in an attempt to destroy the revolutionary achievements of the victorious Kampuchean people.

Our party and government support the reasonable proposals made by the SRV, LPDR and PRK Governments, with the aim of solving all the remaining problems in the region through negotiations in order to turn Southeast Asia into a zone of peace, stability and cooperation beneficial to all nations.

In conclusion, the comrade stressed: On this glorious occasion, on behalf of the Cuban party, government and people, I once again affirm our firm support for the cause of the beloved nation that the Kampuchean people are building. We pledge to further provide our full cooperation. A bright future will certainly fall into the hands of such nations as Kampuchea and Cuba. We will advance toward socialism and be loyal to all the principles of Marxism-Leninism and the international proletariat.

The reception proceeded in a joyous and intimate atmosphere permeated with sentiments of international solidarity.

CHAN SI SENDS MESSAGE TO HUNGARY'S LAZAR

BK041004 Phnom Penh Domestic Service in Cambodian 0400 GMT 4 Apr 82

[Text] Comrade Chan Si, chairman of the PRK Council of Ministers, recently sent a message to Comrade Gyorgy Lazar, premier of the Council of Ministers of the Hungarian People's Republic, greeting him on the 37th anniversary of Hungary's Liberation Day. The message says, among other things:

During the past 3 years -- that is, since the day the Kampuchean people topped the genocidal regime and chose the socialist path — Hungary has made many contributions to strengthening the Kampuchean people's revolutionary cause for their normal living conditions, well-being and social progress. This noble deed of the Hungarian Government and people is forever imprinted in the hearts of the Kampuchean people.

I am convinced that the fraternal solidarity and cooperation between our two peoples will always be firm and based on proletarian internationalism in the interest of peace and socialism.

The Kampuchean people under the just leadership of the KPRP, the Kampuchean leader said, will achieve more and greater successes in national defense and reconstruction.

Chan Si unmasked the maneuvers of the enemy who is seeking by all means to reimpose the genocidal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime with its reactionary Maoist policy on Kampuchea.

On his part, Pierre Nze highly appreciated the efforts made by the Kampuchea people under the just leadership of the Kampuchean party and government in national defense and reconstruction. He exposed the situation in Africa, troubled by U.S. imperialists, Israeli Zionism and the apartheid of South Africa.

CHEA SIM RECEIVES FRENCH PARTY DELEGATION

BK060734 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1503 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 3 Apr (SPK) -- Chairman of the PRK National Assembly Chea Sim, member of the Political Bureau, received today in Phnom Penh the delegation of the French Communist Party [PCF] led by Paul Laurent, member of the Political Bureau and secretary of the PCF Central Committee.

Chairman Chea Sim talked about the current situation in Kampuchea, saying the PRK Government is focusing its attention on national reconstruction and defense while enjoying the aid and assistance of Vietnam, the USSR and other fraternal socialist countries. In the face of the firm advance of the Kampuchean revolution, he said, the Beijing expansionists in collusion with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces have conducted subversive actions along the Kampuchean-Thai border against the PRK. These activities, however, are in vain; they cannot reverse the situation in Kampuchea.

Paul Laurent affirmed that the PCF was on the side of the revolutionary forces at the time of the struggle against French colonialism and U.S. imperialism and that it is still continuing this work now. He stressed that the goal of his visit is to consolidate the bonds of friendship between the two parties and peoples.

Also present at the meeting was Hor Nam Hong, deputy minister of foreign affairs of Kampuchea.

UK, CANADA STUDYING 'YELLOW RAIN' SAMPLES

BK050304 Bangkok NATION REVIEW in English 5 Apr 82 p 6

[Text] Britain and Canada have taken delivery of samples of "yellow rain" allegedly used by Vietnamese forces in Laos and Kampuchea to conduct their independent laboratory tests. Australia says it is interested in receiving any "tangible evidence of use of chemical weapons in Indochina that appeared to be genuine and significant."

Informed diplomatic sources told the NATION yesterday that more Western countries had taken interest in conducting their independent tests on samples of alleged "yellow rain."

A spokesman for the Canadian Embassy in Bangkok, asked about the report, said: "We are monitoring the situation closely. We are conducting an independent analysis of the situation." He refused to confirm or deny suggestions that his government had taken some samples for scientific tests. But informed sources said that the Canadian Government recently sent a team here to begin the collection of samples of "yellow rain" to begin its own independent tests.

The spokesman for the British Embassy confirmed that his government took delivery of a sample of yellow rain allegedly used by Vietnamese forces in Laos. The sample was presented by a hilltriber in Laos in January, this year, the spokesman said, adding that the sample was being analysed by British scientists at the chemical defence establishment of Porton down on Salisbury Plain, England. The spokesman said that when the analysis of the substance was completed, the findings would be made available to the United Nations group examining the charges of the use of lethal chemical weapons by Vietnam and other Soviet surrogates in Southeast Asia and Afghanistan.

"So far, the results haven't been in yet," the spokesman added.

Britain, being a signatory of the 1972 biological weapons convention, "is interested in any evidence which might indicate a breach of the treaty," he said, adding: "We have supported the United Nations' moves to investigate reports of the use of chemical weapons in Southeast Asia."

The British Embassy added: We are not in a position to substantiate such reports but any opportunity to investigate alleged breaches of the convention would be a natural reaction to our concern over this issue."

Asked about the report, the Australian Embassy spokesman issued a statement to this effect: "The Australian Government has received enquiries from more than one source whether it was interested to receive a sample of material for analysis. Enquirers have been informed that the Australian Government would be interested in seeing any tangible evidence of use of chemical weapons in Indochina that appeared to be genuine and significant. So far, nothing has been received."

The French Embassy spokesman said his government had not conducted any independent analysis on alleged yellow rain samples.

A team of American experts on chemical weapons, meanwhile, will arrive here next week for talks with Thai officials on the controversial issue of "yellow rain," according to a U.S. Embassy spokesman. The seven-man team will be here between April 6-11.

'HEAVY FIGHTING' REPORTED IN KAMPUCHEA

BUSINESSMAN REPORTS ON SINGAPORE TRADE WITH SRV

BK021058 Bangkok SIAM RAT in Thai 30 Mar 82 pp 1, 12

[Text] A Thai businessman who recently went to Laos to conduct trade negotiations following the government's move to establish free trade with that country has reported to SIAM RAT on what he saw and noted the absurdity in the state of trade between Thailand and the three Indochinese communist countries. He noted that while the Thai Government has stopped Thai businessmen from selling strategic goods to Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchea, certain countries in ASEAN, particularly Singapore, have heinously disregarded the agreement among the ASEAN countries and are supplying the three communist countries with several kinds of strategic goods.

"Especially barbed wire," he said. "There has been a large supply of barbed wire to those countries in addition to shoes and certain foodstuffs which are strategic items," the businessman told SIAM RAT.

Singapore, he said, has shamelessly tricked Thailand in this business. It places orders for strategic goods with Thailand directly and sends its vessel to pick up the goods at Bangkok's port. Once the vessel is fully loaded and leaves the port, it heads directly to Vietnamese ports without wasting time going through Singapore. In addition, strategic goods are shipped directly from Singapore itself. Such a practice by Singapore shows indifference to the principle reached among the ASEAN countries. "This is what is going on at present," the businessman stressed. He expressed skepticism about the authorities directly responsible for banning exports of strategic goods to the three communist countries — that is, the National Security Council. He noted that certain goods, such as textiles and rice, should not be included in the list of strategic goods since they are not strategic goods and, besides, they are goods which can earn a great deal of income for the country.

PART I OF PHAM VAN DONG REPORT TO VCP CONGRESS

[Excerpts from part I of economic report presented by SRV Council of Ministers Chairman Pham Van Dong at the opening session of the Fifth VCP Congress on 27 March in Hanoi -- read by announcer]

[Text] Members of the presidium, comrade delegates: The party Central Committee's political report presented to this congress by the general secretary, Comrade Le Duan, has given a panoramic view of our people's revolutionary cause from the fourth to the fifth party congress. The report has summarized the diverse developments of the country's situation in the first years of the new stage in which our people throughout the country have been engaging in socialist construction and the defense of the socialist fatherland. Analyzing the achievements as well as the weaknesses in our advance, the report affirms that the past five years can be recorded in our national history as a stage of very glorious victory of the Vietnamese revolution; and at the same time, it also points out acute problems in the present economic and social situation. On this basis, the report defines the strategic tasks of the Vietnamese revolution, the major guidelines for our people's activities in the immediate first stage including the period of the 1981-85 5-year plan and the years ending 1990.

Based on the political report, this report is to review the major points in the implementation of the 1976-80 plan and present the main orientations, tasks and targets in the economic and social fields for the 1981-85 period and the 1980's as a whole, with a view to buiding the elaboration of the 1981-85 5-year state plan.

After reviewing the economic and social situation in the years from 1976 to 1980 and at present, Council of Ministers Chairman Pham Van Dong's report sets forth main orientations, tasks and targets in the economic and social domains for the 1981-85 period and the subsequent 1980's. The report says:

Comrade delegates, the political report has expounded positions of principle governing the elaboration of the economic and social strategy for the socialist industrialization process in the 1980's, and has set forth the economic, cultural and social tasks for the 1981-85 period. These strategic positions constitute an application of the party's lines of socialist revolution and of building a socialist economy in keeping with the specific conditions of the present stage. The report has set forth overall targets in the economic and social fields for the 1980's as follows:

1. To meet the most pressing and essential needs, gradually stabilize and eventually improve to some extent the people's material and cultural life, first of all to bring about a steady solution to the foodgrain and foodstuffs problem, better meet the requirements in clothing, study, medical care, housing, travelling, child care, and other essential consumption needs.

2. To continue building the material and technological basis of socialism, mainly to boost agricultural production, consumer goods industry and exports; strengthen further the technical equipment of the other economic branches; and make preparations for a more vigorous development of heavy industry in the next stage.

3. To complete the socialist transformation in the southern provinces, further perfect the socialist relations of production in the north, and consolidate the socialist relations of production in the whole country.

4. To meet the defense requirements, consolidate national defense and maintain security and order.

These overall targets must be concretized into partial objectives, quantitative norms to be achieved in each branch, each locality and each establishment. This is closely linked to the inventorying and calculations in order to bring into play the capabilities, to work out a balance between the requirements and the possibilities and to lay down executive measures regarding policies, ideology and organization through the establishment of economic-technical projects. That is precisely the process of elaborating the economic and social strategy, working out the state plan, and renovating the management mechanism.

On the basis of the results achieved so far, this report will expound the main orientations, tasks and targets in the economic and social fields for the 1981-85 period and the 1980's as a whole.

After the fifth party congress, the actual time left for the 5-year 1981-85 plan will be a little more than 3 years. Therefore, the objectives, policies and measures must be very firm.

In meeting the people's daily needs, we must manage to meet the food requirements of society to the extent of securing enough foodgrain, vegetables, beans and sauce, and an increased supply of sugar, molasses, fish, meat, and eggs. We must achieve a stable supply of food and fuel rations to the workers, civil servants and armymen, especially in the cities, industrial areas, border areas and offshore islands. We must resolve the problem of clothing for all people at a required minimum; ensure the supply of writing paper, school-book paper and newsprint and an appropriate amount of printing paper for other purposes; try with a high sense of urgency to do away with the shortage of medicines, especially essential ones; ensure a better supply of household implements and common articles for personal use; increase the means of transport; make a further step in alleviating the housing shortages, and ensure an increased supply of water for domestic use, a rational supply of electricity and hygienic conditions in populated areas. While caring for the people's life as a whole, our priority should be given to producers, especially to workers, together with soldiers, cadres and public servants. Along with striving to stabilize and improve to some extent the people's material life, we must pay the greatest attention to organizing the cultural life in each enterprise and cooperative, in villages, city wards, districts, provinces, towns and cities. We must develop positive factors, resolutely stop and eliminate negativism in the economic and social life and establish a new socialist order, an honest way of doing business, good social relations and a healthy and joyful lifestyle.

In the field of building the material and technological basis, we must attach great importance to the development in depth, namely making transformations, additions, and improvements in order to put to good use the existing capabilities; at the same time, we must carry on the development in breadth, undertake new constructions in a selective manner, strengthen the material-technical facilities available for immediate use in the 1981-85 5-year plan while making active preparations to deploy construction work on a larger scale and at a quicker tempo in subsequent plans. In strengthening the material and technological basis both in depth and in breadth we are to concentrate on boosting agricultural production, increasing the capacity of producing consumer and export goods, creating new sources of energy and raw materials, developing the infrastructure, especially the communications and transport capacity, and at the same time we are to ensure the adequate supply of ordinary and improved tools of various kinds, and an increased number of medium-size and small machines and equipment for various economic activities, to stimulate the key branches in the first place.

In the field of socialist transformation, we must conduct in a very resolute way the revolution in the relations of production, adopting proper steps and forms.

Hesitating or delaying in the establishment of the socialist production relations or committing acts that tend to weaken them is tantamount to slackening the struggle between the two paths and will bring about dangerous economic and social consequences.

We must establish the socialist relations of production, so that the economic situation is stabilized on healthy foundations, develops in the right direction, and the state controls the major part of the commodities. We advocate the use of a multicomponent economic structure in which the socialist economy plays the leading role. This means that we must correctly step up the socialist transformation. In the 1981-85 period, we must resolutely carry out land readjustment and complete in the main the taking of the peasants in the provinces of Nam Bo into the collective path, mainly in the form of production collectives; continue to organize and consolidate the farm cooperatives in central provinces; step up the transformation of trade, transport fishery and industry in the south; make intensive efforts to rearrange and handle the national market; and make a further step toward perfecting the socialist relations of production.

In the field of national defense and security, we must make the greatest efforts for a good performance in the defense of the country and the maintenance of the security of the fatherland. With an economy closely combined with national defense and a defense combined with the economy, we are to work out plans for an active and swift shift from an economy of peace to one of war, in case of necessity.

We must adequately meet the economic demands arising from the task of consolidating national defense. On the other hand, conditions must be created for army units to engage in production so they can partially meet their own needs. The capabilities of national defense establishments must be mobilized and the army forces must be rationally used in appropriate economic activities. We must build an all-people, comprehensive and modern national defense and an army with a determined-to-win spirit, with strict discipline and with an increasingly high level of standardization and modernization and an increasingly perfect status of combat readiness. We must build a clean, firm and strong people's security force and closely coordinate the security and armed forces with the mass movement in maintaining political security, order and social safety and halting and eliminating negativism.

To achieve these objectives, we must correctly apply the line of socialist revolution and that of building a socialist economy charted out by the fourth party congress and major policies for the 1980's expounded in the political report to the fifth congress.

While implementing these lines and policies, special attention should be paid to the following very important points:

First, we should always firmly grasp the main contents of socialist industrialization in the 5-year 1981-85 plan and in the 1980's as a whole, which are to concentrate efforts to develop agriculture vigorously, regard agriculture as the forefront, take a further step in advancing agriculture to socialist large-scale production, strive hard to boost consumer goods production and continue to build a number of important heavy industries, and combine agriculture, consumer goods industry and heavy industry in a rational industrial-agricultural structure.

We must develop agriculture in an all-round manner along with forestry and fishery, first and foremost to boost the production of foodgrain and foodstuffs. In close connection with an all-round development of agriculture, we must make the fullest use of all forces from major industrial installations to small-industry and handicraft establishments and individual handicraftsmen to develop the production of consumer goods. In all activities of our national economy, we must attach great importance to exports and make tremendous efforts in this regard, so as to create at an early date main sources of export articles of high value. With efforts to be focused on developing agriculture and boosting the production of consumer and export goods, we should create jobs to the highest possible extent permitted by our capacity, utilize to the full labor forces, and expand the division of labor and reallocation of social labor forces.

We must continue to build the centrally run economy into the backbone of the national economy with a firm grip on key positions. At the same time, we must pay the greatest attention to the development of local economies, and bring into play their important action on agriculture and consumer goods production. We should actively form economic-technical branches to serve as pillars of the economy, while persevering in efforts to build district agricultural-industrial economic units, and provincial economies in the direction of gradually creating a provincial industrial-agricultural economic structure.

We must develop labor division and coordination relations both on a national and local scale, closely linking the central economy to the local ones in a unified national economic structure and eliminating the existing bottlenecks. It is necessary to clearly define the central economic structure as well as the economic structure for each locality. The decentralization of management between central organs and local administrative bodies is an issue that requires an urgent solution. In the present situation, we must expand to an appropriate extent the scope of the local economy with regard to production as well as distribution and circulation by according more authority, means and responsibility to the local administration. This will require the localities to carry out their activities more effectively.

We must, on the one hand, overcome the manifestations of centralism and bureaucratism and, on the other, strengthen state discipline, and eliminate the phenomena of fragmentation and departmentalism in order to ensure unified central management.

Urban centers, especially large cities, play a very important role and must promote their ever-increasing impact on the economy, especially in industry, small industries and handicrafts. Central and local authorities are dutybound to help build the Hanoi capital into a political, economic, scientific, technological and cultural center worthy of representing the whole country. Ho Chi Minh City with its varied possibilities must become an important center for economic, cultural and foreign trade activities.

The provinces in the Mekong River Delta and the Red River Delta -- with very great and diverse capabilities -- are key regions of food and agricultural production for the country. The central and local services concerned must do their best to help these provinces develop their great capabilities to the highest degree. The midland and mountain provinces in the north possess a strategic position of great importance in economy and national defense. They have very great economic strongpoints and are the sites of many important industrial centers. The provinces in the Central Highlands also possess a strategic position of great importance with respect to the economy and national defense, and rich potentials in grain and especially in various types of subsidiary food crops, livestock breeding, perennial industrial crops, forests with many types of precious timber, and some valuable mineral resources.

The central government, all services and other localities must actively help these provinces in their endeavor to overcome the immediate difficulties concerning grain, labor, communications and irrigation so as to develop the economy, improve the material and cultural living standards of the people of various nationalities and make an active contribution to the building and defense of the fatherland.

The coastal provinces of central Vietnam have economic strongpoints in many respects. The provinces of eastern Nam Bo have all-round agricultural capabilities and many important industrial installations. These localities must strive to develop the production of grain, food and consumer goods. Each province should correctly assess and satisfactorily demonstrate its own strongpoints so as to provide more raw materials to industry and increase exports.

We must devise programs and plans for gradually bringing into play the diverse and valuable potentials of all of these regions.

While our national economy still comprises several components, it is extremely important to expand the positions of the socialist economy and to enhance its dominant role. We must make every effort to consolidate and perfect the state-run and cooperative economic units, and to use the state-run economy in setting examples in labor productivity, quality of products, effectiveness in production and business, and in the implementation of set policies and the law.

We must encourage, guide and assist the family economy to ensure that it is truly an integral part of the socialist economy. We must make the joint public-private units in the south truly uphold their character as joint enterprises and operate with good results. Before as well as throughout the process of transformation, we must correctly employ and guide the individual and private economies while checking and overcoming the negative aspects of these economies. After completing the transformation of production relations, there will remain in a number of branches and trades suitable individual economic activities that support the socialist economy and are essential to the national economy. We must devise effective measures to direct these activities in service of production and circulation. It is necessary to use the state-run economy as the core, link the various different economic components together in various suitable forms, and develop all the components of the economy along the socialist line.

To overcome immediate difficulties and take the economy forward, we must try our best to bring into play the valuable assets and strong position of the economy itself and of our people and our country, while making the best use of the assistance of the Soviet Union and the other countries in the Council of Mutual Economic Assistance, and expand our all-sided cooperation and mutual assistance with the fraternal countries of Laos and Kampuchea, considering this assistance and all-round cooperation to be a fundamental factor having the character of a law to carry out socialist industrialization in our country. With regard to other countries, we should strive to develop trade relations and economic, scientific and technological cooperation on the principle of ensuring independence, sovereignty and mutual benefit.

To achieve these targets and orientations, the 5-year 1981-85 plan is a plan for a further development, restructuring and promotion of socialist transformation of the national economy. These three aspects should be closely associated with each other in order to stabilize the economic and social situation in the main, meet the most pressing and essential needs of the people's material and cultural life, reduce the most serious imbalances in the economy, overcome to an important extent the abnormalities in distribution and circulation and create more prerequisites and conditions for a vigorous and steady advance in the years to come.

In all economic activities, we must constantly pay special attention to productivity, reduction in material consumption and production costs, and improvement of quality and efficiency.

In addition, we must strive to bring into play three factors: the renewal of management; the application of science and technology; and strictly practicing thrift and opposing waste.

A feature of pressing significance and special importance is the need for urgently achieving a good rearrangement of the economy in accordance with the following orientations: We must readjust and improve the structure of production, building, labor, distribution, circulation and consumption, better meet the pressing needs in keeping with the practical possibilities in the forthcoming years, especially with regard to energy, raw materials, communications and transport, and also with the long-term forward direction, thereby promoting a stable and highly effective development of the economy in the right direction.

In rearranging the production facilities, we must as a matter of priority afford material conditions to boost the production of articles serving the people's life, the needs of export and of national defense consolidation. In this spirit, some establishments are to be given additional equipment and machinery and supplied with more energy and materials, while others will have to readjust their production or gear it to another direction.

We must reorganize the production and business network of all branches and trades from the central to local and grassroots levels, and create a production structure composed of well-fitted parts showing dynamism and a position to forge ahead. In rearranging capital construction, we must review the structure of investments, the scale and tempo of capital construction, and do away with dispersion and uniform distribution, lack of an overall plan and low economic effectiveness in making investments.

We definitely must not invest further in the construction of new projects if the capacity of the existing facilities of the same type has not yet been fully tapped; and must resolutely suspend and postpone construction work on projects that we do not have the conditions to use and that will not be able to operate due to an inadequate supply of energy and raw material. While doing this, it is necessary to readjust the forces of labor and construction equipment.

In rearranging the work force we should broaden the division and reallocation of labor within each establishment, locality, branch, and in the country as a whole, between different regions, and between the cities and the countryside so as to make the best use of the land, forest, sea and the existing material and technical facilities. Administrative staffs must be resolutely reduced. Great importance is to be attached to reducing the rate of population growth. The scale and orientation for the training of cadres and workers should be redefined in conformity with the requirements and capacity of the economy in the immediate future and subsequent years; the contingent of trained cadres and workers should be rationally rearranged and used.

In rearranging distribution and circulation, a socialist order must be established on this complex front by promptly organizing and expanding the socialist market, limiting and closely controlling the unorganized market, resolutely applying the principle of distribution according to labor, implementing the system of profit-and-loss accounting, and achieving a fair readjustment of the income of various strata of the population. The role of distribution and circulation should be promoted as a lever for the development of and as a bridge between agriculture and industry and between the cities and the countryside to enhance production and serve the consumer's needs.

In readjusting social consumption, thrift must be strictly practiced in investments and production expenses, in cultural and social spending and in defense and administrative expenditures. Thrift must be concretized into annual targets which must be achieved by all means.

All of society — as well as each sector, locality, establishment and individual -- must thoroughly apply the principle that one must only consume within the limits of one's production, live by the fruits of one's labor, and strive for greater accumulation.

Comrade delegates, the following are the main orientations, tasks and targets of the important sectors and fields:

1. The Front of Agriculture, Forestry and Maritime Products

Concentrating our efforts on developing agriculture and taking it one step further to socialist large-scale production is a strategic policy of our party designed to exert a tremendous effect in the economic, political, cultural and social fields. To carry out this strategic policy, in the 5 years from 1981 to 1985 we must make every effort to satisfactorily perform the following main tasks:

Agriculture: Grain and foodstuffs are the most pressing and a very basic problem which we must resolve so as to stabilize and improve the people's living conditions, to develop the economy and to consolidate national defense.

In the immediate future, we must strive to meet at all costs the need of all society for grain and to place a necessary amount of grain under the state control by all means. In the 1981-85 period, an effort must be made to achieve an average annual grain output of 17 million tons in paddy equivalent -- an increase of 3.6 million tons compared to the average annual output in the 1976-80 period -- and to collect an average 3.5 million tons of this amount annually for the state. To fulfill this target of paramount importance, we should devise plans to resolve all the problems of production, collection, transportation, storage, processing and consumption in a well-coordinated manner. All necessary conditions must be prepared so as to achieve by 1985 a grain output of about 19-20 million including 16-16.5 million tons of paddy and 3-3.5 tons of subsidiary food crops in paddy equivalent.

With the exception of the major cities, concentrated industrial zones, areas specializing in planting industrial crops, concentrated forested areas and areas facing special situations, all localities must bring into play their strengths and make the greatest possible effort to resolve the grain and foodstuff problem on the spot. They must strive to meet their own needs for grain and foodstuffs by adopting a production and consumption system suitable for the specific conditions of each locality and by applying active measures, including exchanges with other localities, imports and exports. They must also strive to make increasing contributions to the entire country.

Every effort must be made to develop the production of both rice and subsidiary food crops. Concerning rice, along with opening new land to expand the cultivated area, the main direction is for us to promote intensive cultivation, increase the number of crops per year, and establish high-yield rice areas capable of producing large amounts of marketable products.

With regard to subsidiary food crops, we should vigorously develop the cultivation of corn, potatoes, cassava and other starch-bearing crops. Correct subsidiary food crop cultivation patterns should be defined for each province and district. We should make the best use of land to grow subsidiary food crops, including the land exclusively devoted to subsidiary food crop cultivation and the land on which only one rice crop is planted annually. We should grow a winter subsidiary food crop on land devoted to planting two rice crops per year, and plant a companion subsidiary food crop on land under industrial crops. Subsidiary food crops must be planted in a concentrated or a scattered manner everywhere.

Importance should be attached to increasing the yields of subsidiary food crops. The ratio of these crops in the volume of grain production should be increased to 18-20 percent. Special attention should be given to satisfactorily organizing the processing, transportation and storing of subsidiary food crops and encouraging their consumption. These crops should be made a staple food to improve the people's diet gradually according to the productive characteristics of each area.

Series of uniform measures should be applied to ensure that grain production and collection targets are fulfilled. The existing water conservancy projects should be perfected; efforts should be concentrated mainly on building new medium- and small-scale new projects, and conditions should be prepared for building large-scale projects. Especially, water conservancy work must be rationally, effectively and practically developed in the Mekong River Delta, and the waterlogged area in the Bac Bo Delta must be actively reduced.

The rice and subsidiary crop varieties production system should be promptly perfected to ensure sufficient and timely supplies and wide distribution of new high-yielding strains resistant to harmful insects and diseases, drought, waterlogging, acidity and salinity. Shortages of crop varieties, supplies of wrong varieties, and the use of varieties unsuitable for the soil conditions and planting seasons should be quickly ended.

An effort should be made to ensure supplies of fertilizers and insecticides, concentrating the bulk of them first of all for those areas where conditions exist for the application of advanced intensive cultivation techniques and those areas where the state plans to collect large amounts of grain. Aside from the fertilizers and insecticides produced domestically and imported from the socialist countries, efforts should be made to export a number of agricultural products to import more nitrate fertilizer and insecticides. At the same time, the production of stable and green manures should be virously increased. Crop rotation and companion cropping should be applied in the cultivation of leguminous plants to enrich and improve the soil. Intensive cultivation procedures for each area should be formulated and applied; scientific and technological progress should be introduced into production.

Policies should be promulgated providing incentives for grain production, for the production, processing and consumption of subsidiary food crops, and for developing the production of organic and chemical fertilizers.

Tax and collection policies should be improved and stabilized; prices should be rationally set. Means of production, consumer goods and construction materials should be set aside to exchange for agricultural products. The peasantry should be encouraged to discharge satisfactorily the obligation to pay taxes and sell grain to the state so as to ensure that most of the marketable grain is placed under state control, to curb the free market, to combat the speculation and hoarding of grain, and to eventually ensure state control of the social grain market.

Warehouse systems should be built and processing, packaging, measuring and transportation facilities increased to ensure the expenditious and efficient collection, transportation and storing of grain, and to prevent damage and losses.

More labor should be invested and mechanization appropriately and selectively carried out to promote intensive cultivation, multicropping and land reclamation. In the 1981-85 period, the 300,000 hectares of new land already opened should be developed and a few hundred thousand more hectares should be reclaimed. In addition, the people should be motivated and organized to open even more new land.

Experiences of building new economic zones should be reviewed; correct measures and steps should be taken to implement the policy that the state and people should work together; and high efficiency should be achieved with less capital investments.

We should strive to build up grain reserves so as to maintain the initiative in any eventuality; saving grain should become the state discipline.

Attention should be given to developing the cultivation of food crops; ensuring sufficient supplies of various kinds of green vegetables and beans; building areas specializing in producing greens and beans for export; and building food belts around cities and industrial zones. The production of soybeans should be developed vigorously to increase the sources of protein for people, domestic animals and land and to become an increasingly important key export item. A policy providing incentives for developing soybean planting should be adopted. The problems of varieties, fertilizers and insecticides should be resolved satisfactorily; technological progress, companion cropping, crop rotation, multicropping and land should be fully exploited to ~~widely~~ grow soybeans. A number of areas should be built for the exclusive and intensive cultivation of high-yielding soybeans. An effort should be made to increase the volume of soybean production to at least 250,000-300,000 tons by 1985.

The cultivation of beans, such as green beans and vigna cylindrica, should be developed in suitable areas. The areas of oil-bearing plants such as peanuts, sesame, coconuts, sasanqua, palms, and so forth should be established quickly to provide more food for the people and to increase the sources of raw materials for industry and goods for export.

We must expand the industrial and fruit crop areas, promoting concentrated and specialized cultivation, while motivating the people to make full use of land to plant widely short-term and quick-yield crops. We must vigorously develop sugarcane cultivation and set up large-scale specialized sugarcane cultivation areas in order to provide sufficient supplies to various sugar refineries, both those in existence and those under construction. We must expand sugarcane cultivation in various districts and villages and build more sugar processing facilties with the use of manual and partially-mechanized methods. We must quickly increase the tobacco cultivation areas in order to meet requirements for consumption and export. We must promote widespread planting of fruit trees among the people and set up a number of areas for growing specialized fruit trees with emphasis on planting pineapple, banana and orange trees. We must promote the planting of coconut trees, especially in the coastal areas of central and southern Vietnam. We must increase planting, exploiting and processing various kinds of medicinal, oleaginous, castor oil and spice plants. We must reserve some lands in those areas where there are appropriate climates for planting cotton and must increase planting of jute, hemp, flax, okra, cotton and wild pineapple. In particular, we must more broadly develop the movement to grow mulberry for silkworm raising in order to contribute to resolving the clothing problem. By developing the planting of rush we will be able to ensure the manufacture of enough mats for domestic use and export.

We must take good care of the existing areas of long-term industrial crops and completely harvest them while planting anew more rubber and coffee mainly in the eastern Nam Bo and Ay Nguyen areas, and tea in the midlands, Tay Nguyen and the northern mountainous regions in order to increase the source of exports. We should strive to have 150,000-160,000 hectares of rubber, 30,000-40,000 hectares of coffee and 60,000-70,000 hectares of tea by 1985.

Along with expanding cultivation, we should also actively develop the raising of livestock and poultry in order to increase the source of food products and to get more manure for crops. Special attention should be paid to the raising of horned animals and those which consume little grain. We should establish plans to balance cultivation with animal raising for each cooperative, each district and each province in order to meet the local demands and ever increase the delivery of such products to the state. A rational proportion of land suitable to the patterns of cultivation and animal raising should be reserved in each locality to grow fodder plants for livestock and poultry. Sufficient feed should be supplied to the pig- and chicken-raising installations along the food belts around cities and industrial complexes. The system of breeding cattle, pigs and chicken should be consolidated and developed. Veterinary work should be implemented well to prevent and control diseases and epidemics for livestock and poultry. Technical innovations should be applied to increase the productivity of animal raising. We should combine and develop well the three forms of animal raising in cooperatives, state-owned installations and families, while extensively encouraging the families of cooperative members to develop their animal raising. All the state agencies, troops, workers and civil servants in those localities in which conditions for this are favorable should also develop animal raising in order to improve their living conditions.

The state should institute the policies and plans to provide breeds, medicine and guidance for families to develop animal raising. Pig raising should be developed vogorously in those localities where there are abundant crops while special attention should be paid to the raising of cattle and buffalo in order to resolve the problems of draft force, fertilizer, meat and milk. The raising of chicken, ducks, goats, rabbits and bees should be developed also.

We should strive to reach approximately 13 million pigs, 4.7-5 million cattle and buffalo and 100 million poultry by 1985.

Forestry plans should be formulated promptly in the direction of combining forestry with agriculture and of generally using resources to build socialism in the mountainous provinces and districts.

We should redistribute the work force throughout the country, increase our investment in forestry and apply technical measures in order to gradually build and rationally use the 15 million hectares of forest land, considering the method of combining agricultural and forestry business as an important direction in which to develop forestry. We should associate the tasks of planting and protecting forests with the exploiting and processing of timber and other forest products; accelerate vigorously grain production and animal raising; resolutely apply effective measures to protect and restore forests by necessarily and definitively stopping forest destruction and fires and by building and developing forest assets.

First of all, we should manage well the existing natural and planted forests and accelerate vigorously the tree-planting and afforestation movement in the direction of specialized and intensive cultivation and, in this way, meet ever better the requirements of domestic use and export for timber, firelogs and other special forest products, and ensure environmental protection and contribute to maintaining the ecological balance throughout the country and in each locality.

Step by step we will create areas of highly concentrated and productive forests to support industry. We should link the settlement of nomads closely with the building of forest assets and the development of forestry and agriculture in the mountainous regions.

In the 5 years from 1981 to 1985, we should administer, exploit and maintain well the existing forests, plant approximately 300,000 hectares of new forests; and broadly develop the people's tree-planting movement. We should issue various policies to stimulate the planting of trees and afforestation and the protection of forests, and to mobilize all strata of the laboring people -- peasants, workers, students, cadres and troops -- to afforest land, quickly returning greenery to bare hills and fertility to depleted soil. In the coastal areas, attention should be paid to growing windshield and antierosion plants. In the mountainous regions, we should intensively protect and plant headwaters trees. Measures to restore and protect forests must be emphasized. We should plant new trees used in producing paper pulp, yarn, construction timber and mining shafts, and for shipbuilding and export. The planting of forests for firelogs and charcoal must be organized to resolve local problems of fuel for the processing industry, the preliminary processing of agricultural products and residential quarters.

The exploitation of timber for domestic use and export must be increased. The rate of using wood must be increased by making full use of twigs and branches locally. In 5 years, we should exploit about 8 million cubic meters of timber. Measures should be adopted to settle uniformly the tasks of felling, transporting, processing and preserving timber in order to ensure its timely supply to fulfill all demands both quantitatively and qualitatively. We should actively grow, tend, protect and exploit all valuable forest products such as rose mallow, anis, cinnamon, bamboo, rattan and oleaginous and medicinal plants. Special attention should be paid to the planting of pine trees and the tapping of their sap.

Along with consolidating and developing the state forests, we must use districts as bases on which to develop forestry. The allocation of land and forests to cooperatives must be made in accordance with the state program and plan. In order to fulfill the aforementioned forestry tasks well, ~~it is necessary to~~ grasp firmly the motto of using forests as a means to nurse forests. The central and local governments, and the state and the people should work together in order to accumulate ever more assets for the state and to improve the people's livelihood.

With regard to maritime products, we should reorganize and develop catching them and optimally use all water areas to develop the raising of fish and shrimp and other marine products, bringing the volume of sea fish and fish-raising production to approximately 700,000 tons by 1985 including 470,000-500,000 tons of sea fish. We should further increase the production volume of dry fish, processed fish and fish sauce. Investment should be concentrated in those areas abounding in sea fish to develop the manually operated and semimechanized fishing forces and to expand import and export businesses aimed at securing fuel, oil and fishing equipment for the mechanized fishing fleets.

We should rationally organize all chains of production, combine well all tasks of collecting, purchasing, transporting, preserving, processing and selling maritime products. Through investment in major projects and various incentive policies to stimulate production, we should strive to consolidate and develop all business establishments; restore and develop people's fishing forces; increase efficiency and productivity of fishing and processing operations; organize southern fishermen into cooperatives and other suitable units; use coastal districts as main areas in which to reorganize production; establish economic relations between state and people; and exploit fishery, agriculture and industry combinations in sea zones. We should issue policies to help and encourage cooperatives and the people to make full use of rivers, ponds, lakes and ricefields to raise fish and shrimp, and organize fish raising installations to ensure a fresh fish supply to cities and industrial complexes.

All farms, forests, state agencies and army units stationed in favorable localities must organize fish-raising to improve their living conditions.

COMMUNIQUE LISTS FIRST-QUARTER PRC PROVOCATIONS

OW051534 Hanoi VNA in English 1457 GMT 5 Apr 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, 5 Apr -- The Commission for Investigation of Chinese Expansionists' and Hegemonists' war crimes against Vietnam today issued the following communique:

In the first three months of this year the Chinese reactionaries, with U.S. assistance and encouragement, continued their war of sabotage against Vietnam, using big forces from many directions. Their schemes and acts were varied in form and perfidious, criminal in nature.

On the northern border, after rejecting the proposal of the Foreign Ministry of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam to cease fire during Tet, the Chinese reactionaries massed many more battalions close to the Vietnamese districts of Trang Dinh and Cao Loc (Lang Son), Phong Tho (Lai Chau), Muong Khuong (Hoang Lien Son), Trung Khanh (Cao Bang), and Dong Van (Ha Tuyen) allegedly to protect Chinese farmers at work. They also sent more troops and supplies to points they were illegally occupying in Vietnam. The aggressors dug trenches and built bunkers with the aim of grabbing more land in violation of Vietnam's independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity while actively preparing for an eventual large-scale aggression. Chinese troops made 29 intrusions into the districts of Muong Khuong (Hoang Lien Son), Meo Vac and Dong Van (Ha Tuyen), Trung Khanh and Ha Quang (Cao Bang), Cao Loc (Lang Son), and Mong Cai (Quang Ninh), killing people and looting. On February 6 Chinese troops attacked Nhiu Sang hamlet, Ta Chai of May hamlet, and Nan Xin hamlet in Xin Man District (Ha Tuyen), taking away ~~six horses~~ and wounding a civilian. On February 11, a ~~group of~~ Chinese soldiers intruded into Y Ty village of Bat Xat District (Hoang Lien Son). They killed a district official and took away four buffaloes; on the same day, Chinese troops intruded into Can Lau hamlet, Ngai Thau village, Bat Xat District (Hoang Lien Son). They shot dead a man named Lung A Sinh and took away a transistor radio and many other things.

Chinese forces also fired, on 43 occasions, at hamlets and villages in Muong Khuong District (Hoang Lien Son), Xin Man, Vi Xuyen, Meo Vac and Quan Ba Districts (Ha Tuyen), Dinh Lap and Van Land Districts (Lang Son), and Trung Khanh District (Cao Bang). Most serious was the firing of 500 82-mm mortar rounds on a stretch from Peak 1388 to the north of the district town on Muong Khuong.

Meanwhile Chinese aircraft made thousands of single sorties close to the Vietnamese airspace. Many times they entered Vietnam from three to five kilometres, over Trang Dinh District (Lang Son), Vi Xuyen District (Ha Tuyen), Trung Khanh District (Cao Bang), and Hoanh Mo and Binh Lieu District (Quang Ninh).

The United States also joined the Chinese reactionaries by flying dozens of spy planes off the coast from Nghe Tinh to Phu Khanh Provinces.

In the last three months, thousands of Chinese armed boats intruded into Vietnamese waters from Quang Ninh to Quang Nam-Da Nang Province, In particular, from March 2 to 9, 1982, the Chinese side sent more than 40 armed vessels deep into Vietnamese waters off Binh Tri Thien and Quang Nam-Da Nang Provinces. The local people and armed forces damaged three vessels and captured another together with a number of Chinese intruders and weapons and other equipment. Along with these provocative activities of Chinese boats, many vessels of the United States and its lackeys operated off the Vietnamese coast and around Tho Chu Island.

In addition to armed provocations and intrusions at the northern border areas and in the airspace and the territorial seas of Vietnam, the Chinese reactionaries frenziedly pushed up spying and psychological warfare. In the last three months, many Chinese commandoes intruding into Vietnamese territory were captured in Muong Khuong (Hoang Lien Son), Mong Cai (Quang Ninh) and Dong Van (Ha Tuyen). The Chinese side is sending many of the Hoa people who had fled Vietnam back into the border areas of Lai Chau, Cao Bang and Ha Tuyen Provinces to build reactionary bases.

The Beijing authorities caused a dozen incidents of psychological warfare, using a system of loudspeakers along the Sino-Vietnamese border and distributing leaflets by propaganda shells or by troops to distort the domestic and foreign policies of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

The Chinese reactionaries' armed provocative activities along the northern border areas and on the sea have disrupted the Vietnamese people's production and other normal activities, and caused instability in the border provinces. Moreover, in the early days of Jan. 1982, Chinese troops set fire to the forests of Bat Xat (Hoang Lien Son), causing heavy damage to the local population.

The Commission for Investigation of Chinese Expansionists' and Hegemonists' War Crimes in Vietnam energetically denounces before public opinion at home and in the world the criminal schemes and acts of the reactionaries in the Beijing ruling circle in collusion with the U.S. imperialists. At the same time, the commission calls on the forces of peace, democracy and progress in the world, including the Chinese people, to firmly demand that the Chinese authorities stop their hostile reactionary policy against the Socialist Republic of Vietnam.

UK REQUEST FOR ANTI-ARGENTINA SANCTIONS DENIED

OW061241 Tokyo KYODO in English 1228 GMT 6 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 6 (KYODO) -- The Japanese Government has declined a British request for sanctions against Argentina in response to Argentina's armed seizure of the Falkland Islands, a Foreign Ministry official said Tuesday.

The official, who requested anonymity, said British Ambassador to Tokyo, Sir Hugh Cortazzi, has officially asked Japan to back up Britain by taking measures against Argentina. The official declined to specify what Britain wanted Japan to do. "The situation is moving," the official said. "We will wait and see what's going on."

The official also said Argentine authorities have explained what drove them to occupy the islands in a message to the Japanese Government from Buenos Aires. Japan has joined many other U.N. member countries in denouncing the military action. But the official said both Britain and Argentina are friendly toward Japan. "We hope the situation can be settled peacefully," he added.

SUZUKI ORDERS FTC TO REMOVE IMPORT CURBS

[Text] Tokyo, April 6 (KYODO) -- In yet another move to mollify persistent complaints in the United States and Western Europe that their exports are refused easy access to the Japanese market, Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, Tuesday instructed the Fair Trade Commission (FTC) to remove obstacles to sales of imported goods which might be found in the domestic distribution system. He gave the instructions to FTC Chairman Osamu Hashiguchi two days after telling a press conference in Kyoto Sunday that he considered it necessary to reexamine the domestic structure of distribution in the light of the contention that it involved barriers to the smooth marketing of foreign products, informed sources said.

Hashiguchi told the prime minister that the FTC will first seek to identify any such barriers and then study how to correct them. The sources also said the government and the ruling Liberal-Democratic Party will call upon business and industry to cooperate in improving the domestic distribution system. In doing this, they will give full consideration to a report of the LDP's recent mission to the European Community (EC). The mission, led by Masumi Esaki, chairman of the party's Special Committee on International Economic Relations, toured Western Europe to seek the understanding of Tokyo's effort to boost imports.

Both the U.S. and the Common Market nations have been urging Japan to accord their products greater access to the Japanese market so that they can reduce their massive trade deficits with this country.

The sources said that the general agent and specified agent system for imported products, often criticized as a major roadblock to the expansion of the sales of foreign goods, has been considerably improved under the guidance of the FTC. While correcting the restrictive functions of the system, they said, the FTC has taken steps to enhance the advantages of the system in publicizing foreign products and stimulating new demand. Moreover, the proportion of direct imports by trading firms and department stores, bypassing agents, has been increasing from year to year, they said.

The FTC admits, however, that sales agents in Japan have not completely ceased intervening in the marketing activity of small retailers. Therefore, the FTC will review international contracts concluded by such agents and investigate their domestic transactions, the sources said.

TRADE CONFERENCE WITH U.S., EC, CANADA PLANNED

[Excerpts] Tokyo, April 5 (KYODO) -- Japan will hold a second ministerial-level trade conference with the United States, Canada and the European Community (EC) possibly during May, government sources said Monday. This prospect emerged as the government decided to accept an informal proposal recently made by the EC Commission that top trade officials of the three countries and the Common Market should meet before the eighth economic summit of industrialized democracies, scheduled for early June in Versailles, France, the sources said.

The talks are called a trilateral trade conference here as it involves the three mainstays of the Western camp -- Japan, North America and Western Europe.

The sources said no word has arrived yet from the EC Commission regarding the details of the proposed second trade conference, such as the venue and agenda. They saw it as likely, however, that talks would focus on the promotion of free trade, establishment of a new global regime governing service trade, and trilateral industrial cooperation especially in the sphere of advanced technologies.

The sources also said the government will make careful preparations for the trade talks in the context of strong calls in the U.S. and Western Europe for greater access to the Japanese market. Japan's massive trade surplus has come under heavy fire in the two areas. Tokyo's current efforts to map out a new package of measures for opening the Japanese market wider will constitute part and parcel of the preparations, they said.

SUZUKI MEETS LAMBSDORFF; JAPAN-FRG SUMMIT SET

[Text] Tokyo, April 6 (KYODO) -- Japan and West Germany agreed Tuesday to hold summit talks between Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki and Chancellor Helmut Schmidt while the two are in France in June to attend the Versailles summit of the seven Western industrialized nations. Details of the Japan-German summit will be decided later through diplomatic channels, Japanese Government sources said.

The decision came when visiting German Economics Minister Otto Lambsdorff conveyed Schmidt's desire for the separate summit to Suzuki. Lambsdorff, here to attend a three-day meeting of the private-level trilateral commission of Japan, the United States and Western Europe, which ended Tuesday, called on Suzuki at his official residence.

During their hour-long meeting, Premier Suzuki told the German minister that Japan would respond with a forward-looking attitude to the European Community's request for Japan to open its market wider to EC products and for holding Japan-EC negotiations udner article 23 of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the government sources said.

Lambsdorff welcomed Suzuki's statement, saying that it was good to hold fair discussions under the GATT formula. The article at issue allows any GATT member to complain about trade problems if it feels that its rights under GATT are being impaired by the actions of another member.

Later in the day, Lambsdorff met with Chief Cabinet Secretary Kiichi Miyazawa. In reference to speculation that Washington might reduce U.S. interest rates before the Versailles summit in June, the German minister said he did not think the U.S. rates could be reduced so easily because the U.S. financial situation is not good.

FOREICN MINISTRY DENOUNCES ROK-U.S. STATEMENT

[Text] Pyongyang, April 7 (KCNA) -- The spokesman of the Foreign Ministry of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea made public a statement on April 6, denouncing the "joint statement" published at the end of the "14th South Korea-U.S. annual Security Consultative Meeting" between U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger and the South Korean puppet clique. The statement reads in full:

At a time when the U.S. imperialists and the South Korean puppet clique were inciting the war climate with the war exercises "Team Spirit 1982" directed against the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger crawled into South Korea and had a confab with the South Korean puppet clique called "the Fourteenth South Korea-U.S. annual Security Consultative Meeting" on March 30 and 31, which culminated in the publication of a "joint statement." In the "joint statement," raising an outcry over fictitious "threat of the North," the U.S. imperialists let out a string of bellicose and aggressive words claiming that the "security" of South Korea is "essential for the security of the United States" and that they "are firmly determined" to "defend" South Korea for "driving back an armed attack" on it, in accordance with the "South Korea-U.S. mutual defence treaty," and so on and so forth.

Not only once have we declared that we have no intention to "invade the South." For a peaceful solution of Korea's reunification question, the DPRK Government had made constructive proposals many a time and is still bending every effort possible for their realisation. This is a stark fact known to the whole world.

Yet the U.S. imperialists continue harping on the "threat of southward invasion" and threaten and blackmail us, blaring that they would invariably guarantee the "security" of South Korea with the nuclear umbrella. This is intended to maintain their tottering colonial military fascist rule over South Korea by giving a shot in the arm to the South Korean puppet clique facing their doom and hasten the preparations for another war in Korea.

The U.S. imperialists in the "joint statement" were outspoken in revealing their wild design to continue reinforcing their aggression armed forces in South Korea, claiming that the sharp reinforcement of their aggression forces occupying South Korea during the last one year was a practical token of their "firm determination" to "defend" South Korea and was an important contribution to peace in Northeast Asia. The U.S. imperialists in the "joint statement" "assured" that for the "improvement of defence" of South Korea they would assist it in various domains including technical equipment sales and foreign military sales loans and the United States would "continue to give active cooperation" in its "munitions industry development." They also drivelled that they would make all efforts for the "increase of the South Korea-U.S. joint defence capacity."

In the "joint statement" the U.S. imperialists and South Korean puppets claimed that such "South Korea-U.S. joint military exercises" as "Team Spirit 1982" now at their height are "conducive" to the "maintenance of the combat posture" and "elimination of aggression" and agreed upon continuation of these exercises in the future for "maintaining and strengthening the combat posture," early sale of war supplies worth 2,000 million dollars to South Korea for coping with a "state of emergency" and transfer of weapons to South Korea without approval of U.S. Congress "in case of emergency." Earlier, on March 29, they held the "Fourth South Korea-U.S. Joint Military Committee Meeting" in Seoul, at which they examined the "combat preparations" and "strategic points" of the "South Korea-U.S. Combined Forces Command" and discussed "concrete proposals" for "increasing the combat power" of the "South Korea-U.S. combined forces."

All these facts clearly show that the "joint statement" of the U.S. imperialists and South Korea puppets is a war document openly revealing their intention to justify the former's occupation of South Korea, round off the preparedness for igniting a new war of aggression and commit even a nuclear war without hesitation against the will and desire of the entire Korean people and world peace-loving people for peace in Korea and her peaceful reunification.

Furthermore, Weinberger, the boss of the U.S. imperialist war maniacs, toured Japan prior to the "South-Korea-U.S. annual Security Consultative Meeting" and made haste with the formation of the "triangular military alliance of South Korea, the United States and Japan" and hatched a plot to inveigle the Japanese "self-defence forces" into a Korean war. This brings to light how desperately the U.S. imperialists are trying to kindle another war of aggression in Korea.

In the "joint statement" the U.S. imperialist aggressors opposed the withdrawal of the U.S. troops occupying South Korea and dissolution of the "U.N. Forces Command," going against the resolution of the 30th U.N. General Assembly, while stringing out absurd phraseology about "maintenance of durable peace" and "relaxation of tension" on the Korean Peninsula.

Due to the ever more reckless manoeuvres of the U.S. imperialists for aggression and another war, peace is now exposed to a grave threat and a danger of war breaking out any moment is growing still further in Korea. The U.S. imperialists, the very ones who are staging reckless powder-reeking war exercises almost every day in South Korea, bringing the situation to the brink of war, are now talking loudly about "peaceful unification," "relaxation of tension" and the like. This is, indeed, a ridiculous and shameless act.

The "joint statement" that came after U.S. Defense Secretary Weinberger's confab with the South Korean puppet clique fully proves that the U.S. imperialists refuse to give up their design to block the reunification of Korea and reduce South Korea to their permanent colony and military base.

With nothing can the U.S. imperialists and South Korean puppet clique put down the ever growing desire of the South Korean people for national reunification and their anti-U.S., anti-Chon Tu-hwan fighting spirit.

The "joint statement" issued by them has aroused fiercer wrath of the world peace-loving people and made it all the clearer that the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a traitor never to be condoned.

The Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea and the Korean people scathingly denounce the "joint statement of the South Korea-U.S. annual Security Consultative Meeting" issued at the end of the confab between war bosses of the U.S. imperialists and South Korean puppets as a vicious challenge to the peace-loving Korean people and a violation of peace in Asia and the world.

The U.S. imperialists must look straight at the reality, discontinue the reckless play with fire threatening peace and security of Korea and the world and withdraw at once from South Korea with all their aggression troops and lethal weapons including nuclear arms, taking off the "U.N. Forces" helmet in accordance with the resolution of the 30th U.N. General Assembly.

If the U.S. imperialists and South Korean puppets persist in the aggression and war manoeuvres, defying our repeated warnings, they will face a stern judgement by history and people.

ANTI-U.S. SENTIMENT REPORTED GROWING IN SOUTH

SK050816 Pyongyang KCNA in English 0808 GMT 5 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 5 (KCNA) -- A reporter of the New York TIMES who had recently visited South Korea said in his article published in the March 30 issue of the Japanese paper ASAHI EVENING NEWS, an English-language newspaper of Japan, that anti-U.S. sentiment mounts in South Korea, according to a KNS report from Tokyo. Referring to the burning of the "American Cultural Center" in Pusan on March 18, he said that this incident is "regarded as the latest evidence of growing anti-American sentiments among radical non-communist activists" by South Koreans of various circles.

The U.S. Embassy in Seoul "is unaware that a wide gap opened between ordinary South Koreans and Americans since Chon Tu-hwan took power in 1980," he noted. He recalled that many South Koreans said Americans should not simply dismiss the incident of burning of the "American Cultural Center" as the work of a handful of communists. "Some Americans here, including Walker (the U.S. ambassador), are understood to think that the Pusan arson incident was the work of a handful of communist-inspired extremists, but that is not how many informed Koreans outside government see the affairs," he said.

He continued: "Dissidents were harsher in their comments about Americans here than at any time in recent years. A church leader with close ties to churches in the United States and West Germany criticized Gen. John A. Wickham Jr., the commanding U.S. officer in South Korea, for his views on democracy. Wickham believes that the (South) Koreans aren't ready for democracy and that democracy isn't ready for (South) Korea, the churchman said. That's what he has said publicly. But that's a racist view, pure racism."

NODONG SINMUN HITS SOUTH'S PROPOSAL FOR DIALOGUE

[Text] Pyongyang, April 6 (KCNA) -- The "proposal for North-South dialogue" brought forward by the Chon Tu-hwan clique is a camouflage to conceal its splittist nature and a brainchild of the policy-makers of the U.S. State Department to legalise the division, declares NODONG SINMUN today. Commenting on the recent "special interview" of U.S. President Reagan with the South Korean paper TONG-A ILBO, the daily says that all our proposals for the promotion of national reunification presuppose North-South contacts and negotiations and our recent proposal for convening the joint conference of 100 Koreans proceeded from this stand. The author of the commentary continues:

The present rulers of South Korea are a group of murderers whose hands are stained with blood of patriots and a gang of traitors who are still suppressing people and kicking up war rackets against us, fossilizing national division. Their "proposal" is a deceptive one which has nothing to do with the settlement of the question of improving North-South relations and promoting reunification. This is why we regard them as unworthy of having any connection with. It is the height of absurdity to discuss the problem of improving North-South relations and realising reunification, sitting face to face with those who lay hurdles in the way of settling the problem of the nation, while keeping foreign troops in the country, bar a wide-range negotiation, indiscriminately arresting patriots and democrats, and whip up North-South confrontation, raising anti-communist rows. It is self-evident that no affirmative result can be expected of dialogue with them.

Their "proposal" is but a deceptive one to conceal their splittist nature with the veil of "dialogue."

The "proposal for North-South dialogue" brought forward by the Chon Tu-hwan clique is, to begin with, an invention of the policy-makers of the U.S. State Department for legalising the division. The United States is staging a drama "supporting" its own script to improve the public image of the South Korean puppets. It is of no use for the United States to slander us by bringing forward the Chon Tu-hwan clique's proposal for sham dialogue. It can convince no one.

We have repeatedly made it clear that if the South Korean rulers apologize for the crimes they have committed against the nation, give up the splittist line, release the illegally arrested patriots and democrats and open a way for wide-range negotiation, we will discuss without hesitation the reunification problem with them, too. The possibility of dialogue with the South Korean rulers entirely depends upon their attitude.

PRC PROTEST TO U.S. ON TAIWAN REPORTED

[Text] According to XINHUA, the Foreign Ministry of China recently sent a memorandum to the U.S. Embassy in China to protest U.S. schemes to fabricate two Chinas. In the memorandum, protesting the U.S. schemes to fabricate two Chinas by regarding Taiwan as a separate country in dealing with the immigration issue, the Chinese Foreign Ministry demands that the United States correct the mistakes in connection with the immigration issue and take immediate action to prevent a recurrence of such an incident.

The memorandum says it is another blatant act of trying to fabricate two Chinas to regard Taiwan as a separate foreign country and to apply relevant regulations of Taiwanese laws in dealing with the immigration issue. Noting that China has consistently opposed the U.S. policy of regarding Taiwan as a separate country, the memorandum says Taiwan is not a separate country but an island belonging to China and that it is neither a self-governing dominion nor a protectorate nor a territory under UN mandate.

[Report by Yim Chun-chu, chairman of the Credentials Committee and SPA deputy at first session of Seventh SPA in Pyongyang on 5 April -- read by announcer]

[Text] Comrade deputies: The election of deputies to the Seventh Supreme People's Assembly [SPA] was successfully conducted under solemn circumstances in which all the people were vigorously accelerating the cause of chuche-orientation of the entire society and registering a new great upsurge in all domains of the revolution and construction by upholding the militant tasks put forward by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song in his programmatic report at the historic Sixth KWP Congress and in his new year's message.

With lofty political sense to consolidate further the revolutionary government of workers and peasants founded and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the electors across the nation participated in the election of deputies to the SPA. Their participation was 100 percent and their approval ballots for deputies they recommended was 100 percent.

The election of deputies to the SPA, which took place amid lofty political zeal of all people, fully displayed our people's unshaken will and revolutionary faith to hold permanently in high esteem the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song who opened up an era of prosperity and development on this land by devoting his all only to the freedom and happiness of the people and to the victory of socialism and communism. The election vigorously demonstrated again to the entire world the strength of our people who are firmly united around the party and the leader with one will and one idea and the invincible vitality of the government of the republic.

The election was a historic event marking a new epoch-making turn in our people's struggle to consolidate further the government of the republic and to accomplish the chuche revolutionary cause under the leadership of the glorious KWP, following the banner of the republic.

The Credentials Committee for the Deputies to the SPA reviewed all data and material concerning the election. The committee confirmed that all electors participated in the election with unanimously lofty political awareness and revolutionary zeal in accordance with the regulation on the election of deputies to the SPA of the DPRK. The committee certified that the candidates for deputies to the SPA registered in electoral districts across the nation and elected from these districts were all qualified as deputies as they polled 100 percent approval ballots from the electors who participated in the election.

The deputies to the SPA elected in all electoral districts across the nation are genuine representatives of the people who are endlessly loyal to the Korean revolution and who are struggling by devoting their life to the party and the leader, to the fatherland and the people. Among the deputies to the SPA are many anti-Japanese revolutionary fighters who participated in the glorious anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle organized and led by the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who heroically fought for the liberation of the fatherland and freedom and happiness of the people and who are continuously fighting for the accomplishment of the chuche cause.

Of the deputies to the SPA, 34.6 percent are workers, 10.2 percent are cooperative farm workers and 19.2 percent are women. Among the deputies to the SPA are competent functionaries from the party and government organizations; military personalities of the Korean People's Army and the people's constabulary; labor innovators from the plants, enterprises and cooperative farms who marked labor exploits in the socialist construction; functionaries from scientific and technical fields; functionaries from the sectors of education and public health and functionaries from the field of theatrical art. Among the deputies are also functionaries of the General Association of Korean Residents in Japan and its subordinate organizations who are struggling for democratic national rights and the independent reunification of the fatherland.

This shows that the government of our republic is a genuine revolutionary government of workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals, led by the working class, and is a genuine government of the people representing the interests of and serving the working people.

Fifty percent of the SPA deputies are functionaries who have received Kim Il-song medals and Kim Il-song prizes for their brilliant exploits registered in the struggle to firmly arm themselves with the great chuche idea and to implement the policy and liens of the KWP. Among them are also heroes, labor heroes and other functionaries who received various honorary titles. This shows that our supreme organ of power is being organized by tenacious revolutionary fighters and genuine people's servants who are capable of fighting to the end for the endless prosperity of the fatherland and the happiness of the people by upholding the leadership of the party and the leader.

The ratio of age of the SPA deputies is as follows: under the age of 35 -- 3.9 percent; between 36 and 55 -- 71.2 percent; and over 55 -- 24.9 percent.

The ratio of educational background: college graduates -- 50.4 percent; graduates of professional schools -- 12.8 percent and middle school graduates -- 36.8 percent.

Forty-nine percent of the SPA deputies are doctors, professors, scientists, technicians and other specialists. This shows that the supreme organ of power of our republic is a correct combination of skilled functionaries, who have rich experiences in the struggle and are disciplined in the revolutionary struggle and construction works, and functionaries of the new generation who will firmly inherit the revolution. This is a composition of outstanding functionaries with abundant knowledge and a lofty standard of technology.

Thus, the SPA deputies recently elected are revolutionaries who have been boundlessly loyal to the party and the leader and are genuine representatives of workers, peasants, soldiers and working intellectuals who have been disciplined in actual struggle and have rich knowledge and experience, deeply trusted by the masses. They are able functionaries who can smoothly carry out their glorious mission and duties.

Comrade deputies: The Credentials Committee for Deputies to the SPA recognized that the election of the SPA deputies was held in complete accordance with the socialist constitution and election law of our country. All elected deputies are completely qualified to be deputies to the SPA and the composition of the deputies corresponds to the nature of the government of workers led by working class. Thus, the Credentials Committee proposes that this meeting review and recognize the qualifications of the 615 deputies to the SPA of the DPRK who were elected with the unanimous support of the people.

[Report on speech by So Yun-sok, alternate member of the Political Bureau of the KWP Central Committee and responsible secretary of the Pyongyang City KWP Committee, at Pyongyang mass rally hailing the election of Kim Il-song as president of the DPRK at the first session of the Seventh SPA held at Kim Il-song Plaza on 6 April -- read by announcer]

[Text] So Yun-sok pointed out that the historic first session of the Seventh SPA, which was held under the stirring circumstances in which new revolutionary upsurges are being created on all fronts of socialist construction in conformity with the program for modelling society on the chuche idea, successfully performed its work amid the great expectations and concern of all the people in the country.

He noted that this SPA session, which serves as a meaningful event in effecting a turn in our revolution and strengthening and developing the government of the republic, elected the great leader of our party and people Comrade Kim Il-song as the president of the DPRK, reflecting the unanimous opinion and ardent aspirations of all the people. He said that the election of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song as state president is a manifestation of the absolute trust of all the people across the country in the respected and beloved leader, who has given our people boundless glory and happiness by devoting himself to the sacred cause for the fatherland and people for 70 years and by ushering in a new era of the greatest national prosperity in this land. It is also a manifestation of the confidence and will of the people, entrusting their fate to the great leader and eternally holding the leader in high esteem with loyalty.

The election of the great leader as the republic's state president is a great felicitous national event which displayed the invincible cohesion and unity of our people, firmly united around the party and leader with a single ideology and will, which opened a new brilliant prospect for the Korean revolution. The election of the respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song, who is respected and admired by our people and the world's revolutionary people because of his immortal achievements on behalf of the fatherland and the people, the times and the revolution, is a great glory and happiness of our people and nation.

The speaker said that he respectfully extended the greatest honor and warmest congratulations to the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, who is providing our people boundless happiness and a brighter future by establishing the great revolutionary tradition -- the everlasting cornerstone of our revolution -- in the flames of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, by founding a powerful chuche-type party and the revolutionary government and by demonstrating to the world the dignity and mettle of the fatherland and nation by wisely leading our party and the government of the republic, reflecting the people's boundless esteem and warm loyalty.

He said that the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, the first man our people have ever held in high esteem in a history of thousands of years, is the great leader who has effected epochal changes and a great turn in this land with extraordinary wisdom and outstanding leadership by carrying out profound ideological and theoretical activities and grand revolutionary practices. He has made historically immortal achievements on behalf of the working masses' independence. He noted that thanks to the great leader's wise leadership, though our country was once a backward colonial state of the East, it is now displaying its might as an independent, self-reliant and self-protecting socialist power with a superior socialist system, a strong self-reliant national economy, powerful defense capabilities and a brilliant national culture. The glorious path along which the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song has led our revolution and construction to victory is embroidered with the travails with which he has turned the capital of revolution, Pyongyang, into the grand and splendid center of chuche Korea's politics, economy and culture and a modern international city. In the proud struggle in which the capital's workers have performed heroic exploits in linking the party to construction under the wise leadership of the great leader, there have been fundamental changes in the ideological and mental features of the workers in the capital.

In reality, history has never witnessed such an outstanding leader [yongdoja] and great leader [suryong] as our respected and beloved Comrade Kim Il-song, who has enhanced the status of the fatherland and the nation in a short time and created miracles in all sectors -- politics, the economy, ideology and culture. The great leader, who has devoted himself to the sacred cause of the people for 70 years, has saved the country and nation from crises and has unfolded an era of progress and civilization in this land, is energetically leading the party, the state and military affairs and is leading the revolution and construction to endless upsurges. The revolutionary cause of chuche, which was pioneered in the Paektu forest, is marching on to victory because of the energetic leadership of the great leader.

The speaker said: Our people have firmly believed, through the history of hardship and prosperity of modern Korea and through their experiences, that only when they follow the great leader's leadership can they achieve the ultimate victory of our revolution and the eternal happiness of our people. They will strenuously struggle to consummate brilliantly the revolutionary cause of chuche, eternally holding in high esteem the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song as the great leader.

He said that our people are faced today with the rewarding and honorable task for more vigorously accelerating the all-out march of the consummation of the chuche cause in accord with the brilliant plan worked out by the party's sixth congress and with the great glory and joy of invariably electing the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song loftily as the state president of the republic. The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song taught as follows: "By more vehemently accelerating the revolutionary struggle and construction works under the chuche banner, we should resplendently realize the historic cause for modelling the whole society on the chuche idea while achieving the complete victory of socialism in the foreseeable future."

For our people, to advance, upholding the party and leader, is their unanimous will which they have kept as the rockfirm faith and lofty revolutionary duty in the protracted struggle. Therein lies a firm guarantee for the boundless prosperity of the fatherland and for the ultimate consummation of the chuche cause. Imitating the endless loyalty to the great leader and indomitable revolutionary spirit exhibited by the young communists in the early days of the Korean revolution, we should be more firmly prepared as the real chuche-type communist revolutionaries who resolutely safeguard and defend politically and ideologically the party and leader with our lives at any time and anywhere and who devote themselves to consummating the revolutionary cause of chuche. By vigorously carrying out the three revolutions -- all the workers should positively accelerate the revolutionization, working-classization and intellectualization of the whole society and should effect a new revolutionary turn in all sectors such as politics, economy, ideology and culture. By thoroughly accomplishing the line of chuche-orientation, modernization and scientization of the people's economy put forth by the party's sixth congress, all the workers should devote themselves to the struggle for fulfilling the second 7-year plan ahead of schedule and for attaining the grand 10 major prospective targets for the socialist economic construction in the 1980's.

The speaker pointed out: We should advance the cause for the fatherland's reunification -- the greatest aspiration of the nation -- by more vigorously waging the nationwide struggle for the realization of the proposal for founding the Democratic Confederal Republic of Koryo put forth by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song, holding high the proposal.

He stressed: Our people's revolutionary cause is just; we will always meet only victory and glory. We should vigorously march forward for the fatherland's reunification, for the complete victory of socialism and for the ultimate consummation of the revolutionary cause of chuche, firmly uniting around the party Central Committee headed by the respected and beloved leader Comrade Kim Il-song.

NODONG SINMUN Hails Reelection

[Text] Pyongyang, April 6 (KCNA) -- Papers here today come out with editorials warmly hailing the reelection of the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song to the high post of the president of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea as a reelection of the will and desire of the entire people at the historic first session of the Seventh Supreme People's Assembly of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea which was held in Pyongyang on April 5.

SK062300 Pyongyang KCNA in English 2240 GMT 6 Apr 82

[Text] Pyongyang, April 7 (KCNA) -- The great leader of our party and our people Comrade Kim Il-song on April 6 went round the newly-built Pyongyang No. One Department Store, the Mangyongdae fun fair and location streets of the Korean film studio. He was accompanied by Comrades Kim Il and Yi Chong-ok, members of the Presidium of the Political Bureau of the Central Committee of the Workers Party of Korea; Comrades Pak Song-chol, Yim Chun-chu, So Chok, Kim Chung-nin, Yon Hyong-muk, Kim Hwan, O Paek-yong, Chon Mun-sop, Kang Song-san, O Kuk-yol and Paek Hak-im, members of the Political Bureau; Comrades Hyon Mu-kwang, Yun Ki-pok, Kong Chin-tae, Choe Kwang, Chong Chun-ki, Kye Ung-tae, Choe Chae-u, Chong Kyong-hui, Choe Yong-nim, So Yun-sok and Kim Kang-hwan, alternate members of the Political Bureau; Comrades So Kwan-hi and Ho Chong-suk, secretaries of the Central Committee of the WPK; and Comrades Hong Si-hak, Hong Song-yong, Kim Tu-yong, Kim Hoe-il, Kim Chang-chu and Kim Pok-sin, vice-premiers of the Administration Council.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song went round the Pyongyang No. One Department Store just before opening. The Pyongyang No. One Department Store standing in the heart of the capital, proud of its graceful and beautiful architectural art of our style, is a monumental edifice of our era peculiar in architectural style, which is furnished with modern equipment. The department store, with a floor space of nearly 40,000 square metres, is a large-scale general commercial service centre fully equipped with all kinds of service facilities to offer greatest conveniences to the customers.

After going round the department store, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song expressed deep satisfaction with the fact that the builders had splendidly built in a matter of one year this modern department store 25 times as large as the former building which took more than 7 years under the Japanese imperialist rule. After seeing the commodities on display at all the stalls from the first to the fifth floor, the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song said: We feel pride and honor at the thought that our country which had taken over a backward colonial industry unable to produce a pencil properly has built a solid foundation of industry for producing for itself all commodities for the people's daily use from the scratch.

He gave detailed tasks to turn out and supply larger quantities of good-quality commodities of wide variety and steadily improve commercial services for the working people to more satisfactorily meet the constantly growing material and cultural demands of the people and thereby give fuller play to the advantages of the socialist commerce of our country.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song inspected the fun fair modernly built in the Kalmaeji Plain of historic Mangyongdae. The Mangyongdae fun fair with a daily accomodation of more than 50,000 is a most modern and ideal one which has 28 kinds of pleasure facilities for the merriment and good rest of the working people and children and which has attained the highest level in style and content, scale and equipment. When the great leader Comrade Kim Il-song arrived at the fun fair, lovely children who had been playing joyously aboard new pleasure facilities threw themselves into his bosom, raising cheers "Long live Marshal Kim Il-song, our respected father!"

He embraced the children in his bosom and watched with satisfaction their happy playing.

After making a round of the fun fair, he expressed deep satisfaction at the fact that its builders had wonderfully constructed the grand modern fun fair in a short period of one year. Saying that working people and children should be let to visit this modern fun fair to enjoy the benefits of modern civilization to their hearts' satisfaction and have culture and pleasant rest, he indicated detailed tasks for this.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song saw the newly-constructed location streets of the Koren film studio. The location streets spread a vast view of various buildings vividly showing the past society of our country from the feudal society of the Yi Dynasty to the Japanese imperialist rule and foreign streets, too, all in their old sight. With the location streets built wonderfully, a reliable base has been laid for producing more films of diversified themes, high in ideological and artistic value, truly helpful to the education of the party members and working people in the revolutionary traditions and class education by better embodying the principle of historicism and the requirements of the speed campaign in the creation of films and for further developing our film art.

After going round the location streets, he expressed deep satisfaction over the construction of such excellent all-embracing location base in a short period of a few months. Recalling with deep emotion the days of the anti-Japanese revolutionary struggle, he highly praised it, saying each building was built very well just as it looked in those days. Saying that it is very important to build well such location base to produce more movies, as there are no such buildings and streets showing the past scene now, he taught that the location base should be expanded and built up well in the future.

The great leader Comrade Kim Il-song posed for a photograph with builders who had performed feats in the construction of the Pyongyang No. One Department Store and the Mangyongdae fun fair.

PREMIER, PARTY LEADERS DISCUSS CURRENT ISSUES

SK030152 Seoul THE KOREA HERALD in English 3 Apr 82 p 1

[Text] The government and major political parties agreed yesterday that "instigative and subversive activities by some radical elements" may hamper stability and academic atmosphere in campus. The agreement came in the evening when Prime Minister Yu Chang-sun and pertinent ministers discussed the recent arson in Pusan and other issues over dinner with leaders and senior officers of major political parties.

The government and major political parties, voicing gratitude for the arrest of arson suspects, shared a view that any attempt to estrange Korea and the United States and undermine national harmony should be forestalled "from a dimension of national security."

Briefing reporters on the result of the three-hour-long dinner meeting which began at 7 p.m., Minister of State for Political Affairs Chong Chong-taek said the premier and pertinent ministers explained the outcome of the 14th annual Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting, the arson in Pusan and the alleged rice deal kickback scandal. The leaders and senior officers of major political parties highly valued the result of the Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting, Chong said. They also expressed satisfaction with the U.S. commitment to further develop Seoul-Washington ties brought closer together in the wake of President Chon Tu-hwan's visit to the United States in February last year, he said. They showed sympathy with the government's policy to contribute to the stability in Northeast Asia in full cooperation between Seoul and Washington, he said.

Expounding the controversial import of American rice, the premier said it was inevitable for security considerations to import U.S. rice, the minister said. The minister, who plays the role of a pipeline between the government and major political parties, also quoted the premier as saying any further debates on the rice import may adversely affect Seoul-Washington amicability and national interests. The premier also asked political leaders to wind up debates by the National Assembly on the rice purchase as soon as possible, the minister said.

Minister of National Defense Chu Yong-pok briefed the meeting on the result of the Korea-U.S. Security Consultative Meeting and on the ongoing "Team Spirit," a Korea-U.S. joint military exercise, he said. Chu said Korea and the United States shared a common view that North Korea is strengthening its military power "for offensive purposes," he noted.

Ranking members of political parties, he said, urged the government to achieve self-sufficiency in foodstuff grains at the earliest possible date.

The meeting, the first of its kind since Yu's appointment as premier last January, was held in a friendly atmosphere, he said. Those from political parties were Chairman Yi Chae-hyong, Secretary-General Kwon Chong-tal, floor leader Yi Chong-chan and chief policymaker Na Sok-ho of the ruling Democratic Justice Party. The opposition Democratic Korea Party was represented at the meeting by President Yu Chi-song, floor leader Im Chong-ki, Secretary-General Yu Han-yol and chief policymaker Kim Hyon-ku.

U.S. AMBASSADOR ANSWERS ASSEMBLYMAN ON REMARKS

SK071005 Seoul CHOSON ILBO in Korean 7 Apr 82 p 2

[From the column "News Behind News"]

[Text] In reply to a 2 April letter of "protest" from National Assemblyman Ho Kyong-ku of the Democratic Korea Party "requesting explanation" in connection with the word "spoiled brats" used by him while mentioning the student movement in Korea and dissidents, U.S. Ambassador to Korea Richard Walker said: My remarks were imperfectly quoted. Noting that the interview with Ambassador Walker carried by the 14 February issue of THE STATE published in Columbia, South Carolina, may give the impression that he regarded Korean students as annoying beings in society, Assemblyman Ho sent a hard-line letter stating that "I convey the deep regrets of many personalities and myself."

In the reply, sent by someone immediately the next day, Ambassador Walker said: I only presented a sociological observation noting that the social forces supporting the student movement in 1980-81 are less than in 1960-61. I want to make clear my personal belief that human rights, dignity of mankind and the right of opposition should be respected.

Asked why he raised the question about a newspaper article published in the United States 2 months ago, Assemblyman Ho said: This question brought on public criticism by some circles within the nation some time ago. However, I withheld the question for the time being in view of the fact that a delicate situation was created in Korea-U.S. relations due to the issue of foreign rice imports and the arson incident at the U.S. Cultural Center in Pusan.

[Text] Culture-Information Minister Yi Kwang-pyo strongly appealed to the mass media yesterday to fulfil their social guidance role to arm the people ideologically against the North Korean communists. He also called upon the press to lead the people to participate positively in the creation of a new era for the construction of a welfare society. Minister Yi made these points in an address during a ceremony making the 26th Newspaper Day, held in the auditorium of the KOREA ECONOMIC DAILY building in Seoul. Newspaper Day actually falls on today, but its ceremony was held yesterday as newspapermen will have a holiday today.

KOREA HERALD CITES JAPANESE PRESS ON KIM CHONG-IL

[Text] Tokyo, (YONHAP) -- North Korea failed to appoint Kim Chong-il a vice president Monday because of the growing opposition of senior party officers and working-level officials to the personality cult in the communist country, Japanese newspapers analyzed. Kim Chong-il, the son of Kim Il-song, was expected to be given the No. 2 post to cement his succession to the leadership position in North Korea.

Reporting on the just-ended Supreme People's Assembly, the newspapers analyzed that the failure to upgrade the junior Kim was due to senior party members and working-level economic officials who oppose the personality cult and the negative responses shown by other communist countries over the anachronistic attempt to pass power from father to son. The newspapers said, however, that the junior Kim will continue to hold influential posts in the Workers (communist) Party and in the military committee. Although the younger Kim failed to become one of the communist country's three vice presidents, there would be no change in the North Korean drama to transfer power from the senior Kim to his son, North Korea watchers here predicted.

HENG SAMRIN RECEIVES FRENCH PARTY OFFICIAL

BK061422 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1554 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 3 Apr (SPK) -- KPRP General Secretary Heng Samrin this afternoon received the delegation of the French Communist Party [PCF] led by Paul Laurent, member of the Political Bureau and secretary of the PCF Central Committee.

General Secretary Heng Samrin talked about Kampuchea's achievements of the past 3 years, including those in the state and social structure which were completely destroyed under Pol Pot. The rebirth of the country is due, on the one hand, to the efforts of all of the people and, on the other hand, to the devoted assistance and support of Vietnam, the USSR, the socialist countries and the world's peace-loving progressive peoples.

In the face of the numerous successes of the Kampuchean people, Heng Samrin affirmed, the Beijing expansionists -- in cahoots with the U.S. imperialists and other reactionary forces, particularly Thailand which gives refuge to the Pol Pot remnants conducting sabotage activities against the Kampuchean people's peaceful labor -- have sought to sabotage the Kampuchean revolution in every way.

The general secretary is convinced that the PCF will help the Kampuchean people convince the French people of the truth and that the bonds of friendship and solidarity between the two parties will further strengthen in the future.

On this occasion Paul Laurent said that the goal of his visit is to learn more about the Kampuchean people's rebirth and to tighten the bonds of friendship and cooperation between the two parties. He criticized the tendentious propaganda of various circles in France which tries to misrepresent the visit to Kampuchea and to keep the French Government form recognizing the PRK. He stressed that the PCF has demanded the recognition of Kampuchea and the broadening of French-Kampuchean cooperation and that this visit has enabled him to realize the justness of this policy.

Despite their treachery, Chea Sim stressed, the Kampuchean situation remains irreversible.

Bernard Taft expressed warm thanks to the KPRP for authorizing his delegation to visit the PRK to learn about realities. He stressed that his party will continue to act so as to do the Kampuchean people justice.

Joint Communique

BK061045 Phnom Penh SPK in French 1552 GMT 3 Apr 82

[Text] Phnom Penh, 3 Apr (SPK) -- Hun Sen, member of the Political Bureau, chairman of the KPRP Central Committee's Foreign Relations Commission, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs of the PRK, and Pierre Nze, member of the Congolese Labor Party Central Committee Political Bureau, chief of the Foreign Relations Department, minister of foreign affairs and head of the Congolese party and government delegation, signed a joint communique in Phnom Penh this morning. The content of the communique is as follows:

At the invitation of the party and government of the PRK, a delegation of the party and government of the People's Republic of the Congo led by Comrade Pierre Nze, member of the Congolese Labor Party Central Committee Political Bureau, chief of the Foreign Relations Department and minister of foreign affairs, carried out an official friendship visit to the PRK from 1 to 3 April 1982.

During his stay, Comrade Pierre Nze laid a wreath at the independence monument in memory of fallen combatants and cadres. In addition to the visits to a number of economic establishments, the orphanage center, the mass graves of Cheung Ek and the prison of Tuol Sleng, Comrade Pierre Nze had talks with Comrade Heng Samrin, general secretary of the KPRP Central Committee and chairman of the Council of State; Comrade Chan Si, member of the KPRP Central Committee Political Bureau and chairman of the Council of Ministers; and Comrade Hun Sen, member of the Political Bureau, chairman of the Foreign Relations Commission, vice chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of foreign affairs of the PRK.

Comrades Hun Sen and Pierre Nze briefed each other on the results of the construction and defense efforts in their countries. They expressed confidence in the future development and strengthening of the relations of friendship and cooperation between the two countries. The two ministers directed their attention to all common international problems and noted the complexity of the current international situation.

Comrade Hun Sen warmly hailed the great successes and achievements that the Congolese people, under the leadership of the Congolese Labor Party headed by Comrade President Denis Sassou-Nguesso, have recorded in their struggle to preserve and consolidate the national independence, in their work to build and develop the national economy and culture and in their efforts to improve their living conditions. He is deeply convinced that the resolutions of the Third Extraordinary Congress of the Congolese Labor Party constitute a rallying force encouraging the Congolese people to advance toward achieving more and yet greater victories for their just revolutionary cause.

Comrade Hun Sen highly appreciated the foreign policy of the People's Republic of the Congo based on the struggle against imperialism, colonialism, neocolonialism, racism and other reactionary forces and on the support of this country for the national liberation movements. The active role that this country plays in nonalignment constitutes an important factor for peace and stability in the African region, long troubled by the maneuvers of imperialism and international reaction.

Comrade Hun Sen heartily thanked the Congolese Labor Party Central Committee, the Congolese Government and all the Congolese people for their firm support for the Kampuchean people's just struggle for independence, national sovereignty and the reconstruction of the country; and against the menaces of imperialism and international reactionaries. The PRK and the SRV, he stressed, will agree on the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Kampuchea when all these menaces have ended. The presence of these troops does not menace the security of any other state in the region as it has been agreed upon through a common accord between the Government of the PRK and the Government of the SRV.

On his part Comrade Pierre Nze heartily praised the 7 January 1979 historic victory and the great achievements accomplished by the Kampuchean people during the past 3 years. According to him, this irrefutably constitutes a stinging defeat of imperialism and other international reactionaries in their perfidious maneuvers to create a hotbed of war and tension in Southeast Asia.

Comrade Pierre Nze reiterated his recognition of the PRK as the sole legitimate and legal representative of the Kampuchean people and reaffirmed his full support for the PRK in its struggle to recover its legal right to representation at the United Nations, at the movement of nonaligned countries and in other international organizations and forums.

The Congolese side also denounced the UN resolutions on the maintenance of the Kampuchean seat in favor of the criminal Pol Pot regime and on the so-called Kampuchean problem. Likewise, it regards the presence of the representatives of the criminal Pol Pot-Ieng Sary-Khieu Samphan regime at the United Nations to be a serious blow to the prestige of this organization and to the dignity of peace-, freedom- and justice-loving peoples.

The foreign policy of peace and nonalignment of the PRK aimed at further tightening the bonds of militant solidarity with Vietnam and Laos and establishing good relations with all countries, particularly with those in Southeast Asia, on the basis of mutual respect for independence, sovereignty and territorial integrity; noninterference in other people's internal affairs; equality; and reciprocal benefits, has enjoyed the full support of the Congolese Government.

The Congolese side is deeply convinced that the Kampuchean people under the just leadership of the KPRP will achieve even more important successes in the reconstruction and defense of the country.

The Congolese side firmly supports the peace initiatives of the three Indochinese countries and energetically condemns all maneuvers orchestrated by imperialism and international reaction. These maneuvers are aimed only at restoring the bloodthirsty regime of Pol Pot and creating tension in Southeast Asia.

The two ministers expressed hearty congratulations for the brilliant revolutionary achievements of the Vietnamese and Lao peoples in national reconstruction and in the defense of their fatherland. The two ministers exchanged views on the movement of nonaligned countries and expressed their firm conviction that the upcoming summit conference in Baghdad will be crowned with success and that the anti-imperialist, anticolonialist and antineocolonialist spirit as well as the spirit of its struggle against racism, including Zionism and apartheid, and its struggle for peace, independence, social progress and the new international economic order will be maintained just as they were reaffirmed during the sixth summit in Havana and at the conference of the nonaligned countries' foreign ministers in New Delhi.

Touching on the other international questions, they expressed their deep concern for the situation prevailing in the southern part of the African continent because of the danger for peace and regional security which arises from the continued and illegal occupation of Namibia by the racist South African regime, from its permanent aggression against frontline countries, and particularly against the People's Republic of Angola, and from the maintenance of the criminal policy of apartheid and racial discrimination. The two ministers reaffirm their consistent support for the Namibian people's struggle under the SWAPO leadership, hail the admission of the Democratic Arab Republic of Sarahwi as the 51st state of the Organization of African Unity and the struggle of its people for their country's territorial integrity under the leadership of the Polisario front, and moreover denounce imperialist maneuvers in Chad.

The two ministers also support the Afghan people's struggle to preserve the gains of the April revolution, the Salvadorean people's struggle for the overthrow of the regime of military dictatorship and the struggle of other Asian, African and Latin American peoples for the conquest or safeguard of their national independence against imperialism, colonialism, neocolonialism, Zionism, apartheid and international reaction.

They also supported the efforts made by socialist countries and other progressive forces in the world for nuclear arms reduction and for detente, peace, stability and cooperation.

They also supported the just struggle of the Palestinian people -- of whom the PLO is the sole authentic representative -- for the recovery of their fundamental national rights, including the right to found an independent and sovereign Palestinian state on Palestinian soil and the right to return to their fatherland.

They firmly condemned the annexation of Syria's Golan Heights by Israel and they demanded the withdrawal of the Israeli Zionists from Arab territories occupied since 1967.

The two ministers expressed satisfaction with the fruitful results of the talks and hold that this visit constitutes a new important contribution to the consolidation and development of the bonds of friendship and solidarity between the two countries.

The Congolese delegation sincerely thanked the Kampuchean people, the KPRP and the PRK Government for the solemn and warm welcome it was given.

DK INFORMATION MINISTRY BLASTS FRANCE'S SRV POLICY

BK070208 (Clandestine) Voice of Democratic Kampuchea in Cambodian to Kampuchea 2330 GMT 6 Apr 82

["Statement of the Democratic Kampuchean Information Ministry Concerning the French Government's Policy Which Clearly Constitutes Encouragement To and Reinforcement For the Vietnamese Le Duan Aggressors and Exterminators of the Kampuchean Race" -- dated 5 April]

[Text] In the recent past, the French Government has carried out various activities which clearly constitute encouragement to and reinforcement for the Vietnamese Le Duan clique to carry on its war of aggression and genocide against Kampuchea, to further implemen the strategy of its Indochina federation and to continue its strategy -- and that of its Soviet boss -- of expansion into Southeast Asia.

1. While the whole world is condemning the Vietnamese Le Duan clique's aggression in Kampuchea and has discontinued all kinds of aid to the clique, in December 1981 the French Government decided to give the Hanoi administration 200 million French francs, which is equal to U.S. $40 million.

2. In February 1982 the French Government sent an advisor of the president to visit the Southeast Asian countries to serve as an attorney and a spokesman for the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors with the aim of urging the ASEAN countries to abandon their current just stand on the Kampuchean problem.

3. Recently the French Government sent an official to Hanoi in order to discuss additional French aid to the Hanoi authorities.

In January 1982 the ASEAN countries strongly opposed and protested the French Government's decision to provide aid to the Hanoi authorities. Other peace- and justice-loving countries also protested this decision of the French government. The Kampuchean people and the Government of Democratic Kampuchea regret this attitude and policy of the French Government.

1. This policy, in reality, is a recognition of the Vietnamese Le Duan clique's aggression in Kampuchea.

2. This policy of the French Government runs counter to Resolutions 34/22, 35/6 and 36/5 of the United Nations and the statement of the international conference on Kampuchea which France itself had approved. It also runs counter to the French people's customs of adherance to justice and principle.

3. This policy, in reality, constitutes opposition to the efforts of the ASEAN and other peace- and justice-loving countries in the world which are aimed at mobilizing international forces to further put pressure -- politically, diplomatically, economically and financially -- on the Vietnamese Le Duan clique in order to force it to withdraw all of its troops from Kampuchea.

The Kampuchean people and the Government of Democratic Kampuchea call on the French Government to reconsider its attitude and policy toward the Vietnamese Le Duan clique which is waging a war of aggression and genocide against the Kampuchean race, and to end all of these above-mentioned activities.

At a time when the Vietnamese Le Duan clique is being deeply and totally bogged down in the battlefield of aggression against Kampuchea and is in unprecedented isolation on the international arena, all of these activities of the French Government cannot salvage the Vietnamese Le Duan aggressors from final defeat.

The Kampuchean people and the Government of Democratic Kampuchea notice the actual attitude of the French Government toward them at the present time when they are temporarily experiencing difficult circumstances. A proverb of the Kampuchean people says: In difficult times, one will know who one's friends are and who one's foes are. The Kampuchean people and the Government of Democratic Kampuchea would like to take this opportunity to appeal to all the peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world to continue to support and assist the just struggle of the Kampuchean people and the Government of Democratic Kampuchea, and to further put pressure -- politically, diplomatically, economically and financially -- on the Vietnamese Le Duan clique to force it to withdraw all of its troops from Kampuchea and let the Kampuchean people decide their own destiny without any outside interference.

Also on this occasion the Kampuchean people and Government of Democratic Kampuchea once again express their profound thanks to the ASEAN and other peace- and justice-loving countries throughout the world, the mass organizations and public personages who cherish peace and justice in the world, including the French mass organizations and personages who have all along stood firm on the national cause of the Kampuchean people and Government of Democratic Kampuchea and resolutely opposed the Vietnamese Le Duan clique's aggression and expansion in Kampuchea which is a part of the Soviet strategy of aggression and expansion in Southeast Asia and elsewhere throughout the world.

MINISTRY DENOUNCES U.S. TOXIC CHEMICAL CLAIMS

BK070346 Vientiane Domestic Service in Lao 0000 7 Apr 82

["Statement of the LPDR Foreign Affairs Ministry Spokesman Denouncing the Reagan Government's Slanderous Propaganda on the Use of Toxic Chemicals in Laos, Kampuchea and Afghanistan" -- dated 6 April 1982]

[Text] The Reagan administration has repeatedly made utterances fabricating that poisonous gas and chemical weapons have been used in Laos, Kampuchea and Afghanistan. Concerning this slanderous propaganda carried out by the Reagan government, the LPDR Foreign Affairs Ministry spokesman is authorized to state officially that it is nobody else but the U.S. imperialists themselves who have used chemical weapons in the Indochinese countries, and that the use of chemical warfare is part of the common strategy of Washington whose aim is to carry out a destructive war against mankind.

It is the so-called yellow rain used as a test in Indochina for more than 10 years in the past by the United States which has resulted in the deaths of several millions of people in the three Indochinese countries. In Vietnam along, the United States used more than 100,000 tons of toxic chemicals. As a result of the U.S. chemical warfare, more than 2 million Vietnamese people have suffered disasters while thousands of others were killed and 1,300,000 hectares of land and forests -- or 45 percent of the land in use -- have been destroyed.

In Kampuchea, the aggressive war of the U.S. imperialists has resulted in the deaths of approximately 800,000 civilians. Some 240,000 Kampuchean people were disabled while about 80 to 85 percent of the forests were being destroyed by the U.S. toxic chemicals.

In Laos the use of toxic chemicals began in December 1965. Complying with an order of the U.S. army commander, General Westmoreland, toxic chemicals were dropped on the rivers and waterways, mountains and forests as well as on the land which could have been used in the interests of the national economy in the provinces or regions in the northern, central and southern parts of the country. As a result the Lao people have suffered severe disasters even up to the present.

Washington's deceitful propaganda on this matter is, therefore, aimed at covering up their crimes against the three peoples of Laos, Vietnam and Kampuchea. By carrying out such propaganda, they also aim to step up the large-scale production of war weapons by spending more than 800 million dollars on these items in the 1983 fiscal year budget. They are also speeding up the implementation of the plan to manufacture and increase the amount of chemical weapons with the total estimated expense placed at as much as 4 billion dollars. Presently, the United States possesses the largest number of chemical weapons in the world. These chemical weapons are capable of destroying all living things on the earth. The amount of toxic chemicals accumulated by the United States is more than 150,000 tons. This is an arrogant, open violation of the 1925 Geneva agreement.

By making propaganda to throw the blame on other people on the so-called use of chemical weapons in Indochina in the present, the Reagan administration aims to make the various nations in the world forget U.S. crimes against the three Indochinese peoples and to forget its crimes in using numerous chemical weapons unprecedented in the history of mankind.

SITTHI DISCUSSES REGIONAL ISSUES IN MALAYSIA

[Text] Kuala Lumpur, 30 Mar (AFP) -- ASEAN efforts to bring about a coalition of the three Cambodian resistance groups will continue, visiting Thai Foreign Minister Sitthi Sawetsila said here today. Talking to pressmen after an hour-long meeting with the Malaysain foreign minister, Tan Sri Ghazali Shafie, he said that the latest round of coalition talks in Beijing was not a failure.

Although former Premier Son Sann, leader of the Khmer People's National Liberation Front, had declined to join ex-chief of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk and Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan in the talks, "some progress" had been made.

Prince Sihanouk and Khieu Samphan agreed that the three groups could maintain their separate identity in a coalition, he said. This, he hinted, was similar to an Association of Southeast Asian Nations proposal of a loose coalition made last November.

Asked about the current state of the coalition talks, Air Chief Marshal Sitthi said: "They are in different places -- Sihanouk in Pyongyang, Son Sann in Paris and Khieu Samphan in Kampuchea. The question is how to get these people together in some ASEAN capital."

Air Chief Marshal Sitthi flew in here this morning for a day's visit after an overnight stay in Singapore for talks with the republic's foreign minister, S. Dhanabalan.

He had earlier met his Indonesian counterpart, Prof. Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja, in the course of ASEAN consultations on Cambodia and other regional developments.

The current consultations among the ASEAN foreign ministers are preparatory to their annual meeting which will be held in Singapore in June.

Asked about Vietnam's latest proposal for a dialogue with Thailand, the Thai leader said: "I find there is nothing new (in it)." Thailand, he added, already has a dialogue with Vietnam at various levels.

The Thai foreign minister said any dialogue on Cambodia should be in accordance with the resolutions of the United Nations conference on the issue. "The trouble is not between Thailand and Vietnam nor between Thailand and Kampuchea. Vietnam has itself admitted that they have a conflict with China. Hanoi should therefore have a dialogue with the Chinese to solve the problem," he said.

MATERIALS ON VISIT BY HUNGARY'S MINISTER PUJA

Joint Communique

OW060023 Hanoi VNA in English 1528 GMT 5 Apr 82

[Text] Hanoi, VNA, 5 Apr -- The following communique was released here today at the end of the official friendship visit to Vietnam by Hungarian Foreign Minister Frigyes Puja:

At the invitation of the Government of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, the minister for foreign affairs of the Hungarian People's Republic (H.P.R.), Frigyes Puja, paid an official friendship visit to Vietnam from April 3-5, 1982.

Foreign Minister Frigyes Puja and his party paid a floral tribute at the Ho Chi Minh mausoleum.

Pham Van Dong, Political Bureau member of the Communist Party of Vietnam Central Committee and chairman of the Council of Ministers of the S.R.V., received and had a cordial conversation with Frigyes Puja.

The Hungarian foreign minister held talks with Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach on issues of mutual concern. The talks took place in an atmosphere of cordiality, friendship and fraternal solidarity, and the two sides reached unanimity of view on all matters brought up at their meeting.

The two sides note with satisfaction that the relations between the S.R.V. and the H.P.R. on the basis of Marxism-Leninism and socialist internationalism have developed continuously and fruitfully for the benefit of the two peoples and for the sake of peace, national independence and socialism. They reaffirm their determination to do their best to consolidate and develop these relations.

The two sides decide to promote their cooperation and coordination in their foreign policies, and join their hands with the Soviet Union and other socialist countries, non-aligned countries and other forces advocating peace, in defeating the schemes of the imperialists and other international reactionary forces aimed at driving mankind into the holocaust of a nuclear war. Following the famous peace initiatives subsequent to the peace programme of the 26th Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union, the recent proposals of Comrade L.I. Brezhnev in his speeches on March 16 and 24 have once again proved that the Soviet Union has spared no efforts to make the international atmosphere healthy and to strengthen cooperation and mutual trust among nations. Together with the peace-loving forces all over the world, the Socialist Republic of Vietnam and the Hungarian People's Republic highly value and fully support those reasonable proposals.

The two sides fully support the initiative of the Mongolian People's Republic on the signing of convention on non-aggression and non-use of force in relations between the countries in Asia and in the Pacific.

The two sides fully support the resolute actions of the Polish Military Council of National Salvation which have defeated the counter-revolutionary schemes and acts of the imperialist and reactionary forces, and defended the fruits of socialism. The two sides consider the measures taken by the United States and its allies a brazen interference in Poland's internal affairs, a provocation to the Soviet Union, and a danger to peace and security in Europe and the world.

The two sides fully support the Afro-Asian and Latin American peoples' struggle for peace, national independence, and social progress, against imperialism, colonialism, Zionism and racism. The two sides resolutely support the just cause of the peoples of Cuba, Nicaragua, Grenada and El Salvador and sternly condemn the imperialists' criminal actions and plans of interfering in and threatening aggression against the countries in Central America and the Caribbean.

In this spirit, the Hungarian side fully supports the proposals of the three Indochinese countries aimed at, together with the ASEAN countries, building Southeast Asia into a region of peace and stability.

The Hungarian People's Republic highly values the proposals of the foreign ministerial conference of the three Indochinese countries on Feb. 16 and 17, 1982 aimed at normalizing the relations between Indochina and China and starting a dialogue between the Indochinese countries and Thailand, and between Indochina and ASEAN in order to settle issues of common concern, thus reducing tension in the region.

The two sides highly value the result of the working consultative meeting of the deputy foreign ministers of socialist countries in Vientiane in December 1981, considering it a significant contribution of the world socialist community to the defence of peace and to the reduction of tension in Southeast Asia.

The two ministers signed an "agreement on cooperation between the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Socialist Republic of Vietnam and the Ministry for Foreign Affairs of the Hungarian People's Republic for the years 1982-1984."

The Hungarian foreign minister invited Nguyen Co Thach to pay an official friendship visit to Hungary. The Vietnamese foreign minister accepted the invitation with gratitude.

QUAN DOI NHAN DAN Editorial

BK031244 Hanoi Domestic Service in Vietnamese 2330 GMT 31 Mar 82

[QUAN DOI NHAN DAN 1 April editorial: "The Entire Country Shares the Same Will To Successfully Implement the Party Congress Resolutions"]

[Text] The Vietnamese people and combatants throughout the country, from the northernmost point of Dong Van to the southernmost cape of Ca Mau, are very elated to welcome the splendid success of the Fifth Congress of the glorious VCP.

Over the past several days the country has directed its attention toward the congress and organized seething emulation drives to score achievements to greet the congress while eagerly waiting for the important congress resolutions.

In response to the people's confidence, the congress put forth its utmost efforts to bring about correct measures to solve strategic problems on the initial stage of our nation's socialist path.

The congress unanimously adopted the political report of the VCP Central Committee on the assessment of victories and achievements scored by our entire party, people and the armed forces during the past 5 years in the political, military, economic, cultural and diplomatic domains, and the acknowledgement of difficulties and shortcomings that must be overcome. The congress affirmed the determination to continue implementation of the socialist revolutionary line and building the socialist economy, as set forth by the fourth party congress and proven correct by reality.

The congress strengthened and solidified the party line by affirming the strategic tasks of the Vietnamese revolution in the new stage, the tasks, orientations and targets for 1981-85 and the 80's and policies and measures aimed at pushing the revolutionary cause of our workers and people another step forward.

The congress unanimously adopted the orientations, tasks and main targets for the economic and social fields which were stated in the party Central Committee political report. This is regarded as the congress directive for the implementation of the 5-year 1981-85 plan and plans for the subsequent years.

The congress unanimously adopted the report on party building and concrete proposals made by the party Central Committee on the amendment of party statutes and the task and policy designed to strengthen the party ideologically and organizationally in order to enhance the spirit of the working people and the vanguard nature of the party on the basis of Marxism-Leninism. This is also aimed at persistently upholding the party's ability to struggle and its leadership role, strengthening solidarity and single-mindedness, developing the party's fine revolutionary tradition and ensuring fulfilment of revolutionary tasks set forth by the congress.

The congress highly valued the correct activities of the party fourth congress Central Committee and elected a new party Central Committee, led by the esteemed Le Duan, to organize and implement the various tasks triumphantly set forth by the congress in order to continue to lead the people in the struggle to achieve the lofty ideal and the sacred testaments of great President Ho Chi Minh, founder and teacher of our party.

The party Central Committee, a supreme general staff of the revolution, symbolizes the party's tradition of solidarity and oneness and crystalizes the collective wisdom of the party. It is a body that firmly guarantees and leads the Vietnamese revolution to overcome all ordeals and advance constantly on the socialist path.

The Fifth VCP Congress is a new milestone in our party's protracted and arduous struggle for national independence and socialism. The congress resolutions are main lines of action and the light that leads our entire party, people and the armed forces to advance further. These resolutions are the product of the collective wisdom which can promptly and correctly solve new and complex problems of the strategic revolutionary tasks. They are the focal point of our people's expression of their uniform thinking and action aimed at closing their ranks behind the vanguard party and heroically surging forward with elation to lead the revolution to new victories.

From now on, to turn the congress resolutions into reality is the great and heavy task of our entire party, people and the armed forces. President Ho Chi Minh said: "If the importance of determination is one, then that of the implementation must be ten times greater." As a result, we must do our best to triumphantly carry out the congress resolutions. It is imperative that all cadres, party members and the people thoroughly understand the contents of the resolutions and use them to stimulate their single-mindedness and as encouragement in voluntarily turning the party resolutions into concrete reality. We must also base our studies and the implementation of various creative resolutions of the congress on the vivid reality of our society. The study of these resolutions must be combined with the implementation work. We must regard this as a decisive and significant link. In implementing these resolutions, it is necessary for us to have the best plans, favorable conditions, essential materials, a good combination of concepts and organization, steady improvement of leadership ethics and economic and social management. It is also necessary to synchronise coordination among various echelons of party organizations, state organs and mass organizations.

Revolution is a festival for our people. All revolutionary activities must be comprehensively and regularly carried out through revolutionary movements with the active participation of the masses. We must stir up a seething revolutionary movement among the masses, which include workers, peasants, the army, youths, women, intellectuals and all other strata of people in the great Vietnamese family. We must encourage the people to develop their role in exercising their right to collective mastery and to fully use their wisdom and capability for the cause of national construction and defense. This is the most important factor for the triumphant fulfilment of the congress resolutions.

We are well aware that the road to success is difficult and complex. However, we have the strength which is needed to overcome all difficulties and lead the revolution forward. Our material bases are increasing and our people's morale is being strengthened.

Our party has advanced further toward maturity and gained many valuable experiences. The prospect for the revolution is excellent. Our entire party, people and the armed forces are firm, confident and optimistic in their determination to uphold the tradition of revolutionary heroism in order to heroically surge forward to carry out two strategic revolutionary tasks triumphantly and fulfill their obligations toward the nation and the revolutionary cause of the world.

Our army's officers and combatants are very elated at the commendations given to them by the Fifth VCP Congress for their efforts in uniting with the people of various nationalities and the people's security forces to fight heroically and score outstanding achievements in the two recent wars to defend the country. Their achievements comprise a glorious page in our epic struggle for national independence and freedom. They are now striving to defend our fatherland's border, airspace, territorial waters and islands, and maintain security and social order and safety.

Realizing their heavy tasks in the new revolutionary stage, the people's armed forces must continue to carry out the movement to develop fine character and to increase the fighting strength satisfactorily. They must build our army into a genuine people's revolutionary army with a determination to win discipline and an ever-increasing level of modern and basic knowledge and combat readiness in order to always fulfill all tasks entrusted by the fatherland.

The congress resolutions are our main courses of action. Every one of us must uphold the sense of responsibility, enhance the spirit of collective mastery, participate in productive labor, stand ready for combat readiness and fight heroically and creatively in order to strive to create a vigorous change throughout our sphere of activities so as to build and defend the socialist fatherland triumphantly.

[Text] 2. Consumer Goods Production

It is extremely important to step up consumer goods production to meet society's material and cultural needs. We must create many more jobs, increase sources of goods for local consumption and export, stimulate agricultural production, expand division of labor, increase social products and national income as contributions to the accumulation for our economy. This very pressing task can help stabilize the people's livelihood and can greatly contribute to achieving a money-goods balance and stabilizing markets and prices.

There must be policies and uniform measures to develop all available production potentials and the capabilities of small industries, foodstuffs industry, and even middle-level and local industries. We must strive to develop various branches and trades, small industries and artisan industry in cities and countryside; properly employ individual artisans; achieve cooperation among state-operated enterprises, cooperatives and individual workers to step up goods production and fully use production facilities of national defense enterprises to produce consumer goods. In particular, we must exploit the strengths of Hanoi, Haiphong, Da Nang and Ho Chi Minh City in consumer goods production; quickly promulgate policies on investment, credit, supply of raw materials and discarded materials, product consumption and prices; increase technical equipment; ensure material supplies; create more sources of local raw materials; expand trade businesses, exports and imports, and cooperation with other countries in production; achieve rational labor division and cooperation in production in every branch and locality and in the entire country; use economic levers to stimulate the intensification of consumer goods production, especially the broad development of small industries and artisan industry ranging from traditional occupations to new trades and occupations; properly exploit available spinning factories, to produce from 380 to 400 million meters of cloth in 1985; and increase production of export farm produce in order to import more cotton thread, spare parts, chemicals and dyestuffs for the textile sector.

We should increase production of refined sugar of various kinds from 350,000 to 400,000 tons in 1985, make full use of the capacity of available sugar refineries, develop manual sugar mills, continue construction of the La Nga and Lam Son sugar refineries, and manufacture equipment for the construction of small and medium sugar refineries in various localities.

We should supply sufficient raw materials and fully develop the available capacity to produce more than 1 billion packs of cigarettes in 1985, reserve the greater part of cigarettes for export and improve the processing technique in order to increase the amount of export cigarettes.

We should supply sufficient raw materials for paper mills, encourage the production of hand-made paper in various localities in order to produce from 90,000 to 100,000 tons of paper of various types in 1985 and increase the production of cement bags.

We should intensify and expand salt production, especially in north Vietnam, to insure sufficient household and industrial salt.

We should increase the production of bicycles, especially accessories, tires and inner tubes; satisfy the people's need for soap, detergent powder and medication; develop and expand the production of goods and improve the quality of wooden works, pottery works, earthenware, chinaware, glassware, items made of rattan, bamboo, jute and rush, household utensils, school implements, medical and cultural equipment, and labor protective tools.

We must concentrate efforts to quantitatively and qualitatively improve export goods and produce goods manufactured with skill, especially chinaware, tailoring material, embroidery, knitwear, tapestry, fine arts articles, metallic objects and consumer goods.

3. Heavy Industry

We must reorganize, improve and upgrade available production establishments and create additional sources of energy and raw materials to make full use of these establishments' capacity. We must practically develop the very important effect of heavy industry on agriculture and consumer- and export-goods production sectors and continue to build a number of major establishments to meet the immediate needs and prepare for the future. Meanwhile, we must strive to step up basic survey work, establish economic and technical projects and designs, carry out planning work and train technical and management cadres and workers. We must gradually strengthen the economy's infrastructure and make active preparations for a more vigorous and broader development of heavy industry in subsequent plans.

We should remember that the central task for the transitional period is to carry out socialist industrialization and that the material-technical base of socialism is large-scale mechanized industry. The decisive factor for achieving high labor productivity is the new technical equipment, not only for agriculture but for other sectors of our national economy.

We should consider agriculture the first front and must step up consumer goods production to meet present urgent needs of everyday life. To create accumulation in our economy is to contribute to achieving socialist industrialization in one step and to strengthen the foundation for the present and future development of various heavy industries.

Electricity: We must formulate a general project for developing power production country-wide for a 15- to 20- year period and map out specific plans for implementing that project in the direction of coordinating the production of hydroelectric power and thermoelectric power and accelerating the production of thermoelectric power with large-, medium- and small-scale projects for the 1981-85 period.

We must ensure a balance between development of power production and the power transmission network and projects supporting the electricity sector and between the power-generating source and the power-consuming installations in order to best tap the energy potential. We must strive to produce from 5.5 to 6 billion kWh in 1985, fully develop the production capacity of the existing hydroelectric and thermoelectric powerplants, rationally use the power produced by diesel-operated generators, and drastically reduce electricity waste and loss, self-consuming power and fuel used in production. We must urgently build the Pha Lai thermoelectric plant and the synchronized projects, put the first group of generators into power production in early 1983, complete the installation of three groups of generators in 1985, and ensure the proper construction rate at the Hao Binh hydroelectric powerplant in order to put the first group of generators into production at an early date. We must seek by all means to provide more power to the southern provinces, make urgent preparations for an early construction of the Tri An hydroelectric powerplant, and build medium- and small-scale hydroelectric projects in central Vietnam, the Central Highlands, and northern mountain provinces. We must fully use the available gas for power production, step up studies and the tapping of other power sources, and strictly economize on electric power in production and the people's lives. Priority in power distribution must be accorded to the main production targets and key installations.

Coal: We must strive to increase the 1985 coal production to 8 to 9 million tons and, in addition, produce approximately 5 million tons as overlap production for the 1976-1980 plan. We must rapidly increase the production of coal and enhance its quality at the Ha Tu, Deo Nai, Coc Sau, Vang Danh, and Mao Khe coal mines and at subsidiary coal mines. We must continue construction and expansion work at the Cao Son, Wai Huong, Nui Beo, (Nui Hau) and Nong Son coal mines; complete construction work at the Mong Duong, (Khe Cham), Ha Lam and Thong Nhat coal mines; complete the renovation work at the Phan Me bituminous coal mine; accelerate construction work at the (Lang Gam) bituminous coal mine; and maximally exploit coal at the anthracite, bituminous and peat mines in various localities.

We must improve organizational and managerial work in the coal sector, step up geological work, increase efficiency in the use of vehicles and machines, accelerate equipment repairs and supplies of spare parts, synchronize exploitation, transportation and cargo-handling work, and expand transportation with conveyor belts, [bawng vaanj tair] and other means.

We must improve working conditions and the people's livelihood and adopt policies to promote labor enthusiasm and enhance coal miners' productivity. We must effectively manage transportation and distribution work, raise (?work efficiency), strictly apply the coal-saving policy, gather coal pieces of all types scattered in coal-mining areas, recover and put to best use the cinder gathered at the powerplants and satisfactorily resolve the problem of using processed coal as a replacement for kerosene in cooking.

Oil and gas: Oil and gas is an economic and technical sector which is having an increasingly important impact on the overall development of our national economy. For the immediate future, we must concentrate our efforts on satisfactorily carrying out our cooperation with the Soviet Union in order to accelerate oil and gas surveys and then proceed to oil and gas exploitation in southern Vietnam's continental shelf. We must strive to produce crude oil during the current 5-year plan. We must establish logistics installations and oil and gas services in Vung Tau and push ahead the gas survey and exploitation in the Bac Bo Delta.

Machinery: We must plan and rearrange the operations of the machine industry in the direction of specialization and cooperativeness countrywide. We must pay attention to making in-depth investments, raising the capacity of existing facilities and building new projects.

We must strive to raise the quality of products, reduce waste in the use of material supplies and energy and, through combined business transactions, import, export and secure more raw materials for machine industry production in order to fully use production capacity.

During the 1981-85 period, we must mainly ensure adequate repairs for equipment and machines and sufficient production of spare parts for various sectors, especially for agriculture, the industry for production of consumer goods, and the coal, electricity, communications, transportation, and construction materials sectors. We must produce sufficient ordinary tools, improved tools, and medium- and small-sized equipment and machines for agriculture, barges, railroad cars, mining equipment, motor engines, equipment for small hydroelectric projects, and equipment for the production of sugar, paper, and the processing of secondary crop products. We must raise the quality of products in order to increase the export of a number of engineering products such as bicycles, machine tools, electric fans, tool kits and so forth.

We must attach importance to developing the electronic industry in accordance with our country's situation and progress. We must fully tap our existing assembly and production capacity and build additional assembly and chain production installations in order to better meet our economic requirements in electronic equipment. We must raise the quality and production of assembled electronic products for export. We must complete construction of the Ha Lam diesel engine factory for production of diesel engines, the Ha Long and Pha Rung shipbuilding and repairs works, and the Gia Lam railroad factory. We must enlarge the Cam Pha machine industry factory and the Dong Anh electric equipment repair works and begin construction of the automobile spare parts factory with an annual production capacity of 6,000 tons and so forth. We must make intensive preparations for building a number of heavy industry projects for the next plan.

Metallurgy: We must mobilize the total steel refining and lamination capacity available in Thai Nguyen and the south, fill the need for bituminous coal and electrodes and gather scrap iron to increase production of laminated steel twofold in 1985 compared with 1981. We will expand the [word indistinct] method in metallurgy, study alloyed steel production, continue preparations for building large-scale steel-refining projects in subsequent plans, build and perfect the Tinh Tuc tin mine, begin construction of the Qui Hop joint tin enterprise, complete construction of lead and zinc production plants and expand chromite ore exploitation. Along with building plants, we should organize production of tin, lead, zinc and chromite by semi-mechanized and manual methods. We must cooperate with the Soviet Union and other CEMA member countries in studying bauxite exploitation and in developing the exploitation of precious metals and stones.

Fertilizers and chemicals: We should step up production of nitrogenous and phosphorous fertilizers and insecticides to serve agriculture, exploit and use local raw materials, organize medium- and small-scale production of essential chemicals which must replace imported chemicals in time, restore and expand the Lao Cai apatite mine, make preparations for building an apatite oil factory, expand the Lam Thao superphosphate factory, exploit and refine pyritic ore, develop the production of melt phosphorous fertilizer in order to increase the production of phosphorous fertilizers of various types from 350,000 to 400,000 tons in 1985, exploit the potential of the Ha Bao nitrogenous fertilizer plant, build a new nitrogenous fertilizer plant in the future and increase production of tires and tubes for autos and bicycles, technical rubber products, insecticides, paint, acetylene, baking soda and monosodium glutamate.

Building materials: We should complete construction of the Bim Son, Hoang Thach and Ha Tien cement factories; consolidate the Haiphong cement factory; reorganize the minor cement production installations; provide sufficient electricity, coal, gypsum, paper bags and fuel for factories; boost cement production in 1985 at least up to 2 million tons; concentrate on producing bricks, tiles, iron sheets, materials, pottery works, chinaware and heat-resistant bricks; expand production of commonly used materials with local raw materials, especially unbaked materials; and step up production of export goods and materials.

Geological survey: We will push forward geological survey work according to a key plan; pay special attention to the fact that geological work must directly serve the intensified exploitation of various resources according to the 1981-85 5-Year Plan; continue the survey of various resources in the country; pay attention to protecting new mines of high-value minerals such as tin. [Word indistinct] and molybdenite; make intensive efforts to discover and exploit bituminous coal, pyrites and manganese; and survey small peat and phosphate mines, building materials and undercurrent water in the service to local industries.

4. Communications and Transportation, Postal Communications

We must readjust and reorganize the forces in these sectors and increase their managerial capacity, productivity and efficiency along with providing more material means to overcome, in one step, weaknesses and the serious imbalance between communications and transportation and the requirements for economic development and consolidation of national defense. Domestic freight will increase on the average from 10 to 12 percent annually, while there will be a 3-fold increase in export freight and freight transported between the north and south. We must work out a plan for developing a communications and transportation network throughout the country; give priority to developing sea and river transport services; consolidate and develop railroad transport capacity; reorganize auto transport services in accordance with the capacity of gasoline, oil, spare parts, tires and tubes; continue building the civil aviation sector; widely develop rudimentary transport means; develop communications and transportation in rural areas, and especially in mountainous areas, while developing agriculture and forestry and consolidating national defense.

We must concentrate on building a network of seaports and river beacons and dredging river beds; complete the improvement of the Haiphong harbor area; build Cua Lo harbor; reinforce the harbors in central and southern Vietnam; consolidate and increase the capacity of the available railroad network, especially the north-south railway; build a number of railways leading to industrial centers; develop a number of main highways and land communications centers; promptly repair and increase transport means, especially barges, river boats, seagoing vessels, locomotives and coaches; intensify unloading work; shorten the turnaround time for vehicles; increase speed; insure safety; rapidly unload goods at harbors, railroad stations, piers and railway terminals; concentrate efforts on unloading the import cargo; insure export goods loading and north-south transport service; give priority to coal and grain transport and to transport service for agriculture, construction sites, major enterprises, border areas and Laos and Kampuchea, the two fraternal countries, and assign adequate duties and powers to various sectors and between the central level and localities.

Regarding economic planning, we must insure rational transport service and carefully calculate transport capabilities. We must improve and exploit the potentials of available communication networks, build more material-technical bases, improve and increase the capacity of the postal communications sector and closely coordinate the national communications network with the communications network for special use of various sectors in order to properly serve economy and national defense.

5. Capital Construction

Our material and capital potential is limited when priority must be given to meeting the urgent needs of life and export. We must therefore rationally employ investment for capital construction and correctly and effectively use the invested capital. To this end, we must concentrate our capital on key projects and sectors and on the most important products. We must avoid the situation of dispersion and [word indistinct] in construction; make uniform investments with a view toward developing, first of all, the available production capabilities; pay great attention to making investment in depth and correctly coordinating intensive with extensive investment; actively carry out the precept: The localities work together.

We must consolidate and improve professional knowledge of the construction and assembly forces; rationally organize specialized construction forces and rearrange capital construction projects in order to reorganize the labor force and increase effectiveness and quality in construction.

The total capital invested by the state in capital construction for 5 years, 1981-85, is estimated at approximately 16 to 18 billion dong according to the old monetary value. In addition, all sectors and localities must mobilize their own capital and the capital of cooperatives and the people to improve and expand the production establishments and social welfare, cultural, educational and public health facilities. We must rearrange every project, discard unnecessary projects such as administrative facilities and conference halls, change a number of designs and materials, make full use of material bases and equipment and build new projects only when necessary. We must strictly practice economy to reduce capital for construction and assembly by 10 to 15 percent. We must accelerate construction of key projects of the agricultural, coal, electricity, oil and gas, machinery, paper, sugar, communications, transportation and export sectors. We must actively prepare to build major projects for the metallurgic, mechanical, chemical and building materials branches in subsequent plans; step up the improvement of the system of managing capital construction according to the method of [word indistinct], ensure adherence to technical pattern and projects quality.

6. Labor and Population

We must urgently study and promulgate a labor code; resolve the employment problem for social laborers by distributing local manpower to the agricultural sector, developing trades and occupations, especially small industries and artisan industry in the countryside, cities and towns; exploiting forestry and fishery and developing services in the cities. Each province and district must have a plan for manpower arrangement and concentrate on solving the employment problem for demobilized servicemen and graduates, especially students in Hanoi, Ho Chi Minh City, Haiphong, Da Nang and other cities and towns. The Mekong Delta provinces should have plans and measures to step up intensive cultivation, increase crops, expand the cultivated acreage and develop trades and occupations in order to increase manpower utilization.

We must organize the sending of 1 million people, including laborers and dependents, to build new economic zones in their own localities or in other areas and from the north to the south. The people may volunteer to develop the cultivated acreage of grain and industrial crops with state assistance or the state may make investments and send people to build major areas of specialized cultivation. We must properly solve problems of policy and organization to create a revolutionary mass movement to reclaim land and build new economic zones according to well elaborated plans and correct technical projects which will bring successful results.

The labor force and population engaged in industrial production is presently very large and must be partly transferred to agriculture and forestry. We must adopt policies and measures to encourage, motivate, organize and assist the people in the cities and towns, including those on the state staff. We must develop trades, occupations, small industries, artisan industry, services and agricultural production; transfer more technical cadres and economic management cadres to districts and agricultural cooperatives; simplify the administrative apparatus; resolutely reduce the state staff; change the labor structure; qualitatively improve state machinery; recruit only trained personnel; step up educational work; resolutely apply a number of administrative and economic measures and create favorable conditions for the people to carry out the birth control plan, to reduce the nationwide average annual birth rate from 2.4 to 1.7 percent in 1985.

7. Distribution and Circulation Front

It is necessary to establish a socialist new order on the distribution and circulation front soon in order to contribute to stabilizing life, step up production and improve the economic and social situation. The state must control goods and money, rationally distribute national revenues, adjust irrational and illegitimate revenues, strengthen market management and oppose illegal speculations and business transactions. To this end, it is necessary to carry out the following policies and major measures: To increase and consolidate state finance; urgently adopt a national financial policy which is practical and suited to the present situation; strongly mobilize all sources of capital for the state, including goods in nature and finance; yield all interests and taxes to the state; and ensure adequate collection of agricultural, commercial and industrial taxes. All sectors and units must understand that financial mobilization is extremely important for the state.

We must first expand international cooperation with socialist countries; strive to properly exploit and rationally use all foreign capital resources to supplement our domestic capital resources; closely manage and effectively use all capital resources; strictly practice thrift in all spheres; observe the watchword: Turn out much more and better wealth with the same or a smaller amount of capital resources; markedly cut administrative expenditures and correctly implement the state's general regulations on expenditures.

Distribution of materials, manpower and capital in the production sector must be highly efficient while distribution of consumer goods must be based on the amount and quality of work performed. Any budget deficit, especially deficits related to consumption, must be minimized. Improvement and expansion of banking credit operations must be linked to expansion of noncash payment in the economy.

We must ameliorate the distribution of capital invested in capital construction without going through banks; step up capital mobilization and management as well as savings mobilization; strengthen monetary management; make money rapidly circulate through banks; apply positive measures to gradually reduce cash overexpenditures on the basis of balanced budgets and balanced credits; ensure economic effectiveness of borrowed capital and provide borrowed capital and ready money for rational, essential needs in production and life. State control and inventory regarding production and social product distribution must be intensified through financial, credit and payment operations.

Livelihood is a very important problem. Our primary concern is to provide jobs for all laborers in society and to ensure full labor output. This is the basis for increasing income, improving living conditions and enabling each person to earn an income commensurate with his or her work.

We must properly organize distribution of goods sold at stable prices, including staple goods and necessities for clothing, housing, travel, learning and medical treatment. Supply of grain and foodstuffs to major cities and industrial centers must be improved. An adequate amount of industrial goods must be reserved for rural and border areas and the high region.

Efforts must be made to improve the livelihood of workers, civil servants, scientific and technical cadres, teachers and medical cadres. A system of real wages must be maintained. The supply of fixed amounts of goods must be ensured. The scope of piecework and contractual wages must be widened according to set progressive norms.

Prices are a complex problem. The party and state policy regarding readjustment of purchase prices, bulk sale prices, retail prices and service charges is essential and correct.

As far as implementation of this policy is concerned, shortcomings exist and errors have been made in setting some prices; announcements and application of new price scales have not been prepared in advance; there has been no coordination of financial, pricing and trading plans and some sectors and localities have arbitrarily implemented the pricing policy.

At present, it is urgently required to continue implementing the central level's policy regarding price readjustment, to overcome past shortcomings and errors and to immediately readjust irrational prices of some goods which affect production and the people's livelihood. We must strive to gradually stabilize prices by developing production and overcoming imbalances regarding production, finance, money and foreign currencies. Special attention must be paid to management of cost prices and circulation costs. Lowering cost prices and circulation costs will greatly help create a basis for setting rational prices, stabilizing prices and increasing socialist accumulation while positively contributing to achieving a balance in state finances. We must step up the study and preparation of conditions for reforming the pricing system as well as the wage system by taking proper steps to readjust prices. Prices must always be closely linked to financial, monetary and commercial plans and market management. The main point is to strengthen price management according to plan. We must uphold state discipline regarding prices, put an end to the situation that permits arbitrary price hikes and the application of free market prices, urgently promulgate regulations on price management and achieve strict unified price management.

Trade helps concentrate in the state's hands the sources of materials and goods, including agricultural, forestry and marine products and industrial, domestic and import goods. We must closely manage and equitably distribute goods to meet the interests of the state, collectives and laborers. State-operated trade and marketing cooperatives must be consolidated so they can assume their guiding role in the market. State-owned production establishments and installations having economic relations with the state must earnestly carry out their obligation of delivering products to the state. The contingent of trade cadres must vigorously advance to learn the trade business and vividly apply socialist trade methods in order to control the market. Goods must be distributed to the right customers. We must resolutely oppose corruption, waste and negative practices in trade; improve material supply while consistently improving management and planning; achieve uniform and prompt supply of materials for production; give priority to implementing important tasks; ensure effective use of materials; encourage material economization; consolidate and expand the socialist trade field; control wholesale and retail trade; control the socialist market; restrict and [word indistinct] unorganized markets; strictly eradicate hoarding, smuggling and theft of state materials and goods; and properly organize and carry out the tasks of customs and tax offices in order to fight smuggling of goods across the border.

Regarding market management, it is necessary to properly coordinate economic, administrative and educational measures and all sectors and echelons, especially those sectors directly connected with market management such as the trading, financial, public security and customs sectors, under the guidance of party committee echelons and administrative echelons. This is one aspect of the fierce revolutionary struggle in the economic, political and social spheres -- a struggle that determines who wins over whom, a struggle in which we must come out victorious and must by one way or another establish socialist order in the field of distribution and circulation and in our economic and social life.

8. Economic Relations With Other Countries, Exports and Imports

Our tropical country is endowed with abundant natural resources, manpower and capabilities and has very favorable conditions for developing economic relations with other countries.

We must, first of all, expand the overall cooperation between our country and the Soviet Union and the CEMA member-nations in depth as well as in scope. We must try our best to obtain maximum valuable aid from the Soviet Union and other fraternal countries and must effectively utilize this aid. Meanwhile, we must satisfactorily implement our obligations on the principle of reciprocity and not in an arbitrary and subservient manner.

In this spirit and in accordance with actual conditions and capabilities, our country should actively participate in the process of international labor distribution, specialization and international cooperation within the framework of CEMA in the appropriate spheres.

The alliance of the three Indochinese countries is a special one of comrades and friends assisting each other in the effort of protecting and building socialism in each country.

We must develop, together with Laos and Kampuchea, a program and plan to expand economic cooperation and mutual assistance in many fields and must properly develop all potentials and create new supplementary ones for each country.

We must expand our political, economic and cultural relations with the nonaligned countries; develop Vietnam's position and impact on the Nonaligned Movement and in the struggle for a new world economic order; strive to establish relations with other countries; develop in many ways exchange services and cooperation activities; and foil all enemy economic sabotage maneuvers.

Export is a very strategically important task and a great obligation for every sector and echelon. We must endeavor to step up exports in order to ensure the importation of necessary equipment and materials for the normal operation of our national economy and for our socialist industrialization and to gradually achieve an import-export balance and a proper international balance of payments.

Along with boosting production and thriftily using consumer goods with a view to increasing our supply of export goods, we must further expand tourist services and other businesses to increase our sources of foreign currency.

We must strive to double our exports in terms of value in the 5 years of 1981-85 compared with the 5 years of 1976-1980. Priority must be given to investment to increase our export capacity. We must struggle to build a main supply of export goods which will be economically effective and ensure a stable position on the world market. We must also pay attention to exporting agricultural, forest and marine products, minerals, machinery, consumer goods and so forth.

The various sectors and regions are dutybound to make the largest possible contribution to the national export plan, striving to increase exports so as to achieve a balance with their respective import requirements and help increase our state's exports in terms of value.

We must adopt policies that encourage the sectors and regions to step up production of export goods and participate in the export business on the basis of maintaining the principle of unified management of foreign trade and currency by the state. We must promptly perfect foreign trade organizations, resolve irregularities in managerial structure, planning and policies that impede export activities. We must be extremely strict in regard to imports. We must fully utilize the existing equipment in our country -- machine tools, trucks, tractors -- and must resolutely readjust surpluses and shortages. We must import only the most essential equipment and supplies that cannot be produced locally, and must use imported goods thriftily and efficiently while consistently considering our ability to pay for them. We must expand tourism, making it gradually become an important economic sector worthy of our country's potential in this field.

9. Scientific and Technical Tasks

The Political Bureau's resolution on scientific and technical policy sets forth the main targets, tasks and orientations in scientific and technical development aimed at achieving immediate and long-term economic and social objectives. This resolution manifests the party's line on the scientific and technical revolution. The various echelons and sectors should thoroughly grasp and organize well the implementation of this resolution. The current urgent requirement is to efficiently implement key scientific and technical projects, paying particular attention to promptly applying scientific and technical progress in production and day-to-day life. Science and technology must be one of the primary factors in raising output, quality, conservation, efficiency and in pushing forward expanded reproduction. First of all, science and technology must support in the best manner the transformation of agriculture into large-scale socialist production within a rational agroindustrial structure. We must widely apply the achievements of the scientific-technical revolution, paying special attention to those in biology, first of all in regard to seeds, aimed at promoting agriculture, forestry, fishery and the processing industry. At the same time, we must make science and technology support important industrial sectors such as the power, coal, oil and gas, engineering, metallurgical, chemical, communications and transportation sectors.

For the immediate future, we must actively study the main economic and technical projects and help in formulating the 5-year plan for 1981-85 aimed at resolving difficulties in energy, raw materials and spare parts. We must push forward scientific studies on organization and management and must promote basic survey and forecasting activities in order to prepare a scientific base for analyzing and assessing resources, zoning, programming and formulating economic and social strategies.

We must closely combine natural sciences, applied sciences and social sciences, and develop the creative strength of the scientific and technical sectors by taking into account the superiority of socialism and our nation's fine traditions. We must step up the working people's movement of developing innovations, improving techniques and rationalizing production. We must develop to a high degree the positive spirit of and at the same time expand international cooperation in science and technology with other countries in the world, first of all with the Soviet Union and the other CEMA countries. We must pay special attention to cooperation with fraternal Laos and Kampuchea.

We must develop and effectively exploit our existing and future scientific and technical potentials, set up and consolidate the system of research organizations and develop the system of education and training. We must strengthen the system of scientific and technical management agencies. We must make appropriate investments in and satisfactorily ensure the material-technical base for scientific and technical activities. We must adopt policies to foster, use and create working conditions aimed at developing the capabilities of the contingent of scientific and technical cadres. We must formulate well the regulations governing distribution of labor and cooperation in studying, developing and applying scientific and technical progress and raise the effectiveness of scientific and technical activities in economic and social life. We must give utmost importance to economic, scientific and technical information activities.

We must strive to gradually build an advanced science and technology for the SRV with a structure compatible with the requirements of economic, cultural and social development and capable of resolving immediate requirements and long-term objectives of production, day-to-day life and national defense. We must anticipate and open up new directions for development to the economy and society and pay attention to developing scientific and technical sectors in coordination with our advantages in terms of natural resources, tropical conditions and population.

Educational, training, cultural, medical and social tasks: We must carry out educational reforms intensively and steadily and in accordance with our economic capabilities. We must also pay attention to stepping up educational activities in the mountain region and the Cuu Long River Delta so as to gradually raise the level of these activities to the same level as in the other regions. We must consolidate and develop the education of young children and gradually spread education, using various methods to provide education. We must have proper policies for building up and strengthening the teachers' body and improving the educational management tasks. We must pay great attention to enhancing the overall quality of education and further linking education with scientific and technical studies and with production and the people's livelihood. We must accelerate the general technical education and job orientation education for general school students and pay attention to educating students in political, ideological and ethical matters. We must satisfactorily organize the schools' participation in productive labor; strive to develop the complementary education movement; firmly grasp the motto "The state and the people work together" in promoting education; and achieve a close coordination of activities among the school, the family and society in order to successfully carry out the educational reforms.

We must continue to train a balanced and homogenous contingent of skilled workers, scientific and technical cadres and economic management cadres to meet the revolutionary requirements for the present and future stages. We must rearrange the system of colleges, higher schools, and vocational middle schools; do well in coordinating training work and productive labor; determine a rational training scale; expand on-the-job training; and train cadres for the collective economic sector. We must continue to train graduated technical cadres of all echelons and, especially, train cadres from among college graduates and graduates from advanced studies schools. We must adopt proper measures for training workers and cadres of ethnic minorities and make a census of and reassign the existing body of technical cadres in order to use them more rationally and efficiently. We must rearrange the vocational schools and classes of the ministries, localities and installations; improve student enrollment work; enhance the quality and result of training; determine a workers training scope in line with the requirements for production development; and pay great attention to training highly skilled technical workers.

We must also strive to develop and enhance the quality of cultural, information, physical education and sports activities. Besides state investments, we must motivate the people, installations and mass organizations to make contributions and must use to the fullest the welfare funds of installations in order to promote the cultural, information, physical education and sports activities, especially the mass cultural movement and the physical training movement. We must pay attention to serving grassroots level units such as work sites, state farms, state forests and armed forces units, especially in border provinces and new economic zones.

We must intensively and continuously struggle to wipe out the enslaving, reactionary, backward and depraved cultures; resolutely eliminate outmoded customs, superstitions, and social evils; further care for the people's health; and build up Vietnamese medicine on the basis of combining modern and traditional medicine. We must satisfactorily perform sanitation, prophylactic, treatment and environmental sanitation work; expand and raise the quality of public health and maternity work; care for the people's health through the use of state and public welfare funds; and motivate the people to make contributions.

We must tap the locally available pharmaceutical products to make common drugs and strive hard to overcome the lack of medicine. Every village and district must earmark land and work forces for the cultivation of medicinal plants. We must accelerate exports and cooperate with foreign countries in planting medicinal plants for them and endeavor to produce drugs for them in order to get chemical and pharmaceutical products and modern medicine in exchange. We must make intensive preparations for producing antibiotics ourselves. We must improve our positions and policies and wholeheartedly care for and assist those families that performed meritorious services for the revolution, the brother and sister war invalids and the families of war dead.

We must consolidate the war invalids care centers and rehabilitation centers in order to restore their labor capabilities and must expand the teaching of trades to them. We must satisfactorily organize the raising of orphans and assistance to the elderly, the weak and the infirm. The party and state should adequately care for the retirees and extend special love and respect to the elderly comrades.

The aforesaid major economic and social guidelines, tasks, and objectives are contained in the fifth party congress draft directive for guidance on the formulation of the 1981-85 5-year plan. On the basis of the congress directive, all echelons, sectors and installations must work together intensively in order to complete the economic and technical projects, map out concrete policies and measures, determine objectives and satisfactorily formulate and carry out the 1981-85 5-year plan. According to the major guidelines, tasks and objectives mentioned in this report, it is estimated that during the 1981-85 5-year plan there will be an average annual increase in agricultural production of about 6 to 7 percent; industrial production -- 4 to 5 percent; and national income in production -- 4.5 to 5 percent. By 1985, the total increase in grain production will be 32 percent over 1980; pork -- 30 percent; fish -- 25 percent; sugar and honey of various types -- 100 percent; cloth and silk -- 119 percent; paper -- 87 percent; electricity -- 51 percent; coal -- 54 percent; cement -- 184 percent; chemical fertilizer -- 23 percent; and lumber -- 14 percent.

Thus, our economic and social situation is changing for the better, especially in stabilizing and further improving the people's livelihood. However, great economic imbalances still remain, though in lesser degrees. Proceeding from small-scale production after 30 years of fierce war, we must go through stages of arduous struggle; yet, we will gradually gear our national economic activities toward a trend of orderly socialist development and continue to advance in our surefire undertaking.

[Part III of economic report presented by SRV Council of Ministers Chairman Pham Van Dong at the opening session of the Fifth VCP Congress on 27 March in Hanoi -- read by announcer]

[Text] Comrade delegates, renovating the managerial system and improving the operational efficiency of all echelons and launching a mass movement to bring about revolutionary changes are two kinds of decisive general measures for formulating and implementing state plans satisfactorily. At present, our country's economy is composed of many elements, many technical levels, many operational scales and many production and trade forms and is experiencing many serious imbalances.

To be suited to this economy, there must be a dynamic managerial system that can eliminate bureaucratic centralism, conservatism, sluggishness and the practice of indiscriminate subsidization, and implement the principle of democratic centralism correctly.

The new managerial system which we have to apply must broaden the independence [quyeenf chur dqoongj] of establishments, localities and sectors while simultaneously ensuring the control by the central echelon of things that need to be managed by it.

The new managerial system considers the state plan as a center, constantly heightens the state plan's role, attaches great importance to the various economic levers, applies the relations of markets, especially the organized market, and resolutely opposes the tendency to run after the free market.

The new managerial system encourages innovations and talents, requires a high sense of discipline and responsibility, overcomes negativism and establishes a socialist order.

In establishing a new managerial system, it is imperative to renovate planning work so as to make the state plan a second platform of the party and a central tool for the managerial system. Each planning echelon -- from the central echelon to establishments -- must truly master its own plan. This means that each planning echelon takes initiative in formulating, balancing, protecting and implementing its plan along the lines of the general national plan.

At the central echelon, the state plan controls major balances, main norms, key construction projects, important products and the major part of concentrated capital provided for in the budget and, on this basis, decides the main guidelines for development of the national economy.

At the establishment level, the plan reflects creativity and independence based on the principle of financial independence through achieving high social and economic efficiency, engaging in business enterprise with benefits, dividing profits and catering appropriately to the three kinds of interests.

Great attention must be paid to the plans of establishments as the quality of these plans has a decisive effect on the entire system of the state plans. We must intensively draw upon experience from both good and bad aspects of the system of end-product contracts to groups of workers and individual workers. We must gradually supplement the contract regulations so as to perfect the contract policy, making it a system of planning and comprehensive management for collective production units in agriculture, small industry and handicrafts.

With regard to state-run economic establishments, the state encourages these enterprises to fully use all of their capabilities, including the procurement of more raw materials and the use of materials in stock in order to formulate plans for producing larger quantities of principal goods than the norms assigned by the state. Moreover, they must fully use discarded materials and products to produce more secondary goods.

In carrying out policies concerning interests -- such as wages, bonuses and norms for using part of the profits for the various funds of enterprises -- we must unhesitatingly promote the attainment of satisfactory results in the overfilfillment of plan norms. It is imperative, however, to increase incentive measures for enterprises in the fulfillment of the state plan.

In this spirit, we must quickly supplement, improve and perfect the existing regulations and set up an appropriate planning and managerial system for state-run economic establishments.

As for individually and privately-run economic establishments, the state will rely on economic policies and administrative measures in association with the control work of the masses to guide and direct the operation of these establishments according to the state plans.

Every province and district must firmly ascertain its conditions regarding local manpower, soil conditions, services, trades and material bases; its potential to cooperate with other units and to deal with exports and imports; and the quantities of materials and goods each needs to receive annually from the state. On this basis, every locality must map out a plan for expanded reproduction in order to guarantee the well-being of the local people and ensure that the amounts of products and financial contributions it will turn into the state correspond to the capabilities of the locality and to the amounts of materials and funds provided by the state. Plans to be mapped out by each locality must be designed to step up specialized and cooperativized production in conformity with its advantageous position; must expand the barter trade with other sectors and localities and must increase imports and exports.

All ministries in charge of management over other related sectors are dutybound to assist in the planning work for the entire economic-technical sector in accordance with the specialty of each sector concerned. The plans of each sector must be worked out in the spirit of struggling to achieve still greater growth for itself and to contribute increasingly to the national economy. Plans of various corporations and production cartels must be established in accordance with the principles of financial independence and profitable trade business.

This planning system -- which advocates linking the planning with the profit-and-loss economic accounting and with socialist trade -- requires increased economic incentive measures and scientific bases of planning, and the linking of planning work with efforts to direct the implementation of plans.

With regard to economic incentive measures, we must quickly revise those policies which are no longer suitable; formulate new, uniform policies which will be integrated into the planning system to form a unified economic management mechanism; enhance the position of the state plan and simultaneously expand the decision-making power of various sectors, localities and establishments. All economic incentive policies -- the majority of them have been presented in the second part of this report -- must guarantee the interests of the state, collectives and the working people.

We must uphold the role of economic contracts in the preparation and implementation of plans; increase the responsibilities of various economic units and their managers over those contracts already signed and develop economic arbitration work. We must actively create conditions and practice profit-and-loss economic accounting in a way suitable for various types of enterprises; and must unify the production and financial plans of enterprises.

Regarding the scientific base of planning, we must continue to carry out satisfactorily the tasks regarding capital surveys, socioeconomic forecasts and scientific-technical forecasts. We must devise a socioeconomic strategy, a general program for the distribution of the production force and a long-term plan on the basis of economic-technical plans for each product. We must gradually perfect the system of standards for unit prices designed to serve the calculation and appraisal of the fulfillment of plans. We must closely link economic plans with scientific-technical plans.

With regard to planning methods and procedures, the state should promptly bring its control numbers together with the system of targets -- more condensed now than before -- to bear mainly on the following four points: the volume of products delivered to the state; the profits earned by the state; the taxes paid to the state; and the means and facilities provided by the state.

The legal system of targets assigned to primary establishments, sectors, and localities should be determined properly and succinctly. The authorities at all levels must be very attentive in securing better balances in plans and must observe economic-technical norms and standards.

To enhance the legality of plans, it is necessary to gradually perfect the system of economic laws, strengthen the planning, contractual and financial discipline involving units and individuals by applying severe punishments for violations and by commending and appropriately providing rewards for good services.

To create favorable premises for the new planning system, we should reorganize production and work urgently to promptly shape up a smooth and rational production and business network. As an immediate task, we should consolidate and perfect all the state-owned and collective economic establishments. This is a very important task with practical effects. We should resolutely overcome the practice of operating businesses at a loss.

Depending on the level of development and the specific characteristics in each sector, we should gradually organize joint production in each region or throughout the country under such suitable forms as joint enterprises, factory combines, corporations and production groups.

We should consolidate existing joint production enterprises in order to specialize and cooperativize production, achieving higher socioeconomic results. We should make steady preparations and establish some new joint enterprises in major sectors and targeted areas. We should strive to build districts in close connection with the consolidation of cooperatives according to models suitable to each category of districts.

In general, the economy in districts involves agricultural production collectives, cooperatives, some production and processing factories, artisan industry and handicrafts installations, some agricultural technical farms and stations, and some shops to supply materials, collect and purchase agricultural products and retail consumer goods which are linked to one another through the economic relations established in plans and contracts or through joint enterprise.

We should concentrate on most satisfactorily developing important districts having high rates of commodity production. We should emphasize the process of developing the provincial economy and vigorously accelerate the operations to regularize coordination among the provincial authorities in order to associate the centrally run economy with the local economies in provinces. We should intensify the economic cooperation and trade among districts in a province and among provinces.

We should organize and administer cities and towns well and clearly determine the position and scope of administration at precinct and city ward levels. In keeping with the requirements of changing the planning system, we should develop economic leverages, reorganize production, revamp the management machinery, and improve the cadre education task and work system.

We should enhance the function of the Council of Ministers and its Standing Committee by intensifying their effectiveness in economic and social management; firmly grasping the state plan; deciding various economic policies; guiding the works of various sectors and authorities at all echelons; and supervising and controlling economic and social activities.

We should stress that all ministries -- either those in charge of general matters or of managing specific sectors -- must play an important role depending on their functions and missions. The ministries in charge of general matters such as the State Planning Commission, the Finance Ministry, the state bank, the State Price Commission and the Ministries of Labor and Suppy must fulfill their general management and advisory functions well to serve and control all sectors, localities and primary establishments. The ministries in charge of specific sectors must actually manage the sectors throughout the country, adequately fulfilling the state management function from the administrative, economic and technical standpoints. At the same time, they must guide subordinate units in the management of production and business.

We should rationalize the division of labor among ministries, determine the managerial scope and the organizational method of each ministry, and strictly streamline the machinery by reducing the intermediary organizations and rationally determining the administrative staff of ministries.

We should urgently settle the question of classifying central and local management, boldly extend authority and responsibility to the provincial and municipal levels and to the district and grassroots levels, and properly intensify the centralized and unified management of central government. We should implement in a resolute and adequate manner the resolutions of the party Central Committee and of its Political Bureau on cadre affairs in order to create at all costs a radical change in cadre affairs.

We should properly assign the contingent of key cadres and employ them satisfactorily in order to develop the potential of the contingent of cadres in general. We should rearrange the number of managerial cadres at various establishments, joint enterprises and corporations, ensuring that each unit has a team of key cadres and a leader with good qualities and abilities to perform their assigned missions satisfactorialy.

We should revamp those central organs having poor-quality cadres and should replenish various localities -- especially the district and grassroots levels -- with managerial cadres and scientific and technical cadres.

We should quickly expand and qualitatively improve the training of managerial cadres at all levels in order to meet working requirements in the period ahead.

As for working systems and behavior, first of all, all state organs, cadres and workers should strictly comply with the four systems already in force -- namely, the system of responsibility, the system of labor discipline, the system of protecting public property and the system of serving the people -- and should translate these systems into a set of by-laws.

We should delineate responsibilities for each position to be assumed by state cadres; create conditions for implementing the system of one-man responsibility; and improve the sense of responsibility and respect for the state law.

We should resolve to do away with bureaucracy and the bad practice of abusing one's power to extort money and cause inconveniences to the people.

We should quickly materialize and intensively implement the system of issuing and implementing decisions with emphasis on improving the preparation of decisions by mobilizing the contributions of related organizations and of those who are knowledgeable in certain particular subjects. We should improve the results of the implementation of decisions through the improvement of guidance activities and the enhancing of discipline.

One of the most important things to be emphasized is that we should strive to improve operational control abilities of various management organs at all levels from the Council of Ministers down to the grassroots level.

Over the past few years our operational control task, though showing some progress in certain areas, has not been good enough to meet requirements dictated by the situation and tasks.

The operational control task requires that every agency and everyone must work in a discipline, responsible and effective manner and that we must coordinate all forces synchronistically, tightly control the implementation of plans and policies, detect and make timely decisions to tackle problems arising in every-day life, and review and disseminate good experiences. This is part of the struggle to eradicate the ills of bureaucracy, conservatism and sluggishness and other handicaps in general knowledge, work performance and working methods.

In order to increase the effect of operational control, we must attach importance to the reorganization of the economic and social information system, ensuring prompt dissemination of policies and plans from the central down to the grassroots levels and the masses and simultaneously reflecting faithfully and promptly the opinions and aspirations of the grassroots level and the masses to higher echelons including the central echelon, thus contributing practically to the exercise of collective mastery by the laboring people.

The new managerial mechanism must be built uniformly. At present, we must concentrate on carrying out the following tasks effectively:

-- Revising planning methods, which should be reflected in the preparation of the 5-Year 1981-85 plan and the 1983 plan;

-- Resolving the problems of delineating the managerial responsibilities between the central and local levels;

-- Perfecting the contract system with groups of laborers and individual laborers in agriculture and the policy of broadening the right to take initiative in production and trade business of various state-owned economic establishments;

-- Introducing and implementing a number of new incentive policies aimed at promoting agricultural development and increased production of consumer and export goods;

-- Further rearranging various production establishments and capital construction projects;

-- Stepping up market transformation and management, further resolving the problems of prices and wages, and correcting irrational profit-making activities; and

-- Renovating the state administrative machinery, revising working procedures and initiating socialist emulation movements.

Renovating economic management work is now a most important task of our state. As the sharpest tool of the party and the people, the state is dutybound to administer all activities in society with economic activities being the fundamental concern.

In the present situation, the state must demonstrate strongly its proletarian dictatorial nature; and must legalize and reflect fully the party leadership and the laboring people's collective mastery.

Simultaneously our state must satisfactorily exercise its state administrative management right, the socialist trade management procedures in the economic field and professional management in the cultural, educational, public health, scientific and technical fields. As all of these managerial activities are to be given a legal basis, the state must attach great importance to the gradual establishment of a system of laws -- especially economic laws -- and to the enhancing of socialist legislation.

Our state must define by law the very important role of mass organizations and must cooperate with and create favorable conditions for trade unions, the Ho Chi Minh Communist Youth Union, the Women's Association and other mass organizations. These organizations are the communist and socialist schools of the people of various strata, the effective collaborators of the state, and the bonds linking the party with the masses.

In order to satisfactorily carry out all these complex managerial tasks, it is vital to institutionalize and develop the laboring people's collective mastery, especially at the grassroots level -- in the enterprises and cooperatives -- through various mass organizations and through the system of the organs of power ranging from people's councils and people's committees to the National Assembly, the Council of State and the Council of Ministers.

Dear Presidium, dear comrade delegates, the national situation and revolutionary struggle require a widespread and profound revolutionary change in all aspects of life and in all of our people's activities as well as among all of us. We must first of all change our way of thinking, which will in turn lead to a change in our work performance, in the state machinery, in mass organizations, in the armed forces and among the people of various strata.

Advancing from a poor country with little production directly to socialism without passing through the state of capitalist development is a process of arduous and complicated revolutionary struggle taking place over a historical period of several decades. This is the widest, deepest and most radical revolutionary struggle, which will lead to the most fundamental and comprehensive changes in all aspects of society, of life and of man. For our country in its present situation, this is a stalwart and persistent struggle which has assumed various forms and various methods to oppose the old, the obsolete and the evil that are impeding our advance; and at the same time, this is a fierce struggle against the enemy's war of multisided sabotage.

Every one of us must arm himself with the great ideologies of the general line and the line for building the socialist economy laid down by the fourth party congress and applied and concretized in the various policies of all spheres of activities set forth at this fifth party congress; and, on this basis, create a deep, broad and vigorous revolutionary change. We must show creativeness in this revolutionary change. The change itself is creative and it is aimed at a more vigorous promotion of the creative factors in our revolutionary cause. The existing situation requires that we step up the struggle to check, repel and do away with the negative phenomena in the economic and cultural fields and in social life. This is a comprehensive struggle and we must be aware of the importance and complexity of it.

We must remain wide awake to clearly recognize acts of economic sabotage, poisoning of our culture and lifestyle, and acts of psychological warfare conducted by the enemy so as to promptly discover and suppress them. Concerning the criminal acts of profiteers, smugglers and numerous new exploiters and bad elements, resolute efforts must be made to uncover them for due punishment. For the illegitimate business practices that go against the law of the state by people who are engaged in individual production and trade, we must promptly criticize and persistently persuade these people to redirect themselves to legitimate work activities that are useful to the nation.

We must also recognize the deplorable misdeeds committed by a number of persons belonging to party organizations, administrative bodies and mass organizations, such as the abuse of authority, laziness, lack of discipline, making irresponsible statements, theft and under-the-counter dealings. We must resolutely condemn these misdeeds and strictly and justly deal with those who have made grave mistakes.

The results of the struggle against the negative phenomena mentioned above will be decided by the leading role of the party, the exemplary role of party cadres and members, and the active role of the masses, by the coordination among state organs and the various sectors and echelons, and by the close combination of the three types of economic, administrative and educational measures. Experience shows that negative phenomena can only be effectively overcome when we have successfully developed positive factors. This is to say that we must closely combine construction with opposition. In this undertaking, construction is the basic measure and the best way to use it is to build successfully.

Once the positive factors are developed into an overwhelming trend, it is certain that negative phenomena will be driven back. The problem here is that the state machinery must promptly establish and enforce institutions suitable to the entire country as well as to each sector, each echelon and each type of grassroots unit; and proceeding from this, make the laboring people feel enthusiastic and confident so that they will earnestly engage in productive labor and participate in the struggle against negative phenomena.

President Ho said: To build socialism, we must have socialist people.

These are people who struggle staunchly with perseverance to overcome all difficulties, against all hostile forces and negative phenomena, and for the victory of socialist order, economic stability and welfare. On this basis, our great cause will be steadily advanced.

Now more than ever before, we should recall the glorious tradition of our party and nation, which for the past few decades have defeated extremely cruel enemies to liberate and defend our fatherland and to make worthy contributions to the revolutionary cause of the world people. Now more than ever before, let all of us strive to bring into play the precious assets bequeathed by the process of revolution to the entire nation and to every one of us.

Socialist people are those endowed with noble virtues and fine sentiments, who faithfully dedicate their lives to the socialist fatherland and the people, and who work voluntarily and in a disciplined fashion. Everyone must actively work, engage in productive labor, and turn out increasingly valuable material and cultural products. Since the country is still poor and life still suffers from privations, everyone must work to the best of his ability and conscientiously, and everyone must understand that he can only live by what he produces.

Our party is a vanguard party of the working class; every party member is a militant revolutionary who takes the lead in all struggles, especially in the hardest times and places. At present, this is a prominent requirement of party membership which we must fully understand and translate into action. In our country, life has proved a universal truth: When party members take the lead, the people will follow. This is the secret formula for bringing about revolutionary changes in the economic and social situation.

Our country's working people are endowed with a staunch revolutionary spirit, ardent patriotism, courage, intelligence and creative talents. The party's leadership, the state's management, and the organizational, educational and motivational work of the mass organizations must set in motion by all means the enormous force of the people in a vigorous, broad and persistent socialist emulation movement. Experience in all our outstanding units has shown that the working people in our country are not only good producers who create the material and cultural wealth but intelligent managers who have made valuable innovations in the management of the economy and of society.

By applying a series of uniform measures, including defining concrete emulation targets, creating conditions for economic activities to be carried out regularly, implementing policies which provide material incentives, and promoting labor discipline and state law, we must launch at all costs a revolutionary movement of the working people in the cities and the countryside. This is aimed at successfully elaborating and implementing the 1981-82 and the 5-year 1981-85 state plans.

Revolution is an undertaking of the masses. Exercising their right to socialist collective mastery, our people will certainly achieve the great cause of successfully building socialism and firmly defending the socialist Vietnamese fatherland.

Let our entire party and people march forward with enthusiasm, unity and confidence, under the leadership of the party Central Committee headed by exteemed Comrade General Secretary Le Duan, and realize at all costs great Uncle Ho's instructions: Our mountains will always be, our rivers will always be, our people will always be; the U.S. aggressors defeated, we will build our country 10 times more beautiful.

All for the socialist fatherland and the people's happiness. The great cause of building socialism and defending the socialist fatherland will certainly be successful.

Romanian Party Message

AU0512120 Bucharest SCINTEIA in Romanian 30 Mar 82 p 4

[Message from the Romanian Communist Party [RCP] Central Committee to the Fifth Congress of the Vietnam Communist Party, conveyed by Ion Coman, RCP Central Committee secretary and Political Executive Committee member, in Hanoi]

[Text] On behalf of the RCP, its secretary general, Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, the Communists and all working people in Romania, we extend warm comradely greetings and wishes for success to the delegations to the Fifth Congress of the Vietnam Communist Party [VCP], Communists and all friendly Vietnamese people.

The RCP and all our people are following with interest and wholeheartedly rejoice at the significant successes achieved by the Vietnamese people under the leadership of their Communist Party in the socialist transformation of independent and unified Vietnam, in restoring the economy, in developing science, culture and education and in improving the working people's material and cultural living standards.

On this occasion it gives us pleasure to recall the relations of friendship and cooperation established between the RCP and VCP and between our countries and peoples. An eloquent expression of these relations are the militant solidarity and material, political and diplomatic support granted by the Romanian people to the just struggle waged by the Vietnamese people against colonialism and imperialism, for national and social freedom and for the fatherland's reunification.

We express the firm conviction that in the new stage, when the Vietnamese people have embarked upon the road of their unified fatherland's reconstruction, relations between the RCP and VCP and between Romania and Vietnam, forcefully stimulated by the understandings concluded during the meetings in Bucharest and Hanoi between Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu and Comrade Le Duan, will continue to develop on political, economic, scientific-technical and other levels to the benefit and in the interests of our peoples, of socioeconomic development in the two countries and of the general cause of socialism, independence, peace and international cooperation.

Dear comrades, currently the Romanian people, closely united around the RCP and its secretary general, Comrade Nicolae Ceausescu, are working with devotion and self-denial to implement the great targets set forth by the 12th party congress aimed at further developing the forces of production, at achieving a thorough agrarian revolution, at constantly improving the people's material and cultural living standard, and at Romania's transition to a new development stage -- from a developing socialist country to a semi-developed socialist country.

The RCP shows constant concern for increasing the people's socialist awareness and educating them in the spirit of socialist equity and ethics, for constantly improving the management of all fields of activity and of social relations, and for deepening socialist democracy, improving the organizational framework that will ensure and give an impetus to the wide and direct participation of the working people in the process of formulating, discussing and implementing our party's and state's domestic and foreign policy and in the leadership of all society.

Concerning itself with successfully building socialism in Romania, our party and state are promoting, at the same time, a dynamic and constructive international policy designed to contribute to establishing a climate of peace, understanding and cooperation among all world states.

Romania constantly gives priority to developing friendship and cooperation with all the socialist countries. It firmly struggles to strengthen their solidarity and to promote a new type of relations among them that will set an example of relations among free and independent nations and will increase the force of attraction and influence of socialism in the world.

At the same time, our country is developing cooperation with the developing countries, with the nonaligned states and also expanding relations with the developed capitalist countries and with all world countries, irrespective of social system.

Our overall foreign policy is constantly based on respect for the principles of fully equal rights, national independence and sovereignty, noninterference in internal affairs and mutual advantage, nonrecourse to the use or threat of force and the assertion of each people's right to develop freely and independently in keeping with its own desire and aspirations.

Comrades, the RCP and socialist Romania believe that the current international situation is particularly tense, and therefore all peoples are faced with a basic task: To safeguard peace, stop the arms race and achieve tangible steps toward disarmament and primarily nuclear disarmament. As a European country, Romania constantly acts to establish a climate of peace, security and understanding on our continent, to conclude the Madrid meeting with as positive results as possible, to convene a conference devoted to strengthening trust and achieving disarmament in Europe, and to ensure the continuity of that meeting. In this respect, we believe that everything must be done to stop the deployment of nuclear missiles in Europe and to withdraw and completely eliminate the existing ones.

We advocate the elimination of all sources of tension that exist in various parts of the globe, as well as the solution of differences between countries by peaceful and only peaceful means and negotiations by completely excluding the use or threat of force, and by respecting each people's right to build its life as it desires, without any outside interference.

Deeply concerned with the deepening gaps in the countries' economic development, our country believes that it is imperatively necessary to intensify efforts to eliminate under development and achieve a new international economic order.

In the spirit of its rich traditions of revolutionary solidarity, the RCP constantly strengthens cooperation with the communist and workers parties and acts to achieve a new type of unity based on constant respect for each party's right to independently formulate its political line, strategy and revolutionary tactics in keeping with the specific requirements and realities in each country. At the same time, the RCP is developing cooperation with the socialist and social-democratic parties, with the democratic and progressive parties in the newly independent states, with the national liberation movements and with the advanced and progressive forces everywhere. We believe that through the united efforts of all those forces it is possible for peace, socialism and progress to triumph on our planet.

In expressing thanks for the invitation to participate in congress proceedings, I wish you, dear comrades complete success in implementing the decisions you will adopt and in building socialism in your fatherland to the benefit of the Vietnamese people's happiness.

Long live friendship and multifaceted cooperation between the RCP and the VCP, and between our countries and peoples.

NGUYEN CO THACH VIEWS FRENCH ROLE IN REGION

BK061300 Hong Kong AFP in English 1241 GMT 6 Apr 82

[Text] Hanoi, 6 Apr (AFP) -- France plays "a very important role in Southeast Asia, and we want a French contribution to peace and stability in the region," Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach said here today. Mr Thach, who will pay an official visit to France April 8-9 added that Franco-Vietnamese relations were also "very important."

"Our two peoples have historic links and we have had good cooperation over the past few years," he noted.

French Science and Technology Minister Jean-Pierre Chevenement's visit to Hanoi last week was a "milestone" in bilateral cooperation, Mr Thach added. "We want to cooperate with France which has a policy of development in its relations with Third World countries."

Asked about people of dual nationality and "special cases" in Vietnam who had not been given exit visas to travel to France, Mr Thach said, "All those waiting for a visa are allowed to leave. It is not in our interests to keep people who don't want to stay." The Vietnamese foreign minister said several dozen people and addresses in the lists supplied by France could not be traced. He added that some categories of people were not allowed to leave Vietnam, including young people eligible for the draft, those who were in possession of state secrets, those such as doctors whose jobs were considered socially essential and those against whom legal action has been taken.

According to reliable sources, about 220 families, broken down into 341 French citizens of dual nationality and 480 "special cases" -- people who worked for French companies or the French administration -- still wanted to leave Vietnam as of last December.

TRUONG CHINH REPLIES TO CASTRO ON NICARAGUA

OW021355 Hanoi VNA in French 1241 GMT 29 Mar 82

[Text] Hanoi, 29 Mar (VNA) -- SRV Council of State Chairman Truong Chinh today sent the following reply to Fidel Castro Ruz, president of the Nonaligned Movement:

I have received through the medium your 19 March telegram that includes the message from His Excellency Daniel Ortega, president of the Junta of National Reconstruction of Nicaragua, in connection with the Nicaraguan Government's stand on the current situation in Central America.

The Vietnamese people have followed with profound sympathy and admiration the fraternal Nicaraguan people's revolution and the just struggle of the other Latin American peoples for freedom, democracy and their right to self-determination. We are especially concerned about the current critical situation in Central America and the Caribbean region resulting from the U.S. imperialists' policy of intervention and aggression against the independence, sovereignty, security and peace of Nicaragua and the other countries in the region.

The SRV people and government energetically condemn the Reagan administration and demand that it immediately end its plots and acts against Nicaragua, Cuba, Grenada, the Salvadoran people and the other peoples in the region.

They firmly support the heroic Nicaraguan people in their national defense and construction and fully support the correct stand, full of good will, of the Junta of National Reconstruction of Nicaragua regarding the solution to the current tension in Central America as stated in the message of His Excellency Daniel Ortega: "The Security Council is dutybound to adopt adequate measures to check imperialist maneuvers aimed at provoking a war with unforeseeable consequences and to create favorable conditions so that peaceful measures can be found through negotiations for the problems of the region."

We are convinced that under the leadership of the Sandinist National Liberation Front and the Junta of National Reconstruction, the Nicaraguan people, strengthened by the sympathy and powerful support of nonaligned countries and progressive mankind, including the peoples of the United States, Latin America and the Caribbean region, will certainly foil all the plots and acts of sabotage and aggression of U.S. imperialism and the reactionary forces in its pay.

ANTISUBMARINE GUIDANCE SYSTEM TO BE MODIFIED

BK061018 Melbourne Overseas Service in English 0830 GMT 6 Apr 82

[Text] An antisubmarine weapon developed by Australian defense scientists 20 yars ago is to be updated to extend its life into the latter part of this century. The Ikara antisubmarine guidance system is being modified at the defense research center at Salisbury in South Australia to produce a lighter, more reliable version of the same weapon. The defense minister, Mr Killen, says a demonstration model is being produced and a decision will be made next year whether to go into full-scale production in 1984. Mr Killen says the new design for the Ikara guidance system has already attracted inquiries from other countries and could enhance the Royal Australian Navy's antisubmarine capability until the year 2000.

AFP REPORTS ON LIBERAL PARTY STRUGGLE, MEETING

[By Frank Chamberlain]

[Text] Canberra, 5 April (AFP) -- Australia's national political leadership will be challenged this week in the aftermath of the crushing defeat of the Australian Liberal Party in the Victorian state election last weekend.

The former minister for foreign affairs, Andrew Peacock, announced today that he would offer himself for leadership at Thursday special Liberal Party meeting. This would mean that if successful, Mr. Peacock would be Australia's prime minister before Easter. The prime minister, Malcolm Fraser, said today: "I have been assured that the numbers are behind me and Mr. Peacock has no chance of becoming leader next Thursday."

General opinion after a survey of likely action in the parliamentary Liberal Party is that Mr. Fraser has a very good chance of survival because the whole ministry has already declared its loyalty to him and he is an expert lobbyist with patronage to offer.

If Mr. Fraser survives this challenge, this will not be the end of the matter, however, because public opinion polls continue to show an accelerating trend against the government, and Mr. Fraser refuses positively to change his economic policies of restraint and reduced public expenditure.

There are suggestions of a Fraser-Peacock reconciliation, but this is unlikely before a party vote.

Mr. Peacock, who holds the blue riband [as received] seat of Kooyong in Melbourne, formerly held continuously by the late Prime Minister Sir Robert Menzies, the Liberal Party founder, has powerful influence in the government Liberal Party machine, especially in Victoria which is also Mr. Fraser's home state.

"The Liberals are no longer regarded as the party of economic growth, social progress and opportunity. The Victorian election was a watershed in national politics. It confirmed the national trend against the Liberals shown in state by-elections in West Australia, in Victoria and in the federal by-election of Lowe in the Sydney suburbs, and also the city council elections in Brisbane, Queensland," Mr. Peacock said today after campaigning for the Liberals in the Victorian elections. "The risk of allowing Labor to occupy the government benches in Canberra is too great to stand in the way of new policy attitudes. Because sufficient members of the party believe these are matters of substance, I have therefore decided to stand," he added.

Mr. Fraser, in announcing the unprecedented urgent emergency meeting of the parliamentary Liberal Party this week, said controversy about leadership had gone on for a whole year. "The purpose of Thursday's meeting is to face the issue and end the speculation once and for all," he said.

Mr. Fraser is on a brief fishing holiday, while in his native city of Melbourne the Labor Party under John Cain is assembling a new state government which has 44 to 45 seats, having won 13, the Liberals have 24, having had 42, the Country Party eight, compared with seven, and five seats doubtful.

This is in the legislative assembly, which determines governments under the Westminister system. In the Upper House, the Legislative Council, Labor won 49.4 percent of the primary vote, compared with 45.1 percent for the combined Liberal and Country Party, but won only 10 seats and therefore lacks a majority there.

This means that Labor may not control the Upper House, although it will be in government with 52 percent of the total state vote. The Liberal and Country Party leaders in the Upper House have, for the moment, acknowledged that popular mandate given to Labor for reform, and cannot therefore block the new government's legislation.

The Victorian Upper House electoral system was established at the beginning of the century with built-in safeguards "to make sure that this doubtful democracy does not go too far," as the government of 1901 put it.

Meantime, the Federal Parliament is due to assemble on April 21, when the Fraser government hopes the leadership issue will have died.

By having the urgent meeting this week, on Maundy Thursday, the day before the Easter holidays, Mr. Fraser hopes that members, brought from all parts of Australia and overseas, will be so anxious to return home and to their holidays that the meeting will last about 10 minutes -- enough time to carry a vote of confidence.

Mr. Peacock is telling his followers today that the economic crisis facing Australia is so serious that holidays should be abandoned, and he will begin action to change the policies to fulfill the election promises at once.

The federal treasurer, John Howard, could cause a surprise by standing for leadership himself, against Mr. Peacock. This would be a surprise because he had already voted in the Cabinet that Mr. Fraser be left undisturbed until the next elections. However, if there is a "spill" making all the top leadership jobs vacant, he is likely to stand. His anxiety about the state of the economy was shown today when he admitted that Australia's inflation rate has risen above its major trading partners and "Australia's competitiveness is being daily challenged by domestic factors and cost rises," he said.

The Labor view of the challenge is the hope that Mr. Fraser will be left undisturbed, because "he is the best political capital the opposition has," in the opinion of the Federal Labor Party executive and the increasing successful leader of the Federal opposition, Bill Hayden.

YONHAP INTERVIEWS FOREIGN MINISTER MOKHTAR

[By Pak Chong-chan]

[Text] Jakarta, April 3 (YONHAP) -- Indonesia's Foreign Minister Mokhtar Kusumaatmaja Saturday expressed his hope for further cooperation between Korea and the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), saying that "bilateral relations have been very good in the past few years and it is natural for Korea to wish a closer relationship with the regional organizations."

In an interview with YONHAP, the foreign minister also said, "I welcome the initiative of the South Korean President Chon Tu-hwan on the peaceful unification of the Korean Peninsula," and added that he thought it would be constructive for North Korea to study the proposal made by the South.

Commenting on the idea of forming a broader community for Pacific-basin countries, he said, "ASEAN is not against the concept" but added that the proposals for such a group have not yet been clarified.

Mokhtar welcomed Korea's active participation in various projects in his country, such as developing natural resources, saying that "Indonesia does not want to depend too much on one or two countries in pursuing its national economic development plan."

Asked about his opinion on the roles of the United States and Japan in the Southeast Asian region, Mokhtar said the United States should support efforts to strengthen the national economies in ASEAN countries by increasing two-way trade. He urged Japan to pay more attention to the mutual benefits of technology transfer and other programs, noting that the results were beneficial worldwide.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT ON 18 MAR RIOTING ISSUED

BK021155 Jakarta Domestic Service in Indonesian 0700 GMT 2 Apr 82

[Text] The commanding officer of the Security and Order Restoration Command [Kopkamtib], Admiral Sudomo, has said that disturbances in the Functional Group [Golkar] electoral rally on Banteng Square [in Jakarta] on 18 March clearly indicated that the threat of subversion and extremists still existed. Furthermore, it also was concrete evidence of an attempt to foil the 1982 general election. This was stated by Admiral Sudomo when issuing an official statement concerning the Banteng Square incident today.

In connection with the incident, 318 persons were arrested. They were caught in the act of destroying or burning automobiles or stoning buildings and so on in Banteng Square and the vicinity. Of the 318 persons, 274 had been released after it was found that they had only been goaded into following the mob; most of them were students of primary schools and junior and senior secondary schools. The rest of the prisoners included an executive of the Development Union Party in Jakarta, who would be tried soon. It was hoped that his case could be closed before polling day on 4 May.

The opening of the trial was also welcomed by the national leadership of the Development Union Party, because the action of the executive concerned was in contradiction with party policy. The executive alone was responsible for the action.

When issuing the official statement, Admiral Sudomo was also accompanied by Information Minister Ali Murtopo.

SUZUKI 'CAUTIOUS' ON ARGENTINE SANCTIONS REQUEST

OW080231 Tokyo KYODO in English 0221 GMT 8 Apr 82

[Text] Tokyo, April 8 (KYODO) -- Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki Thursday expressed a cautious attitude toward Britain's request for Japan to take economic sanctions against Argentina for seizing the Falkland Islands in the South Atlantic.

While commenting on British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's personal letter sent to Suzuki Wednesday, he said he wants to see the moves by other countries regarding the British-Argentine dispute before deciding Japan's response to the British request. Thatcher's letter explained the British position on the conflict and expressed gratitude over Japan's opposition to armed actions, made public at the U.N. Security Council, Suzuki said.

Japan does not provide Argentina with arms, and there are very few credits or new loans from Japan to Argentina, which could be targets of Japan's economic sanctions against the South American country if and when Japan should accept the British request, Suzuki said.

Further on Falklands Conflict

[Text] Tokyo, April 8 (KYODO) -- Japan will support all diplomatic efforts aimed at a peaceful solution to the Falkland Islands dispute, Foreign Minister Yoshio Sakurauchi told the House of Councillors Foreign Affairs Committee Thursday.

He stressed that Japan wished to show its support for the current American mediation initiative, which he felt might prove successful, because the U.S. was a trusted ally of both sides. Concerning British requests for a halt to further grants of government credits to Argentina, he said Japan wished to watch other developments before taking a decision.
